SEATTLE (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Olympic Savings Bank (NASDAQ:OSBW) announced Friday that shareholders approved a one-for-four reverse stock split at a special meeting of stockholders held yesterday afternoon in Seattle.

''Olympic is considering a private sale of a large block of shares. The increased number of authorized but unissued shares of common stock which will result from the reverse stock split would enable Olympic to sell a greater percentage of its common stock,'' said John W. Fuller, chairman and president.

''Olympic has also filed a registration statement with the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) with respect to 3,200,000 shares of its common stock. The reverse stock split would enable Olympic to increase the numbers of shares of common stock that it could register and sell,'' Fuller added.

After the reverse stock split, Olympic Savings Bank will have 333,027 shares issued and outstanding, but the Bank's authorized shares of common stock will remain at 5 million shares.

More than 71 percent of Olympic's shareholders voted in favor of the proposal to amend the Bank's Articles of Incorporation in order to effect the reverse split. Olympic plans to file the Amendment to its Articles of Incorporation with the Supervisor of Savings and Loan Associations of the State of Washington on or about Dec. 21, 1990, which will then become the effective date for the split.

As soon as practicable after the effective date, stockholders will be notified and requested to surrender their certificates representing shares of common stock to the Exchange Agent in exchange for certificates representing new common stock of Olympic Savings Bank. Shareholders will receive one new share of common stock in exchange for every four shares of existing common stock owned. Fractional shares will be paid in cash at a price equal to the average of the closing bid and asked prices of Olympic common stock on the business day preceding the effective date.

The Exchange Agent for the common stock of Olympic Savings Bank will be:

PORTLAND, ORE. (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE)--Electro Scientific Industries Inc. (NASDAQ:ESIO) reported a net income of $118,000, or 2 cents per share, on sales of $15.3 million for the second quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990.

This compares with a net loss of $274,000, or 4 cents per share, and sales of $19.2 million in the same quarter last year.

''As planned, the cost reduction programs put in place earlier this year have significantly reduced operating expenses, allowing us to be modestly profitable at a lower sales level,'' said Mike Ellsworth, ESI's president and chief executive officer.

Orders in the second quarter were $16.7 million, up from the first quarter's rate of $15.6 million. Both the hybrid and passive component pieces of the company's business are seeing strong orders while semiconductor customers continue to delay capital equipment purchases, looking for an upturn in their business.

In all respects, the company remains in a solid financial position. The balance sheet is strong and cash flow for the first six months was positive.

ESI is a world leader in the production of laser systems for trimming and processing microelectronic circuitry and a major materials and equipment supplier to the passive component industry.

RALEIGH, NC (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - First Citizens BancShares has agreed to acquire Hendersonville-based First Federal Savings Bank, according to a joint announcement made Thursday by James B. Hyler Jr., president of First Citizens, and James E. Creekman, president of First Federal.

Terms of the agreement provide for the conversion of First Federal from a mutual institution to a stock company and the simultaneous acquisition of the savings bank by First Citizens BancShares. First Federal would then immediately be consolidated into First Citizens Bank.

The acquisition is subject to several conditions, including affirmative vote of the majority of First Federal's eligible members and approval from applicable federal and state regulatory agencies. No date has been set for consummation of the transaction, but completion of the acquisition could occur late in the second quarter of 1991.

First Federal's management, all branch employees and many of its staff employees will be offered continued employment by First Citizens Bank.

An independent appraisal firm will conduct a valuation of First Federal that will consider such factors as economic and demographic conditions in First Federal's market areas and financial projections of its results of operations.

To effect the conversion/acquisition, First Citizens intends to offer its class A common stock. The total number of shares issued will be determined at the close of the offering by dividing the valuation of First Federal by the market price of BancShares' class A stock.

Creekman said the decision to affiliate with First Citizens followed an exhaustive study of the direction of the thrift industry and the alternatives available to First Federal.

First Federal has about $456 million in assets and operates 13 offices in Hendersonville, Asheville, Brevard, Candler, Fletcher, Marion and Tryon.

First Citizens BancShares is the holding company of First Citizens Bank, a $4.4 billion statewide financial institution that operates 326 offices in 167 North Carolina towns and cities. BancShares' class A and class B common stock is traded over-the-counter, and class A is quoted on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol FCNCA.

MANATI, PUERTO RICO (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - A multinational, multi-billion-dollar pharmaceutical manufacturing operation -- owned equally by the Du Pont Co. and Merck & Co. Inc. -- will commence production on Jan. 1, 1991.

Inauguration of state-of-the-art production facilities in Puerto Rico by Du Pont and Merck & Co. continues a growing trend by leading Mainland U.S. and foreign pharmaceutical.

Puerto Rico now produces 50 percent of the total annual pharmaceutical dosage units in the U.S. marketplace and 25 percent of the worldwide volume. Annual pharmaceutical shipments from Puerto Rico, currently at $4 billion, are expected to reach $6 billion in 1992.

Du Pont/Merck spokesman predict first year joint venture sales of $700 million through global marketing. Du Pont and Merck parent organizations will have equal representation in the venture's governing board.

Du Pont/Merck Pharmaceutical will have a research staff of about 1,500, including over 400 doctoral level scientists, a first-year research and development (R&D) budget of $230 million, and a professional sales staff of 600 people.

The joint venture will utilize the Puerto Rican facilities of Du Pont Medical Products, including the new $60 million 300,000 sq. ft. plant inaugurated last week at Manati and a sister facility in Aguadilla, on the west coast. Combined plant space is over 600,000 sq. ft.

The Manati facility, the most sophisticated plant operated by Du Pont, has fully automated packaging lines and computerized testing Laboratories. It is designed to house three distinct production lines in a carefully integrated operation: pharmaceuticals, diagnostic consumables and imaging agents.

Products to be manufactured in the plant will include: tablets, liquids, injectable ampuls and syringes, diagnostic consumables and lyophilized (freeze-dried) imaging agents in vials.

Among others, the new plant will manufacture Du Pont prescription medications such as ''Coumadin,'' an anti-clothing agent; ''Hespan,'' a plasma volume extender; the analgesics ''Percodan'' and ''Percocet''; thallium imaging agent and key new products including the recently approved anti-arrhythmic, ''Ethmozine,'' and ''Cardiolite'' and ''Persantine.''

A priority of the venture will be to build its European business base by adding some current Merck pharmaceutical products and by increasing its European sales force over the next five years.

OKLAHOMA CITY (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Newspapers can now create their own low-cost in-house library databases through the powerful new "PC Datatimes" software system, unveiled here Thursday.

The "PC DataTimes" system enables small and mid-sized papers to build computerized libraries using stand-alone personal computers (PCs). "PC DataTimes" also will serve larger publishing companies that are creating PC-based editorial systems, a trend in many newsrooms. "PC DataTimes" can link directly into any sized PC network.

"For the first time, sophisticated library computerization is available to small and mid-sized newspapers," said Allen Paschal, Data Times president. "In addition, larger newspapers moving into the PC environment can enjoy added operating flexibility."

DataTimes expects that many of the newspapers installing "PC DataTimes" will become available on its worldwide online information network. DataTimes subscribers use their computers to electronically access the files of more than 645 publications, news services and financial databases from four continents. New power in newsrooms

The "PC DataTimes" system offers newsroom users more powerful searching capability than is available through any other searching or retrieval method, the company said.

Instead of relying only on the traditional (Boolean only) search engines, the new system utilizes so-called "smart searching" to find stored information even when the user does not know exact search terms.

For example, "PC DataTimes" includes a proprietary "Probable Relevance Ranking" utility that can be readily used by even a virtual novice to electronic information retrieval.

By asking for a comparison of a specific newspaper article against all others stored in a newspaper's in-house database, the user can receive, in seconds, a list of articles that deal with similar topics, ranked by "probable relevance" to the original.

The "Probable Relevance Ranking" feature incorporates complicated heuristic algorithms that require no special processing by the user. Boolean search systems, in contrast, require the user to narrow electronic searches by adding terms and words to be searched.

DataTimes is an industry reseller for Personal Library Software Inc. of Rockville, Md., which develops and markets computer software for managing data text and images. "PC DataTimes is available now. The cost for installation varies by the number of PC workstations licensed.

KING OF PRUSSIA, PA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Envirosafe Services Inc. (NASDAQ:ENVI) Friday announced that at a meeting on Thursday, Dec. 20, the Ohio Hazardous Waste Facility Board voted to delay the issuance of an order relating to the application of its Ohio subsidiary for renewal and modification of its permit to operate a waste disposal facility at Oregon, Ohio.

The delay was ordered to permit Envirosafe, the City of Oregon and the Ohio EPA, parties to the proceeding, together with the staff of the Board, to draft permit terms and conditions which might be acceptable to the Board on three issues which were raised by Envirosafe in its Motion for reconsideration: the authorization of cell expansion, the funding of perpetual care, and the annual tonnage limitation of waste to be accepted at the Envirosafe facility.

Under the procedures set down by the Board, the Board's staff will formulate by year-end, proposed terms to be considered by the parties. The parties will have four weeks to review and, if appropriate, modify the proposed terms and conditions in an effort to achieve a better result for all parties than the Aug. 29 decision. The Board will then schedule a meeting to further consider the three issues. On Aug. 29, the Board had voted to renew Envirosafe's permit, but denied Envirosafe's requested expansion which had been recommended by the Board's adjudication panel. At its meeting on Dec. 20, the Board tabled Envirosafe's Motion for reconsideration pending the completion of efforts to develop appropriate terms and conditions for a permit.

HOPKINTON, MA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - EMC Corp. announced Friday that after only three months on the market it has shipped over 1,000 units of its SL/935-EXP disk drive for IBM AS/400 and System/38 computers.

The SL/935-EXP reached the thousand-unit mark in less than half the time of its successful predecessor, the SL/935-XP.

Introduced in September, 650 SL/935-EXP units were expected to ship by the end of 1990. The product surpassed this goal in mid-November. Even after shipping 1,000 units this quarter the company expects to have a backlog of over 200 planned for shipment in the first quarter of 1991.

EMC Corp. introduced the first third-party DASD subsystem for IBM midrange computers in 1987 and has experienced great success as the dominant third party supplier of drives in the market. With the success of the SL/935-EXP and several new products planned for 1991 the company expects to maintain or improve upon this position.

EMC's subsystem provides five times the storage capacity of the equivalent IBM storage product and uses only one third of the electricity required to power the IBM drive. The SL/935-EXP also features EMC's proprietary Automatic Error Thresholding (AET) program which continuously monitors drive behavior by tracking the number of retries and reallocations common to hard disk drives. The program alerts the user if reliability indicators exceed a predetermined threshold and allows maintenance to be scheduled at the user's convenience.

EMC Corp. supplies innovative, high-performance storage products and related services for midrange and mainframe computers worldwide.

FREEHOLD, NJ (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Calton Inc. (NYSE: CN) announced Friday that it has reached an agreement with its lending group which revises certain terms of its secured credit agreement, including an extension of the term of the credit agreement from April 30, 1991 to Dec. 1, 1991, and a restructuring of the terms under which the outstanding balance under the credit agreement is to be repaid.

The effectiveness of the credit agreement amendment is conditioned upon, among other things, the company entering into a definitive agreement to exchange certain properties and joint venture interests for an approximately $18 million principal amount of its 16 5/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes by Jan. 10, 1991.

The company previously reported that it had entered into a non-binding letter of intent to acquire the notes and that it expected to enter into a definitive agreement with the holder of the notes by Dec. 31, 1990.

As part of the restructuring of the credit facility, the lending group has agreed to defer a $10 million reduction of borrowings which was originally required on Nov. 30, 1990. The revised agreement provides for a monthly reduction of borrowing availability by an amount equal to specified percentages of land and housing sales during the preceding month, but not less than $500,000 per month.

The lending group's commitment will be reduced by an aggregate $15 million in May 1991, inclusive of credits for the monthly required reductions. The company will be obliged to reduce outstanding borrowings by $10 million if the amendment to the credit agreement becomes effective but the company does not complete the proposed acquisition of its 16 5/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes by Jan. 31, 1990.

The credit agreement currently permits borrowings of up to $85 million, all of which is currently outstanding. In view of current economic conditions and conditions in the real estate market, the company is not certain it will be able to reduce outstanding borrowings by May 1991 as required by the revised agreement.

The lending group has indicated that it will entertain additional proposals to revise the credit facility, including an extension of the term beyond December 1991.

As part of the restructuring of the credit agreement, the interest rate on borrowings will increase from one-fourth of a percent over the prime rate to one-half of a percent over the prime rate and the method of determining how much may be borrowed under the agreement will be revised.

ELMSFORD, NY (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - V Band Corp. (NASDAQ/NML:VBAN) reported sales for the fourth quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 of $4.6 million, a decrease of $2.3 million, or 33 percent below the fourth quarter 1989 sales.

Sales were $18.7 million for fiscal 1990, a decrease of 28 percent below the fiscal 1989 sales of $25.8 million. The overall decrease in sales primarily reflects the effects of the tenuous economic conditions that affected the financial services market worldwide during 1990.

For the fourth quarter 1990, V Band had net losses of $3.5 million, or 52 cents per share as compared to net losses of $1.9 million, or 29 cents per share for the same period in 1989. During the fiscal years 1990 and 1989, net losses were $5.7 million, or 87 cents per share and $5.3 million, or 79 cents per share, respectively.

These losses were attributable to declining revenues due to the continuing decline of the financial services industry to which the company sells its products, write downs of various assets, as well as charges for the effects of implementing future cost-cutting measures, such as relocation.

Gross profit margin for the fourth quarter 1990 was a negative 4 percent, a decrease from the 20 percent reported for the comparable period in 1989. The fourth quarter margin for 1990 was unfavorably impacted by a non-recurring write down of $1.3 million related to previously acquired capitalized technology.

The fourth quarter 1989 margin reflected inventory obsolescence write downs along with warranty reserves amounting to $.9 million.

The fourth quarter 1990 write down of the acquired technology investment was due to the effects of V Band moving toward a more cost effective and highly efficient digital technology vs. the analog-related technology acquired in 1987. For the fiscal year period ending 1990 and 1989, the gross margins were 29 percent and 27 percent, respectively.

Operating expenses decreased by $.2 million to $5.5 million for the fourth quarter 1990 as compared to $5.7 million for the same period in 1989. The fourth quarter 1990 expenses are inclusive of a non-recurring corporate office relocation charge of $1.1 million. This relocation charge represents a cost reduction program which includes V Band's exercise of its option to cancel the lease on its corporate headquarters. V Band expects to achieve significant annual lease cost savings by relocating its corporate offices to a nearby location to be determined before January 1992.

For the fiscal year 1990, operating expenses declined $4.6 million to $14.9 million vs. the $19.4 million for 1989. When excluding a $1.1 million relocation charge from operating expenses in 1990, a $5.7 million or 29 percent reduction as compared to 1989 was achieved.

Although V Band recorded pre-tax losses of $9.7 million for 1990, its cash and marketable securities balances declined $.5 million to $19.3 million. V Band expects to receive a cash tax refund of approximately $3.7 million in 1991, which will more than offset the cash decline which occured during 1990.

V Band Corp. is a leader in the design and manufacturing of high-density, electronic key telephone systems used by world's leading financial industries in the trading and dealing of stocks bonds, commodities and currencies and by airlines, utilities, railroads, emergency services and the military in communications control centers.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - American Airlines' purchase from TWA of six transatlantic routes to London from U.S. points seems certain to increase pressure for a new U.S./British bilateral air services agreement, according to the current issue of Aviation Week & Space Technology.

Dallas Bureau Chief David Brown reports the purchase may force the resolution of such issues as airport access restrictions, foreign ownership of air carriers and possibly other, long-standing issues between the two nations. However, bilateral talks late this week in London were expected to focus narrowly on the request by both American and United Airlines, which purchased similar routes to London from Pan American last month, to take over the two selling airlines' rights at London's Heathrow Airport.

In the most recent developments, American agreed to pay TWA $445 million for routes to London-Heathrow from New York, Boston, Los Angeles and Philadelphia. By purchasing these routes, American has regained parity with United, which had threatened to become the dominant U.S. carrier on the North Atlantic with its purchase of Pan Am routes. Brown reports that the sale of routes to American has had the side effect of aligning the two largest U.S. airlines to press jointly for more liberal access to London and other British cities. This is likely to trigger the biggest North Atlantic air services battle since the late 1970's.

Nippon Buys Boeing 777s: All Nippon Airways has become the second customer for Boeing's new 777, placing a firm order for 15 of the twinjets, valued at about $1.7 billion. San Francisco Bureau Chief Richard O'Lone reports the Japanese carrier also ordered five Airbus Industrie A340 four-engine, long-range transports. The aircraft from both manufacturers will replace Lockheed L-1011 trijets, All Nippon said.
The 777 will operate domestically, the A340 on long-range routes where traffic does not justify use of the larger Boeing 747. All Nippon took options for another ten 777s and five more A340s. Total value of the transaction, including options, spares and other equipment, could total nearly $6 billion, measured in delivery year dollars.

STAMFORD, CT (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Northeast Bancorp Inc. Friday announced that given the further deterioration of the loan portfolio in October and November, it is projecting a sizeable loss for the fourth quarter which will approximate the $25 million loss recorded in the fourth quarter 1989.

The projected fourth quarter loss will result principally from an increase in the provision for possible loan losses needed to boost loan loss reserves to cover the increases in non-performing assets and loan charge-offs.

In commenting on this projection, Frank J. Kugler, Jr., chairman and CEO, indicated that ''The increase in non-performing assets since the third quarter reflects the severity of the economic decline in Connecticut which is affecting all business sectors as well as consumers.

''Fortunately, Northeast Bancorp entered this recession stongly capitalized which has enabled the company to absorb these losses. Based on year end projections, our capital ratios will be well above regulatory minimums.''

Actual financial results for the fourth quarter and the full year are expected to be reported in mid-January.

MILWAUKEE (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Applied Power Inc. will release its first quarter 1991 earnings on Jan. 3, 1991.

In anticipation of this release, the following are relevant data about the performance of the company in the first quarter.

Orders for the quarter were $117.4 million, up 6.4 percent above the first quarter of 1990. Sales were $113.9 million, up 2.9 percent over the first quarter of 1990. Orders and sales by business segment for the quarter were as follows:

Operating profits for the Enerpac, Power-Packer and GB Electrical segments increased compared to 1990. The operating loss at Apitech increased compared to 1990 as a result of a reorganization of the manufacturing facilities in Butler. Operating profit at Wright Line declined because of a loss in the European operation and no change in the other units.

The largest year-to-year operating decline was at Barry Controls because of a change in sales mix at Barry Aerospace, and because of a change in sales mix and a lag of sales behind order increases at Barry Industrial. First quarter earnings are expected to fall below last year, but at this time are not finalized.

The level of orders and sales of the first quarter are expected to continue and enable Applied Power to reach its 1991 sales goal.

In anticipation of slower economic growth, the company some time ago started to selectively reduce employment. The total peaked at 3,600 in January, 1990. Since then, employment has been lowered by 50, and will be reduced again by the end of February to below 3,500. Excluding currency rate change the goal is to reduce employment expense to 1990 levels by the fourth quarter.

Applied Power is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the APWRA symbol. Applied Power is a global company which manufactures and distributes tools, equipment, systems, components and consumable items to manufacturing, construction, transportation, mobile equipment, aircraft, natural resource, specialized machinery and office markets.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Applied Microbiology Inc. (NASDAQ:APLY) Friday announced a major redirection of corporate operations towards commercial marketing of its AMBICIN antibacterial agents and away from basic multi-directional research.

In explaining the shift in priorities, David Guttmann, chairman of the company stated that ''This is the logical and desired corporate progression made possible by the successful development of AMBICINs, natural and powerful antimicrobial compounds.

''Our basic research costs on AMBICINs are now behind us and we are entering an exciting and significant new phase in our coporate history. We expect to begin generating product and raw material sales in 1991.''

AMBICINs have been proven to successfully eliminate harmful bacteria and therefore have tremendous potential in such multi-billion dollar markets as oral care, animal veterinary medicine, dermatology, and industrial applications.

To penetrate these markets Applied has established strategic partnerships with some of the leading pharmaceutical and drug companies in the world.

Agreements are now in effect with Pfizer Inc., Calgon Vestal Laboratories, a subsidiary of Merck and Co., Babson Brothers and Burns, Philp and Co. Ltd., and additional agreements are envisioned shortly with major European and Japanese concerns.

Guttmann concluded, ''Reducing our research budget will save over $500,000 per year in overhead with, we expect, no adverse effects on the scientific and technical support we will provide our strategic partners. Our sole thrust for the 1990's will be to expand our existing strategic partnerships, form new relationships and successfully commercialize our AMBICIN formulations.''

SAN MARCOS, CA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of Natural Alternatives International Inc. (NASDAQ:NATA), manufacturer of specially formulated vitamins and minerals, has authorized the company to repurchase up to 5 percent of NAI's outstanding common stock at market prices not to exceed $3 per share, Mark A. LeDoux, president announced Friday.

The company currently has 3,846,549 shares outstanding.

''General weakness of the stock market, together with our forecast of a loss in the second fiscal quarter, has produced a decline of more than 50 percent in the price of our stock,'' LeDoux said.

''However, our expectation of a strong second half recovery and resumption of our rapid growth in fiscal 1992 makes a stock buyback seem to be an excellent current use of our corporate funds.''

LeDoux said the repurchase plan is now in effect, with purchases to be made from the open market at management's discretion.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 21) - Around one million Iraqis were evacuated early Friday from Baghdad as part of civil defense drills ahead of a possible U.S.-led attack, officials and witnesses said.

The Iraqi civil defense services said that the exercises began at 7.00 a.m. (0400 GMT). Residents were expected to return to their homes in the afternoon.

Baghdad counts four million inhabitants.

The first evacuees were taken to "secure areas outside Baghdad" aboard hundreds of public buses and private vehicles that were mobilised for the drills by the state-run civil defense, witnesses said.

It was not immediately clear if and when other residents of Baghdad would be evacuated.

The drills were the first since Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait. Shortly after that date the Iraqi authorities evacuated part of the capital.

Iraq's official press has said that residents of major cities have been receiving instructions on what to do in case of an American nuclear or chemical attack.

Iraqis have also been urged to stockpile domestic fuel in case of an attack by the U.S.-led 350,000 multinational forced deployed in the Gulf region.

The United Nations Security Council has authorised the multinational troops to use force to dislodge Iraq's army from Kuwait if it did not pull out from the emirate before midnight January 15.

PARIS (DEC. 21) - France had a 601 million francs (120.2 million dollars) trade deficit in November, a marked improvement over the 6.7 billion (1.34 billion dollars) deficit recorded in October, according to provisional seasonally adjusted figures issued Friday by the customs department.

For the first 11 months of the year, the trade deficit in seasonally adjusted figures was 39.8 billion francs, an improvement on the same period last year when the deficit amounted to 41.646 billion francs.

November's exports reached 100.21 billion francs (20.04 billion dollars) while imports fell to 100.82 billion francs (20.16 billion dollars).

Trade in manufactured goods (including military equipment) showed a clear improvement in November with a deficit of 181 million francs against a deficit of 4.288 billion in October.

There was a net gain in farm trade, with a surplus of 3.54 billion francs against 2.78 billion in October.

The energy deficit also dropped in November to 8.04 billion francs against 9.56 billion in October.

TOKYO (DEC. 21) - Toyota Motor Corp. said Friday it had chosen Bechtel Corp. of the United States and Japan's biggest construction group Taisei Corp. to build a 110 million dollar test track in Arizona.

The two companies plan to form a joint venture early next year with completion set for early 1993.

The 4,800 hectare (12,000 acre) site will be Toyota's fourth test track and its first in the United States, the company said.

The complex, located near Phoenix, will include a track to test vehicles at speeds of up to 260 kilometres (160 miles) an hour. Other features include a cornering course, a hill-climb area and a weather-exposure area.

Taisei was also involved in a Toyota test track completed on the northern Japanese island of Hokkaido in 1988.

TOKYO (DEC. 21) - Japan's Bridgestone Corp. said Friday it had halved its profit forecast for the current year to reflect lower-than-expected results in North America and Europe, civil war in Liberia and increased costs.

The company, the world's third-biggest tyremaker, said it now expected a net profit of only 10 billion yen (77 million dollars) in the year to December, down 50 per cent from its initial estimate in March. The lastest forecast represents an increase of four per cent from the previous year.

Sales estimates were also revised downwards to 1.78 billion yen (13.7 billion dollars), down one per cent from its earlier forecast but up five per cent from the previous year, the company said.

Bridgestone said the downward revision reflected weak replacement demand, reduced vehicle output and increased costs in North America and Europe.

The lower forecast also reflected the suspension of natural rubber operations in Liberia and increased costs of raw materials, it said.

SEOUL (DEC. 21) - South Korea will give priority to curbing inflation and boosting export competitiveness next year, when economic growth should run at seven per cent, a senior official said here Friday.

Deputy Premier and Economic Planning Minister Lee Seung-Yun reported to President Roh Tae-Woo that a major source of concern for South Korea in 1991 would be inflation which hit 9.5 per cent this year.

"The government will put emphasis on curbing inflation and wage hikes in the coming year as the inflationary trend is gathering steam," Mr. Lee was quoted as telling Mr. Roh by a government spokesman.

Mr. Lee said rising oil bills because of the Gulf crisis, overdue increases in utility charges and the faltering Uruguay Round of multilateral trade talks would all fan inflation.

He told the president that price increases in 1991 should come in at between eight and nine per cent, while the economy as a whole was projected to grow by seven per cent, two per cent lower than this year.

Per capita gross national product would total 6,220 dollars.

Mr. Lee said exports were estimated at 69.6 billion dollars on a customs clearance basis, up 7.8 per cent from this year. Imports would increase 9.3 per cent to 76.5 billion dollars, to leave a 6.9 billion dollar trade deficit, up from 5.5 billion dollars this year.

The current account deficit -- merchandise trade plus some transfers -- was projected to rise from one billion dollars to three billion dollars.

Mr. Lee said the government would help South Korea's export industries regain the competitive edge they had lost as a result of wage hikes and economic slowdown in overseas markets.

The government would continue its temporary tax relief for investment in the manufacturing sector next year and offer 650 billion won (907 million dollars) for automation and 250 billion won (349 million dollars) for small businesses in special loans.

It will also invest 2.5 trillion won (3.5 billion dollars) in infrastructure, 30 per cent more than in 1990, Mr. Lee added.

PRETORIA (DEC. 21) - South Africa's Justice Ministry has released the names of some 790 exiles who have been granted indemnity from prosecution if they return, a ministry spokesman said Friday.

All fall into the category of exiles who, fearing problems because of their political activity, left the country illegally before October 8 this year.

President Frederik de Klerk on Tuesday granted indemnity to all people in that category, provided they furnished all the information required of them on a standard indemnity application form, which has been approved by the black nationalist African National Congress.

The ANC estimates it has some 20,000 exiled members or supporters, and the South African Council of Churches' National Coordinating Committee for the Repatriation of South African Exiles reckons there are 40,000 exiles in total.

TOKYO (DEC. 21) - Japan is to extend 42.633 billion yen (315.8 million dollars) to China as the second portion of its official yen-denominated loans for fiscal 1990, ending next March, the government said Friday.

Japan and China exchanged notes Friday in Beijing on the loans, which will be used for five projects, including a port expansion project in the special economic zone of Shenzhen, development in Hainan and modernization of civil aviation control systems.

The loans, carrying an interest rate of 2.5 per cent, will be repaid over 30 years, including a grace period of 10 years.

The latest loans are part of Japan's 810 billion yen (six billion dollar) loan package to China, which was suspended after Beijing's military crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators in Tiananmen Square last year.

Japan announced its intention of resuming its yen loan package at July's Houston summit of the seven major industrialized powers and had previously extended 36.511 billion yen (270 million dollars).

BRUSSELS (DEC. 21) - The European Community (EC) has begun to help fund a major 13 kilometre (eight mile) road and rail link between the Danish islands of Fyn and Sjaelland, the European Investment Bank announced here Friday.

The bank, which handles the EC's financing projects, said in a statement that it had already lent 407 million Danish kroner (about 70 million dollars) for the link, and was ready to make available another 1,600 million kroner.

Last year, the project ran into trouble when the European Court of Justice ruled that Denmark had breached EC rules on fair competition during the tender process by insisting that Danish workers be given priority.

As a result, Denmark had to compensate unsuccessful tenderers, notably the French firm Bouygues.

The link, a combined bridge and tunnel for road and rail across the Great Belt (Store Baelt) waterway, will connect the east and west of Denmark and fill a missing link between Scandinavia and Western Europe, the bank said.

The project comprises a rail link of two parallel seven-kilometre (4.5-mile) tunnels from Sjaelland to the little island of Sprogoe halfway across the Store Baelt, and a low-span bridge from Sprogoe to Fyn.

The road link comprises a high-span bridge from Sjaelland to Sprogoe, then shares the low-span bridge with the railway.

HONG KONG (DEC. 21) - HutchVision said Friday its 400 million dollar satellite television scheme should be broadcasting by the end of 1991 on two or three channels.

The channels will carry mainly music and sports for Hong Kong, Taiwan and Thailand in the first phase of operation, a company spokesman said.

He added that the company had also completed contracts for its signal to be "up-linked" from Hong Kong to the AsiaSat 1 satellite, launched in April by a Chinese rocket, which allows it to reach a potentiaL audience of 2.3 billion from Japan to India.

HutchVision, a fully-owned subsidiary of local tycoon Li Ka-shing's Hutchison Whampoa Ltd., obtained Wednesday a 12-year non-exclusive Hong Kong government license to use the British colony as its base.

The license carries a three-year ban on transmitting programmes in Cantonese, the main southern Chinese dialect spoken here, so as not to compete with the British colony's two commercial televsion stations.

The spokesman said the number of channels would rise to seven by the start of the third year of operations with two "paid-for" channels along and five "free-to-air."

NAIROBI (DEC. 21) - Ethiopian rebels claimed Friday that they killed 152 government troops in four days of fighting last week in Shoa province, only 120 kilometres (75 miles) north of the capital, Addis Ababa.

The Tigre People's Liberation Front (TPLF) said in a radio broadcast monitored in Nairobi that they had also captured 18 soldiers and wounded 69 in fighting around the town of Sela Dingay between December 13 and 16.

The radio did not mention rebel casualties and there was no independent confirmation of the claims.

The TPLF and a smaller rebel group, the Ethiopian People's Democratic Movement (EPDM) are fighting together as the Ethiopian People's Revolutionary Democratic Front to overthrow the government of President Mengistu Haile Mariam.

The TPLF controls all of the northern province of Tigre and parts of Wollo, Gondar and Shoa, where Addis Ababa is located.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) - U.S. satellites and sensors monitoring the Gulf region failed to spot the fueling and launch of an Iraqi medium-range missile in an early December test, the Los Angeles Times reported Friday.

Preparations and the first of three launches of the December 2 test were complete before the monitors detected them, the newspaper said.

The monitors picked up the missile about one minute before impact.

U.S. military officials, who believed they could detect any Iraqi fueling and prelaunch programs, were reportedly taken by surprise.

"We had no advance warning," an unidentified administration official was quoted as saying.

Iraq had warned commercial airliners to avoid its airspace before the test, but did not elaborate. The newspaper said that warning spurred U.S. and Israeli officials to ready their air forces for a possible attack.

A number of pilots were in their cockpits, "ready to go," one official told the Times.

The official said that Joseph Wilson, the chief U.S. diplomat in Baghdad, received a telephone call from the State Department in Washington after the first missile was fired.

"The balloon is going up - this is no drill," the caller reportedly told Mr. Wilson.

Officials later reported the launch had been a test.

The missiles, launched from a site near Basra in southeastern Iraq, traveled more than 640 kilometers (400 miles) west toward Israel before they landed in a remote area in the Iraqi desert, the Times said.

The newspaper noted that if the missiles had been fired southward, they could have hit U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, and if they had been launched from western Iraq, they could have reached Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

According to U.S. officials, the missiles were fired from an area that was not being monitored.

But one expert, Seth Carus of the Washington Institute for Near East Policy, told the Times it was strange that Basra would not be under surveillance because short-range missiles could be launched at U.S. forces from there.

UNDATED (DEC. 21) - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's shock resignation has caused confusion and alarm throughout the world, with politicians and observers wondering what lies ahead for the Soviet Union.

In the Soviet Union itself press reaction was divided. Liberal papers said Mr. Shevardnadze's resignation was "a loss for (Soviet President Mikhail) Gorbachev" while conservative ones said the resignation was "spiteful."

Anatoli Sobchak, the reformist mayor of Leningrad, told the Congress of Deputies on Friday that Mr. Shevardnadze's warning on the risks of dictatorship were "very serious." He said that if the government was not able to stabilise economic relations between the regions and the republics, "dozens and then hundreds of companies will have to close as from January 1 because of lack of supplies."

"We'll then see democrats and conservatives begging the military to come and govern us."

The Communist Party paper Pravda was the only one in Moscow not to lead its front-page with the resignation story nor to publish a picture of the foreign minister.

Moskovski Komsomolets, the young Communists' daily, quoted Vladimir Ptrovski, deputy foreign minister, who said his boss's resignation was due "to the return of totalitarian-dictatorial thought which is still very strong in certain quarters."

Krasnaia Zvezda, the armed forces' daily, vigorously defended Colonels Nikolai Petruchenko and Viktor Alknis of the Soyuz conservative group whom Mr. Shevardnadze accused of being "reactionary."

In the United States, Secretary of State James Baker said Mr. Shevardnadze's warning against the emergence of a dictatorship in the Soviet Union should not be taken lightly.

In his emotional resignation speech Mr. Shevardnadze said he was stepping down as "a warning" against the emergence of "reactionary forces" in the Soviet Union.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Mr. Shevardnadze's announcement was "indicative of the seriousness of the situation in the Soviet Union. This is clearly a critical time for the process of political and economic reform in the Soviet Union."

ISLAMABAD (DEC. 21) - Pakistan's Supreme Court has suspended judicial proceedings in five cases of alleged abuse of power against ousted prime minister Benazir Bhutto, court sources said Friday.

It ordered the suspension while admitting for hearing Thursday a petition by Ms. Bhutto seeking transfer of the cases from Lahore to Karachi, they said.

Ms. Bhutto is facing trial in seven cases before special courts in Lahore and Karachi on charges brought against her by President Ghulam Ishaq Khan after he dismissed her government in August for alleged corruption and misrule.

If convicted the former premier can be barred from politics for up to seven years.

Ms. Bhutto's Peoples Democratic Alliance has threatened to boycott parliament if its leaders are disqualified from politics.

PARIS (DEC. 21) - Cambodia's rival factions grouped in the Supreme National Council sat at the negotiating table together Friday for the first time in three months to discuss a U.N.-brokered draft peace settlement.

The 12 members of the transitional authority embodying Cambodia's sovereignty until U.N.-supervised general elections, opened a meeting at the government conference centre here on the urging of France and Indonesia, co-chairman of the Paris international conference on Cambodia.

The session was also attended by the U.N. Secretary-General's special representative Raffeedin Ahmed.

About 150 representatives of the Cambodian community in France, including Buddhist monks, gathered outside the centre to watch the participants arrive, holding up placards reading: "99 per cent of Cambodians support the U.N. plan."

The plan provides for a U.N. transitional authority to have sweeping powers, including the right to take over key ministries, in the run-up to elections.

But Hun Sen, prime minister of the Vietnamese-installed Phnom Penh government, said on arrival here Friday that the Cambodians in the SNC would work together "to decide what powers the United Nations should have".

A U.N. role was necessary, he said but Cambodia should "not be placed under contol of another country or an international organisation".

Mr. Hun Sen, whose government has six seats on the SNC, had earlier criticisedthe proposals for "dismantling" his regime.

The participants joined in prayers with the Buddhist monks holding candles as they entered the conference centre.

French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas and his Indonesian counterpart Ali Alatas were to officially submit for approval to the SNC the "proposed structure" for agreements on a political settlement.

The SNC is made up of representatives of the three Cambodian resistance factions and of the Phonm Penh government.

Details of the plan were worked out by representatives of the five permanent members of the Security Council in Paris on November 26.

At the same time, Friday's meeting provides an opportunity for the SNC to meet face to face and start work on its peace mandate.

The SNC, formed in Jakarta in September, has only met once - unsuccessfully - since its formation, and the peace process had been held up because the 12 failed to agree on a president.

The deadlock, which has prevented the SNC taking its U.N. seat, was only broken last week, when Prince Sihanouk, leader of the resistance coalition, announced that he was renouncing his claim to the presidency.

COLOMBO (DEC. 21) - Security forces have killed 41 guerrillas in a fresh offensive against Tamil rebels in Sri Lanka's northeast, officials said here Friday.

State Minister for Defence Ranjan Wijeratne saud a major crackdown against the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) was launched Thursday to "clear out the remnants of the LTTE."

Earlier the government had claimed it had established total control over vast areas in the Tamil-majority northeast which had been occupied by the LTTE since Indian troops completed their withdrawal from Sri Lanka in March.

"We are ready to hammer right round the wicket. Sixes and fours will be flying off the bat," Mr. Wijeratne said, using cricket parlance to stress that the operations would be extensive and successful.

He said troops currently battling the LTTE in the northeast had been reinforced after a landmine blast killed two senior officers Tuesday.

Naval gunboats shot and destroyed five boats off the Batticaloa coast late Thursday, killing 32 LTTE men, the minister said.

Frankfurt (DEC. 21) - The remains of thousands of victims of Nazi war crimes were buried at a cemetery here Friday.

The remains had been used by medical students at the universities of Frankfurt Giessen and Marburg since the end of World War Ii in 1945. They were buried near a memorial for the victims of Nazi Germany.

The minister of science in the German state of Hesse, Wolfgang Gerhardt, said during the funeral service that research had moral limits. ''Curiosity cannot be boundless,'' he noted.

A representative of the Jewish community in Hesse said it was ''macabre'' that students had been allowed to study over the past 45 years with the help of human remains obtained ''in a criminal situation''.

He was alluding to the millions of Jews, prisoners-of-war and political opponents killed by the Nazis in concentration camps.

MOSCOW (DEC. 21) - Twenty-one soldiers were seriously injured, nine by gunfire, in ethnic fighting within a battalion in the city of Chop in the western Ukraine, the news agency TASS reported on Friday.

The agency said no one was killed in the several hours of fighting between soldiers from Armenia, Azerbaijan, the Caucasus, Uzbekistan and Turkmenia.

An unspecified number of soldiers were less seriously injured.

TASS said that combatants in an "inter-ethnic quarrel" had obtained arms from the arsenal, but only after several were hit in the legs by gunfire from the troops guarding the arms depot.

SHKODER, ALBANIA (DEC 21) - Every day at 4:00 p.m., hundreds of people gather outside this Albanian city's Catholic cemetery to listen to Father Simon Jubani say mass.

As night falls Father Jubani, who has spent 26 of his 63 years in Albanian jails and camps, gives a long sermon. He speaks of Moses, Joan of Arc, the Pharaohs, Bethlehem and Christmas to the hordes of faithful starved of religion for 23 years.

In 1967 all churches and mosques in Albania were closed by the communist authorities. It was only in early November that Catholics -- who make up 10 per cent of the population with 70 per cent Moslems and 20 per cent Greek Orthodox -- were allowed to organize legal mass.

The sight of the faithful is an event in a country which, just over a month ago, forbade all public expressions of faith. Father Jubani, assisted by a choirboy in a white robe, celebrates mass in his small chapel, faced with a crowd strung out through the cemetery, some leaning on bicylces, some sitting on tombs.

There are children in pushchairs, blind people with guides, students, elderly women and soldiers in uniform all following the traditional Catholic gestures as though they had never stopped practising their faith.

Father Jubani's voice, broadcast with the help of a homemade sound system, is sometimes drowned by birdsong. Two candlesticks throw a feeble light in the cemetery which slowly sinks into darkness.

In a wing of the cemetery's chapel, which was renovated a month ago by volunteers, a choir sings hymns, echoed by a few old women in the crowd who remember them from times past.

Once mass is over, many faithful come to touch and kiss the altar. Mothers lift their children so that they can kiss the wooden crucifix hung above the altar.

In a small, badly heated room, Father Jubani is surrounded by his new parishoners including some of Shkoder's many Moslems.

Father Jubani is not worried by his new burden of work. "I survived 26 years in prison through prayer, reading and good physical condition," he said optimistically.

He was released in April 1989 from serving a life sentence imposed because of his work as a priest.

His first legal mass celebrated on Novemer 4 in Shkoder cemetery attacted 5,000 people. The following week 50,000 squeezed into the small cemetery to attend mass.

Similar numbers are expected for the Christmas midnight mass on December 24. It will be the first Christmas mass openly celebrated in Albania for 23 years.

AMSTERDAM (DEC. 21) - The Dutch DNB central bank on Friday carried out a repurchase arrangement lasting until January 2 at 8.9 per cent, representing an increase of 0.1 percentage points, the bank said.

The arrangement involved 1.888 billion guilder which financial circles said did not meet market demand. They did not rule out the possibility of another repurchase arrangement being made before the end of the year.

It was the fifth such increase since the beginning of December. On December 10 the rate was increased from 8.6 per cent to 8.8 per cent.

BAGHDAD (DEC 21) - Iraq Friday staged a massive evacuation drill involving one million Baghdad residents amid mounting fears of a war as time for diplomacy to settle the Gulf crisis was running out.

Iraq, facing a threat of war from the U.S.-led multinational force deployed in the Gulf unless it withdraws its troops from Iraqi-annexed Kuwait before January 15, carried out a similar evacuation drill in the second-largest city Basra Thursday.

In Friday's drill thousands of Baghdad residents poured into the streets after air-raid sirens were sounded at 07:00 a.m. local time. People were taken by Iraqi Civil Defence buses and vehicles to seven camps outside the capital, Iraqi officials said.

In the past few days Iraqi television has been airing special programmes showing the people how to use gas masks in the event of a poison gas attack. The government has also ordered landlords in Baghdad to set up bomb shelters in their buildings.

Turkey, the only North Atlantic Treaty Organisation member which borders on Iraq, confirmed its request to Nato for three squadrons of combat aircraft planes to deter a possible Iraqi attack.

Turkish Defence Minister Husnu Bojan said the about 40 aircraft would be stationed in southeastern Turkey.

Germany gave a cautious response to the request, saying it was up to the Brussels Nato authorities to discuss the issue. Bonn government spokesman Dieter Vogel said there was no question of land-based forces being sent to Turkey.

In Brussels, a Nato spokesman said Ankara's request was being considered. The decision-making process was under way, he added.

In Washington, Britain's new Prime Minister, John Major, warned that an offensive will be launched against Iraq unless it pulls its troops out of Kuwait. ''Nobody wants a war. The question is, will it be necessary?'' Major told U.S. television viewers.

''(Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein can stop a war. If he obeys the U.N. Security Council resolutions, withdraws from Kuwait, goes back to Iraq, he will not be attacked,'' he said.

''But it is very clearly in his hands,'' said Major who arrived Thursday for his first visit to the United States since he took over his new office from Margaret Thatcher last monthhe added.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker Thursday warned that time was running out as the January 15 deadline approached. He said he was ready to travel to Baghdad immediately if Iraq wanted this.

The Gulf crisis will top the agenda of a summit conference of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (Gcc) which opens in the Qatari capital Doha Saturday.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 21) - The European Community (EC) decided on Friday to prolong for one year an agreement allowing advantages for the import of U.S corn and sorgum, EC sources said.

A decision not to extend the agreement, which was to expire at the end of the year, had threatened to trigger a new trade war, but EC agriculture ministers on Friday gave the go-ahead for an extension.

But in return the United States will have to undertake not to seek a further extension in 1991, and will have to make gestures of goodwil on other agricultural disputes, and particularly on a U.S. ban until next summer on the importation of wine made from grapes treated with the procymidone fungicide.

Most of the wine concerned is made in France. Before the meeting France, which is a major exporter of cereals, had said that it would object to any extension of the corn agreement beyond six months.

The corn agreement permits the United States to export two million tonnes of corn and 30,000 tonnes of sorgum to Spain and Portugal at preferential rates of customs duty.

The arrangement was established in 1987 to compensate for market share lost when Spain and Portugal entered the EC.

The United States said that if the agreement were not extended it would apply 200 per cent customs duties on EC exports of agricultural produce and drinks worth 420 million dollars.

MOSCOW (DEC. 21) - Prices in Latvia are to rise by at least 300 percent from January 3, on the basis of a list of new prices which was published by the Latvian government on Friday, the BNS Baltic news agency reported.

The retail prices of bread, flour and meat will rise by 300 percent on average while prices for milk products will rise by 3.2 times.

To compensate for the increases, workers will receive and additional 66 rubles (40 dollars) per month, and aid will be provided for families with many children and for young mothers.

Lithuania has already announced similar measures for next year. Estonia, the third Baltic republic, introduced smaller increases in October.

LONDON (DEC. 21) - Tin prices fell to their lowest level since the introduction of the contract on the London Metal Exchange, while copper and nickel prices firmed.

On the kerb three month tin was quoted slightly up at 5,700 dollars per tonne compared to 5,680 dollars at the close of both afternoon and morning rings. The cash price of tin in the morning ring went down to 5,520 dollars - the lowest level since the introduction of the contract in June 1989.

LME stocks rose by 600 tonnes to a three year high 19,980 tonnes, reflecting the build up of stocks which has pressurised prices. Dealers indicated that the arrival of Brazilian stocks in Rotterdam had undermined any potential for a rally on end-of-year tightness.

Nickel continued to rise on the news that Societe Le Nickel could not guarantee deliveries after January from its New Caledonian plant which sufferred fire damage earlier in the week.

On the kerb the metal was quoted at 8,550 dollars per tonne, unchanged from the afternoon ring but up from 8,450 dollars Thursday. Prices have risen by five hundred dollars this week, with the threat of disruptions to Soviet supplies as economic chaos spreads in that country, bringing further support.

The rise of 1,632 tonnes in LME stocks to 4,146 tonnes had no effect.

Copper continued its technical correction, being quoted at 1,346 pounds per tonne on the kerb, against 1,341 pounds on the afternoon ring and 1,325 pounds Thursday.

Copper stocks rose by 6,300 tonnes to 173,275 tonnes.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) - The Soviet Union is suffering from falling employment and output as it dismantles its old economic system while failing to implement the necessary market reforms, four major financial institutions said Friday in an unprecedented report.

The International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and the recently-formed European Bank for Reconstruction and Development were asked to compile the first official in-depth study of the Soviet economy by leaders of the seven major industrialized nations at their Houston, Texas summit in July.

The report was drawn up, "in close consultation with the Commission of the European Communities," said the IMF Friday. In Brussels, the commission issued its own report which came to the same general conclusions about the sorry state of the Soviet economy.

The four-body report is likely to be discussed in depth when the finance ministers and central bank governors of the seven major industrialized nations -- the United States, Japan, Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy -- meet in Washington next month.

The report urges Western help in some sectors for the Soviet economy, but also warns against ploughing money into a bankrupt system unless that system undertakes sweeping reforms.

The international institutions warned that the present economic problems of the Soviet Union were being compounded by new phenomena -- an increasing ethnic movement and growing awareness by Soviet citizens of environmental problems.

The report points out: "The old planning system has broken down but has not been dismantled; meanwhile, the structures vital to the functioning of a market have yet to be put in place.

"This will require an early and effective clarification of the division of responsibilities between the union and the republics."

The report said it was worth stressing three points:

- "There is no example of a successful modern centrally planned economy;"

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) - U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Friday that war with Iraq appeared increasingly likely because Saddam Hussein does not understand allied resolve to drive him out of Kuwait.

"It increasingly looks like he's not getting the message and we'll have to use force," Mr. Cheney said in Saudi Arabia, speaking to U.S. troops. His comments were broadcast by Cable News Network.

The chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Colin Powell, who was traveling with Mr. Cheney, said any U.S. attack on Iraq would involve a massive air, land and sea campaign.

"When we launch it, we'll launch it violently, in a way that will make it decisive so we can get it over with and there's no question who won," Gen. Powell said.

LUCERNE, SWITZERLAND (DEC. 21) - De Beers Centenary AG, the Swiss holding company of the De Beers diamong selling organisation, has agreed to lend 50 million dollars to the Angolan state diamond company Endiama, De Beers announced here.

The agreement, to be finalised in January, covers the marketing by the De Beers Control Selling Organisation in London of diamonds from the Cuango region, and the development of new mines in Angola. The De Beers organisation is based on South African capital.

The loan will be used to develop alluvial production in the Cuango region. The agreement also allows for the construction by De Beers of a building in Luanda for the selection and evaluation of Angolan diamond production.

Endiama said here Thursday that provided the agreement were concluded, it was prepared to sell its Cuango diamonds to De Beers immediately.

Under a second part of the agreement, De Beers must spend at least 50 million dollars during the next five years to evaluate kimberlite reserves in the Camutue region in northeast Angola, and to prospect new sources of supply.

De Beers said: "If, as it is hoped, a mine or mines result from this prospecting, a joint company will be formed between Endiama and De Beers Centenary to develop them. It is currently estimated that the cost of developing a major new kimberlite diamond mine is in the region of one billion dollars."

The re-establishment of links between De Beers and Angola comes just four months after De Beers signed an exclusive contract with the Soviet Union to take delivery of uncut Soviet diamonds. Relations between De Beers and the Soviet Union had been broken in 1963.

MOSCOW (DEC. 21) - A reorganisation of the power structure of the Soviet Union was explained to the Congress of Soviet People's Deputies here Friday by Supreme Soviet speaker Anatoli Lukyanov.

The presentation on the constitutional amendments, which are backed by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, followed the conclusion of debate on a new union treaty loosening some bonds of this country's 15 constituent republics to the centre.

Speeches on the far-reaching changes continued to be overshadowed Friday by fallout from the bombshell announcement the day before by Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze that he was resigning to protest at an approaching dictatorship.

The chief of the Soviet general staff, General Mikhail Moisseyev, rejected the warning Friday. He told reporters there was no danger.

Lukyanov said the constitutional changes, which enlarge Gorbachev's powers and can only be passed by a two-thirds majority of the congress, would secure well-being and peace for millions of people.

Among the changes is the creation of a Soviet vice-presidency. The council of ministers is to be replaced by a cabinet subordinate to Gorbachev.

The republics gain a greater say in the running of the country. The federation council, which all republic leaders are members of, will shift from an advisory role to decision making.

To combat crime, a special coordination committee under the president will be set up.

Summing up the union treaty debate, Tass said most deputies had supported the proposal. But the independent-minded Baltic republic of Estonia Tuesday led the ranks of republics that do not intend to sign the treaty. A resolution is to be put to the vote next week.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) - The United Nations Security Council deferred Friday for six months a decision on how to keep going a financially strapped U.N. peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

The 2,132 peacekeepers, known by the acronym Unficyp, are meant to keep apart ethnic Turks and ethnic Greeks on the divided Mediterranean island. But the United Nations has never collected enough money to pay the troops, who come from Canada, Austria, Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Sweden, Britain and Australia.

Most of the cost has had to be paid by those states. The main reason for the arrears is the fact that contributions from other U.N. member states for Unficyp are voluntary. Dues for U.N. forces elsewhere are compulsory.

A unanimous resolution Friday said the Security Council would seek another form of fundraising next year for Unficyp.

Diplomats had earlier expected the Security Council to impose a levy on all U.N. members according to their financial resources, but said the Soviet Union objected at the last minute. The Kremlin would have had to pay the second-biggest contribution after Washington.

Since the force was created in 1964, its arrears have mounted to 170 million dollars.

NICOSIA (DEC. 21) - Iraq's invasion of Kuwait has altered the political map in the Middle East and the Gulf, set governments and people against one another and sent shock waves across the globe.

The August 2 invasion split the Arab League and underlined the ineffectiveness of the Gulf Cooperation Council, the Organisation of the Islamic Conference and other regional forums.

But worst of all, from an Arab perspective, it signalled that the economically powerful but militarily vulnerable Gulf oil states would remain dependent on foreigners to guarantee their security.

"The Gulf crisis has divided the Arab world in a concrete way. It will be very difficult to mend these divisions once things are back to normal. Not impossible, but very difficult," an exiled Kuwaiti government official, who asked not to be named, told AFP.

The first cracks appeared shortly after the invasion of Kuwait when only 12 of the Arab League's 21 members backed a resolution denouncing Baghdad and approving the deployment of Arab defense forces in Saudi Arabia.

Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization, along with Iraq, voted against the resolution, Jordan, Yemen and Algeria abstained while Mauritania and Sudan voiced reservations. Tunisia was absent.

The PLO position generated bitterness among Gulf states, particularly Kuwait, which for years had been a major financial backer of the organization's struggle against Israel.

"The Palestinians stabbed Kuwait in the back and, contrary to what they believe, they will be coming out of all this as losers," a senior Arab diplomat said.

The United States and Britain, leaders of a Western alliance against Iraq, watched approvingly as the anti-Iraqi Arab coalition -- Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria -- confronted Yemen, Jordan and the PLO.

Washington wrote off Egypt's 6.7 billion dollar military debt to the United States and improved ties with Syria. Saudi Arabia also cancelled a 4.5-billion-dollar Egyptian obligation and several states provided financial aid to Cairo.

VENICE, Italy (DEC. 21) - Abu Iyad, a leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), was acquitted by a court here Friday of charges of supplying arms to Italy's Red Brigades terrorist organization in 1979.

Thirteen other defendants, including six members of the Red Brigades and five top members of the Italian secret service, were also acquitted.

Prosecutors had demanded a 16-year prison sentence for Abu Iyad on December 6. The trial opened on October 2 following a seven-year investigation.

Prosecutors had charged during the trial that the PLO had supplied a shipload of weapons, including 150 machineguns, bazookas, grenades and ground-to-air missiles, to the Red Brigades in September 1979.

The Italian secret service officers were accused of ignoring the illegal arms shipment.

SEATTLE, WASHINGTON (DEC 21) - At least 13 deaths have been blamed on extreme weather conditions throughout the United States this week, including a arctic front blanketing the western states, from the normally clement Pacific Northwest to the desert southwest.

In Nevada, more renowned for is deserts, ice and freezing conditions hit many towns including one called Caliente, whose Spanish name (meaning hot) usually accurately describes the locality.

Freezing rain was reported from Texas in the south to the Great Lakes that straddle the Canadian border.

Gallup, New Mexico, residents suffered the unusual experience of heavy snow to such a degree that the police chief asked locals to pick up drunks, take them home and then get the police to arrest them.

Police Chief Frank Gonzales complained of "different people calling us to report drinks laying out on the sidewalks and that the snow is covering them up."

Mr. Gonzales added: "I wish they would help us by taking them inside, and we could pick them up then."

Heavy snow also blanketed much of the rest of the Western United States, stranding many residents and downing power lines, leaving thousands of people without electricity.

Officials around the country reported weather-related deaths totalling 13 people since Tuesday in Washington state, Iowa, Oregon, California, and Oklahoma.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) - The World Bank admitted Friday it did not expect Iraq to repay more than 10 million dollars it currently owes the international institution.

The bank revealed Friday that it had decided Monday to put Iraq on its "non-accrual status," jargon for countries which are six months behind on their payments.

Iraq currently owes the bank 7.1 million dollars in principal and 3.1 million dollars in interest.

As a precaution against the possibility that Iraq will never repay the debt, the bank will put aside one per cent of the total debt each month as a reserve.

One of the reasons, the bank said, for Iraq not being able to repay its debts has been the freezing of Iraqi assets by most countries in compliance with United Nations' resolutions passed since Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Eight other states are on the "non-accrual" list, including Syria, one of the nations to have stationed troops in Saudi Arabia as part of the anti-Iraq coalition.

The other countries are Liberia, Zambia, Somalia, Peru, Panama, Nicaragua and Guatemala.

Countries on the non-accrual list are ineligible for further World Bank loans.

RIYADH (DEC. 21) - King Fahd on Friday defended Saudi Arabia's use of its oil revenues and rejected Iraqi charges that the Arab world's wealth was not fairly distributed.

"This argument has been used for political ends ... and it does not concern us at all," the Saudi Press Agency quoted the monarch as saying.

King Fahd, inspecting works to enlarge the mausoleum of the Prophet Mohammad in the holy city of Medina, said Saudi Arabia had "never failed its Moslem brothers or Arab countries" in granting aid.

"We have never put on display what we have given," he said.

King Fahd said his country needed "enormous sums" for infractracture plans over the next 10 to 15 years, including roads, electricity projects, telephone networks, universities and schools.

Estimates of the country's oil revenues had been exaggerated, he said.

"Some people are stating that Saudi Arabia is selling its oil at a price of between 35 and 40 dollars per barrel," the king said.

"The price of light crude is not more than 26 dollars a barrel in most cases, while that of other categories of crude is around 15 dollars a barrel."

Iraq has accused Saudi Arabia and pre-invasion Kuwait of squandering its oil revenues and called for a redistribution of wealth between the rich Gulf states and the poorer northern states of the Middle East.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) - Sadako Ogata, a woman professor from Japan, was appointed new United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees by the U.N. General Assembly in a unanimous vote Friday.

Ogata, 63, who takes office for three years starting in the new year is the first woman to head the Geneva-based commission, which is responsible for about 15 million refugees around the world.

The professor of international relations was nominated by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Norwegian, Italian and Canadian officials were also proposed, but observers said a Japanese was desired because Tokyo is the second-biggest contributor to the agency.

Depending entirely on voluntary funding, the high commission's outgoings have hovered around 500 million dollars per annum for several years though the number of refugees keeps rising.

The post became vacant as of November 2, after the last commissioner, Thorvald Stoltenberg, gave up after only 10 months in the job so as to become Norwegian foreign minister again.

Perez's favourite for the post was his chief of cabinet, Virendra Dayal from India. But Dayal said in November he was not available after he was publicly criticised by the West.

Ogata, who has attended U.S. universities, has been a professor at Sophia University of Tokyo's institute of international relations since 1980. Since 1989 she has been dean of the university's foreign relations faculty.

She is also the U.N. Human Rights Commission's independent expert on the situation in Burma. Between 1976 and 1979 she worked at the Japanese U.N. mission in New York and from 1978 to 1979 she chaired the executive council of Unicef, the U.N. children's charity.

OTTAWA (DEC. 21) XINHUA - CANADIAN WOMEN HAVE MADE ALMOST NO PROGRESS IN NARROWING THEIR WAGE GAP WITH MEN THROUGHOUT THE 1980S DESPITE THEIR RISING EDUCATION AND EXPERIENCE AND STEADY MOVE INTO MALE-DOMINATED PROFESSIONS.

THE FIGURES JUST RELEASED BY STATISTICS CANADA SHOW THAT IN 1989, WOMEN WITH FULL-TIME JOBS EARNED ONLY 65.8 PERCENT OF MEN'S AVERAGE PAY. MALE ANNUAL AVERAGE WAGE WAS 35,073 CANADIAN DOLLARS (ABOUT 30,162 U.S. DOLLARS) WHILE THAT OF WOMEN WAS ONLY 23,091 CANADIAN DOLLARS (ABOUT 19,858 U.S. DOLLARS).

THE GAP WAS ONLY 1.2 PERCENTAGE POINTS NARROWER THAN IN 1980 WHEN FULL-TIME FEMALE EARNING WAS 64.2 PERCENT OF MALE PAY.

"IT PROVES THAT EMPLOYERS ARE DOING ABSOLUTELY NOTHING TO CHANGE THEIR DISCRIMINATORY PAY PRACTICES AND WILL DO LITTLE ON THEIR OWN INITIATIVES," SAID PHEBE-JANE POOLE, AN OFFICIAL OF THE NATIONAL ACTION COMMITTEE ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN.

SHE EMPHASIZED THE NEED TO STRENGTHEN FEDERAL AND PROVINCIAL PAY EQUITY LEGISLATION AND EXTEND SUCH LAWS TO COVER ALL WORKING WOMEN.

IN RECENT YEARS, THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AND SOME PROVINCES HAVE PASSED LAWS STIPULATING THAT WOMEN BE PAID THE SAME AS MEN WORKING IN JOBS THAT REQUIRE EQUAL SKILLS, RESPONSIBILITY AND EDUCATION.

BUT MANY PROVINCES HAVE PAY EQUITY ONLY IN THE PUBLIC SECTORS. AND EVEN IF THERE ARE EQUITY PAY LAWS, THERE HAVE BEEN NO PENALTIES FOR EMPLOYERS WHO DO NOT COMPLY.

THE STATISTICS CANADA REPORT SAYS THAT NOT ALL THE DIFFERENCE IN WAGES IS DUE TO GENDER. ON AVERAGE, MEN WORK MORE HOURS, HAVE BEEN IN THE LABOR MARKET LONGER AND HAVE HIGHER LEVELS OF EDUCATION.

"Part of the [Dow] comeback was seasonal," says BILL LEFEVRE at ADVEST. "It's a SANTA CLAUSE rally." He adds that interest rates probably will come down further to keep the rally going. ("USA Today", 12/21)

FROM THE BEARS:

"I think we're trying very hard to just stand in one place," says JOSEPH BATTIPAGLIA at GRUNTAL & CO. "The market has no leadership. None of these rallies are broadly based and the fear of Jan. 15 is becoming more and more evident. The fear that fourth-quarter earnings will be lousy and the fear that 1991's first half will be a very disappointing economic story is keeping stocks from going up. If anything, they will probably start to backpedal in the coming weeks." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/20)

STOCK MARKET:

KATHLEEN MILLARD of CHASE MANHATTAN BANK says investors had "understandable jitters" about SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER EDUARD SHEVARDNADZE's resignation, and "the lack of political leadership" that was "clearly demonstrated" by the resignation. She says today's action was a "follow through from European markets overnight," which led to the initial selloff, "and then a bounce back." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/20)

"The fear is that political instability in the U.S.S.R. could cause problems for the world," says PHILIP ROTH of DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. He says that concern may be valid for the European markets, but "I don't think it's that big an issue for the U.S." Roth says he expects a top around 2700 in January, followed by a decline that could go below the October lows. ("Investor's Daily", 12/21)

"The market is more upbeat because the outlook for the economy has improved ever so slightly following the aggressive easing of monetary policy by the FEDERAL RESERVE," says HUGH JOHNSON at FIRST ALBANY. "It just may be the case that what the Fed has done will work. The payoff is that the economy will perhaps stabilize or show some improvement in the first quarter." (NYT, 12/21)

"They keep driving the market down, but it snaps right back," says RICHARD EAKLE, president of EAKLE ASSOCIATES. "Oil is headed south, as are interest rates, and there is a perception that inflation is receding." EDWARD SHOPKORN at MABON NUGENT says a lot of people were "doing a little dressing up" yesterday in their portfolios. (WSJ, 12/21)

"Dollar strength has got to be seen as bullish [for stocks] here because for most of this year foreigners have been pulling money out of the U.S. stock market, much of it to invest in Europe," says MICHAEL METZ at OPPENHEIMER. "Now perhaps we're beginning to see a reversal of the trend." ("The Washington Post", 12/21)

"Traders are generally looking for a little correction on the downside [but] it doesn't seem to be happening," says RON CATALANO at PRESCOTT BALL & TURBEN. "We're at the high end of a trading range and everybody's a little gun shy." (WSJ, 12/21)

STOCK TIPS:

"Many stocks are now dirt cheap," says BERNARD SCHAEFFER at the "Options Advisor." "Extremely favorable interest rate trends will help the market to all-time highs ... [but] short term, we have some resistance that could keep us hemmed in." Short covering is likely to drive CONAGRA higher, says Schaeffer, who suggests buying the March 35 call. He thinks the weakness in DOW JONES must be viewed as a buying opportunity and likes the March 22 1/2 call. (CNBC "World Business", 12/21)

MARCAM CORP. "came public after the invasion, and the stock has done nothing but go up," according to ROBERT HERWICK of HAMBRECHT & QUIST. After an initial offering at 14, the stock has climbed to 24. "I think Marcam has a very good strong product line that has been successful," says ELLIOT PRINCE of NEEDHAM & CO. "The only issue with the stock is valuation." ("Investor's Daily", 12/21)

technical research at JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. After a nasty 1990 for the stock, Peroni sees support in the 16-17 area with an upside of 21 over the next six to twelve months. GM Class "E" is the old EDS stock, and Peroni says it looks like an interesting technology play with little downside risk. Others in Peroni's top ten: AMERICAN BRANDS, CONAGRA, DOW CHEMICAL, MEDTRONICS MORTON, OREGON STEEL, PFIZER and TENNECO. (CNBC "Market Watch", 12/20)

The PROGRESSIVE CORPORATION, an auto insurance company that specializes in insuring motorists other companies won't touch, is featured in "The New York Times" this morning. The company has grown from 100 employees and $6 million in revenues to $1.3 billion in revenues and 6,000 employees in 25 years. "Progressive does unconventional things in ways that make perfect intellectual sense," says GEORGE PARKER at STANFORD BUSINESS SCHOOL. "Their behavior is consistent with an economist's view of how markets can operate when left to work." The stock was unchanged yesterday at just under 50. (NYT, 12/21)

"It's become clear that demand for APPLE's new product line has remained strong ... and is showing no signs of fading," says MARK STAHLMAN of ALEX. BROWN & SONS, who raised his recommendation to a "strong buy" on the strength of higher projected earnings. "The LC [Apple's new color computer] presents the opportunity for another blowout quarter in March." ("Investor's Daily", 12/21)

OFFICE CLUB stock jumped 4 5/8 to 18 1/2 yesterday on an announcement that the company will be acquired by OFFICE DEPOT INC. in a stock swap. "It's a terrific deal," says THOMAS KULLY at WILLIAM BLAIR. "You've got two companies that are both sharp, an industry with a lot of players and a lot of consolidation." ("USA Today", 12/21)

"SHARPER IMAGE is suffering from the same cycle of weak sales that has affected almost all upscale retailers," says DREW DUSELBOUT at PAINEWEBBER. "If the company can survive until the cycle ends, it should do very well. I think it is definitely on the right track with the cost containment program and the addition of environmental products." (NYT, 12/21)

What stocks does MONTE GORDON of DREYFUS like as he counts down to his year-end retirement? "I still like WAL-MART," he tells "USA Today" in an "exit" interview. "And GE, TOYS R US, PROCTER & GAMBLE are all high quality." ("USA Today", 12/21)

"If you think about the 1980s, the two biggest profit centers were real estate and consumer banking," says CHARLES PEABODY, bank analyst at KIDDER PEABODY. "In real estate, banks went from being profitable to often losing a lot. In consumer banking, they will still earn money, but I think they will earn less." In a recent report, Peabody specifically urges investors to steer clear of CITICORP, CHASE MANHATTAN, BARNETT BANKS and VALLEY NATIONAL of Arizona. (WSJ, 12/21)

"There's a realization that [INTEL] should be able to grow its earnings through a [mild] recession," says ELI SAYEGH of S.G. WARBURG. Intel's new revised 486 chips will enable the company to raise earnings by as much as $1.13 to $3.50 per share. ("Investor's Daily", 12/21)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 21) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"The Soviet risk is the real political risk," says ANNE PARKER MILLS, a currency strategist at SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS. "At some point, the European investor will say, 'I don't care whether I get a lower rate of return on dollar assets, and I don't care if the U.S. is in a recession. I want to increase my holdings in the U.S. because the dollar is the only real safe haven currency.' That move may have begun in earnest." (WSJ, 12/21)

"This [the SHEVARDNADZE resignation] is really the spark that reminds the market that Russia is in very serious trouble," says EZRA ZASK, foreign exchange manager at MELLON BANK. "It took something like this to remind us and it will put a serious dent in the mark's luster for quite a while." DAVID GILMORE at McCARTHY, CRISANTI & MAFFEI notes that the upheaval among the Soviet leadership feeds anxieties that "the whole Eastern Europe thing could be unwound." (WSJ, 12/21)

"One outcome of this whole thing in the Soviet Union is a return to interest in the dollar among foreign investors," says KATHLEEN MILLARD of CHASE MANHATTAN BANK. She believes those investors "will seek a safe currency now." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/20)

"You need much more interest rate relief to help corporate America out," says JOSEPH CARSON of CHEMICAL BANK. Few analysts believe that this one cut in rates can turn the economy around, and they expect further cuts next year. (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/20)

"The Fed eased last December and the banks waited until January" to lower their rates, says JEREMY GLUCK of MITSUBISHI BANK. "It looks like a replay of that probably." ALAN LEVENSON of WEFA GROUP observes: "The Fed has eased every which way they can this month. The banks have to move soon or be viewed as the villains in this recession." ("Investor's Daily", 12/21)

"The hint of anarchy [in the Soviet Union] is very unnerving to the bond market," says DAVID McCLEAN, a trader at CREDIT LYONNAIS SECURITIES USA. ERICK MULLER at CREDIT COMMERCIAL DE FRANCE points out that the Shevardnadze resignation brought Soviet problems to the forefront and "showed [investors] what a big problem the U.S.S.R can become. (WSJ, 12/21)

"If you want safety, you buy Treasury bills," says JOSEPH LIRO at S.G. WARBURG. "The strong performance in the bill sector [yesterday] was related to [EDUARD] SHEVARDNADZE and the message he conveyed in announcing his resignation" as the Soviet Union's foreign minister. "With the two-year yielding more than 7.20 percent and the federal funds rate at 7 percent and on the way lower, once people come back from the holidays, they will like what they see." (NYT, 12/21)

THE ECONOMY:

"What's in everybody's interest is to make sure this is a mild recession, not a deep recession," says JAMES ANNABLE, chief economist at FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF CHICAGO. Annable's employer was the first bank to lower its prime rate to 9.5%. "What we want to do is encourage spending in the economy," says Annable. "This, in effect, will help soften the recession." ("Nightly Business Report" and CNN "Moneyline", 12/20)

"What concerns me is that, after the recession is over, we're not going to get much of a recovery," says economist LACY HUNT of the HONG KONG BANK GROUP. Typically recessions form a "V" shape with a sharp snapback after the downturn says Hunt: "This time I'm afraid it's going to be more like the letter "L" - you come down and you don't recover." Hunt says the drop in interest rates has been confined to the Treasury and very high-quality bond markets. "We're not getting money into the economy," says Hunt, who is concerned about the negative impact of January's federal tax increase. "It's not a very pretty picture." (CNN "Business Morning", 12/21)

"There is a contradiction here [in the banking industry] that is weakening the economy," says ALBERT WOJNILOWER at FIRST BOSTON CORP. "Bank managers, to raise capital, to keep their jobs, to comply with federal regulations, are engaging in behavior that is destructive to their banks and destructive for the system." (NYT, 12/21)

"The fact that capital spending [next year] will slow, but not actually decrease, is commensurate with the view the recession will be milder than the postwar average," says GORDON RICHARDS, an economist with the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS. MICHAEL EVANS, head of his own forecasting firm agrees that "the recession is going to be very mild and last only two quarters." (NYT, 12/21)

"The fact that planned increases [in capital spending] are in store MARTINI of SANFORD BERNSTEIN. He points out that the fall in the dollar makes U.S. goods more attractive, and "creates an underlying demand for our manufactured products." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/20)

KURT RICHEBAECHER, a German economic consultant, says the downward pressure on the U.S. economy stems from two sources: "an unsustainable, credit-inflated expansion in consumption" and "a depletion of savings and investments which undermines productivity and income growth." He says the second influence "makes a debt and banking crisis a virtual inevitability as collapsing real estate collateral values and mushrooming problem loans force the banks to tighten their lending standards." (NYT, 12/21)

"Wages, actually, were pretty much unchanged," says JOANNE PETERSON of BANKAMERICA. She notes that personal income figures were padded by money from farm subsidies, "which is government spending." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/20) reported results for the year ended Sept. 30, 1990.

For the year, the company reported a net loss of $2,319,231 or 61 cents per share, on revenues of $371,522. For the year ended Sept. 30, 1989, the company reported a net loss of $409,718 or 27 cents per share, on revenues of $4,365.

According to David H. Katz, M.D., chairman and chief executive of LIDAK, the 1990 net loss reflects in part a one-time charge to research and development expenses of approximately $818,000, representing the present value of installment fees payable pursuant to an exclusive 20-year technology license agreement with the Medical Biology Institute (MBI).

Katz said the loss also reflects costs associated with increased administrative as well as research and development activities, including facilities expansion, hiring scientific and administrative personnel and initiating pre-clinical toxicological studies.

LIDAK Pharmaceuticals is a biotechnology company organized to develop and commercialize innovative pharmaceutical products. Incorporated in August 1988 the company completed its initial public offering in May 1990.

LIDAK's initial product and technology focus has been in three areas. The first is Lidakol, the name given by the company to the active organic ingredient of a family of anti-viral and anti-inflammatory compounds developed by LIDAK scientists. LIDAK has been granted a patent for Lidakol covering all medical and veterinary uses. According to Katz, pre-clinical toxicology (safety) studies have been successfully completed, and preliminary studies in human volunteer patients have shown favorable results.

Topical Lidakol-containing preparations are being developed in these major treatment areas: Oral and genital herpes; second- and third-degree burns; and inflammatory skin conditions. The company also is formulating Lidakol for systemic administration for possible use against certain retroviruses.

The second focus is on a technology in which the human immune system has been engineered to function in mice with a genetic defect known as Severe Combined Immunodeficiency (SCID). The technology helps facilitate more rapid drug development and provides LIDAK opportunities for contract and collaborative research agreements, Katz said. The company's initial work with this model has involved diseases of the human immune system, including AIDS.

Katz said the SCID mouse technology also is being applied in development and production of human monoclonal antibodies and in development of new diagnostic and therapeutic products for cancer.

HOUSTON (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Zapata Corporation (NYSE: ZOS) announced today that its Board of Directors has voted to extend the tender offers for the company's subordinated debentures until 5 p.m., Dec. 27, 1990, New York City time. No changes were made in the offer price or the minimum percentage required to be tendered. Withdrawal rights are no longer available.

As of 5 p.m., yesterday (Dec. 20), New York City time, the previously scheduled expiration time of the offers, approximately $22.9 million of the 10-1/4 percent debentures due 1997 and $21.9 million of the 10-7/8 percent debentures due 2001, or approximately 57.7 percent of the total outstanding principal amount of $77.6 million, had been tendered. If Zapata does not retire two-thirds of the outstanding subordinated debentures before Dec. 31, 1990, the company will not be able to restructure its senior debt under the agreement reached with its banks in August.

On Dec. 5, the Zapata board voted to offer $520 per $1,000 principal amount for the company's subordinated debentures. It is not possible to further increase the amount offered and still implement the debt restructuring by the Dec. 31, 1990 deadline imposed by Zapata's senior creditors.

If the tender offers are not successful, and Zapata cannot restructure its bank debt, the company will seek protection under the federal bankruptcy laws. It is uncertain what value the debenture holders could obtain in a bankruptcy proceeding, but the company is convinced that debenture holders would receive significantly less than the $520 per $1,000 of principal being offered.

Zapata Corporation is a Houston-based company that produces oil and natural gas, conducts commercial menhaden fishing operations that produce fish meal and edible oil, and manages a fleet of offshore drilling rigs. Zapata is also the largest shareholder in Zapata Gulf Marine Corporation, the world's leading operator of marine service vessels.

DALLAS (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Commercial Metals Company (NYSE: CMC) today reported net earnings of $3.6 million or 34 cents per share on sales of $287 million for the first quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990. This compares to earnings of $7.0 million or 62 cents per share, on sales of $277 million for the same period last year. Cash flow was $9.7 million for the quarter compared to $12.2 million last year.

CMC president and chief executive officer Stanley A. Rabin said, "Our markets this quarter were weaker because of the sharp decline in the U.S. economy. The manufacturing segment, led by the CMC Steel Group, was the largest contributor to net earnings, but results were down from the prior year period due to flat steel prices and increased costs coupled with inadequate margins in copper tubing. The copper tube division reported a small loss for the quarter due to the poor housing and construction markets. Despite startup costs of a new overseas operation, earnings for the Marketing and Trading segments were about the same as a year ago.

Net earnings for the Recycling segment were down significantly from the same period last year because of sluggish markets and startup costs at several secondary metal plants. Net earnings were about $145,000 higher (1 cent per share) because of the LIFO effect on inventory valuation."

Concerning the outlook Rabin said, "We expect the slowdown in the construction industrial, and automotive markets in the U.S.A. to continue for several quarters, and we have also seen some slowing in overseas metal markets. Houston continues to lead the recovery in the Southwest. Our focus for increased profitability continues to be on the expansion of our manufacturing base and product line and an even larger presence in recycling. Because of our strong cash flow and balance sheet we are well positioned to take advantage of any new opportunities."

According to Rabin, "The company bought over 255,000 additional shares or about $4.5 million of the company's common stock during the quarter, and we believe that CMC's common stock is significantly undervalued and an excellent investment."

Commercial Metals Company and subsidiaries manufacture, recycle and market steel and metal products, related materials and services through a network of over seventy locations including steel minimills, steel fabrication plants, a copper tube mill, recycling facilities and trading offices in the United States and trading and representative offices in strategic overseas markets.

DALLAS (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Texas Instruments Incorporated (NYSE: TXN) today announced it has reached agreement with Samsung Electronics Co. Ltd. on a five-year broad-based semiconductor patent cross-license agreement to replace the five-year agreement that expires at the end of this year.

Beginning in 1991 and continuing throughout the life of the agreement, TI will receive royalty payments from Samsung, which are expected to greatly exceed the amounts received by TI under the agreement expiring at the end of 1990. The new agreement, the terms of which are confidential, is subject to approval by the government of Korea.

The new agreement with Samsung, together with the recently announced agreement with Toshiba Corporation, reinforces TI's belief that it has the opportunity to earn a significant ongoing stream of royalty revenues from its worldwide patent portfolio. However, as TI has previously reported, high levels of research and development and capital investment, along with lower memory prices and general weakness in the U.S. economy, will put additional pressure on TI's financial results in the near term.

Discussions continue with other companies whose licensing agreements with TI expire at the end of 1990. As previously stated, these negotiations by their nature are not predictable as to outcome or timing. Results from negotiations may vary depending on the parties' relative patent positions, the use by each party of the other's patents, the volume of sales of each party, and other factors.

TI believes that appropriate valuation and compensation for use of a company's intellectual property is essential to global competitiveness because it protects, rewards and encourages investment in research and development. TI's technology has resulted in competitive products and a strong broad-based patent portfolio. The royalties TI has received for use of its patents have helped the company invest more than $2 billion in research and development over the past five years. During this period, TI has received more than 2,000 patents for new technologies.

Texas Instruments Incorporated, headquartered in Dallas, is a high- technology company with sales and manufacturing operations in more than 30 countries. TI develops, manufactures and markets semiconductors, defense electronics systems software productivity tools, computer systems, industrial automation and control systems, electrical controls, metallurgical materials, and consumer electronics products.

LONDON (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The following is the text of a letter from David Ogilvy, chairman of WPP Group plc (NASDAQ: WPPGY), which has today been dispatched to shareholders of WPP Group plc:

I am writing to explain recent events relating to our revised 1990 profit expectation and the reasons why the board has decided not to pay the previously proposed 1990 interim dividend.

Until this Autumn, the group's spread of marketing services activities and the strength of its media advertising interests in the packaged goods markets had kept it relatively immune from the general economic downturn. However, in early November we noted a significant shortfall in our most recent results as against our earlier expectation. After detailed analysis we decided to take a more cautious approach to our estimates for the rest of 1990, as the final quarter of our year contributes significantly to our profits. We therefore announced to The Stock Exchange on Nov. 19, 1990 that we believed that our pre-tax profits for the year to Dec. 31, 1990 would be somewhat lower than the general level of brokers' published estimates of around 110 million pounds sterling. In the light of subsequent announcements by other advertising groups and by television networks, we note that the decline in prospects for the last quarter of 1990 appears to be fairly general across the sector.

Whilst it is too soon for us to comment on the group's prospects for 1991, leading analysts and commentators generally expect the adverse conditions experienced in the last months of 1990 to continue for the first half of 1991. It may therefore be some time before the group can resume the pattern of growth in profits and earnings experienced up until a few months ago.

As soon as we had revised our projections for 1990, we approached our banks to discuss our new expectations and to review arrangements for the future should the recently experienced trading conditions continue for the whole of 1991. Whilst there has been no breach of any of our banking covenants, we still feel that it is appropriate to re-examine our covenants in the light of the economic climate.

Since the announcement on Nov. 19, we have also been examining ways in which our current debt structure can be strengthened and made more effective. While revised arrangements are being progressed, we are pleased to confirm that our major banks have reaffirmed their support and commitment to the group. Your board, which is being advised during these discussions by Samuel Montagu & Co.

Limited, is confident that suitable arrangements will be successfully concluded in the near future with the banks, which are being represented by J. P. Morgan & Co. Inc.

In August, 1990 we stated that we proposed to pay a 1990 interim dividend of 13.7p per ordinary share in January, 1991. Given the adverse economic climate we believe we are achieving satisfactory profits, although our cash flow is now below our projections of a few months ago. As a result, a major priority is to conserve cash, and accordingly we have reviewed our previous dividend proposal. We now consider that it would not be in the best interests of the company to pay the interim dividend for 1990 and therefore this dividend will not be paid.

Despite the lowering of previous profit expectations for 1990, we can confirm continuing trends of significant client net new business gains and that the group continues to trade successfully at significant levels of profitability. The group includes some of the world's leading companies in media advertising, public relations, market research, direct marketing and design, with strong and well established institutional brands. We have no reason to doubt our longer term optimism for growth, once trading conditions recover to our experience of just a few months ago.

ASHLAND, KY (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Ashland Oil Inc. (NYSE: ASH) reported today that it expects to report a moderate loss from operations in its fiscal first quarter, primarily due to depressed petroleum refining margins.

John R. Hall, Ashland chairman and chief executive officer, said it will likely report a loss for the fiscal first quarter, ending Dec. 31, 1990. Ashland reported net income of $22 million or 40 cents per share for its fiscal first quarter ended Dec. 31, 1989.

"Refining margins have been depressed and declined throughout the quarter as petroleum markets have tried to adjust to the volatility brought on by the Persian Gulf crisis. In addition, significant maintenance turarounds were performed at the company's Canton and Catlettsburg refineries during the quarter," Hall said.

"Demand for gasoline and heating oil dropped considerably in October and November which adversely impacted refinery margins. Although crude oil prices have declined in recent weeks, they have not fallen as far or fast as product prices."

All of Ashland's other segments expect to report profitable but mixed results, with some units adversely affected by the economy.

In spite of this anticipated first quarter result, Ashland remains cautiously optimistic about the outlook for fiscal 1991. Ashland expects to report its fiscal first quarter results on Jan. 21, 1991.

JACKSONVILLE, FL (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - What's 600 inches long and full of warm wishes for the holiday season? Jacksonville military units deployed in the Persian Gulf will find out when they receive a 50-foot holiday greeting card fax signed by AT&T Universal Card Services Corp.'s 2,000 Jacksonville associates.

The greeting card -- which could be the world's longest continuous fax message ever -- will be sent from Jacksonville on Friday, Dec. 21, to Jacksonville military units deployed in the Persian Gulf. Transmission of the fax, at 12:15 p.m., will kick off AT&T Universal Card Service's Corp.'s first holiday celebration for its associates and their families.

The greeting card will be faxed from the company's new Customer Service Center by an AT&T Universal Card Services Corp. associate whose husband is taking part in the Desert Shield operation. She will be joined by Paul Kahn, president, AT&T Universal Card Services Corp., and Rear Adm. Joseph S. Walker from the Jacksonville Navy Air Station.

Jacksonville units will receive the holiday greeting fax the week of Dec. 24 through AT&T's Desert Fax program. Since September, the program has transmitted 408,880 fax messages to troops in the Persian Gulf from 60 U.S. military bases and 400 AT&T Phone Centers.

"Hearing from loved ones is extremely important to our men and women taking part in the Desert Shield operation," Walker said. "We're proud of the way AT&T Universal Card Services Corp. people are using AT&T technology to tell our troops they're remembered this holiday season."

Walker said there are 8,000 men and women from Jacksonville's three Navy bases deployed in the Persian Gulf.

The company's holiday celebration, from noon to 8 p.m., will provide associates with a luncheon featuring holiday cuisine, entertainment, and activities for their children, including visits with Santa and Mrs. Claus. The event -- themed "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men" -- will culminate three weeks of activities that have allowed associates to help others in the true spirit of the holiday season.

"Sending holiday greetings to our troops is the focal point of our holiday activities," Kahn said. "At the same time, associates have found ways to bring cheer to people in Jacksonville who otherwise may not have a happy holiday."

In one activity -- called Project Elves -- associates purchased gifts from

"wish lists" of names of needy Jacksonville children and senior citizens.

In addition to Project Elves, associates have collected food items for the Jacksonville Food Bank and toys for the Dorcas Drake Christmas party.

LINDEN, NJ (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - General Magnaplate Corporation (NASDAQ: GMCC), the pioneer in "synergistic" metallurgical surface enhancement coatings has announced receipt of a federal grant to develop an extremely wear resistant, thermally conductive coating for aluminum. The new coating technology will initially be engineered for application by the Naval Ocean Systems Center in San Diego on aluminum heat exchanger tubes.

The Phase I Award of $50,000 was granted by the Small Business Innovation Research Program (SBIR) arm of the Department of Defense (DOD) for a feasibility study. According to Michael L. Pearce, vice president and director of the Theoretical Research Institute (TRI), General Magnaplate's primary research arm, "successful completion of the study will qualify General Magnaplate to apply for a Phase 2 Award of up to $500,000 to scale-up for the process." General Magnaplate feels confident in its ability to complete the study successfully, according to Pearce.

SBIR's mission is that of "stimulating technical innovation in the private sector and strengthening the role of small business in meeting DOD research and development needs."

Based in Linden, TRI's staff of engineers undertakes contracts and projects on behalf of clients with special problems or needs. These frequently lead to ongoing projects for the parent company's service operations.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The Senior Noteholders' Committee and the Subordinated Noteholders' Committee of the Bank of New England Corporation (BNEC) (NYSE: NEB) have reached agreement concerning an exchange offer they have proposed to BNEC's board of directors for consideration and approval.

If the proposed exchange offer is made and is successful, it would create up to $605 million of new equity capital for BNEC, the bank holding company which owns Bank of New England, N.A. and Connecticut Bank and Trust Company, among others. This will provide BNEC with additional flexibility and financial wherewithal to continue to address its current financial problems.

Under the principal economic terms of the proposed exchange offer, exchanging noteholders would receive 92 percent of the fully diluted equity ownership of BNEC and two newly created senior secured debt issues not requiring cash debt service payments, totaling approximately $100 million in principal amount.

Exchanging senior noteholders, as a class, would receive approximately $40 million of new Series A senior secured debt, approximately $30 million of new Series B junior secured debt, and approximately 44.75 percent of the full diluted equity ownership of BNEC. For each $1,000 of senior notes tendered, at least $225 of Series A senior secured debt and $165 of Series B junior secured debt would be received.

Exchanging subordinated noteholders, as a class, would receive approximately $30 million of new Series B junior secured debt and approximately 47.25 percent of the fully diluted equity ownership of BNEC. For each $1,000 of subordinated notes tendered, at least $60 of Series B junior secured debt will be received.

The committees negotiated an agreement specifically targeted at relieving BNEC from debt service payments so BNEC and its banks can survive and prosper. Pursuant to the conversion of debt to equity under the agreement, the committees believe BNEC and its banks can serve the New England economy, while simultaneously saving the federal government enormous taxpayer sums which would otherwise be spent if the banks were to be closed.

The committees believe their agreement marks an opportunity for a new positive chapter in FDIC - bondholder relations under which banking institutions and the FDIC deposit insurance fund benefit.

The committees have communicated the terms of their agreement to BNEC's board of directors for consideration and approval. There can be no assurance that the terms presented will be acceptable to the board or that an exchange offer on those terms or any other terms will be forthcoming.

The consummation of the proposed exchange would be subject to the satisfaction of a number of conditions, including acceptance of the offer by the holders of at least 90 percent in principal amount of the senior notes and the subordinated notes and at least 90 percent of the shares of BNEC's adjustable rate preferred stock.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The Greater New York Savings Bank (NASDAQ: GRTR) announced today that it expects nonperforming assets will rise to approximately $260 million by Dec. 31, 1990. Nonperforming assets were $145 million at Sept. 30, 1990. Consequently, the Bank expects that it will add approximately $25 to $30 million as a provision for credit losses during the fourth quarter. After estimated chargeoffs during the quarter, the balance in the reserves for credit losses will be approximately $40 to $45 million at Dec. 31, 1990.

As a result of these events, the Bank expects that it will report a loss of approximately $20 to $25 million for the fourth quarter of 1990 and approximately $15 to $20 million for the full year 1990.

In explaining these developments, Charles J. Ohlig, chairman and chief executive officer of The Greater, stated: "The general economic conditions and the commercial real estate market in our lending area have deteriorated at an accelerated pace during the fourth quarter. Accordingly, we have deemed it prudent to increase our reserves for credit losses as of Dec. 31, 1990."

The Greater also announced that it does not expect to declare a dividend on its common stock in January. However, Ohlig stated: "Despite the significant increase in our nonperforming assets, I am hopeful that the Bank will return to profitability sometime during 1991, barring further deterioration in general economic conditions or the commercial real estate environment in our lending area. Additionally, I am confident that our year-end risk-based capital ratio will remain over 10 percent, and that our primary capital ratio will exceed 7 percent. These ratios significantly exceed the FDIC minimums of 7.25 percent and 5.5 percent, respectively."

The Greater New York Savings Bank is an FDIC-insured, New York- chartered stock savings bank with assets of $3.1 billion, deposits of $2.2 billion and total stockholders' equity of $211 million at Sept. 30, 1990. Nine of its 14 banking offices are located in Brooklyn, where The Greater was originally chartered in 1897, and its five other offices are located in Queens, Nassau and Suffolk.

Additionally, NCNB will be the flagship sponsor for all Raycom telecasts of Southwest Conference football, beginning in fall 1991.

A contract announced today by NCNB and Raycom also makes NCNB a sponsor on the telecast of the first Blockbuster Bowl on December 28 between Penn State and Florida State in Miami.

"This is a terrific package of advertising opportunities for NCNB, connecting our name with the premiere sports events of the areas where we operate," said Brad C. Iversen, NCNB's director of corporate marketing.

"The ACC and SWC telecasts are high-impact programs that appeal to well-educated, successful people. These are people who are looking for a dynamic financial institution like NCNB," Iversen said.

For many years, NCNB sponsored ACC basketball telecasts, but has not had a commercial on those programs since the end of the 1987 season.

TORONTO (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - GW Utilities Limited (AMEX: GWT), Toronto, today announced it has agreed to the terms of the proposed "going private" transaction by GWU Holdings Limited, Toronto, whereby the public holders of the remaining equity interest in GW would receive Cdn. $30 per common share in cash after payment of the $10 per share special dividend which was previously declared payable on Jan. 17, 1991 to shareholders of record on Jan. 10, 1991 (the "special dividend"). Closing of the "going private" transaction is conditional upon completion of the previously announced spin-off by Interhome Energy Inc. to its shareholders of its oil and gas subsidiary, Home Oil Company Limited.

The spin-off has been approved in principle by the board of directors of Interhome and completion is subject to requisite shareholder and regulatory approvals including receipt of a favorable tax ruling.

A special meeting of GW shareholders is expected to be held in March 1991 to consider the "going private" transaction. The transaction is subject to approval by a majority of the votes cast by the minority shareholders of GW. Completion of the transaction will also be conditional upon receipt of any necessary regulatory approvals and the absence of any material change in the business, affairs or prospects of GW or any of its investments.

A special committee of directors (the "special committee") consisting of Stanley M.D. Beck, Marshall A. Cohen, Edward H. Crawford, David S.R. Leighton, Peter C. Maurice, John L. Stoik and Donald H. Thain, advised by independent counsel, considered the terms of the transaction and reviewed a valuation opinion prepared by ScotiaMcLeod Inc. The $30 per share price is above the midpoint of the valuation range after taking into account the special dividend. The special committee also received a fairness opinion from Nesbitt Thomson Deacon Inc. that the terms of the "going private" transaction, including the $30.00 per common share to be received by the minority shareholders of GW (together with the special dividend) are fair and reasonable from a financial point of view to the minority shareholders of GW.

GREENWICH, CT (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The Pittston Company (NYSE: PCO) announced today the signing of separate ten year supply agreements for low sulphur coal with two subsidiary companies of American Electric Power Company, Inc. (NYSE: AEP). AEP is the largest consumer of steam coal in the United States.

The first agreement is with the Appalachian Power Company for its Clinch River Va. plant and replaces a contract due to expire Dec. 31, 1992. The contract calls for minimum tonnage of 1,000,000 tons annually for a ten year and three month period commencing Oct. 1, 1991.

The second agreement, which is with Ohio Power Company for its John E. Amos, W.Va. plant, starts at a minimum annual rate of 240,000 tons, steadily increasing to nearly 1,000,000 tons for the sixth through the tenth year of the contract. The agreement is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1990.

Paul W. Douglas, chairman and chief executive officer, said he is "pleased that Pittston is expanding its long-standing relationship with AEP and that we are playing a significant role in that portion of its long-term fuel supply strategy related to low sulphur coal."

He noted further that "Pittston expects to deliver a total of some 20,000,000 tons of coal during the term of these two contracts and that both contracts reflect adequate base prices for a long-term low sulphur coal supply and also provide appropriate escalation provisions for future cost increases."

Douglas also said that "Pittston now has 92 percent of its currently planned steam coal production under contract, an important factor in the present period of depressed spot steam coal prices and that Pittston has adequate reserves to expand its low sulphur coal production significantly should market conditions so warrant."

He also said that "low sulphur coal pricing should improve as utilities begin to adopt cost efficient strategies to meet the new stringent pollution standards contained in the recently enacted clean air legislation which encourages the use of low sulphur coal."

The Pittston Company is a diversified firm engaged in mining and marketing of bituminous coal through the Pittston Coal Group, Inc. and Pyxis Resources Company, air freight services through Burlington Air Express Inc., security transportation through Brink's, Incorporated, and home security services through Brink's Home Security, Inc.

BOSTON (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Publisher William O. Taylor announced today that The Boston Globe will reduce its workforce by 100 full-time positions over the next five years, with all of the reductions scheduled to come through attrition. The 100 positions amount to almost 5 percent of the Globe's full-time staff. The Globe employs about 2,075 full-time and 500 part-time staff.

"We are experiencing the same economic forces affecting other companies," said Taylor. "Advertising is down significantly this year, and the outlook is cautious at best. We think this is the least painful way to address the need to be as cost-effective as we can for the future."

Many other newspapers and media companies in Massachusetts and New England have already gone through extensive cost-cutting procedures, including layoffs. This is the first time the Globe has implemented such a program to reduce staff.

The attrition program is another important step in an overall cost-cutting effort at the Globe, which began with budget cuts in the spring of 1988. It has also included reductions in department expenditures and reductions in hours of some part-time staff.

BALTIMORE (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Loyola Capital Corp. (NASDAQ: LOYC), the holding company for Loyola Federal Savings and Loan Association, announced today that fourth quarter net income is expected to be lower than fourth quarter 1989 due to a higher provision for future loan losses at the thrift.

The thrift institution, Maryland's second largest, said that fourth quarter net income is expected to be between $1.1 million and $1.4 million as compared with $2.6 million earned during the fourth quarter of 1989 and $2.5 million for the third quarter of 1990. Net income for 1990 is expected to be between $8.6 million and $9 million. Earnings per share are expected to be between $.24 and $.31 for the quarter.

Joseph W. Mosmiller, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "We have elected to add approximately $6.4 million during the fourth quarter to our allowance to loan losses, up from $1.7 million last year. Although we have not experienced any significant change in our level of non-performing loans, our action does reflect the economic slowdown in the mid-Atlantic region and our decision to implement a more- conservative methodology for reserving against possible future losses in our loan portfolio." The fourth quarter provision will increase the allowance for loan losses to $17 million, which will approximate .80 percent of average assets.

Mosmiller also said that Loyola will report a non-recurring gain on the sale of investment securities of $3 million during the fourth quarter, which partially offsets the effect on net income of the higher loan loss provision.

Loyola's decision to increase its allowance for loan losses did not result from regulatory examinations. Loyola Federal Savings and Loan has already undergone examinations by both the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Office of Thrift Supervision this year. Mosmiller stressed that no additions to the allowance for loan losses were required as a result of those examinations.

building has been vacant since late 1988.

The company will continue to assemble heavy-duty truck drivelines in the remaining two buildings on the Allegan property. The 47 Allegan employees are unaffected by the sale of the building.

Richard C. Quaid, president of Rockwell's Off-Highway Products and Driveline Division, said the sale of the building is in keeping with the company's strategy to divest itself of unneeded assets. "We are very pleased to demonstrate our commitment to the Allegan community by selling the building to the Allegan Industrial Redevelopment Corp. for a nominal price," he added.

The Allegan Industrial Redevelopment Corp. plans to create an "incubator complex" by dividing the building and renting space at low cost to small manufacturers, according to Robert Van Duren, director of the new non-profit organization promoting Allegan's economic growth.

"The idea is to allow smaller companies to get started at minimum cost," said Van Duren. "When a business is just starting up, it usually doesn't have much money to put into buildings. We hope this building's acquisition will create jobs, stimulate entrepreneurship, and allow us to lease part of the building as general warehouse space."

In late 1988, Rockwell consolidated its driveline manufacturing operations into a facility at Fairfield, Iowa, keeping an assembly operation in Allegan.

Rockwell's Off-Highway Products and Driveline Division supplies a complete lineup of drivetrain components, including a wide range of axles -- rigid, planetary and tandem drive; brakes -- wet and dry disc, wedge, cam, hydraulic and mechanical drum brakes; drivelines and related componentry; powershift transmissions; transfer cases; friction materials; and other specialty and off-highway components on a worldwide basis.

BROOKLYN, NY (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Supreme Equipment and Systems Corp. (NYSE: PUL) today announced that the United States, at the request of the administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, commenced an action in the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, against Publicker and two other parties.

The action relates to a former Publicker facility in Philadelphia where the EPA has allegedly spent more than $22 million in cleanup activities under the auspices of the federal Super Fund Act. Publicker has previously reported the ongoing cleanup work at the facility which it sold in 1986.

The EPA has previously indicated that it has identified 85 other people in addition to the three named defendants who are potentially responsible for cleanup costs.

The complaint seeks recovery from the three defendants of amounts already spent at the facility, including interest and enforcement costs, a declaratory judgment that the three defendants are liable for any further clean-up costs, and other relief deemed appropriate, including injunctive relief preventing Publicker from disposing of its assets or exchanging its assets in a manner that will prevent or hinder the United States from collecting on any money judgment it might obtain.

Publicker and its attorneys are reviewing the complaint. The company expects to defend its interests vigorously. If the company is ultimately determined to be liable for any significant portion of the amounts sought by the United States, it could have a material adverse effect on the company's financial condition.

IRVING, TX (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Exxon Corporation (NYSE: XON) announced today that it is inaugurating its first service stations in Eastern Europe this month. Two stations are on an autobahn northwest of Berlin, and a third is in Budapest, Hungary.

Because of their unique location the two German stations, Wolflake West and Wolflake East, were constructed in a record-setting 10 weeks. Both stations are built on the site of a former East German military airstrip which was incorporated directly into the autobahn system. The existing concrete taxiways and ramps were used as foundations for the stations, thereby reducing construction time significantly. The Berlin stations are the first of a number planned for that city.

A third station being opened in December is in the 19th district of Budapest. Next year, it is expected that two more outlets will be opened in Budapest through Exxon's joint venture there.

All three units use state-of-the-art service station technology including the latest environmental protection systems to guard against water, air and noise pollution. The stations have vapor recovery systems, used oil disposal systems, car wash water sludge containment, oil/water separators, spill protection systems and double-walled steel underground tanks to prevent leakage.

The stations also incorporate the Esso Shop or Convenience Store concept which has become popular in the United States and other parts of the world over the last few years. By offering one-stop shopping, motorists can purchase a wide variety of articles -- from hot and cold snacks to newspapers and magazines -- in addition to the traditional service station offerings. The new self-service stations also include an automatic car wash and vacuum systems and offer motorists the ease and convenience of quick-change lube service and safety performance checks.

Exxon's operations in Central Europe are managed by an integrated affiliate, Esso Central Europe, composed of Esso A.G. (Germany), Esso Switzerland and Esso Austria, A.G.

ATLANTA (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Lufthansa German Airlines filed an application with the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) on Dec. 20, for a one-year extension of traffic rights to fly from Charlotte, N.C., to Frankfurt.

The German national carrier began offering three flights per week from the Carolina gateway to Germany on Aug. 1, under the DOT's "Program for Expanding International Air Service Opportunities to More U.S. Cities." The authority to operate these flights expires on Jan. 27, 1991, however, and Lufthansa must receive approval from the DOT to continue service.

In its application, Lufthansa states that public interest strongly supports a continuation of the Charlotte flights. Even though Lufthansa has only been flying to the region for a very short time, the Carolinas' economies have already begun to profit from the service. Lufthansa is the only airline providing convenient, non-stop flights between the Carolinas and Germany for international business persons; the only non-stop container service to continental Europe for Carolina manufacturers; and easy access to the Carolinas' tourist attractions and facilities for German leisure travelers.

"Despite the short lead time to introduce the flight, and a slow-down in the airline industry, we are very pleased with the success of the Charlotte flights so far," commented Uwe Hinrichs, vice president, USA South, for Lufthansa. "We believe in the economic future of the Carolinas, and we are confident that the Department of Transportation will encourage us to continue flying to Charlotte."

KANSAS CITY, MO (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - UtiliCorp United (NYSE: UCU) today announced that its Michigan Gas Utilities division has filed a request with the Michigan Public Service Commission to increase natural gas rates by $7.8 million, or 6.5 percent annually.

Michigan Gas Utilities President James G. Miller said the increase is needed to offset increased operating costs due to inflation and the cost of construction of additional pipeline and storage capacity. These construction projects enable Michigan Gas Utilities to buy natural gas at lower costs.

Michigan Gas Utilities last requested a rate increase in 1984. Customers now pay prices that are lower than any time since 1981. The average annual bill of a residential customer using 120,000 cubic feet of natural gas would increase by $45.74.

Michigan Gas Utilities serves about 122,600 customers in 50 cities and villages and 85 townships in southern and western Michigan. The division is headquartered in Monroe, Mich.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - It didn't carry a partridge in a pear tree, but today just three days before Santa Claus takes off on his annual Christmas Eve mission, the McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) MD-11 long range trijet was awarded an official speed record for a flight from the North Pole.

The award was presented to James Fearn, manager of flight test of Douglas Aircraft Co., builders of the big trijet by William A. Schoneberger, president of the Aero Club of Southern California, and Vi Rigby, National Aeronautic Association director.

The MD-11 covered the 3,962 miles (6,376 km) from the North Pole to Yuma, Ariz., in seven hours and 45 minutes, for an average speed of 511.23 miles per hours (822.7 kph).

Record awards also were made for nonstop flights between Dallas, Texas, and Seoul, Korea, and between Seoul and London, England, which averaged 459.68 mph (739.8 kph) and 411.98 mph (663 kph) respectively against strong headwinds.

All three flights were made between Oct. 22 and Oct. 25 as part of a round-the-world trip that covered 22,290 miles (35,870 km) in a total of 43 hours and 13 minutes of flying time.

Said Fearn of the records, which are now sanctioned by the U.S. National Aeronautic Association and the Federation Aeronautique Internationale: "It took us several days of flying to accomplish a world flight that Santa Claus and the reindeer can do in one night.

However, we've calculated that if Santa used an MD-11 combi to go to Yuma, it could make the Christmas Eve mission a lot easier and more comfortable for them.

"We could take on board Santa, his sleigh, all nine reindeer, including Rudolph, all of the gifts from the 12 days of Christmas, and still have enough room for two one-pound presents for all 50,000 men, women and children in Yuma.

Not only that, but all the passengers would be riding in air conditioned comfort, have hot meal service, state-of-the-art entertainment, and be in direct telephone contact with Mrs. Claus and the elves," Fearn said.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - JPS Textile Group, Inc. announced today that it has commenced a solicitation for votes to accept a plan of reorganization to restructure the company's debt and preferred stock to reduce interest and dividend rates. All members of a bondholder steering committee together with certain other large institutional bondholders (holding 62.3 percent in aggregate outstanding face amount of old debt securities) intend to vote in favor of the plan of reorganization, subject to their review of the final documentation concerning the transactions contemplated by the plan. The solicitation and the terms of the proposed plan are the result of several months of discussions and negotiations with the bondholder committee and its advisers.

The restructuring will be effected through a voluntary "prepackaged" Chapter 11 filing which JPS hopes to complete within 60 to 90 days after the court filing. The plan involves debt and preferred stock issued by the parent company, JPS Textile Group,Inc., and will not adversely affect JPS's operating subsidiaries (JPS Carpet Corp., JPS Automotive Products Corp., JPS Elastomerics Corp. and JPS Converter and Industrial Corp.) or their relationships with employees, customers or suppliers. The subsidiaries will not be filing for Chapter 11 and will continue to operate as before.

The solicitation for votes to accept the plan of reorganization is scheduled to expire at 5 p.m., New York City time, on Jan. 31, 1991. The disclosure statement, plan documents and related materials will be available early next week.

The aggregate common equity issued to bondholders will represent 49 percent of the common equity of the company. In addition, certain existing JPS stockholders will contribute $7.5 million of new capital to the company in consideration of 51 percent of the common equity of the company.

The company has received a commitment from its bank group, led by Citibank, N.A., to amend its existing credit facility to allow for the restructuring and related transactions. Under such commitment, the bank group will also maintain its existing lines of credit for JPS's operating subsidiaries thus providing them with ample liquidity.

The financial advisor to the bondholder steering committee is Houlihan Lokey Howard & Zukin Capital, and JPS Textile is being advised by Donaldson Lufkin Jenrette Securities Corporation. Due to certain federal securities law requirements, the company's and the committee's advisers will not solicit debt holders for their consents with respect to the plan.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Ailes Communications, Inc. (ACI), of New York and Washington, D.C., today announced that the company will increase its strategic communications activity for corporations. Roger E. Ailes, former media adviser to Presidents Bush and Reagan and communications consultant to a number of Fortune 500 CEOs, is responding to requests by corporations for a different type of consultant: skilled in both corporate and political communications.

According to Ailes, "Corporations and political candidates face the same general challenges -- saturation news coverage and strong opposition forces. In difficult times, corporations need to hone their messages and get a better return on reduced advertising and public relations dollars. Our company's strength is providing positive results in that kind of atmosphere."

The company also announced that Ailes will now serve as chairman and chief executive officer of ACI and that Raymond H. Kraftson has become president and chief operating officer. Kraftson has been associated with Ailes since 1972 and has been a director of ACI since 1979. Prior to becoming President of ACI Kraftson was, for ten years, vice president, general counsel and a director of Safeguard Scientifics, Inc., a NYSE technology firm. He also serves on the boards of a number of other corporations and institutions.

According to Kraftson, "Until now, most of ACI's political and corporate clients came to us unsolicited -- that's going to change. We have proven time and again that through the creative use of media we can successfully move public opinion and we intend to aggressively market that skill."

This was reinforced by the promotion of Jon Kraushar to president of ACI's Corporate Communications Group. Kraushar, a former award-winning journalist, television writer-producer and public relations executive, joined ACI in 1982 as vice president, business communications and was made a senior vice president of ACI in 1985. He has worked on a wide range of domestic and international corporate strategic consulting engagements, involving crisis management, communications training, public relations, advertising and marketing. Kraushar collaborated with Ailes on the book "You Are the Message " selected as one of the year's best books by The Wall Street Journal and now in its sixth printing.

ACI also announced that it has agreed with Business Week to become a sponsor of the magazine's International Corporate Restructuring Conference in London on Jan. 28 and 29, 1991. Ailes will be a keynote speaker at the conference and he indicated that his remarks would focus on how corporations undergoing restructuring face many of the same challenges that political campaigns face -- addressing the needs of specific audiences (e.g. suppliers, customers, lenders, security holders). Ailes said that "Clarity and excellence in communications are the key to meeting these challenges."

HOUSTON (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Enron Oil & Gas Company (EOG) (NYSE: EOG) announced today that it is indefinitely postponing its plans to offer 4,100,000 primary shares of common stock.

"The proposed offering was the last part of our original plan to sell 20 percent of EOG stock to the public," said Forrest E. Hoglund, chairman and CEO. "Since we announced the offering in mid November, stock prices for EOG and the industry have declined to a point that is below the value we place on EOG shares.

"We continue to believe that natural gas demand will increase significantly over time due to increased electrical generation demand, favorable environmental legislation and our nation's effort to reduce foreign oil dependency. As this occurs, natural gas stocks will increase in value, and we will then reevaluate our decision to offer additional shares."

EOG is currently an 84 percent owned subsidiary of Enron Corp. On Nov. 13, 1990, EOG announced a public offering of 4,100,000 primary shares of common stock, which would have had the effect of reducing Enron Corp.'s ownership percentage to 80 percent. The lead underwriters of the offering were Goldman, Sachs & Co.; Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities Corporation; The First Boston Corporation; Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated; and Prudential-Bache Capital Funding.

EOG is one of the largest independent (non-integrated) oil and gas companies in the United States in terms of domestic proved reserves. The company's reserve base is 91 percent domestic and 91 percent natural gas.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - SFFed Corp. (NASDAQ: SFFD), the holding company for San Francisco Federal Savings and Loan Association, today announced the sale of substantially all of its home equity line loan portfolio to Beneficial Mortgage Co. of California, a subsidiary of Beneficial Corp., headquartered in Wilmington, Del. While terms of the transaction were not announced, SFFed Corp. indicated that as a result of the sale, it will record a one-time pre-tax gain of approximately $5.5 million.

Roger L. Gordon, president and chief executive officer of SFFed Corp., said, "The portfolio sale is the last of several transactions entered into during 1990 to restructure our balance sheet to ensure that the company will continue to exceed all regulatory capital requirements. We will continue to offer home equity lines of credit in our Northern California marketplace."

In an unrelated development, the company announced today that it will increase its specific and general reserves for possible losses by approximately $19 million in the fourth quarter which will result in a loss for the quarter. The increase consists of $6.4 million in specific reserves, primarily on certain commercial real estate loans and a real estate development project, with the balance of the increase set aside for general reserves. The company expects its general reserves to be $18 million as a result of this action.

"It makes sound sense to increase reserves in today's economic and regulatory environment. We continuously balance priorities to focus on earnings, capital strength and asset quality. With today's economic conditions we deemed an increase in reserves to be consistent with our traditionally conservative credit policies," Gordon said.

At Nov. 30 the association's ratio of non-performing assets to total assets was 1.48 percent and foreclosed real estate was $7.3 million. At the same time loans delinquent more than 60 days were 1.73 percent. The additional loss reserves will result in total loss reserves at Dec. 31 equal to approximately 40 percent of the Nov. 30 level of non-performing assets and equal to approximately 0.62 percent of the November level of total loans.

Despite this one-time charge, Gordon emphasized, the company's capital levels will exceed all higher regulatory requirements scheduled to take effect Dec. 31, 1990. "We are confident that our capital levels will enable us to weather changing economic conditions and we are optimistic that we will experience a return to profitability in the following quarter with results in line with analysts' expectations."

DETROIT (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - "Wow" was the word reverberating through the automotive world when the first Taurus and Sable vehicles appeared in dealership showrooms on Dec. 26, 1985. The breakaway shape of the all-new cars took the industry by storm and put the word "aerodynamic" into the average motorist's everyday vocabulary.

As they approach their fifth birthday, the Taurus and Sable have been called a "marketing dream," meeting the seating requirements, trunk capacity and fuel-economy demands of middle-market buyers, while fulfilling the prestige, styling and comfort expectations of mid- specialty and large-car prospects.

In the five years since their debut, the cars have received dozens of awards, including Motor Trend's "Car of the Year" award for the Taurus in 1986. The Industrial Designers Society of America recently named Taurus its automotive "Design of the Decade."

"Taurus' design leadership is matched only by its sales success and outstanding value," said Thomas J. Wagner, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager.

Taurus and Sable have undergone more than 300 changes in the past five years to improve on their initial design and popularity. More than 2 million Taurus and Sable models have been sold in the past five years -- in fact, the total number of sales was 2,171,814 through Dec. 10, 1990.

ROYAL OAK, MI (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Edward B. LeFevre, president of National Bank of Royal Oak, today announced that the bank has lowered its prime lending rate to 9.50 percent.

The private placement consisted of 50 units comprised of an aggregate of 25,000 shares of convertible preferred stock of Soil Recyclers and warrants to purchase 100,000 shares of Thermo Process Systems common stock. PARIS, (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The Scandinavia Company, Inc. (AMEX: SCF) today reported its unaudited earnings results for the fiscal quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990. The Scandinavia Company had been entirely invested in interest bearing deposit accounts until July 31, 1990, when an acquisition group of which the company is part purchased The Bricom Group Limited, an English commercial services company that provides specialized business services to commerce, industry and government. The unaudited earnings results for the fiscal quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990 reflect the first period during which The Scandinavia Company along with the others members of the acquisition group owned Bricom.

For the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, The Scandinavia Company reported gross income of approximately $1.15 million (including $690,000 of realized foreign exchange gains) and a net loss of $558,000 or $.09 per share. The net loss primarily resulted from The Scandinavia Company's share of the losses relating to its investment in Bricom, which was attributable principally to interest expense relating to acquisition indebtedness and the amortization of goodwill relating to the acquisition. Amortization was based on a 10 year amortization period.

The results of operations for the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990 were not necessarily indicative of future results because among other things The Scandinavia Company's assets were entirely invested in interest-bearing deposit accounts until July 31, 1990. For the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990 The Scandinavia Company reported gross income of approximately $8.6 million (including approximately $5.3 million of realized foreign exchange gains) and net income of approximately $2.2 million or $.35 per share, after taking into account, among other things, unrealized foreign exchange losses of approximately $4.5 million and the company's share of losses relating to its investment in Bricom.

NORTHBROOK, IL (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - IMC Fertilizer Group, Inc. (NYSE: IFL) said today that one of its wholly owned subsidiaries, IMC Fertilizer, Inc. (IMCF), has been notified by Florida Power and Light Co. (FPL), a major customer of its uranium oxide operations, that FPL has taken two of its nuclear plants (Turkey Point No. 3 and No. 4) out of operation for major modifications, a project estimated to take about one year.

IMC Fertilizer said FPL is claiming that the planned outages excuse FPL from taking product under two long-term uranium supply contracts. Margins from those contracts for the balance of the year ending June 30, 1991, would have been approximately $11.6 million, or 27 cents per share. The negative impact on margins for the 1991/92 fiscal year would approximate $4.8 million, or 11 cents per share.

IMCF added it does not consider such a claim to be legitimate under the terms of the supply agreements between the two companies, and will vigorously oppose any attempt by FPL to avoid the terms of the agreements. The IMCF spokesman said his company expects to prevail in any dispute arising between the two companies over the claim.

IMC Fertilizer Group, Inc., headquartered in Northbrook, Ill., is the world's leading private enterprise producer of phosphate rock and potash, two basic fertilizer materials, and a manufacturer of phosphate chemicals and nitrogen crop nutrients. DALLAS (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - First RepublicBank Corp. (FRBC), IFRB Corp. (IFRB) and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) today announced that the FRBC Official Committee of Senior Unsecured Creditors, the IFRB Statutory Creditors' Committee, the estates and the FDIC finalized the terms of an agreement to settle all disputes. Earlier this month FRBC and IFRB announced they had reached a conceptual understanding with the FDIC to settle all disputes.

The agreement will result in a general release of all claims and lawsuits between the FDIC and the estates and a payment to the FDIC of $142.5 million from the assets of the two estates plus approximately $15.7 million that is related to a separate adversary proceeding involving the estates and the FDIC. The agreement will require approval of the Bankruptcy Court and, with respect to some matters, the District Court. No assurance can be given that the agreement will be approved by the Bankruptcy Court and the District Court.

If the agreement is approved and the reorganization plans are implemented, approximately $275 million will be available in the FRBC estate and approximately $170 million will be available in the IFRB estate to satisfy creditors other than the FDIC. The amount of valid claims against each estate has not yet been determined.

The FDIC asserted a number of claims against FRBC and IFRB consisting both of claims arising out of the March 1988 assistance given by the FDIC and claims acquired by the FDIC as receiver of the failed First Republic banks. FRBC and IFRB have disputed the FDIC's claims. In addition, the creditors of FRBC and IFRB filed a lawsuit against the FDIC related to the March 1988 assistance. The FDIC has disputed the allegations of the lawsuit. If approved, the agreement will resolve all of these claims and lawsuits.

The FRBC and IFRB plans of reorganization, which had been approved by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Steven A. Felsenthal in October 1990, have been stayed by U.S. District Court Judge Sydney A. Fitzwater pending an appeal by the FDIC. Under the terms of the reorganization plans, most distributions are to be withheld until resolution of the claims asserted by the FDIC against FRBC and IFRB.

The withdrawal by BMY-WVD of certain claims (filed or yet to be filed) plus recalculation of claim values as relates to the revised quantity of vehicles results in a reduction in excess of $50 million in claim value which includes waiver of the fifth year cancellation fee. BMY-WVD continues to pursue claims (filed or yet to be filed) in excess of $55 million. In addition, the federal excise tax and related claims continue to be pursued.

Problems with the five-ton truck contract have previously required reserves totaling $60 million. A preliminary review indicates no change in the loss provision will be required for the contract as modified.

Gambill concluded by stating that although BMY-WVD has not received any new orders for the five-ton truck, it is anticipated that new requirements in support of Operation Desert Shield and other foreign country requirements will develop in the near future. Any subsequent orders above the current base of 17,092 vehicles would be subject to negotiated pricing.

LAFOX, IL (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Richardson Electronics Ltd. (NASDAQ-NMS: RELL) today reported revenues and earnings results for the second quarter and six months ended Nov. 30, 1990.

Sales for the second quarter increased 8.4 percent to $41,303,000, compared with last year's total of $38,113,000. For the first six months of fiscal 1991, sales advanced 4 percent to $77,652,000, up from $74,684,000 one year ago.

During the second quarter, the company repurchased $7,265,000 of its 7.25 percent Convertible Debentures due 2006. Reported as an extraordinary item, the repurchase resulted in a gain, net of tax, of $2,290,000, or $.21 per share. Reflecting the gain, net income for the quarter was $1,878,000 or $.17 per share, compared with $472,000 or $.04 per share one year ago. Net income for the six-month period of fiscal 1991 was $1,983,000 or $.18 per share, compared with $2,433,000 or $.22 per share for the similar period last year.

Before the extraordinary item, the company posted a loss in the second quarter of $412,000 or $.04 per share. For the same quarter one year ago, net income was $472,000, or $.04 per share. For the six-month period, the loss was $307,000, or $.03 per share, compared with net income for the six-month period last year of $2,433,000, or $.22 per share.

In discussing the results, Edward J. Richardson, president and CEO, noted, "There are a number of factors contributing to the second quarter results. We are very pleased to report a revenue increase on a quarter-to-quarter and six-month basis. Gross margins, however, continue to be adversely affected by the company's inability to fully utilize its manufacturing facilities. This is a direct result of the still unresolved Department of Justice investigation and the company's suspension from participating in U.S. government contracts. The gross margin for the periods reflect the impact of $1,125,000 and $1,756,000, respectively, in underabsorbed costs.

"During the quarter, the company repurchased $7,265,000 (face value amount) of its convertible debentures. The purchase resulted in a gain of $2,290,000 after taxes. Also during the quarter, the company sold a portion of its long term investment portfolio resulting in a capital loss of $1,000,000. The related tax benefit will be used to partially offset the tax payments generated by the gain of the debenture repurchase."

Richardson further added, "During the second quarter, the National Electronics Division (NED) was reinstated as a supplier to the U.S. government and government-approved subcontractors. Although we can resume active pursuit of government-related business, it is not possible to recover all business lost during the past six months. Although our proceedings with the U.S. Department of Justice are not over, legal expenses declined in the second quarter. We are still awaiting a decision or resolution from the government regarding its investigation of the Power Grid Tube industry," he concluded.

Richardson Electronics, Ltd. is a leading international distributor and manufacturer of electron tubes and power semiconductors with 21 offices throughout the world.

CHARLSTON, WV (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - William Silverman and Company, one of Ohio's largest public relations and marketing communications firms, will open a dedicated service office in Charleston in early January to service Mountain State Blue Cross & Blue Shield.

The firm is on loan to Mountain State from Mutual Management Company, a subsidiary of Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Ohio. The Silverman firm has represented the Ohio Plan for the past 15 years.

"I am extremely pleased to be establishing an office in Charleston," said William A. Silverman, president. "Although our present plans are to serve a single client, we look forward to making many friends and establishing solid and lasting associations in the community."

The firm is recognized as among the most successful in the Midwest in its handling of health care, crisis management and public affairs issues.

Staff size has not been determined, said Silverman. But it will include:

-- Barbara Schoonover, director of community relations, a native of Charleston who formerly was a vice president of the firm in Cleveland. Since then, she has been director of public information and advertising for a new community development in the Atlanta area; director of research for a consulting firm in Washington, D.C.; and more recently returned to Charleston to attend to personal family matters.

-- Robert Daniels, general manager, a former Cleveland newspaper reporter and editor, who also has served as director of public affairs for the School of Medicine of Case Western Reserve University. As a reporter, he was frequently in West Virginia to cover assignments such as the Buffalo Creek flood in Logan County in 1972 and the Tug Fork flood in 1978, among many other events across the state.

While the company is not primarily in the advertising business, it does corporate and marketing advertising for clients with seven-figure budgets, Silverman said.

Silverman was part of a research team that earlier this year did an analysis of the ongoing financial and systemic problems of the former Blue Cross & Blue Shield of West Virginia. That plan was declared insolvent on Oct. 11 by State Insurance Commissioner Hanley C. Clark.

The new Mountain State Blue Cross & Blue Shield is a restructuring of the old Charleston Plan and the former Blue Cross & Blue Shield of West Central West Virginia, based in Parkersburg.

Mountain State's creation has meant continued health care coverage without interruption for customers of the former Charleston Plan.

BALTIMORE (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Baltimore Gas and Electric Co. (NYSE: BGE) today reported common stock earnings of $183,532,000 for the 11 months ended Nov. 30, 1990, equivalent to $2.23 per common share.

This compares with earnings of $226,606,000, equivalent to $2.83 per share, for the 11 months ended Nov. 30, 1989. For the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1990, earnings on common stock were $200,837,000, equivalent to $2.45 per share. This compares with $240,941,000, or $3.02 per share for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1989.

In October 1990, the company changed its revenue recognition policy to provide for the accrual of revenue for utility service rendered but not yet billed to customers as of the end of each month. This change increased earnings $.36 per share for each of the periods ended Nov. 30, 1990. This change conforms with the predominant practice within the utility industry and provides for a better match between revenues and expenses. The total impact of the change on 1990 earnings is estimated to be $.40 per share.

The decreases in utility earnings for both periods, excluding the impact of the aforementioned change in accounting method are primarily attributable to the effects of higher operations and maintenance expenses.

Kilowatt-hour sales of electricity for the 11 months ended Nov. 30, 1990, were essentially unchanged from the comparable period last year. Residential sales increased 1.6 percent, reflecting an increase in the number of customers, while commercial and industrial sales decreased 1 percent.

The total volume of gas sold during the current 11-month period decreased 5.9 percent, from the same period last year. The decrease in sales was primarily related to milder winter weather and decreased usage by the company's commercial and industrial customers.

Earnings from diversified business activities primarily represent the results of operations of Constellation Holdings. Inc. and its subsidiaries. Earnings from diversified business activities are expected to improve moderately but will not reach the $.24 per share earnings contribution achieved during calendar year 1989.

BALTIMORE (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - More than 515,000 passengers are expected to fly through Baltimore/Washington International Airport (BWI) during the two-week Christmas and New Year's holiday period this year.

"Air passengers appear to be taking advantage of special incentives offered by the airlines to offset the effects of the softening economy, higher jet fuel prices, and the crisis in Saudi Arabia," said Jay Hierholzer, associate administrator for the Maryland Aviation Administration.

An estimated 798,000 passengers will use BWI in December, a 2.2 percent increase over the same time last year. More than 37,000 passengers a day are expected to use BWI this month.

Nationally, according to the Air Transport Association of America (ATA), the airlines are anticipating some 23 million passengers from Wednesday, Dec. 19 through Friday, Jan. 4.

The ATA said that load factors during the holidays are expected to be as high as 80 percent on peak travel days and average from 65 to 70 percent for the period.

"The Christmas holiday is a very busy time for air travel, ranking second only to Thanksgiving in the number of airline passengers," Hierholzer said.

BWI is ready to handle the thousands of travellers and their meeters and greeters expected at the airport during this holiday season. Air travellers are reminded to allow an extra half hour to park and get to the terminal. The best method to avoid holiday travel frustration is to plan ahead.

BWI has plenty of parking available in its hourly, daily, valet and satellite lots. The lots are located within walking distance of the terminal or a short shuttle bus ride away. Free shuttle bus service is also available from the terminal to the BWI Rail Station for travellers headed to Baltimore or Washington by train. For AMTRAK information, call 1-800-USA-RAIL. For MARC trains, call 1-800-325-RAIL.

Hierholzer said remember to check with your travel agent or the airline to see if your flight is arriving or departing on time prior to leaving for BWI. While at BWI, he suggested shopping for last-minute gifts is still possible at BWI's new Bloomie's Express or any airport gift shop.

BWI would like to wish all its air travellers, their families and friends, a happy and safe holiday season.

ATLANTA (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Contel Corp. (NYSE: CTC) today announced that a "two-phase" proposal has been filed by Contel and GTE Corporation (NYSE: GTE) with the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) that seeks to permit the companies to complete their merger before they receive final approval from the CPUC. As a result of the filing, which was also signed by the California Division of Ratepayer Advocates, a pre-hearing conference has been scheduled for Friday, December 28th.

Phase I of the proposal would give GTE interim authorization to acquire Contel's California properties at the time of the merger closing, which is still expected to occur as late as the second quarter of 1991. Following the interim authorization, GTE must then submit to the CPUC its plans for integrating the California properties.

In Phase II, the CPUC would review the integration plans to determine if the merger provides net benefits to the ratepayers of California. In the event the CPUC does not grant final approval, the filing stipulates that GTE could be required to divest Contel's regulated local exchange telephone properties in California and the regulated cellular properties in California owned by Contel Cellular Inc. (NASDAQ: CCXLA), a subsidiary of Contel. Neither party believes divestiture will be necessary because both companies are fully prepared to establish and prove the many benefits and merits associated with the largest merger in industry history.

The proposal was prompted by both companies' desire to avoid potentially lengthy procedural delays in California. "This approach is a good compromise " said Don Weber. "We believe that the CPUC will agree with other state commissions that have already approved the transaction, and will grant final approval upon full review of the many benefits of the merger."

Contel, a company with $3 billion in annual revenues and sales, provides a broad range of telecommunications products and services.

FORT WORTH, TX (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert H. McLean, chairman of the board and president of Buffton Corp.(AMEX: BFX), announced today that the company is presently negotiating with the First National Bank of Boston to restructure the company's debt.

In making the announcement, McLean stated, "The Bank of Boston has requested the company to seek other sources of financing. This change in the bank's attitude rendered the structure of our existing loan agreement unsatisfactory because it contemplated a long-term relationship."

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The ultimate Chevrolet Caprice -- the Classic LTZ -- makes its worldwide debut at the Greater Los Angeles Auto Show and is now in production.

"We have refined a great American car -- the 1991 Chevrolet Caprice -- for younger buyers who want a full-size car with sportier performance, impressive handling characteristics and distinctive appearance features," said J.C. (Jim) Perkins, Chevrolet general manager.

LTZ equipment is available as an option on the Caprice Classic only. The combination of a higher (3.23) axle ratio and a limited slip differential provides more traction on slippery surfaces and faster off-line acceleration. Heavy-duty 11 X 2-inch rear brakes resist fade during successive brake applications, giving the LTZ consistent stopping distances. All Caprices get anti-lock braking as standard equipment.

LTZ is supported by firmer shock absorbers, springs and bushings plus front and rear stabilizer bars for impressive handling and stability. Yet despite this increased roll resistance, the car retains typical Caprice ride quality. A thicker gauge heavy-duty frame also contributes to impressive handling and durability.

P235-70 VR15 speed-rated Goodyear Eagle GT+4 blackwall tires are standard.

A larger radiator and a transmission oil cooler have been added to keep powertrain temperatures in check under rigorous driving conditions.

Exterior appearance revisions include twin remote electric rearview mirrors, a power antenna, a flush-mounted badge on the hood and a stainless steel exhaust tip.

Inside, Caprice Classic LTZ continues its performance theme with a leather wrapped steering wheel, digital speedometer with analog tachometer, voltmeter, and temperature and oil pressure gauges.

A pocket-size fob provides the safety and convenience of keyless entry to the LTZ and its trunk. The motorist has the option of opening only the driver's door, all four doors or the trunk.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Financial News Network Inc. (FNN) today announced that the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. However, as of Dec. 21, FNN's stock will be removed from the National Market System (NMS), but will remain on the NASDAQ System.

The exceptions granted to FNN relate to FNN's failure to meet the net worth requirements of the NASDAQ, and to the late filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission of FNN's quarterly report for its first fiscal 1991 quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990. The exception to the NASDAQ filing requirement will extend until Jan 15, 1991, at which time it will be subject to further review. FNN currently anticipates filing its first quarter FY 91 results by that date. FNN has previously announced that it anticipates reporting a loss of approximately $25 million for that period. After Jan. 15, the NASD will continue to review information as to FNN's financial position in determining whether to extend the exemption.

FNN's trading symbol (FNNI) will now carry the suffix "C" to indicate a financial exception to the NASDAQ listing requirements, instead of its current suffix "E," which means an exception to the filing requirements.

In a separate development, FNN's 46 percent shareholder, Infotechnology, Inc. (Infotech), announced today that its bank lenders had accelerated the due date of Infotech's loans, in the amount of $20.7 million. The loans are secured by a pledge of the FNN stock held by Infotech.

LOS ANGELES, (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Prism Entertainment Corporation (AMEX: PRZ) today announced a loss of $117,000 from continuing operations on sales of $11,373,000 for the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990 compared to income from continuing operations of $638,000 on sales of $10,791,000 for the comparable nine month period a year ago.

The nine month net loss was $117,000 or 6 cents per share as compared to net income of $870,000 or 39 cents per share for the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1989. Last year's net income included income of $232,000 or 10 cents per share from discontinued operations of the company's television syndication and foreign sales subsidiary, Fox/Lorber Associates, Inc. 90 percent of which was sold during this year's first quarter.

Per share earnings were based on the weighted average number of common shares outstanding of 2,113,000 and 2,208,000 for the nine months ended Oct. 31, 1990 and Oct. 31, 1989, respectively.

For the three month period, net sales were $3,627,000 with a loss from continuing operations of $582,000 compared with net sales of $4,601,000 and income from continuing operations of $295,000 for the third quarter last year.

The net loss for the current third quarter was $582,000 or 28 cents per share as compared to net income of $394,000 or 18 cents per share for the three months ended Oct. 31, 1989. Last year's net income included income of $99,000 or 5 cents per share from discontinued operations of the company.

Per share earnings were based on the weighted average number of common shares outstanding of $2,097,000 for the current third quarter compared to 2,208,000 outstanding for the year earlier third quarter.

In commenting on the company's activities, chairman and president, Barry L. Collier stated, "The third quarter sales were negatively impacted by the lower than anticipated theatrical performance of 'Any Man's Death' starring John Savage, Mia Sara and William Hickey which resulted in video sales of less than $250,000. Last year the company had better results from theatrically released films -- 'Bye Bye Baby' and 'My Mom's a Werewolf' which generated sales of $2,200,000 in the same quarter. However, the sales results of November and December and our January estimates indicate that fourth quarter sales may reverse the third quarter decrease.

"Also, while sales increased modestly for the nine months, the increase was not sufficient to cover the additional distribution expenses associated with the Paramount agreement," Collier stated.

Prism Entertainment Corporation is a home video company which markets videocassettes of theatrical and television films, children's programming, concert performances of music and comedy artists and other programming in the United States and Canada.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. District Court Judge Malcolm Marsh today ordered Horizon Air Industries to pay nearly $275,000 in attorneys fees and costs to the Association of Flight Attendants (AFA). The expenses stem from the union's successful bad faith bargaining lawsuit, decided by the court in August of this year.

In that August ruling Judge Marsh, in a strongly worded opinion, held that Horizon Air Industries engaged in illegal bad faith bargaining under the Railway Labor Act during its three years of negotiations with the Association of Flight Attendants over the terms of an initial collective bargaining agreement for the carrier's flight attendants. Finding that Horizon "bargained in a manner designed to frustrate the negotiations," the court ordered the company to "cease and desist" from any conduct designed to forestall the reaching of an agreement. Horizon's chief negotiator was singled out by the court for his lack of authority, as well as his "arrogance, intimidation, and intractability" at the bargaining table.

"The ruling on fees and costs is a bittersweet victory for the Horizon flight attendants," said Donna Fitz, AFA local president at Horizon. "This money and the money the company spent on its own attorneys could have paid for a decent flight attendant contract long ago."

Contract negotiations since the August ruling have failed to produce an agreement. The parties are next scheduled to meet in mid-January. The talks are being assisted by federal mediator Charles Barnes.

The Association of Flight Attendants, AFL-CIO, represents flight attendants on 18 airlines including flight attendants at both Horizon Air and Alaska Airlines, and is the largest flight attendant union in the world.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Geo, America's most fuel-efficient family of vehicles, announces expansion of its highly successful tree program beyond California to the Pacific Northwest, Colorado and Washington, D.C.

The 1991 Geo Metro was rated the most fuel efficient car in the United States by the Environmental Protection Agency.

What is the link between planting a tree and fuel efficiency? According to Perkins, tree planting and driving more fuel efficient vehicles are two important steps every individual can take to reduce air pollution, overcome the greenhouse effect, shade and cool our cities and beautify our communities.

As a major supporter of various grassroots organizations such as TreePeople, California ReLEAF, Global ReLeaf and a host of local tree planting organizations, Geo has already planted 50,000 trees with a goal of 100,000 by the end of 1991.

One tree is planted for every Geo sold as well as for every attendee at Geo-sponsored events.

Geo has supported such major environmental education events as the United Nations/Geo-Environmental Programme 1990 and the upcoming 1991 Fifth Annual AFA/USDA National Urban Forestry Conference in Los Angeles. A 1-800-TREE-GEO phone number allows interested citizens to get more information on tree planting, the environment and how to get involved.

On Nov. 9, Geo was recognized by the American Forestry Association and the White House for its instrumental role in furthering the alliance between the private and public sector. On Nov. 10, Geo sponsored a ceremonial tree planting in Washington, D.C.'s Judiciary Square to commemorate the formation of the District of Columbia Urban Forest Council (an alliance of local tree planting organizations including the American Forestry Association, Trees for the City, Trees for Georgetown, Green ReLeaf, Potomac Valley Chapter of the Sierra Club, Committee of 100, the State Forester and the University of D.C. Extension program).

In California this year, Geo has co-sponsored the "Run to the Far Side" in the Bay Area; the Braille Rallye; the Heal the Bay/TreePeople Children's March in Santa Monica; urban tree planting on Martin Luther King Boulevard in Los Angeles; "Best Buddies" College Tree Planting at TreePeople; and Giant Sequoias Redwoods planting in an area of burned-out Stanislaus National Forest.

Geo's other California Tree Program efforts included sponsoring the Sierra Club Wetlands Preservation '90 Festival; Permanent Charities "Earth Walk" in Los Angeles; Earth Day Fair in San Francisco; Earth Options Festival in San Francisco; and California ReLEAF community outreach seminar/workshops in Sacramento, San Diego, Orange County and San Jose.

The expansion of the Geo Tree program beyond California means similar types of educational environmental programs, activities and tree plantings will be adopted in other states.

DALLAS (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - BancTEXAS Group Inc. (NYSE: BTX) announced that it has signed a letter agreement under which an investment group to be headed by Billy B. Goldberg, Houston, would make a substantial capital infusion into BTX and acquire a significant equity interest in the company.

BTX is a bank holding company which operates two national banks, BancTEXAS Houston N.A. and BancTEXAS McKinney N.A. Goldberg is a Houston businessman and investor who has participated in the ownership and operation of banks in Texas for more than 30 years.

In the proposed transaction, the investment group would purchase between 16 million and 20 million shares of BTX's common stock for 25 cents per share, or an aggregate investment of $4-5 million. The investment group would then own approximately 45 percent to 55 percent of BTX's then outstanding common stock and would be in a position to nominate a majority of the company's board of directors. The proposed transaction is subject to numerous contingencies, including the completion of a due diligence review of BTX and its subsidiary banks; the negotiation of a formal purchase agreement acceptable to both parties; satisfactory review by federal banking regulatory authorities of the proposed change in control of BTX; solicitation of proxies and approval of the proposed transaction by BTX's shareholders; and the resolution of certain pending questions with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC).

In that regard, recent agreements between BTX and the FDIC resulted in the FDIC's current ownership of warrants, exercisable at 5 cents per share, to purchase approximately 12 percent of BTX's common stock. BTX and Goldberg are seeking to negotiate a redemption of the warrants. In addition, BTX and Goldberg will seek the FDIC's agreement that, upon completion of the proposed capital infusion, the FDIC will permanently waive any claims against BTX and its subsidiary banks arising out of the January 1990 failure of its former subsidiary, BancTEXAS Dallas N.A. In November, the FDIC agreed to a temporary waiver of such claims, provided that BTX's subsidiary banks continue to comply with applicable capital regulations.

In light of the contingencies involved, BTX estimates that it would take a minimum of several months to obtain all of the necessary approvals, if the parties enter into a formal purchase agreement.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Fort Lauderdale aviation attorney Eugene Steele announced today that a settlement has been reached with Delta Air Lines on behalf of five relatives of four victims of the Aug. 2, 1985 Dallas crash of Flight 191.

Steele advised that the exact settlement amounts were confidential, however, they were consistent with similar million dollar settlements. Steele had already collected over $1 million in benefits on behalf of Broward County Judge Zeb Wright, husband of deceased Dr. Kathleen Wright, a Broward County Nova University professor and former school board member.

Steele noted that these cases are very significant because they represent collecting twice. He said, "This situation arose because the insurance company took the position that the parents, grandparents, sister and children of the Florida residents could not be compensated under Florida law. I told the insurance company that Texas and not Florida law applied. Therefore, I referred these matters to Tom Davis, a very experienced aviation attorney in Austin, Texas. Tom not only proved that Texas law applied but came up with a new theory which allowed one of the victim's sisters to receive compensation for witnessing the crash.

"The other settlements were on behalf of the Dill family of Coral Gables, Fla. Wally Dill came to me and asked if they were entitled to recover. He did not understand why the insurance company had not offered them compensation for the loss of their daughter and grandchildren. The saddest news I received during the litigation was that Wally had died. I can say without hesitation that the personal loss that he experienced contributed to his death. When you sit across from a man who opens his heart, you can feel the pain. I hope that he knows we were successful on his family's behalf."

Steele is a former FAA attorney, airline pilot, aviation law professor and air safety investigator. Steele will not receive an attorney's fee. During each major air crash he has offered to handle without charge any case where an attorney wrongfully solicited the client.

"While I will not receive a fee, Tom agreed to a reduced fee under the circumstances. What is of concern to me is that some relatives who were entitled to compensation were told they could not recover and may have lost their rights. I believe that some local attorneys in an attempt to keep the cases and fees may have avoided sending these cases to out of state attorneys where the law is favorable. These attorneys could be sued successfully for malpractice," Steele said.

STAMFORD, CT. (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - The Triangle Corporation (AMEX: TRG) announced today that it is implementing a plan to restructure its operations around its core businesses and reduce its debt burden.

As the first step in the restructuring, Triangle has entered into an agreement to sell its special tools business to SPX Corporation for $12 million in cash. The special tools business, based in Garden City, Mich., designs, assembles and distributes special tools for OEM customers in the automotive industry. The sale is expected to close in early 1991. Triangle has agreed with its bank to apply $7 million of the proceeds of the sale to reduce its outstanding bank indebtedness. The company will retain the remaining proceeds of the sale for working capital purposes.

In furtherance of its restructuring plan, Triangle intends to seek to arrange a new long-term senior credit facility. Covenants in Triangle's senior subordinated debentures currently prohibit such a new facility. Triangle therefore intends to commence a tender offer and related consent solicitation to purchase at least $12,750,000 principal amount, or approximately 51 percent of its outstanding debentures.

The tender offer is expected to commence in January 1991 and would be conditioned on arranging the credit facility, the tender of at least 51 percent of the outstanding debentures and the receipt of a sufficient number of consents to modify the indenture as required. Triangle currently intends to offer $600, plus accrued interest to the date the tender offer expires, for each $1,000 principal amount of debentures. Furman Selz Incorporated will serve as dealer manager of the tender offer and is serving as financial advisor to Triangle in connection with its restructuring plan.

Triangle also announced today that its previously announced agreement to sell its fuel injector cleaning equipment product line to Parker Automotive Corporation for $2.25 million in cash and $500,000 in Parker common stock had not been completed as scheduled because of Parker's breach of the purchase and sale agreement. The company has been in contact with Parker and is considering various alternative courses of action. The company stated that it had no assurance now that the transaction would be completed.

Triangle also announced that because the sale of its fuel injector cleaning equipment product line would not be completed in December as scheduled, the company expected to report a loss for the fourth quarter and for the year of 1990. The company had earlier announced that it expected to report breakeven results for the year after including the favorable financial impact of the anticipated product line sale to Parker.

In commenting on the company's restructuring plan, H. Arthur Bellows Jr., chairman and chief executive officer, said, "The restructuring plan announced today assures us the liquidity needed to improve the results of our core businesses. We have confidence that steps we are pursuing will enable the company to return to its historic levels of profitability."

The Triangle Corporation is a leading manufacturer and distributor of a wide range of quality mechanics' hand tools, aerosol and service chemicals and special tools for the electronics and telecommunication segments of the industrial market, the automotive aftermarket and the consumer do-it-yourself hardware market, and of horseshoes and farrier (horseshoer) tools.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Squibb Diagnostics, a division of Bristol-Myers Squibb Company (NYSE: BMY), today announced approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to market its new technetium agent, CardioTec(R) (Kit for the preparation of Technetium TC 99m teboroxime), indicated for myocardial perfusion studies -- the measurement of blood flow to the heart -- both at rest and at stress. CardioTec is the first technetium agent to receive FDA approval.

The introduction of CardioTec, also the first of a new class of imaging agents indicated for myocardial perfusion studies, offers unique advantages both to nuclear medicine physicians and to patients being evaluated for myocardial infarction or ischemia.

Available on site, CardioTec allows physicians to image the heart within minutes of its administration to the patient.

For patients, faster testing can result in less time taken off from work or from other activities. CardioTec is also indicated for at-rest and at-stress imaging (procedures that are currently reimbursable) in both the laboratory and acute-care setting.

In addition, CardioTec differs from thallium in that thallium must be ordered in advance, while CardioTec can easily be prepared on-site as needed. "This advantage offers convenience and scheduling flexibility, especially for a busy laboratory," explained Dr. Bellinger.

CardioTec is the first of a new class of imaging agents known as BATOs (boronic acid adducts of technetium dioximes), indicated for evaluating coronary blood flow both at rest and at stress. BATO compounds offer a number of significant advantages over thallium: They readily cross cell membranes, including those of the myocardium, and are efficiently extracted by the myocardium, even at high flow rates characteristic of patient exercise or pharmacologic intervention. Rapidly eliminated from the heart, BATO compounds also allow repeat studies to be performed quickly, including the imaging of a patient's status before and possibly after intervention.

For Squibb Diagnostics, a global leader in diagnostic contrast agents and radiopharmaceuticals, CardioTec represents the continuation of a legacy begun more than three decades ago when the company pioneered the development of radiopharmaceuticals for use in nuclear medicine. During the 1950's and 1960's, Squibb Diagnostics introduced many of the nation's first radiopharmaceutical agents and is recognized for instituting the first training programs targeted at nuclear medicine technologists.

HOUSTON (DEC. 21) PR NEWSWIRE - Synercom Technology Inc. (NASDAQ: SYNR) today reported a net loss of $316,000 or 5 cents per share on revenues of $3,002,000 for the company's fourth quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990. For fiscal 1990, Synercom reported a net loss of $1,691,000 or 28 cents per share on revenues of $11,723,000. In the fourth quarter of the prior year, the company reported net income of $446,000 or 7 cents per share on revenues of $4,142,000. For fiscal 1989, the company reported net income of $2,306,000 or 36 cents per share on revenues of $17,501,000. Included in net income for the quarter and year ended Oct. 31, 1989 is an extraordinary credit from tax loss carryforwards which had the effect of increasing net income by $152,000 and $772,000, respectively.

Total revenues for the quarter and year ended Oct. 31, 1990 decreased 27.5 percent and 33.0 percent respectively, compared to the quarter and year ended Oct. 31, 1989. Synercom directs its marketing efforts toward major electric, water and gas utilities, such as British Gas, through a contract with Digital Equipment, U.K.; governmental entities; and telecommunications companies, such as Pacific Bell. The adverse effect upon Synercom's revenues and profitability for fiscal 1990 compared to fiscal 1989 is primarily due to a reduction in aggregate revenues resulting from unpredictable delays in the build-out of the systems for Digital Equipment, U.K., and Pacific Bell, and to a lesser extent, a decrease in international revenues resulting from the timing of the build-out of existing systems.

Revenues under agreements entered into with each of Digital Equipment, U.K., and Pacific Bell were approximately $2,496,000 and $720,000, respectively, for fiscal 1990 compared to $4,380,000 and $2,479,000, respectively, for fiscal 1989. Under these agreements there are no obligations to order any minimal level of software and the amount and timing of orders are subject to customer discretion. The company does not expect to license substantial amounts of additional software products to Pacific Bell until Pacific Bell has successfully completed the conversion of outside plant records to a digital data base in the first implementation district, which is not expected to occur until late fiscal 1991. At the company's current revenue levels, quarterly results of operations (and to a lesser extent, period-to-period results) are difficult to predict as a result of the timing and amount of orders from these customers.

Revenues from product licensing and sales comprised 45.9 percent and 46.3 percent of total revenues for the quarter and year ended Oct. 31, 1990, respectively, compared to 60.7 percent and 61.3 percent of total revenues for the quarter and year ended Oct. 31, 1989. Services revenues comprised 54.1 percent and 53.7 percent of total revenues for the quarter and year ended Oct. 31, 1990, respectively, compared to 39.3 percent and 38.7 percent of total revenues for the quarter and year ended Oct. 31, 1989.

As an integrator of spatial information systems, Synercom is committed to providing solutions to the complex problem of managing corporate assets. The company continues to invest heavily in developing new products and enhancing its existing software product line. These efforts have resulted in the delivery of significant new software products and enhancements and updates to existing products during fiscal 1990, which included a new version of INFORMAP with an enhancer user interface developed using the X Window standard. During the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, the company delivered two new products: INFORMAP/R and INFOPLOT/R. These products are part of a suite of database build technologies that provide integrated raster/vector processing and information management capabilities for incremental conversion of manual records. Additionally, the company developed and demonstrated a version of INFORMAP, fully integrated with ORACLE Relational Data Base Management System, and also INFORMAP executing in a UNIX environment. Synercom expects to release these products in early 1991.

Synercom provides integrated spatial systems solutions for major commercial and governmental organizations worldwide. The company's software products and systems integration services increase the efficiency, accuracy and cost-effectiveness of recording, tracking, analyzing and managing geographically dispersed assets and the activities affecting these assets. Synercom offices and distributors of Synercom products are located worldwide, and the company's common stock is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol SYNR.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The Bush administration appears to be using anti-drug aid in South America as a cover to help fight rebel forces, a House panel charged.

The House Government Operations Committee concluded in a study released Thursday that the administration's overall anti-drug strategy in Colombia, Bolivia and Peru is ineffective, misguided and dangerous and should be redirected.

The White House had no immediate comment.

In a scathing 102-page report, the panel said effective controls must be implemented to ensure that counter-narcotics assistance is not used to to help host nations battle insurgents.

It also recommended that the focus of the strategy be shifted from law enforcement to placing a greater emphasis on developing an alternative crop program for thousands of peasant farmers who now grow coca that is turned into cocaine.

The House committee oversees federal anti-drug efforts, which includes the administration's 2-year-old $261 million Andean Inititiative.

The strategy seeks to disrupt cocaine production and trafficking in Colombia, Bolivia and Peru through crop eradication, interdiction and law enforcement.

Members of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration are being used to help coordinate strikes against clandestine cocaine laboratories and coca fields.

''One of the committee's most significant and alarming findings is that our government might be giving drug aid as a smokescreen to block insurgencies,'' said committee chairman Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

''If the State Department wants to fight guerrillas, it knows how to come and ask for counter-insurgency funds. It is not our job to use our military might disguised as anti-drug assistance,'' Conyers said.

His panel concluded in its report, ''United States Anti-Narcotic Activities in the Andean Region,'' that the administration's strategy is hampered by poor management, coordination and oversight.

Virtually all of the world's cocaine is produced in Colombia, Peru and Bolivia. The United States is the biggest cocaine consumer.

Last February, President Bush and the leaders of the three other countries held an anti-drug summit in Cartagena, Colombia, where they vowed to increase joint efforts to combat narco-trafficers.

The House panel said, however, ''The single greatest obstactle to the operational effectiveness of Andean counter-narcotics efforts may be the lack of political will and or ability among the host countries.''

The panel also found that the administration's strategy ''reflects a largely military and law enforcement response to deep-rooted and diverse economic problems.''

Conyers said in a statement: ''My greatest concern is that we have non-military U.S. agencies and personnel conducting paramilitary activities, particularly in the Upper Huallaga Valley in Peru.''

He noted that on April 7, an estimated 200 guerrillas attacked the anti-drug police base at Peru's Santa Lucia. In an ensuing gun battle, U.S. pilots flew helicopter gunships and DEA agents returned automatic weapon fire.

''What are DEA agents doing coordinating the military operations of foreign troops?'' Conyers asked rhetorically. ''Clearly, we are overstepping our capacity as 'advisers.'''

There are four main rebel groups in Colombia, the biggest, is M-19. The main insurgency in Peru is the Shining Path. There is no organized rebel group in Bolivia, but there has been mounting signs that one may soon be formed.

Conyers said, ''The State Department has told Congress that 'it is inevitable that counter-narcotics activities will at times require counter-insurgency efforts.'''

He said, ''Provisions in the 1988 Anti-Drug Abuse Act did not include funding for counter-insurgency operations, yet much of our assistance to these nations is becoming just that.''

(DEC. 21) UPI - A Republican congressman says President Bush was very graphic Thursday in trying to get his point across to Iraq's Saddam Hussein . Representative Elton Gallegly of California says Bush told a group of congressmen that the best way to avoid war with Iraq is for Saddam to realize he is- quote- ''going to get his butt kicked.''

A House panel Thursday blasted the Bush administration's overall anti-drug strategy in South America as ineffective, misguided and dangerous and said it should be redirected. In a scathing 102-page report, the House Government Operations Committee charged the administration appears to be using anti-drug aid in the region as a cover to help fight rebel forces.

U-S and British officials say they're making ''substantial progress'' toward solving the 1988 Pan Am disaster. The officials issued a joint statement Thursday, on the eve of the second anniversary of the terrorist bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland. Families of crash victims have criticized the probe and urged investigators to disclose what they've turned up so far.

Former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega spent the one year anniversary of his ouster in a Miami prison awaiting trial on drug and racketeering charges. Noriega was deposed by a U-S invasion on December 20, 1989, and has been awaiting trial since. If convicted, he could face a maximum penalty of 145 years in prison and one-Million dollars in fines.

Chicago police are seeking three teen-age girls in the stabbing death of a young mother of four who was visiting the city with her husband to celebrate their wedding anniversary and see the Christmas decorations. Police say 29-year-old Laura Chambers of Wilmington, Illinois, died Thursday from stab wounds she suffered at a West Side McDonald's Wednesday night.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) UPI - Despite orders from Congress, the Air Force failed to fully inspect potentially defective structures in some of Lockheed's C-5B transport planes, a former general says.

The disclosure raises questions about whether the planes, which are currently ferrying troops and equipment to Saudi Arabia, are safe to fly because failure of the structural parts could cause the aircraft to crash.

Last month, a jury in Los Angeles imposed a $45.3 million judgment against Lockheed in a civil case in which three ''whistleblowers'' claimed they were fired after trying to alert management to structural defects in the giant cargo planes.

On Thursday, the law firm that represented the three former Lockheed employees said it had turned over documentation that proves ''... there was fraudulent involvement of key Air Force inspectors with resultant lies to Congress.''

Also on Thursday, retired Lt. Col. Lawrence B. Welborn, who says he was in charge of preparing the C-5Bs for inspection in 1986, said the Air Force inspectors tested only ''a small fraction'' of the structures they later reported to Congress had been exhaustively inspected.

A Lockheed spokesman strongly denied that the plane is flawed and the Air Force refused to comment.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., whose subcommittee on oversight and investigations sought a special inspection of the structures in 1986, demanded Thursday that the Defense Department's inspector general investigate whether the Air Force misled Congress or submitted false documents.

At that 1986 hearing, the Air Force general in charge of procurement testified that the service had not accepted flawed aircraft parts, but promised to have the planes thoroughly inspected and report back to the subcommittee.

That report, submitted in January 1987, stated that 24 suspect forgings installed in four planes had been exhaustively inspected. The Air Force submitted diagrams of the planes' main frames - the large circular, weight-bearing structures that support the plane in flight - showing that hundreds of individual points had been inspected.

But in an affidavit obtained by Dingell from the whistleblowers' attorney Herbert Hafif of Claremont, Calif., Welborn said he was in charge of removing the outer panels that provided access to the main frames and that only one area of one plane was exposed for testing.

The Air Force's report to Congress said conclusively: ''Structural integrity of the 24 suspected forgings was confirmed.''

''We have proof that the inspections were never done,'' Hafif said. ''the track record of these aircraft shows there were problems from birth.''

The three whistleblowers alleged that 26 forgings used in the main frames were improperly heat-treated at Lockheed's Burbank, Calif., plant and that they now contain flaws. Twenty-four of the main frames were used in the first four C-5Bs.

''We have given Congress the irrefutable proof that it needs to get to the people who lied and what they did in response to 1986-87 congressional investigations,'' said Hafif. ''The information we have will be sufficient to immediately ground the first four aircraft.''

(DEC. 21) UPI - The Orlando Magic suffered another loss on the road Thursday night, but this time there was reason to feel their troubles away from home won't last forever.

Orlando suffered its seventh straight defeat and fell to an NBA-worst 1-15 on the road with a 128-126 overtime loss to the Houston Rockets, but the Magic did not go down without a fight.

Houston needed a layup from Sleepy Floyd with three seconds left in regulation to tie it 119-119 and force the extra session. Orlando's Scott Skiles had a chance to force a second overtime, but his shot missed at the buzzer.

''Our guys played well enough to give us an opportunity to win,'' said Magic Coach Matt Guokas. ''We took an early lead and won the battle of the boards, but with seven seconds remaining in regulation we let Sleepy drive the lane unmolested.''

Skiles finished with 31 points and 17 assists, rookie Dennis Scott had 35 points and Terry Catledge added 28 and 17 rebounds. The Magic's only road victory this year came at New York.

For Houston, David Wood scored a career-high 27 points, Floyd had 26 and Akeem Olajuwon finished with 24 points, 16 rebounds and 11 blocked shots.

Elsewhere, Atlanta defeated Utah 105-87, Boston beat Charlotte 115- 96, Golden

Celtics 115, Hornets 96

At Charlotte, N.C., Reggie Lewis scored 24 points and Larry Bird had 16 points 10 assists and eight rebounds as Boston won its sixth straight and handed the Hornets their eighth loss in a row.

TOKYO (DEC. 21) UPI - Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto expressed concern Friday over the effect Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's resignation had on the Persian Gulf crisis and European financial markets.

''We are concerned over effects of his (Shevardnadze's) resignation on foreign exchange, bond and securities markets in Europe,'' Hashimoto told reporters after a Cabinet session.

''This has added to uncertainties over the Gulf crisis,'' he added.

Hashimoto said he is watching closely how it will affect world financial markets.

Government spokesman Misoji Sakamoto declined immediate comment and said the government is closely following developments in the Soviet Union.

He added, however, ''Whether or not Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's reform policies will succeed will bear a serious impact on Soviet-Japanese relations.''

The news of Shevardnadze's resignation came ahead of a scheduled meeting between him and Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama in Moscow in January and Gorbachev's trip to Japan, slated for April.

Shevardnadze resigned the same day Japan announced a steep drop in defense spending growth from 5.4 percent to 3 percent a year over the next five years, and officials cited a relaxation of the Soviet threat as justification for the cuts.

''We don't recognize the Soviets as an enemy anymore,'' Chief Cabinet Secretary Misoji Sakamoto said Thursday.

The Tokyo Stock Exchange reacted to the news quickly, prompting investors to unload their share holdings.

The key Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which fell 351.84 points Thursday, plunged another 446.71 points to close the morning session at 24,078.23.

''The news (of Shevardnadze's resignation) sent a shock wave through the market but there was not a sense of panic'' as investors focused their interest on the Middle East and interest rates, said one trader.

Brokers said most investors also sold their share holdings to clear their positions ahead of the Christmas holiday overseas and three-day weekend in Japan.

The market will be closed Monday because of a national holiday.

KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA (DEC. 21) UPI - The teary-eyed mother of the first U. S. citizen facing the death penalty for marijuana possession under Malaysia's tough laws said she believed her son used the drug to alleviate pain.

''Personally I do not know why he took cannabis,'' Virginia Wiley told the High Court Thursday. ''But I assume he suffered a lot of pain after falling off a cliff,'' said the 62-year-old retired college teacher from Sacramento, Calif.

Kerry Lane Wiley, 38, a computer lecturer, was arrested in November 1989, after customs officers raided a house where he was staying in a Kuala Lumpur suburb and found 9.4 ounces of marijuana in six tin cans.

Wiley is the first American to be charged under statutes mandating the death sentence for anyone caught with half an ounce or more of heroin or morphine, two pounds of opium or 6.4 ounces of marijuana.

Virginia Wiley, who taught psychology and sociology, said she never actually saw her son smoke marijuana. He ''has never been addicted to cannabis and has never undergone any rehabilitation program.''

Wiley described the Dec. 20, 1964, accident when her 12-year-old son fell off a 66-foot mountain cliff, and it took 50 men two hours to rescue him. Wiley was hospitalized for six weeks ''and wrapped up like a mummy with only his chin, where he had 38 stitches, showing,'' she said.

''The incident received much publicity in California,'' she said. ''It was called a Christmas miracle'' that Wiley survived.

He underwent several rounds of surgery during the next four years, she said.

Virginia Wiley said the pain persisted and he gave up taking pills when he reached 18. ''He was anti-doctors and anti-medication,'' she said.

Under cross-examination on whether she kept track of her son's activities, Wiley said, ''I do not think you can keep track of any 18- year-old boy when he leaves home.''

Earlier an American psychiatrist testified that marijuana helped relieve Wiley's pain. Dr. Lester Grinspoon, an associate professor as Harvard Medical School, said he believed marijuana helped Wiley alleviate muscle spasms, rheumatism and chronic depression.

Submitting a medical report, Grinspoon said it showed Wiley suffered a fracture on his right wrist, right ankle and upper left arm as a result of the fall 26 years ago.

Malaysia first introduced the death penalty for drug offenses in 1975 as an option for judges sentencing convicted traffickers. The government of Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad amended the law in 1983 to make it mandatory that all convicted traffickers be hanged.

Since 1975, more than 100 people have been executed, including 27 foreigners.

MANILA, Philippines (DEC. 21) UPI - President Corazon Aquino Friday named a general who played a key role in crushing the bloodiest coup attempt against her government as armed forces chief for the unusually short term of four months.

Critics said Aquino's appointment of Maj. Gen. Rodolfo Biazon indicated indecision that could heighten tensions in the 159,000-member military.

In a speech during the 55th anniversary of the armed forces, Aquino announced Biazon will takeover as chief of staff upon the retirement on Jan. 23 of Gen. Renato de Villa.

''His tour of duty will be up to April 1991 when he reaches the retirement age of 56,'' Aquino said in her address broadcast over defense department radio. She did not indicate her choice of a permanent chief of staff whose normal tour of duty is three years.

But she named army chief Maj. Gen. Guillermo Flores, 53, who is regarded as a strong contender for the top military position, as Biazon's deputy. She also appointed military operations chief Brig. Gen. Lisandro Abadia as the new army commander.

Twenty-nine colonels and navy captains were promoted to brigadier general or its equivalent rank, including Col. Evelgia Mendoza as the first woman brigadier general in the military.

Political science professor Francisco Nemenzo said Biazon's short term as military chief has made him a lame duck and was a sign of Aquino's indecision.

''If she really wanted the chief of staff to institute reforms, to do something to heal the wounds, she should have appointed somebody who will stay long or extended Biazon's tenure,'' he said.

Nemenzo said the problem of divisiveness in the military ''requires more than just changing leaders. He said the ''malady is so deep and complex that it requires a series of internal reforms to depoliticize a ''rms to depoliticize a Military sources said Aquino's action was meant as a gesture of gratitude to the loyal Biazon and that eventually Flores, a low-key and decisive combat officer, will takeover.

Biazon, a former superintendent of the Philippine Military Academy and Marine commander, is currently head of the National Capital Region Defense Command.

Biazon assembled a ragtag band of soldiers and turned the tide of battle in the Dec. 1-9, 1989, coup attempt, the sixth and bloodiest since Aquino took power in a civilian-backed military revolt in 1986. At least 99 people were killed and 570 others were wounded in the uprising.

''I am grateful to the leadership for giving me the mandate,'' said Biazon who declined further comment.

Rebel soldiers have said Biazon's appointment will only serve to heighten divisions in the armed forces. They point out the high-profile Biazon has antagonized many junior officers for his ascerbic comments against military dissidents.

''Biazon will only foment more coups,'' said Col. Reynaldo Ochosa, who was convicted on Wednesday along with 80 others in connection with a coup attempt in August 1987.

In her speech, Aquino said the armed forces had scored successes against leftist and rightist insurgents.

But she acknowledged a long-term solution could only come ''in the form of economic development and delivery of basic services.''

She indicated the more serious threat to the government could come from rising oil prices as a result of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2.

Rumors have begun circulating in the capital of a coup attempt that could coincide with the a new round of price increases next month.

(DEC. 21) UPI - A California Republican congressman says President Bush indicates that if a war breaks out, Iraq will lose badly. Representative Elton Gallegly quoted Bush as saying- '''If we get into a shooting war with Saddam, he's going to get his butt kicked.''' Gallegly says Bush made the remark Thursday during a meeting at the White House with congressmen who had just returned from a trip to Saudi Arabia. Asked later if he had made the remark, Bush looked somewhat uncomfortable and declined to reply. But his top aides erupted in laughter.

Israeli officials say a U-N resolution deploring Israel's decision to deport Palestinians is biased and unbalanced. A government spokesman said- quote- ''We express regret over the adoption of the resolution which lacks any balance and ignores the facts on the ground.'' Israel's Foreign Ministry says it is dissatisfied by the ''one-sided decision'' and won't help the peace process.

The White House isn't commenting on House panel's report that blasts the Bush administration's Andean drug strategy as a flop. The House Government Operations Committee issued a scathing report Thursday criticizing the administration's overall anti-drug strategy in Colombia, Bolivia and Peru. It said the strategy was ineffective, misguided and dangerous... and suggested it be redirected.

Providence, Rhode Island, Mayor Vincent Cianci Junior is being allowed to return to his job, despite the criminal record he earned for assaulting his wife's reputed lover. The state Supreme Court Thursday rejected arguments that Cianci's narrow victory in the November 6th election should be voided because of a 1986 amendment to the state constitution regarding convicted felons holding public office. The justices also said Cianci's challengers filed their objections too late.

The Missouri Supreme Court has rejected a request to reinsert the feeding tube for Nancy Cruzan, the comatose woman who's being allowed to die following a long court battle. It was the latest setback to activists opposed to the decision to let Cruzan die. Doctors say she would die within two weeks. A hospital spokeswoman in Mount Vernon says Cruzan's condition is still listed as ''deteriorating.'' Cruzan was left severely brain damaged in a 1983 auto accident.

KATMANDU, Nepal (DEC. 21) UPI - The government agreed to consider wage increases for civil service workers Friday, ending a two-day strike that paralyzed the nation.

More than 136,000 workers, who have been on strike since Wednesday, returned to their jobs Friday following the agreement which was reached at 3 a.m. following a 12-hour negotiating session.

Two government ministers and six union officials agreed that workers would not walk off their jobs again while the government considered demands for wage increases.

The government earlier had said a weak economy made it impossible to meet the workers' demands.

In another concession to workers' demands, the interim government formed after a sucessful pro-democracy movement in February, said it would prosecute corrupt officials from the previous regime.

The strike had led to fears that multi-party elections scheduled for March and April would be delayed.

''The country, people and democracy will be the big losers if the conflict and confrontation between the government and civil servants is prolonged when general elections are just round the corner,'' said Secretary General Girij Aprasad Koirala of the Nepali Congress Party, a member of the coalition government.

MOSCOW (DEC. 21) UPI - Members of the Congress of People's Deputies seized on resigning Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's warning of an impending dictatorship Friday as a rallying point for reformers.

Leningrad Mayor Anatoly Sobchak, one of the leading reformers in the Congress, said he agreed with Shevardnadze's assessment and said if nothing is done to solve the economic and political crisis in the country a dictatorship could be just around the corner.

''I think that this warning is more than serious,'' Sobchak said.

He said if there was no quick agreement on economic ties between the republics and the distribution of state resources by the beginning of the year first dozens and then thousands of factories may close.

''Then all of us, democrats, radicals and conservatives, will have to go begging to the military and say to them 'come and rule us,''' Sobchak said.

Shevardnadze resigned Thursday to protest attacks on him and the government by conservative forces he warned are seeking a dictatorship.

The foreign minister made his dramatic announcement at a time when Gorbachev is seeking expanded powers as part of a government overhaul he says is needed to stave off economic and political disaster, but Shevardnadze made it clear he was not referring to Gorbachev in his warnings of dictatorship.

Sobchak said unspecified forces were campaigning to discredit democratic reformers and ''the very choice of democratic rule'' in the country - saying the 25 percent turnout for recent elections to remaining seats on the Leningrad city council was a sign the campaign was working.

''Just think, if this is so there only remains a dictatorship,'' he said. ''The names of that dictatorship may be various, but it will have one common element, nomenclatura (the system by which the Communist Party controls all power).''

Before the fifth day of the Congress began, Sobchak told reporters Shevardnadze's resignation to protest the backlash of conservative forces was ''a very brave thing.''

''We are indeed moving toward a dictatorship,'' he said. ''In two to three months we will have to turn to the military to do everything. Because now nobody is doing anything.''

Vitaly Chelyshev, a leader of the so-called inter-regional group of reformist deputies, called on all members of the Congress who are boycotting the session for various reasons to return in order to fight the conservatives.

Delegations from Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Georgia, Armenia and Moldavia are staging total or partial boycotts of the fourth session of the Congress, mainly for nationalist reasons because they consider their republics separate from the Soviet Union.

''We share the fears of Eduard Shevardnadze,'' Chelyshev said. ''We are calling on all democratic forces to unite and we call on all the deputies who left the hall to return.''

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (DEC. 21) UPI - An explosion shattered the facade of a downtown office building in the southern town of Queenstown early Friday but caused no casualties, police said.

No one claimed responsibility for the blast.

The mine detonated in front of the Old Mutual Insurance building at 5:15 a.m., a police spokesman said, smashing more than 150 of its windows, ''taking chunks out of the walls'' with shrapnel, and breaking glass in a nearby shop.

Officers later discovered another ''explosive device'' nearby and blew it up in a controlled explosion at the scene, the spokesman said.

Police declined to speculate on a motive for the bombing or the identity of the attackers.

''There are a number of organizations which could be responsible, both radical white and racical black,'' the spokesman noted.

President Frederik de Klerk's racial reforms, launched in February, have outraged shadowy right wing white groups and prompted them to carry out periodic urban bombings.

Among black groups, the militantly anti-apartheid Pan Africanist Congress, dissatisfied with the pace of reform, has vowed to step up its guerrilla war on white minority rule and has claimed responsibility for attacks on police and other targets.

(DEC. 21) UPI - Around the world... Around the clock... U-P-I brings the latest news.

British Prime Minister John Major opens a two-day visit to the United States today. Major is expected to meet President Bush for the first time as leader of Britain. The brief, pre-Christmas visit is seen as an opportunity for the two leaders to get acquainted. The two men do not know each other well.

Japan's finance minister today expressed concern over the impact of Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze's resignation. The minister says it has added to ''uncertainties'' over the Persian Gulf crisis. He added that he's watching closely how it will affect world financial markets.

The Air Force has grounded its fleet of BB strategic bombers because of engine problems. Officials say the move follows an incident similar to one in which an engine dropped out of a bomber in flight. A BB on a training flight early Wednesday was making practice approaches at Dyess Air Force Base, Texas, when a fire broke out in the right inboard engine.

A former general is raising questions about whether the Air Force's Lockheed CB transport planes are safe to fly. Retired Lieutenant Colonel Lawrence Welborn says the Air Force failed to fully inspect potentially defective structures in some of the planes... despite orders from Congress. The planes are currently ferrying troops and equipment to Saudi Arabia.

Residents of Guam are bracing for Typhoon Ross. The storm's lead winds bore down on the Pacific island territory with 75-mile an hour gusts. But the eye of the 500-mile-wide storm... packing sustained winds of 145 miles an hour... is expected to pass over the island at about midday before swinging to the northwest.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 21) UPI - A Philadelphia Quaker organization must garnish the wages of its employees who fail to pay income tax for religious reasons, a judge has ruled.

But U.S. District Judge Norma Shapiro also said Thursday the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends cannot be penalized for failing to honor the levies imposed by the Internal Revenue Service.

The ruling came in the wake of the refusal by Friends' employees, William Grassie and David Falls and Falls' wife, Sabrina, to pay their federal income taxes.

Grassie and Falls refused to pay the full amount because part of the money would go to the military, and that would be in violation of their religious anti-war beliefs.

The Friends, while not a war register, cited the deep religious beliefs of Falls and Grassie and said its policy was not ''to coerce or violate the consciences of such persons, or to act as agents for those who do.''

The IRS challenged the refusal to pay, saying the Quaker organization was responsible for seeing that the federal agency got its money.

Shapiro, citing a Supreme Court decision earlier this year in Employment Division v. Smith, said she had no choice but to order the Friends to honor the levies.

In Smith, a drug rehabilitation organization fired two employees after they ingested a hallucinogenic drug, peyote, as part of a Native American religious ceremony.

The state of Oregon refused to give them unemployment benefits because they were fired for misconduct.

The Supreme Court ruled that since the ingestion of the drug, peyote, was a crime in Oregon, ''the right of free exercise does not relieve an individual of the obligation to comply with a valid and neutral law of general applicability on the ground that the law proscribes (or prescribes) conduct that his religion prescribes (or proscribes).

Shapiro said she did not impose a fine on the Friends, as urged by the IRS, because the Smith case had not been decided at the time the organization refused to comply with the IRS.

LOCKERBIE, Scotland (DEC. 21) UPI - Aimee Guthrie turned 2 Friday. Her birthday is hard for Lockerbie to forget: She was born 12 minutes after Pan Am Flight 103 blew up in an explosion that sent fire and steel raining onto her hometown.

Aimee came into the world at 7:15 p.m. Dec. 21, 1988, minutes after the New York-bound jumbo jet was blown to pieces by a bomb, killing 270 people - including all 259 people aboard and 11 residents on the ground.

The infant's birth is etched in the townspeople's memory as a happy local event in a night of horror.

No formal services were held in Lockerbie Friday to mark the anniversary of the bombing of Flight 103, which officially remains unsolved.

As the smiling little girl decorated her Christmas tree, her mother Elizabeth, 28, said Aimee's birthday marks a date that haunts the town.

''They all remember the date because it's the anniversary of the disaster,'' she said. ''It's not easy to celebrate on such on occasion. and we're not doing anything special for Aimee's birthday. It might be different when she gets a bit older.''

Aimee's father Wallace, a hotel manager, celebrates his 30th birthday Christmas Day.

When the remains of the Boeing 747 crashed into Lockerbie, Aimee's parents were at Cresswell Maternity Hospital in the town of Dumfries 12 miles away. It was there they heard about the disaster, and waited in apprehension for word on their relatives. Eventually, they learned their kin emerged unscathed.

In Lockerbie, observance Friday of the disaster was low key.

''There are some American relatives in town, but they will just be getting together quietly,'' said Robert Riddet, community council chairman. A total of 155 Americans were killed in the bombing.

Some friends and relatives planned to meet at the small room of remembrance at Tundergarth on the outskirts of town, where the shattered aircraft's nose fell. Others said they would visit churches and place flowers on memorials to the dead.

The town itself has returned to normal, at least outwardly, since the explosion. A residential section where the plane's fuel-laden wings wrecked 28 houses has been rebuilt, and residents are settled in.

But the spot where an explosion of fuel blew a huge crater into the ground and sent a fireball into the night sky has been left a grassy open space - a quiet reminder of Lockerbie's longest night.

MOSCOW (DEC. 21) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met for two hours Friday to discuss Shevardnadze's announced resignation and its effect on foreign policy.

Few details of the meeting were released. Presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said the discussion was ''businesslike and detailed'' - terms often used to describe tense diplomatic meetings.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said Shevardnadze was continuing to work in his Foreign Ministry office, but there was no indication he was considering withdrawing Thursday's dramatic resignation.

Georgi Shakhnazarov, a top Gorbachev aide, told reporters outside the Congress of People's Deputies Friday, however, that he was ''sure Eduard Shevardnadze will stay in Gorbachev's team.'' He did not elaborate.

Churkin said there had been no decision on a replacement for Shevardnadze, and dismissed a question about one widely mentioned candidate, Gorbachev adviser and Foreign Ministry Arab specialist Yevgeni Primakov, as ''speculation and guesswork.''

Ignatenko said Gorbachev and Shevardnadze discussed the gulf crisis, the strategic arms treaty that is in final stages of preparations, and ongoing talks about conventional arms.

''It was a discussion that is normally held between a president and his foreign minister,'' Ignatenko said.

Both spokesmen stressed that Soviet foreign policy was unlikely to change drastically or rapidly because of Shevardnadze's announced resignation.

''The foreign policy does not change in one minute,'' Ignatenko said.

RAMSTEIN, GERMANY (DEC. 21) UPI - Mechanical failure caused the August crash of a U.S. Air Force Galaxy transport plane, killing 13 troops heading for Saudi Arabia, the Air Force said Friday.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - President Bush prepared for an extended yuletide sojourn at Camp David Friday, highlighted by a dinner meeting with British Prime Minister John Major and a review of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Major arrived in Washington Thursday and planned to fly with Bush by helicopter Friday afternoon to the western Maryland mountain retreat for an overnight stay.

It was the president's first get-together with the successor to staunch ally Margaret Thatcher. But administration officials were confident Bush and Major are on the same wave length and Major will follow in the footsteps of Thatcher his mentor who promoted his political career.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the struggle to oust Iraq from Kuwait under the U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline; the international impact of Eduward Shevardnadze's resignation as Soviet Foreign Minister; and efforts to revive the collapsed General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) were high on the agenda of their talks at Camp David.

Following Major's Saturday morning departure, Bush and Mrs. Bush move into a holiday mode with family converging for a traditional celebration of Christmas.

As his calendar now stands, the president plans to remain at the rustic presidential hideaway until New Year's Day, but he could return to the White House for a day or so.

The count-down in the Persian Gulf to force Saddam Hussein to withdraw from neighboring Kuwait, which his forces invaded Aug. 2, caused Bush to forego his customary post-Christmas quail hunting trip to Beeville, Texas this year.

For the past two weeks, Bush and his wife have hosted a series of daily Christmas parties, sharing the White House holiday splendor and shaking hands with thousands of guests.

At the same time, the president has kept a heavy focus on ''consultations'' this past week with congressional delegations that visited U.S. troops in SaudiArabia, and business and other groups to bolster support for his policies including the threat of military action in the gulf.

White House chief of staff John Sununu told reporters that Bush will have a full plate to ponder before ringing in the new year.

He wants to take a little more time to find a replacement for William Bennett, who resigned from his short-lived appointment as chairman of the Republican National Committee because of the need to fulfill a book writing contract and other conflicts.

''People will be going up to brief him (Bush),'' Sununu said. ''It's a quiet period of time in the country...I'll be there for a couple of days. But he may come back here for a day. He may have people up there for a day.'' There will be work ''even if he's doing it in a much more relaxed atmosphere.''

Fitzwater said present plans call for Bush to stay at Camp David.

''I think all his children will be there for Christmas,'' he said. ''There are no meetings scheduled at this time. He will have his daily intelligence briefings and get a telephone briefing'' from national security affairs adviser Brent Scowcroft and Sununu. ''But beyond that, it's all ad hoc, whatever he wants. I'm sure he'll be calling people.''

White House aides, meantime, are gathering ideas for the president's State of the Union address to be delivered on Jan. 29. He also is working on the next federal budget.

ATHENS, GREECE (DEC. 21) UPI - A strong earthquake hit northern Greece early Friday, killing a woman whose house collapsed and injuring at least 60 people, including a boy whose Christmas tree fell on him, authorities said.

The Athens Geodynamic Institute said the quake measured 5.5 on the open-ended Richter scale and struck northern Greece at 8:57 a.m. The epicenter was in the Goumenia district, near Kilkis, some 190 miles north of Athens.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said the quake measured 6.1 on the Richter scale and occurred about 30 miles northwest of Thessaloniki.

The quake was also felt in neighboring Bulgaria, the semi-official Athens News Agency said.

Police said Anastasia Deliou, 68, was fatally injured when her house collapsed in central Macedonia.

Other houses in the region were damaged and at least 60 people were reported injured, five seriously, police said.

An 18-year-old was injured when he panicked and jumped from the balcony of his first-floor apartment.

A 4-year-old boy suffered serious head injuries when a Christmas tree in his home toppled in the tremor and struck him.

President Constantine Karamanlis, on Christmas holiday in the Halkidis region, telephoned the Thessaloniki Observatory in northern Greece and asked to be kept informed of developments.

The quake was the strongest to hit northern Greece since a temblor measuring 6.4 on the Richter scale struck the same area June 20, 1978, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

(DEC. 21) UPI - Scrooge-like Christmas shoppers, wary of recession and war, failed to meet the meager holiday-season expectations of the nation's merchants, capping a miserable 1990 for the retail industry.

From discount retailers such as Ames Department Stores Inc. to general merchandisers such as Sears, Roebuck & Co. to upscale department-store chains such as R.H. Macy & Co., the year was tumultuous and disappointing.

Hoping to loosen the purse strings of penny-pinching consumers during the holiday season - when most retailers ring up 50 percent of their sales and 40 percent of their profits - merchants turned to widespread markdowns.

Sale prices of as much as 70 percent off abounded days before Christmas, making holiday shopping feel more like day-after-Christmas clearance sales.

''What we have is a very sluggish sales scenario suggesting a big squeeze on profits for retailers this Christmas,'' said Janet Mangano, an analyst at Jesup, Josephthal & Co. in New York. ''If there is a pickup in sales, we're suspicious of how retailers are getting them: promotions means pressure on profits.''

The year began on an ominous note with the January bankruptcy filings of retail giants Federated Department Stores Inc. and Allied Stores Corp. that together operate 10 prestigious department store chains.

Their Chapter 11 petitions, which allowed Cincinnati-based Federated and Allied to continue operating while restructuring massive debt loads, came after weeks of uncertainty for the two U.S. retail divisions of Toronto's Campeau Corp.

Crippled by an inability to meet interest obligations on a combined $7 billion debt - the result of Campeau's leveraged buyouts of Federated for $6.6 billion in 1988 and Allied for $3.6 billion in 1987 - stores such as Bloomingdale's, Abraham & Straus, Jordan Marsh and Burdine's were so cash poor that many suppliers were afraid to ship to them.

Analysts said Federated and Allied, still operating under protection from creditors, have been hurt by an economy that weakened as the year wore on. But while sales have been below projections, operating cash flows - generally considered the most critical line on the balance sheet while Federated and Allied are in Chapter 11 - have been on target.

''What they have going for them is that they assumed a recession,'' said Mangano.

More conservative outlooks could have staved off much of what currently ails the retail industry, observers said.

Like many others, retailers were swept up in the takeover mania that punctuated the 1980s, and 1990 was the year that retailers began paying for their excesses.

Ames was forced to file for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in June. Analysts attributed the discount chain's financial woes to its $778 million acquisition of Zayre Stores in 1988.

Stephen Pistner, a turnaround specialist who was named chief executive officer of Rocky Hill, Conn.-based Ames after the bankruptcy filing, immediately closed 221 stores in five states and laid off 17,500 of the company's 55,000 workers.

Ames grew to a $5 billion retailing empire after its acquisition of Zayre, but found it could not meet debt obligations and operational expenses.

TOKYO (DEC. 21) UPI - Masashi Kojima, president of Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp., expressed confidence Friday the company will remain profitable for years to come despite growing competition from newcomers on the domestic market.

''NTT will have to go through difficult years in terms of financial performance for the next few years because of serious competition from newcomers. They are becoming stronger and stronger,'' he told foreign correspondents.

Kojima, who became president of the giant domestic telecommunications company this year, said the company wishes to maintain its annual profits at $3.1 billion.

''If our profits fall below that level, I don't think our company is profitable,'' he said.

Kojima said NTT will try to strengthen its competitiveness by consolidating its nationwide network although it will require a huge amount of investment.

NTT, a former domestic monopoly, was privatized in April 1985 in line with the government's policy of liberalizing the telecommunications market. It faces competition from two rivals created following the market liberalization.

Kojima also said the government is expected to soon allow foreign investors to invest in NTT.

A governmental advisory panel, which is scheduled to meet early next year, is expected to come up with a recommendation allowing foreign investment in NTT, he said.

''The advisory council is scheduled to meet early next year, and I strongly hope that the council will come up with a decision to allow foreign acquisition of NTT stock,'' Kojima said, adding: ''NTT should be opened to foreign investors in this borderless age.''

Kojima welcomed the Finance Ministry's decision to sell an additional 500,000 NTT shares over the next five-year period, saying ''investors were relieved of the decision.''

He added, however, it remains to be seen whether the ministry's decision will help boost the NTT stock price, which has been hit by the current stock market slump.

Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto, however, said ''sales of NTT shares will hardly have an adverse impact on the market. I hope the measure will boost the attractiveness of NTT stock.''

The ministry said it will release up to 2.5 million shares of NTT stock held by the ministry over a five-year period, starting in fiscal 1991.

The ministry earlier sold 5.4 million shares in three installments.

Kojima said the government has paved the way for NTT to issue new shares but ''I have no immediately plan to increase our shares in view of the current market slump.''

NTT reported its operating revenue for the six months ended Sept. 30 gained 3.0 percent over a year ago to $21 billion.

Operating income fell 12.8 percent to $1.85 billion, but the company said it has revised upward its operating income for the year ending next March 31 to $3.24 billion from the previous estimate of $2.97 billion as a result of intensive efforts to increase operational efficiency and profitability.

MOUNT VERNON, MO. (DEC. 21) UPI - A reverend went to court Friday to force hospital officials to reconnect the feeding tube that was taken out of Nancy Cruzan a week ago by her parents, who want to let her die after almost eight years in a vegetative stage.

U.S. District Judge Dean Whipple in Kansas City scheduled a hearing on the suit filed late Thursday by the Rev. Patrick Mahoney, director of the Center for Christian Activism in Boca Raton, Fla.

Mahoney's suit asks Whipple to issue an immediate injunction against last Friday's order by Jasper County Probate Judge Charles Teel Jr., who ruled Cruzan's parents could remove the feeding tube that has kept her alive in a persistent vegetative state since a 1983 car accident.

In his suit, Mahoney alleges Cruzan's constitutional rights are being denied because food and water are being withheld from her. The suit also charges

Cruzan never was represented properly in last month's hearing before Teel because no attorney argued in her defense or cross-examined the witnesses whose testimony apparently convinced Teel to order the tube disconnected.

Named as defendants in the suit are the Missouri Rehabilitation Center in Mount Vernon, where Cruzan is a patient; its director, Donald Lamkins; Gov. John Ashcroft and Attorney General William Webster.

''We have got to fight to the very end for Nancy Cruzan's life,'' Mahoney said in a statement issued late Thursday. ''In a civilized society, it is never acceptable for us to starve an innocent person to death.''

Also Thursday, Gary Tebbets of Kansas City and Gary Rickman of Kansas City, Kan., filed a petition with the Missouri Supreme Court to restore food and water to Cruzan. Their petition, which had been rejected Tuesday by the state Court of Appeals in Springfield, contends Cruzan is being deprived of her right to life without due process of law.

A Supreme Court spokeswoman said the court had not yet said whether it planned to hear the suit.

Webster was criticized by Randall Terry, the founder of Operation Rescue of Binghamton, N.Y., who is in Mount Vernon in an attempt to persuade hospital officials or Cruzan's parents, Joyce and Lester ''Joe'' Cruzan of Carterville, to resume feeding the brain-damaged woman.

Doctors have said Cruzan, 33, would die within two weeks of the tube being removed. It was removed early last Saturday after Teel's ruling. Her condition was listed Friday as ''deteriorating.''

The Missouri Supreme Court refused Thursday to order hospital officials to resume feeding Cruzan. The state's highest court issued a two-sentence order denying a petition by Yvette Williams of Kansas City that asked it to order the feeding to be reconnected.

Williams, who works at the Johnson County, Kan., Mental Retardation Center, then took her suit to the Missouri Court of Appeals at Springfield, which also denied the request.

About 20 protesters remained outside the hospital Friday, hospital officials said. The doors to the hospital have been locked since Wednesday because some protesters entered the facility, blocked hallways and had to be carried out by security guards and police. Some of the protesters also tried to reach Cruzan's room but were stopped.

MIAMI (DEC. 21) UPI - The nation's airline industry, battered by higher fuel prices and a softening economy, is headed for more turbulence in 1991, but predictions of a possible shakeout may be overblown, several analysts say.

''There may be some consolidation, but then again there may not be as much as some people think,'' said Mark Daugherty of Dean Witter Reynolds in New York.

The outlook for the weaker U.S. carriers and the industry in general depends in large part on the price of oil and the length and depth of the current economic downturn, analysts said.

''There are a lot of wild cards out there for 1991,'' Daugherty said.

Industry losses for 1990 are expected to reach or exceed $1.5 billion, with most of that coming in the fourth quarter. The deficit for all of 1991 could rival that record annual loss for the industry, according to at least one analyst.

''If crude oil prices continue at a very high level throughout 1991 and we are indeed in a recession, then we see the possibility of a repeat of that $1.5 billion loss,'' said Lee Howard, chief executive officer of Airline Economics Inc., a consulting firm in Washington.

''I also think we'll see virtually a windup of the consolidation process that's been taking place over the last seven or eight years,'' he added.

Howard said he expects to see more asset sales, perhaps some mergers and - possibly - some outright failures among the nation's major carriers.

''Within the next year to 18 months, I think you'll see the industry largely composed of five or six carriers, which means several will be out of the picture,'' he said.

Although Howard declined to name the carriers he believes won't survive, analysts in general consider Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines, Continental Airlines and Eastern Airlines among the most troubled.

Some believe it may be too soon to write off any airline, however.

''The conventional wisdom appears to be there will be some more carriers gone by the end of next year. I think that is not a given,'' said Hans Plickert, an airline analyst with the Transportation Group in New York.

Fuel prices could fall and the economy could snap back, providing some relief for troubled carriers, Plickert said. ''1991 could turn out to be a much better year than is presently expected,'' he said.

Plickert also noted that the nation's troubled airlines have taken steps to bolster their finances.

''The weaker carriers without exception are in the process of raising significant amounts of cash,'' he said. ''If, in fact, their attempts are successful ... it will permit them significant amounts of breathing room.''

In recent months, Pan Am agreed to sell its London routes and other assets to United Airlines for $400 million, a bankruptcy court judge granted Eastern access to $135 million raised through previous asset sales, and Midway Airlines sold its Philadelphia assets to USAir for about $65 million.

Continental, which filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection on Dec. 3, agreed to sell its Seattle-Tokyo route to American Airlines for $150 million, and American agreed to buy TWA's London routes for $445 million.

''The structure of the industry is changing. Pan Am and TWA ... will become very different carriers from what they are today,'' Plickert said. ''But that doesn't mean they will disappear.''

Likewise, Plickert is unwilling to write off Eastern, even though its unsecured creditors have called for its liquidation. Eastern's first- class fare program is ''a legitimate strategy for survival,'' he said. ''Whether it will be successful at this point remains to be seen.''

Nevertheless, Plickert said the fate of at least some financially strapped carriers will depend on the price of jet fuel.

''The real critical factor is what is going to happen to fuel prices, '' he said. ''I don't think at $1 a gallon, the staying power of some carriers is unlimited.''

In recent weeks, the price of jet fuel has fallen to about 80 cents a gallon, said Tim Neale, a spokesman for the Air Transport Association in Washington.

Although the price still is about 20 cents higher than before Iraq seized Kuwait on Aug. 2, it is well below the peak of $1.40 a gallon reached in mid-October, Neale said. Every penny increase in the price of jet fuel pushes up the industry's annual operating costs by $150 million, he said.

Lower fuel prices do not guarantee smooth skies for the industry, however.

''Fuel prices are just one factor,'' observed Paul Turk, an analyst with Avmark Inc. in Arlington, Va.

''The major factor is the downturn of the economy,'' which lowers the demand for airline seats, prompts fare cutting and drives up losses, he said.

''We have a great deal of overcapacity in the system. You can deal with capacity in a couple of ways. You can park airplanes, and that seems to be going on to a certain extent. Or you can cut fares, and that is going on to a great extent,'' Turk said. ''It is going to mean more losses for the airlines, and it will mean lots more consolidation.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - Britain's new Prime Minister John Major, in Washington for a round of meetings with U.S. officials, voiced strong backing for allied policy in the Persian Gulf Friday and said a partial Iraqi pullout from Kuwait would not be acceptable.

Major, who just three weeks ago succeeded Margaret Thatcher as prime minister, was scheduled to meet with Secretary of State James Baker, Vice President Dan Quayle, congressional leaders and then travel to Camp David with President Bush.

In a series of early morning television interviews, Major was firm in saying Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein must pull his forces out of Kuwait completely in order to avoid war.

The U.N. Security Council resolutions ''are entirely clear ... He really has to get out. There's no compromise on that point. If there's not to be a conflict it's in Saddam Hussein's hands,'' Major said on Cable News Network.

''He can withdraw and he can withdraw fully and speedily from Kuwait. That's a matter for him. If he doesn't the international community has made it perfectly clear that they will expel him.''

Major said ''there's no question of negotiations with Iraq ... There's nothing whatsoever to negotiate about.''

He said Saddam may try to ''play games'' to evade the U.N. order, but that will not work.

''A complete withdrawal is necessary and a partial withdrawal won't do. Saddam Hussein should be in no doubt about that. From the United Kingdom's point of view a partial withdrawal is not good enough,'' Major told NBC News.

He said if Saddam is not forced to withdraw ''others in the world may think they can act in the same way toward weaker nations. So there's a very clear interest in the international community to make sure he gains absolutely nothing from the way he's behaved.''

Major expressed concern about the surprise resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. He said it was important to know who will replace Shevardnadze ''and whether the policy will continue unchanged. Early signs are that it will continue unchanged and that's very welcome.''

He said Shevardnadze ''has shown himself in recent years to be a very good friend of peace, both in the East and the West, and I think he'll have a remarkable place in history as a result of that.''

The prime minister expressed hope the resignation will not interfere with arms treaties that have been reached or are being negotiated with the West.

''I would have thought that Mr. Gorbachev was so centrally committed to those that he would be very keen to see them continue and to drive them through. I think that is in everyone's interest.''

Major indicated his own government will not differ greatly from that of Thatcher, in whose administration he served for several years.

''I don't think there is going to be a great deal of difference in substance ... I think the direction of policy was right, but we will build on that policy. Of corse it will change and evolve, and it would have changed and evolved if Margaret Thatcher had stayed there ... But on substance and objectives I think you'll find it will be strikingly similar.''

Major appeared confident the United States and the European community will reach a trade agreement despite the recent collaps of negotiations over the issue of farm products. ''I very much regret the fact that the GATT talks broke down, but they're going to reassemble. I don't think the breakdown was fatal.''

OSHKOSH, WIS. (DEC. 21) UPI - A 29-year-old man says he is relieved that officials have dropped charges accusing him of sexually assaulted a mentally ill woman who reportedly has 46 different personalities.

''I'm not ready to say anything yet. I'm letting things just cool off,'' Mark A. Peterson, 29, said Thursday. ''I'm just relieved the case is closed and now I've got to sort things out and get a job.''

Peterson had been convicted Nov. 8 of having sex in a park with a 27- year-old woman identified only as Sarah. Peterson allegedly convinced one of the woman's multiple personalities to have sex but she was upset about it later.

The judge in the case lifted the conviction this week, saying he had erred by not allowing the defense to question all witnesses. Prosecutors then asked that the charges be dropped because they did not want to put Sarah through the ordeal of another trial.

Peterson, an unemployed grocery bagger, said he and his wife are still together and his main concern now is getting a job. He said his job search has been ''very slow'' but he is ''hoping maybe God will help me find something.''

BRUSSELS (DEC. 21) UPI - The consumer price index for the 12-nation European Community remained unchanged from October to November, causing inflation on an annual basis to drop below six percent, the EC statistical office Eurostat said Friday.

The fall of oil product prices in November caused the consumer price index to decline in Belgium by 0.4 percent; in Germany, France and Britain by 0.2 percent, and in Denmark and Spain by 0.1 percent, Eurostat said.

In the Netherlands, the CPI remained unchanged. Some countries recorded increases in the index: Luxembourg, 0.5 percent; Italy, 0.6 percent; Portugal, 0.7 percent, and Greece 1.4 percent. In Ireland, where the consumer price index is published quarterly, a 0.6 percent increase was registered between mid-August and mid-November.

The fall of the CPI in several member states caused the annual inflation rate for the EC as a whole to drop from 6.3 percent in October to 5.9 percent in November.

In the 12 months to Nov. 1990, Denmark had the best performance with an inflation rate of 2.2 percent. Ireland had 2.7; the Netherlands 2.9; Germany 3.0; France 3.4; Belgium 4.0; Luxembourg 4.5; Spain 6.7; Italy 6.8; Britain 9.7; Portugal 14.1, and Greece 22.9 percent.

Eurostat said the figures showed that the disparity of inflation rates within the Community remained significant, the inflation in Greece being ten times higher than in Denmark and in Portugal five times higher than in Ireland.

CHICAGO (DEC. 21) UPI - The federal government's investigation of corruption and mob ties in Chicago's 1st Ward apparently has been widened to examine the method by which judicial appointments are handled.

An FBI agent indicated investigators had enough information to indict reputed mobsters and their 1st Ward cohorts 25 years ago but could not use the information then because there were no clear laws concerning electronic surveillance.

Chief Cook County Circuit Judge Harry Comerford said Friday FBI agents questioned him three weeks ago about procedures for filling associate judge posts. Judge Monica Reynolds, chairwoman of the committee that screens judicial canidates, also said two agents questioned her last month about how Bernard Spak, 63, gained a seat on the bench in Traffic Court.

Spak was recommended for the post by Pasquale Sorrentino, former chairman of the selection committee and former presiding judge of the Law Division.

Judge Robert Sklodowski of the Chancery Division said he also was questioned about Spak's selection last month.

A federal grand jury Wednesday indicted former Judge David Shields, 1st Ward Alderman Fred Roti, political power broker Pat Marcy, state Sen. John D'Arco Jr. and D'Arco's brother-in-law, Pat Frank DeLeo, on a variety of political corruption charges.

D'Arco, Roti and Marcy pleaded innocent to the charges Thursday.

Former FBI agent William F. Roemer Jr. said evidence comparable to that used to indict the five was developed between 1962 and 1965 but the government was unable to use it because there was no legislation to enable investigators to seek permission to bug suspects.

''We had reams and reams of information,'' Roemer said.

Roemer said the FBI had developed information on Marcy's alleged mob ties during the earlier investigation and that orders to Marcy came from the late mob boss Sam Giancana.

''I testified before the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations in 1983 that Pat Marcy is a made member - an actual member - of the Chicago mob '' said Roemer, a consultant to the Chicago Crime Commission.

''And they placed him in the headquarters of the 1st Ward Democratic Organization in order to further their interests. He was the conduit through which the orders of the mob were passed to those people on their pad - those politicians and judges, law enforcement people and labor leaders who were corrupted to get favorable treatment for the mob.''

Roemer said if the FBI had been able to use their information in the '60s, not only Marcy, but Giancanna, several other reputed mob figures and D'Arco's father, Democratic Committeeman John D'Arco Sr., would have been indicted.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - Regulators ended the first full year of their Herculean task of stemming the savings and loan industry's huge losses with praise and condemnation.

The thrift industry, meanwhile, continued to bleed red ink. By the end of the year's third quarter, thrifts not under government control lost $631.4 million.

And the cost of the government's thrift bailout effort, estimated originally at $166 billion over three years, skyrocketed to as much as $500 billion in little more than a year.

The sagging national economy, highlighted by extreme weakness in regional real estate markets, created an ''adverse environment'' for the thrift industry last year, said Timothy Ryan, director of the Office of Thrift Supervision.

''As long as the real estate slump continues, the thrift industry will have a tough time improving its performance,'' Ryan said.

While the government's bailout of the thrift industry slogged through the year industry regulators and executives examined the possibility of doing away with savings and loan associations altogether.

Bert Ely, president of Ely & Co., an Alexandria, Va., thrift industry consulting firm, believes the end is near for thrifts as a separately regulated industry.

''The time has come to meld bank and thrift regulation,'' Ely said. ''Thrifts will survive and will be regulated under the same ground rules as banks.''

Ely was among the thrift experts called by Ryan late in the year to discuss the future of the industry.

''I tried to tell it like it is,'' Ely recalled. ''I think it's downhill. I think it's a pretty serious environment out there. You've got regulators battering all of our institutions. It's not good news. More and more thrifts are having problems.''

But those inside the thrift industry say the picture painted by critics is deceiving.

''There is a very healthy core that is proving profitable,'' said James Grohl, a spokesman for the influential U.S. League of Savings Institutions, the thrift industry's leading lobbying organization.

''We have no question about the future of this industry,'' he said. ''There are always going to be people who need mortgages and want to buy homes.''

Still, Grohl sees more consolidation in the already shrinking number of savings and loans in the coming years.

Another aspect of the beleaguered thrift industry involves those institutions that have been taken over by the government. During the past year, the government has struggled against a number of odds to get its bailout effort on tract.

''They've got a tremendous job on their hands. Given market conditions, they probably are doing as best they can. It's just a massive assignment,'' said Grohl.

When President Bush signed into law legislation to rescue the thrift industry from its near collapse in August 1989, he created the Resolution Trust Corp. and gave it the responsiblity to manage and dispose of billions of dollars worth of assets from failed savings institutions.

After five months of start-up activity, the RTC grew into a formidable institution in 1990. But the agency was not immune to growing pains.

Since its inception, the RTC has taken over 493 insolvent thrifts and has sold or liquidated more than half. As of Sept. 30, the agency controlled 206 thrifts and had sold and collected assets valued at $110 billion, including about $17 billion worth of real estate.

There were enough false starts, particularly involving a long- promised real estate auction, to arm the agency's already well-stocked critics.

''The complaints about the operation of the RTC, the slow pace of asset sales, and the growing costs are numerous,'' said Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

''I've tried to call the RTC and I can't get them to answer the phone. The RTC is the kiss of death to a sale,'' said Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., at a recent hearing on RTC performance.

Charles Bowsher, head of the General Accounting Office, the investigatory arm of Congress, said it is too early to judge the agency.

''I don't think we have enough experience on their part to accurately assess their performance,'' he said, noting that the RTC is getting to the stage in its development where ''it should begin paying off.''

Officials of the RTC defend the agency's performance, saying their critics are too eager to rush to judgment.

''The job is not as simple as you'd sometimes believe,'' said David Cooke, the RTC's executive director. ''It's awful easy to stand on the outside and say they don't know what they're doing.

''We feel we've accomplished a lot. We've staffed ourselves up and I feel we're 90 percent there.''

L. William Seidman, the chairman of the RTC and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., offered this assessment of the agency:

''I've never seen a group work harder at a more impossible task,'' he said. ''That's not to say the best job has been done. There are areas that could be improved. But any evaluation would have to be they have done a good job under trying circumstances.''

TORONTO (DEC. 21) UPI - British Aerospace PLC is considering a rival bid for Boeing Co.'s de Havilland division, - currently the subject of sales talks - a financial newspaper reported Friday.

According to the Financial Post, British Aerospace wants to acquire de Havilland for its technology and later sell the facility to a French and Italian consortium, Avions de Transport Regional.

Boeing signed a letter of intent in July to directly sell de Havilland to the French and Italian companies who are partners in the consortium, Aerospatiale SA and Aeritalia SpA. Talks between the parties are ongoing, but no deal has yet been announced.

Union officials said British Aerospace is interested in studying de Havilland's short takeoff and landing technology and in incorporating it into its own commuter aircraft.

"There's no question British Aerospace is interested, but I don't know for what price or on what timetable," Bob White, president of the Canadian Auto Workers told the Post.

A Boeing spokesman at the giant aerospace company's headquarters in Seattle told the Post the company is not talking to British Aerospace, but the union said Britain's largest aircraft manufacturer sent two letters to Boeing expressing interest in de Havilland.

CAW Local 112 president Jerry Dias, who represents the de Havilland workers, said "we want the plant sold to the best bidder, what's best for the workers."

There are some 5,300 employees at de Havilland, with two CAW locals representing about 4,300 of the workers. Local 112 represents 3,600 aircraft production workers. Union officials have raised the possibility that ATR might close de Havilland in order to eliminate a competitor in the commuter airliner market.

On Oct. 31, the union initiated a lawsuit against the Canadian government for breach of trust over the prospective sale of de Havilland in an attempt to protect workers' jobs. A federal agency will ultimately decide whether to approve the sale of the Canadian plant. The de Havilland facility builds the Dash 8 36-seat Series 100 and 50-seat Series 300 regional airliners.

LONDON (DEC. 21) UPI - Former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher remembered loyal supporters, ranging from close political aides to her office cleaner, with peerages and other awards announced Friday on her resignation honors list.

Prominent among the people designated for awards were men and women who helped Thatcher achieve power and maintain it during her 11 years at 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's residence.

According to tradition, after leaving office a former prime minister submits a list of supporters at all levels bestowing honors ranging from life peerages to the British Empire Medal.

Those remembered by Thatcher included people who helped form her conservative ideology, raise campaign funds, get elected, run the country, and maintain her office and household.

Key aides, Bernard Ingham, chief press secretary for 11 years, and Charles Powell, private secretary and senior foreign affairs adviser, were both knighted as were four Conservative Party members of Parliament who steadfastly supported the ''Iron Lady'' during last month's party leadership struggle, which led to her resignation Nov. 27.

Brian Griffiths, who headed the prime minister's policy unit, received a life peerage along with five others including four industrialists who contributed large sums to the 1987 Conservative Party election campaign.

In an editorial, The Daily Telegraph said Thatcher had used the list ''to reward those who gave her exceptional personal service and loyalty while she was in office.''

''Other governments, with no such baubles to offer, either succumb to financial cupidity in high places, or find difficulty in recruiting good men to do political labor for small reward,'' said the newspaper, a staunch supporter of the Conservative Party and Thatcher throughout most of her tenure.

The editors of two national newspapers that backed Thatcher also were honored. Nicholas Lloyd, editor of the Daily Express, was given a knighthood, and Brian Hitchen, editor of the Daily Star, was made a Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Jane Gow, wife of Ian Gow, Conservative member of Parliament killed in an Irish Republican Army bomb blast in July, was made a Dame commander.

Members of the staffs at Downing Street and the Chequers country retreat were represented well on the honors list. Messengers, a telephone operator, guards, housekeepers and others were named, including senior cook Dorelia Sherry and Downing Street cleaner Edwina Booker.

Margaret King, ladies' retail director at the elite Aquascutum clothing store, was made a Member of the Order of the British Empire for helping develop the photogenic and recognizable ''Thatcher look,'' classically tailored suits detailed with buttons or braid.

Michael White, political editor of The Guardian, wrote that the list marked the end of the Thatcher era, closing it ''not with a characteristic bang but with a self-denying wimper'' while revealing ''a brisk and businesslike determination to reward only the loyalest of the loyal.''

The list was checked by a parliamentary committee and approved by Queen Elizabeth before being published.

(DEC. 21) UPI - Winter pushed into the West and Midwest Friday with an onslaught of brutal cold and miserable wind-chill conditions while the South was battered by severe thunderstorms.

Winter was due to start officially at 10:07 p.m. EST and the western half of the country knew what to expect. Wind-chill factors of 30 below were common in the mountains while the panhandles of Texas and Oklahoma and parts of the Midwest also had to contend with diving temperatures, gusting winds, sleet and snow.

The wind and cold continued to be a weeklong plague in the Dakotas, where wind-chill factors were as low as 60 below zero in South Dakota and 75 below in the North.

Pocatello, Idaho, suffered the twin curses of cold and flooding. Some homes had to be evacuated because the Portneuf River was dammed up by ice jams.

The Midwest and the Texas Panhandle suffered the multiple misery of snow, sleet, freezing temperatures and bone-chilling winds, leading to car wrecks. Kansas had morning temperatures below zero and 25-mph winds that made it seem like 50 below. Snow pushed through Iowa, where temperatures were as low as 10 below - not counting winds that dropped it to 50 below.

The combination of sleet and snow dropped the visibility to nearly zero in parts of Missouri, which also had 35-below wind chills.

Severe thunderstorms rumbled through Central and East Texas and a line of thunderstorms also hit Arkansas and Tennesse. Lightning, hail and strong gusty winds were reported around Memphis.

A flash flood watch was issued for most of Kentucky and for the southeast third of Illinois and part of Indiana.

Records for cold weather and rainfall were set Thursday as fall drew to a close and at least one death was blamed on the freezing temperatures that have combined with snow and icy winds to make for dangerous conditions.

Record low temperatures were set from California to Nebraska and Denver tied the record low for Thursday at minus 16 degrees and set a record for the coldest high temperature for the date when the mercury reached only minus 3 degrees.

Seattle police said Thursday a man was found, apparently frozen to death, beneath a downtown viaduct, an area frequented by transients.

''It was probably the weather that got him,'' said a police spokesman.

While the West froze, thunderstorms and tornadoes made it seem like summer Thursday in Texas, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi. Tornado watches were up throughout the region and twisters were reported in or near the Mississippi communities of Crystal Springs, Jackson, Raymond, Macon and Florence, the National Weather Service said. Winds damaged trees near Barlow, Miss.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (DEC. 21) UPI - The state Department of Fish and Game is setting up a new bureaucracy to clean up oil spills off the California coast - but the undecided question now is who Gov.-elect Pete Wilson will put in charge of it after he takes office Jan. 7.

The Oil Spill Prevention and Response unit in the DFG is supposed to begin work in January, a Fish and Game spokesman said Thursday. Known in Sacramento by its initials of OSPR, the unit will add about 100 jobs to the DFG at a time when other agencies are being asked to cut their programs because of the state's budget crisis.

OSPR was created by the Legislature last summer in response to public outrage over the 260,000-barrel Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska in March 1989, and the smaller spill last February of 9,524 barrels from the tanker American Trader off the coast of Orange County.

The program for countermeasures against oil spills was embodied in a bill, SB2040, by Sen. Barry Keene, D-Benicia. Keene's bill took over many features of another bill, AB2603, by Assemblyman Ted Lempert, D-San Mateo.

A bitter struggle over the issue among environmentalists, legislators and the oil industry was resolved by compromise on Aug. 31, the last day the Legislature was in session.

The legislation provides for a $50 million cleanup fund in case of a major oil accident in Pacific waters off California, with borrowing rights to provide another $50 million on short notice. The federal government is providing a separate fund of its own.

The Legislature made the Department of Fish and Game the lead agency for cleanup of future oil spills in the belief that it was the government agency most oriented toward protection of fish and wildlife.

Organization of OSPR so far has been carried out by the DFG's top deputy director, Michael McCollum. McCollum, 37, is a college-trained biologist, who has become a career administrator in state government. Before moving into his present job, he managed the Environmental License Plate Fund for the Resources Agency.

Wilson, a Republican, and his advisors so far have sent no public signals whether McCollum and his current boss, DFG Director Pete Bontadelli, will remain on their jobs in the new administration. Bontadelli is an appointee of outgoing Republican Gov. George Deukmejian.

The DFG is one of several environmental entities bracketed into the state government's Resources Agency. Others include the Department of Water Resources, the Department of Parks and Recreation, and the Coastal Commission.

The present Resources Agency secretary, Gordon Van Vleck, a Deukmejian appointee, intends to return to private life.

Wilson also must appoint a chief for the Environmental Affairs Agency. It has jurisdiction over the state Water Resources Control Board, the Air Resources Board and the Waste Management Board. The current Environmental Affairs secretary is Jan Sharpless, who chairs the Air Resources Board.

The job slots in the new oil spill bureaucracy will be filled by game wardens, wildlife biologists, engineers, attorneys and electronic data specialists.

They are expected to draw up a statewide emergency plan for any future oil spills. They also will be in charge of drafting new safety guidelines for harbors and oil landing terminals.

HOUSTON (DEC. 21) UPI - Federal regulators slapped Phillips Petroleum Co. with three safety citations for a June fire at its Pasadena chemical complex, spokesmen said Thursday.

The Occupation and Safety and Health Administration is seeking $14, 300 in fines, accusing the ocmpany of two counts of willful violation of federal safety regulations and one serious violation.

''We don't agree with OSHA's findings in issuing the citations that allege willful violations,'' said spokesman Rob Phillips at the company's headquarters in Bartlesville, Okla.

''We haven't decided at this point whether we're going to contest the serious one,'' Phillips said.

Four people were hurt during the fire in Phillips' K-resin plant. The fire caused little damage to the plant. K-resin is a plastic used to make clear plastic containers such as water bottles.

Under federal law, OSHA could have sought a total of $21,000 in damages, but inspectors declined to say why they did not seek the full penalties permitted.

The June fire came less than eight months after the massive explosion that rocked the Pasadena compex on Oct. 23, 1989, killing 23 workers and injuring another 130. As a result of that disaster, OSHA charged Phillips with 566 willful violations along with nine serious violations.

Regulators are seeking $5.7 million in penalties. If paid in full, that fine would be the highest penalty ever paid following an OSHA investigation. Phillips is appealing that OSHA finding but no final ruling has been made.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 21) UPI - A new stream of Soviet Jews is flowing into Israel in an immigration rush spawned by a shaky political climate and growing anxiety among the Jewish community in the Soviet Union, officials said Friday.

Israeli officials, however, dismissed a specific link between the exodus and the announced resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Most of the Jews began leaving the Soviet before Shevardnadze's announcement Thursday, but have been delayed in reaching Israel because of logistical problems involving Eastern European transit stations, officials said.

''We expected this (immigration influx) because of the worsening situation within the Soviet Union, the greater anxiety that is engulfing the Jewish community there as a result of anti-Semitism and uncertainty, '' said Simcha Dinitz, chairman of the quasi-governmental Jewish Agency, which assists the immigration of Jews to Israel.

Immigration officials said they expected 5,500 Soviet Jews would arrive in Israel in a 48-hour period ending Saturday evening. Israel's national carrier is normally prohibited from flying on the Jewish Sabbath, but government officials have authorized three jumbo jets to land at Ben Gurion Airport near Tel Aviv Saturday.

In recent weeks, the highest number of Soviet Jews to arrive in one day topped 2,000.

The Jewish Agency is prepared to bring as many as 50,000 Soviet Jews to Israel a month, The Jerusalem Post reported. Earlier, Jewish Agency officials had estimated 30,000 immigrants would arrive per month beginning in December.

For all of 1990, approximately 200,000 immigrants will have arrived in Israel compared to an estimated 12,000 newcomers in 1989. Most of the 1990 immigrants came from the Soviet Union.

In Moscow, Aryeh Levin, head of the Israeli mission, said the increase in Soviet Jewish arrivals in Israel in recent days was part of the ''ebb and tide of the emigration process'' and has more to do with buildups at staging areas such as Budapest than current events in the Soviet Union.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - Regulators ended the first full year of their Herculean task of stemming the savings and loan industry's huge losses with praise and condemnation.

The thrift industry, meanwhile, continued to bleed red ink. By the end of the year's third quarter, thrifts not under government control lost $631.4 million.

And the cost of the government's thrift bailout effort, estimated originally at $166 billion over three years, skyrocketed to as much as $500 billion in little more than a year.

The sagging national economy, highlighted by extreme weakness in regional real estate markets, created an ''adverse environment'' for the thrift industry last year, said Timothy Ryan, director of the Office of Thrift Supervision.

''As long as the real estate slump continues, the thrift industry will have a tough time improving its performance,'' Ryan said.

While the government's bailout of the thrift industry slogged through the year industry regulators and executives examined the possibility of doing away with savings and loan associations altogether.

Bert Ely, president of Ely & Co., an Alexandria, Va., thrift industry consulting firm, believes the end is near for thrifts as a separately regulated industry.

''The time has come to meld bank and thrift regulation,'' Ely said. ''Thrifts will survive and will be regulated under the same ground rules as banks.''

Ely was among the thrift experts called by Ryan late in the year to discuss the future of the industry.

''I tried to tell it like it is,'' Ely recalled. ''I think it's downhill. I think it's a pretty serious environment out there. You've got regulators battering all of our institutions. It's not good news. More and more thrifts are having problems.''

But those inside the thrift industry say the picture painted by critics is deceiving.

''There is a very healthy core that is proving profitable,'' said James Grohl, a spokesman for the influential U.S. League of Savings Institutions, the thrift industry's leading lobbying organization.

''We have no question about the future of this industry,'' he said. ''There are always going to be people who need mortgages and want to buy homes.''

Still, Grohl sees more consolidation in the already shrinking number of savings and loans in the coming years.

Another aspect of the beleaguered thrift industry involves those institutions that have been taken over by the government. During the past year, the government has struggled against a number of odds to get its bailout effort on tract.

''They've got a tremendous job on their hands. Given market conditions, they probably are doing as best they can. It's just a massive assignment,'' said Grohl.

When President Bush signed into law legislation to rescue the thrift industry from its near collapse in August 1989, he created the Resolution Trust Corp. and gave it the responsiblity to manage and dispose of billions of dollars worth of assets from failed savings institutions.

After five months of start-up activity, the RTC grew into a formidable institution in 1990. But the agency was not immune to growing pains.

Since its inception, the RTC has taken over 493 insolvent thrifts and has sold or liquidated more than half. As of Sept. 30, the agency controlled 206 thrifts and had sold and collected assets valued at $110 billion, including about $17 billion worth of real estate.

There were enough false starts, particularly involving a long- promised real estate auction, to arm the agency's already well-stocked critics.

''The complaints about the operation of the RTC, the slow pace of asset sales, and the growing costs are numerous,'' said Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

''I've tried to call the RTC and I can't get them to answer the phone. The RTC is the kiss of death to a sale,'' said Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., at a recent hearing on RTC performance.

Charles Bowsher, head of the General Accounting Office, the investigatory arm of Congress, said it is too early to judge the agency.

''I don't think we have enough experience on their part to accurately assess their performance,'' he said, noting that the RTC is getting to the stage in its development where ''it should begin paying off.''

Officials of the RTC defend the agency's performance, saying their critics are too eager to rush to judgment.

''The job is not as simple as you'd sometimes believe,'' said David Cooke, the RTC's executive director. ''It's awful easy to stand on the outside and say they don't know what they're doing.

''We feel we've accomplished a lot. We've staffed ourselves up and I feel we're 90 percent there.''

L. William Seidman, the chairman of the RTC and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., offered this assessment of the agency:

''I've never seen a group work harder at a more impossible task,'' he said. ''That's not to say the best job has been done. There are areas that could be improved. But any evaluation would have to be they have done a good job under trying circumstances.''

MEXICO CITY (DEC. 21) UPI - Next week Gil and Bernice Abeyta will spend another Christmas without their son Christopher, who was taken from his crib four years ago at the couple's Colorado home.

After hundreds of newspaper articles, television appearances on shows such as ''Unsolved Mysteries'' and the offer of a $50,000 reward, their son is still missing.

But the Abeytas are continuing their search and are spending the holiday season in Mexico setting up what they say is the first Mexican- American network to help families from both countries find their missing children.

''We're trying to set up a foundation that will save parents a lot of time, energy, money and pain,'' Abeyta told United Press International in an interview.

Abeyta is president of the 6-week-old Families of Missing Children, a non-profit corporation that will work on a case-by-case basis with the U.S. government's National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

The Mexican government does not keep statistics on the number of reported kidnappings or disappearances in the country. And there are no estimates on the number of missing American children thought to be living in Mexico.

''There could be dozens or hundreds, or two,'' said Ruben Rodriguez, a senior analyst for the missing children center in Arlington, Va.

''In the southern region of the United States you can drive to Mexico very quickly. Who knows how many non-Hispanic kids are down there,'' Rodriguez said in a telephone interview. Rodriguez said the only reported cases of abducted kids being taken across the border involve a parent or relative who has taken the child to Mexico after a family dispute.

Two years ago the Abeytas began searching in Mexico for Christopher, now 5, after a woman reported seeing him in the northern Mexican state of Chihuahua. While visiting El Paso, Texas, the woman said she saw a photo of the boy on a poster indicating he was kidnapped. The sighting and up to a hundred that followed it have not led to Christopher's discovery.

''We don't know if he is here, or in the United States. He could be anyhwere, but you have to go when someone calls because that call may be the one,'' Abeyta said.

The first mission of Families of Missing Children is to visit every major Mexican city, make contacts with police, government officials and the clergy and leave behind at least one Mexican representative, preferably a parent of a missing child.

Once the network is established, representatives will distribute photos and fact sheets of missing Mexican and American children and follow up on sightings.

Rumors are widespread on both sides of the border about horrendous industries involving children from the two countries.

While some Mexican groups claim children here are killed so their body parts can be used for organ transplants in the United States, U.S. groups allege the existence of a so-called ''white slave trade'' in Mexico.

No evidence has been produced to support either claim and Abeyta said such rumors must be forgotten if the two countries are to work together to find missing children.

''Misconceptions among Mexicans and Americans have to be cleared up. There is a distinct impression here that the United States is the largest market for Mexican children and that has not been confirmed.

''American couples have also been led to believe that they can avoid lengthy adoption procedures in the United States by coming to Mexico and buying a baby '' Abeyta said.

Abeyta will assist the network from the United States by taking inquiries from American parents and forwarding their cases to Mexico if there is reason to believe the children were taken across the border.

Although Rodriguez said Abeyta's network would help the search for missing children, little could be done at this point if a child were found.

''We don't have the jurisdiction down there and we have no power to follow up on those cases in Mexico,'' Rodriguez said.

The only international treaty covering the return of kidnapped children to their families, the Hague Convention, has not been signed by Mexico. The two countries also do not have bilateral agencies working together on the issue.

Mexico has no agency like the missing children's center that is devoted soley to the search for lost children and teenagers. The Abeytas hope to meet with federal government officials in Mexico City during their stay to urge them to create such an agency.

''We're not going to get them to set up an agency during our visit, but hopefully a seed will be left behind to start something,'' Abeyta said.

HOUSTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The U.S. Customs Service is investigating allegations that Coastal Corp. violated a federal ban on trade with Libya by importing petroleum products originating from that country, a newspaper reported Friday.

Charles Harrison, assistant special agent in charge of the Customs Service in Houston, confirmed his agency for more than a year has been looking into possible trade irregularities involving Coastal.

Harrison declined to discuss whether the investigation had anything to do with the Libyan ban, but a source familiar with the Customs Service inquiry told the Houston Chronicle that it involves Libya.

It's unclear whether crude oil or refined product imports are the issue.

Harrison said Coastal is one of many large energy compoanies whose trade practices are being scrutinzed under a special operation called, ''Greased Lightning,'' which began in 1987.

''We are not making accusations,'' Harrison said. ''We're simply investigating allegations.''

Coastal Chairman Oscar S. Wyatt Jr. said he was unaware of any Customs Service investigation.

The Coastal chairman said his company is extremely careful about meeting the terms of U.S. import-export restrictions, and he added that no one would be ''foolish enough'' to try to sneak Libyan crude into U. S. ports.

In a separate action, Washington sources said last week that the U.S. Treasury's office of Foreign Assets Control is investigating contacts between Wyatt and top Iraqi officials to see if the Houston oilman violated economic sanctions against Iraq.

That investigation is related to Wyatt's trip to Baghad to rescue hostages. Coastal officials say the trip by Wyatt and Coastal director John Connally was a humanitarian mission.

U.S. companies have been barred from doing business with Libya since 1986 because of Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi's involvement in terrorism. Violations of the ban can result in a fine of as much as $50, 000 and up to 10 years' jail time.

Since 1987, a European affiliate of Coastal has been buying crude from the Libyans to supply a refinery in Hamburg, Germany.

After a federal investigation of that supply relationship, Coastal cleared itself of legal problems since it was making the Libyan crude purchases through its European affiliate. The refined products are sold mostly in Germany.

Iranian crude also has been banned from import into the United States since U.S. embassy employees were taken hostage in Tehran in 1979. The United States embargoed Iraqi imports just after the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Harrison declined to name other companies his office is investigating. The ''Greased Lightning'' program covers foreign trade ban violations and also misidentification of petroleum product cargoes that can cost the government a lot of money in lost duty payment.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (DEC. 21) UPI - The Nevada Gaming Commission gave Hyatt Corp. permission to negotiate deals to operate foreign hotel-casinos without prior Nevada state approval.

Hyatt executives told the commission meeting Thursday in Las Vegas that in order to be competitive, the firm needed the flexibility to close a deal without the lengthy process of getting piece-meal approval from Nevada gaming agencies.

The Nevada Gaming Commission adopted a trial regulation last May which permits well-established Nevada gaming corporations to move into foreign jurisdictions without prior state approval as previously required.

However, the Nevada Gaming Control Board, which advises the Gaming Commission, was unable to agree earlier this month on the Hyatt application to utilize the new regulation. Board member Tom Roche had proposed imposing additional restrictions on Hyatt, the first gaming company that has tried to use the new foreign gambling regulation.

However, the Nevada Gaming Commission disagreed Thursday. The five- member commission, which has the final word on granting Nevada gambling licenses, said Hyatt should be allowed to use the new regulation without the state imposing additional restrictions.

Commissioner Bob Lewis said Hyatt, the big Chicago-based international hotel concern, was an exemplary Nevada gambling licensee.

''We have no reason to impose additional restrictions,'' said Lewis. ''What better opportunity do we have to test the regulation than with a company like Hyatt.''

The commission gave Hyatt the go-ahead to operate freely under the foreign gambling law until December of 1991, at which time state regulators will review the situation.

Hyatt operates casinos in Nevada; Puerto Rico; the desert island of Aruba off the Venezuela coast and aboard Admiral Cruise ships. The firm also plans to operate casinos within the next several years in Belgrade, Yugoslavia; Warsaw; and at a resort on the Mauritius Islands in the Indian Ocean.

Vice President of Development Michael Evanoff told the commission Thursday that officials of Hyatt-International also were talking with governments and hotel operators about joint-venture, hotel-casinos in about 15 other countries including the United Kingdom, France, Hungary, Bulgaria, Egypt, India, and previous Iron Curtain nations.

Attorney Paul Bible, representing Hyatt, told the five-member commission that in the present-day, dynamic world it was impossible for a company to know in advance where the next opportunity in gaming will occur. He says the hotel economy in emerging and third-world nations needed casinos in order to augment revenues.

ROME (DEC. 21) UPI - Six children suffered burns Friday in a fire sparked by a candle that touched off their Santa Claus masks during a kindergarten Christmas show for their parents.

The fire started as 27 children were seated in small chairs on a platform wearing Santa Claus masks and holding a candle while performing in the play, parents reported.

A candle held by one of the children touched off a fire to the cotton-wool beard of his mask, and the flames spread to the masks of five other children, including two boys and three girls.

Parents watching the show grabbed fire buckets and doused the flames, one adult said.

The six children were taken to a hospital. Three of them were admitted with burns expected to require 25 days of treatment, but the other three were allowed to go home after doctors treated their minor burns.

The fire started near the end of the performance, when the children were supposed to blow out their candles simultaneously.

''One of the children, unable to blow out his candle because the beard was covering his mouth, leaned forward toward the candle and the beard of his mask caught fire,'' Giovanna Biscotti Corsini, the mother of one of the burned children, told reporters.

''One after the other the beards of the masks of five other children caught fire,'' she said. ''There was some panic as the children scrambled to get out of their chairs and away from the flames. But some parents quickly doused the flames with buckets of water.''

Police and fire officials started an investigation.

BOSTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The Boston Globe will reduce its workforce by 100 full-time positions through attrition over the next five years, publisher William O. Taylor announced Friday.

The 100 positions represent almost 5 percent of the Globe's full-time staff.

''We are experiencing the same economic forces affecting other companies,'' Taylor said. ''Advertising is down significantly this year, and the outlook is cautious at best. We think this is the least painful way to address the need to be as cost-effective as we can for the future.''

The Globe's announcement pointed out that other New England newspapers and media companies ''have already gone through extensive cost-cutting procedures, including layoffs. This is the first time the Globe has implemented such a program to reduce staff.''

The Globe, a subsidiary of Affiliated Publications Inc., of Boston, employs about 2,075 full-time and 500 part-time staff.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - Attention on deck on the USS Midway. Attention on deck. Chief Petty Officer Rich Rose, your mom and dad are sending you a fax message that should arrive at mail call in the next few days.

Rose's parents - Ken and Linda Rose of Port Angeles, Wash. - stopped by an AT&T booth at the Pentagon Thursday to take advantage of the free service, and their note to their 31-year-old son became one of nearly half a million sent since the service was organized in September.

James McGann, a spokesman for the telecommunications firm, said well over 450,000 of the one-page messages have been sent to servicemen in Saudi Arabia and sailors and Marines at sea and the figure is rapidly approaching half a million.

One military wife sent a sonogram to her husband showing that she was pregnant with twins. Another sent a lipstick kiss on the fax form to her fiance, and McGann said in one suburban Washington location a little girl whose mother is overseas regularly comes in to send her mom notes.

The service is available at selected AT&T Phone Centers around the country and will continue at least through the holidays. The nearest location can be found by calling 1-800-555-8111.

Transmission units also have been placed at 60 military bases to give families on the bases quicker access to the service. The unit at the Pentagon was opened last Monday and will stay open through Jan. 10.

The messages are transmitted to a central location in Saudi Arabia, then each is put into an envelope by AT&T workers and sent to the servicemen through the military mail system, arriving typically within 48 hours but sometimes taking 72 hours. In contrast, it can take as long as two weeks for a letter to travel through the civilian and military mail system.

The system was set up in late September after Sen. Alan Cranston, D- Calif., passed on the suggestion of New Yorker Diane Wolf for a facsimile service to get around slow mail transit times.

''We thought it was a good idea and put it in place quickly because the military is a good customer of ours,'' said McGann. The firm is absorbing the estimated $1 million cost of the project.

He said the response from those who have made use of the service has been gratifying.

A woman in Billings, Mont., wrote to thank the firm, saying she sent messages to her 26-year-old son ''just to let him know that we're writing'' because the mail had been slow to arrive.

And a woman in Wisconsin added that ''it's nice to know a big company can care. ... (The facsimile notes) mean a lot to my son, myself and his wife.''

At the Pentagon booth the traffic was steady, and increasing as Christmas drew near.

''Business is definitely getting better. I'm tired,'' said Regina Esposito, who was assisting the Rose's with their note to their son.

By the way, Rick, your dad says they took a Mississippi riverboat cruise on their vacation and then came to Washington to do all the usual tourist things. They noticed the fax booth on the Pentagon tour and afterwards they got a sailor to escort them back into the building so they could write you a quick note.

Without giving away everything in your letter, Dad says, ''Hope everything's going okay. We look forward to hearing from you. Write when you get a chance.''

DETROIT (DEC. 21) UPI - The United Auto Workers union and General Motors Corp. said Friday they are jointly distributing 1,500 copies of a patriotic music video to U.S. troops stationed in the Persian Gulf.

The music video includes renditions of ''The Star-Spangled Banner'' and ''America the Beautiful,'' performed by Tommy Roberts, a UAW- represented GM worker from Baltimore.

Roberts, 44, is a member of UAW Local 239 and employed at GM's Baltimore Truck & Bus Group plant.

''We believe this music video will serve as a Christmas gift, and help show the men and women of our American armed forces that we care about them during this difficult crisis in the Middle East,'' UAW Vice President Stephen P. Yokich and GM Vice President Richard F. O'Brien said.

''We also want to help inspire our American military troops and demonstrate our support for our country's involvement in Operation Desert Shield,'' they added.

The patriotic music video shows Roberts in a recording studio amidst scenes of UAW-GM workers at their plant manufacturing jobs and scenes of Americana. It has been viewed by thousands of UAW-GM workers across the country at both union and management meetings and conferences.

Roberts, who has written more than 600 songs and has produced five albums and three singles, is a lifelong gospel singer. His latest album, ''America,'' was released last May.

''My mother says I could sing before I could walk,'' said Roberts, who has never had formal music training. ''All of my music talent has been God-given.''

The videotapes are being shipped to troops in the Saudi Arabian desert and on nearby ships and air bases in the Persian Gulf by military airlift coordinated by the U.S. Department of Defense and USO.

The UAW-GM Human Resource Center is responsible for creating and developing joint education, training and development programs and activities for more than 300,000 UAW-represented GM workers at some 150 UAW-GM plants across the United States.

MOSCOW (DEC. 21) UPI - Members of the Congress of People's Deputies seized on resigning Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's warning of an impending dictatorship Friday as a rallying point for reformers.

But Congress chairman Anatoly Lukyanov later introduced controversial constitutional amendments that would give Gorbachev virtual control of all ministries and create a national security council of all law enforcement bodies.

A negative vote by the 1,770 registered deputies would be a virtual vote of no-confidence for Gorbachev and some observers speculated Gorbachev sacrificed Shevardnadze for the votes from the right.

The amendments will be debated but no date has been announced for the vote for the expanded powers Gorbachev said he needs to stave off political and economic disaster.

Shevardnadze resigned Thursday to protest attacks on him and the governnment by conservative forces he warned are seeking a dictatorship.

Leningrad Mayor Anatoly Sobchak, one of the leading reformers in the Congress, said he agreed with Shevardnadze's assessment and said a dictatorship could be just around the corner if nothing is done to solve the country's economic and political crisis.

''I think that this warning is more than serious,'' Sobchak said.

He said if there is no quick agreement on economic ties between the republics and the distribution of state resources by January, dozens and then thousands of factories may close.

''Then all of us, democrats, radicals and conservatives, will have to go begging to the military and say to them 'come and rule us,''' Sobchak said.

Although Shevardnadze made it clear Thursdasy he was not referrring to Gorbachev in his warnings of a dictatorship, some deputies bluntly blamed the president.

''A right-wing reactionary state coup is taking place in the country, '' said Vladimir Chernyak, a deputy from Kiev. As examples he pointed to Gorbachev's dismissal Dec. 1 of Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin and Shevardnadze's resignation.

''At the head of the coup stands Gorbachev,'' Chernyak said. ''It is possible that he himself does not know this.

''Demanding for himself more and more powers, he is creating the legal basis for a dictatorship. Maybe not for himself personally but the threat of dictatorship comes from the president.''

''Why does Gorbachev respond to the right and not to the left,'' Chernyak said. ''This is no great riddle. He is a son of his party and a defender of his interests. The proposed amendments strengthen centralism and destroy the sovereignty of our republic.''

Outside, the hallways still buzzed with speculation on what caused Shevardnadze to quit.

Fyodor Burlatsky, one of the nation's top jouranlists and a deputy, said: ''I think the reason for Minister Shevardnadze's resignation was not emotional but political. He did it to protest against the danger of some dictatorship.''

Sobchak said unspecified forces were campaigning to discredit democratic reformers and ''the very choice of democratic rule'' in the country - saying the 25 percent turnout for recent elections to remaining seats on the Leningrad city council was a sign the campaign was working.

''Just think, if this is so there only remains a dictatorship,'' he said. ''The names of that dictatorship may be various, but it will have one common element, nomenclatura (the system by which the Communist Party controls all power).''

Before the fifth day of the Congress began, Sobchak told reporters Shevardnadze's resignation to protest the backlash of conservative forces was ''a very brave thing.''

''We are indeed moving toward a dictatorship,'' he said. ''In two to three months we will have to turn to the military to do everything. Because now nobody is doing anything.''

Vitaly Chelyshev, a leader of the so-called inter-regional group of reformist deputies, called on all members of the Congress who are boycotting the session for various reasons to return in order to fight the conservatives.

Delegations from Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Georgia, Armenia and Moldavia are staging total or partial boycotts of the fourth session of the Congress, mainly for nationalist reasons because they consider their republics separate from the Soviet Union.

''We share the fears of Eduard Shevardnadze,'' Chelyshev said. ''We are calling on all democratic forces to unite and we call on all the deputies who left the hall to return.''

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (DEC. 21) UPI - The Kate Smith/God Bless America Foundation Friday announced the discovery of the original manuscript for Irving Berlin's classic patriotic tune at a gallery in Las Vegas.

The discovery of the ''God Bless America'' manuscript, which includes a crucial change in the lyrics by Berlin, was a ''most thrilling'' event, said foundation spokesman Charles D'Imperio.

D'Imperio said the manuscript, which had been presumed lost, surfaced at the Gallery of History in Las Vegas, where it is up for sale at a price of $295,000.

Todd Axelrod of the gallery said the manuscript's historical value lies in the fact that Berlin had penned a change in the song's most famous lyric.

In it, Berlin changed a line ''From the green fields of Virginia to the gold fields out in Nome'' to ''From the mountains, to the prairies, to the oceans white with foam, God bless America, My home sweet home.''

Kate Smith biographer Richard Hayes said the song is ''one of a handful of truly great American songs.'' Smith was closely identified with the stirring tune and in the final years of her life would sing it on a regular basis at Philadelphia Flyers' home games.

''The song irreversibly altered the course of Kate Smith's career,'' he said. ''She would sing 'God Bless America' thousands of times over the next four decades and would be forever linked to it.''

Both Smith's and Berlin's proceeds from the song were donated to the Boy and Girl Scouts of America.

Hayes said the ''missing'' manuscript left a trail that goes back to January 1942, when it was given to Tommy Shattuck, a Schrafft's candy store heir. Shattuck later sold it to a son-in-law, William Cheadle of Clearwater, Fla., who resold it to the Gallery of History.

The foundation is based in Lake Placid, where Kate Smith is buried in a large pink mausoleum on the grounds of the St. Agnes parish church.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 21) UPI - Israeli security forces have uncovered a cell of Druze from the Golan Heights suspected of working for Syrian intelligence, Army Radio reported Friday.

Israeli security forces and police arrested several inhabitants of the Druze village of Majdal Shams, near the Israeli-Syrian border, since late November.

Israeli soldiers caught two inhabitants armed with pistols and knives from the village Nov. 22 while the men were trying to cross the border into Syria. One Druze was killed and the other captured.

During an investigation, the captured Druze disclosed his ties with Syrian intelligence and implicated several other villagers in the network, Army Radio reported.

Israel captured the Golan Heights from Syria during the 1967 war and in 1981 applied Israeli jurisdiction and law, stopping short of full annexation.

Druze are an independent religious community that broke away from mainstream Islam in the 11th century. Within Israel, including the Golan Heights, there are approximately 70,000 Druze.

While most of the 6,000 Golan Druze have refused to accept Israeli sovereignty and Israeli-issued identity cards, the Druze within Israel's pre-1967 borders are staunch supporters of the state and serve in the army.

(DEC. 21) UPI - A battle is shaping up at the Congress of Peoples Deputies in Moscow between conservatives and reformers. Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned yesterday to protest attacks on him and the government by conservative forces that he warned are seeking a dictatorship. A leader of the so-called inter-regional group of reformist deputies today called on all members of the Congress who are boycotting the session for various reasons to return in order to fight the conservatives.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and Shevardnadze met for two hours today to discuss Shevardnadze's announced resignation and its effect on foreign policy. Few details of the meeting were released.

Iraq continues preparing for the possibility of war. Air-raid sirens sounded today in Baghdad, sending an estimated one Million people into the streets in a massive attack drill. Cairo radio said one-quarter of the city's population took private cars and special buses to a desert location where they were to be housed in tents until the drill ended.

There were NO formal services in Lockerbie, Scotland, today on the second anniversary of the bombing of Flight 103, which officially remains unsolved. Some friends and relatives of victims planned to meet at the small room of remembrance on the outskirts of town, where the shattered aircraft's nose fell. Others said they would visit churches and place flowers on memorials to the dead. 270 people died in the bombing.

A 68-year-old woman was killed in an earthquake in Greece this morning. Officials say the woman died in central Macedonia when her house collapsed. The quake measuring five-point-five on the Richter scale was the strongest to hit northern Greece since a a six-point-four tremor in the same area on June 20th, 1978.

Winter officially arrives tonight, but you'd never know it in parts of the nation. While the West froze, thunderstorms and tornadoes made it seem like summer in Texas, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi. Light snow fell across Wyoming, and frigid conditions continued with temperatures between minus 25 and minus 45 degrees with wind chills down to minus 70 degrees.

A newspaper in Cairo says a 65-year-old Moslem man in upper Egypt refused to accept quadruplets born to his 30-year-old wife. The man reportedly said he already had 11 other children by another wife. The report said the man was eventually persuaded by hospital workers to take the four babies home, along with their mother. Moslem men are allowed by religious law to marry as many as four wives.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (DEC. 21) UPI - More than 100 cars collided in a fiery chain reaction on a highway covered with ice and fog Friday, killing two people and injuring more than 50 others, the Tanjug news agency said.

Most of the casualties were reportedly Yugoslavs employed abroad who were returning home to spend the Christmas holiday with their families.

The accident occurred at about 7 a.m. outside of Sremska Mitrovica, 50 miles west of Belgrade, on a major motorway linking the national capital with Western Europe via the Croatian Republic capital of Zagreb, the agency said.

There were no details on precisely how the accident occurred. The news agency said the roadway was covered with ice and visibility was severely restricted by heavy fog.

A police investigation was under way.

More than 100 vehicles were involved in the chain-reaction collision, some of them hurtling off the shoulder of the highway and others catching fire.

Two fatalities were reported, including a man identified as a resident of the Serbian province of Kosovo who was returning home from Switzerland. The identity of the second could not be immediately confirmed because the body was burned beyond recognition inside a car, Tanjug said.

It said more than 50 other people were injured, at least 19 of whom were hospitalized in several nearby medical facilities. Most were said to be out of danger.

Traffic was blocked for nearly five hours as workers cleared damaged vehicles from the highway.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 21) UPI - In a country that boasts that only the ''finest go to the wings,'' an air force general's involvement in large-scale bribery and fraud has shaken Israel's defense establishment to the bone.

Brig. Gen Rami Dotan, a former head of the air force procurement branch, signed a plea bargain last week with the military in which he admitted receiving bribes, fraud and violating trust to commit a crime.

''We are convinced it is the most severe bribery and fraud case that has ever occured in the Israel Defense Forces, and maybe one of the most serious cases in the state of Israel,'' Military Advocate General Amnon Strashnov told Israel Television late Thursday.

Israeli military and police arrested at least two air force officers and three civilians implicated in what the Israeli press calls the ''Dotan Affair''.

About 100 people have been questioned in the scandal, which involves payoffs by Israeli and American firms to Dotan during an eight-year period. The money, estimated at $10 million to $20 million, was believed to be funneled into secret bank accounts in Canada, France, Germany and Switzerland.

The widely read Yediot Ahronot, which in recent days has come out with much information on the investigation, reported Dotan received a regular salary from an unnamed American company that was deposited in a Canadian bank account.

In the United States, General Electric announced Wednesday it began an internal investigation of purchase orders placed with companies said to be involved in the Israeli investigation.

Dotan is considered an expert on air force jet engines. The 45-year- old brigadier general played a key role in the decision to acquire jet engines from GE, worth millions of dollars, according to the Israeli press.

The affair came to light in 1989 when Israeli arms dealer Ofer Peil accused Dotan of circumventing procurement rules and pressuring American arms companies to dispense millions in contracts to the firm of his friend, engineer Yoram Ingbir, who was involved in servicing the Israeli air force's jet engines.

Israel Television reported that police suspect Ingbir of bribing Dotan and defrauding the Defense Ministry for millions of dollars.

The respected Ha'aretz newspaper reported Dotan offered Peil $150,000 for his silence. But when Peil refused, Dotan offered an undisclosed sum to a non-commissioned air force officer to harm Peil, the Israeli daily newspaper reported.

Among those detained for questioning was American-Israeli lawyer Harold Katz, a former senior Israeli Defense Ministry official involved in negotiations with U.S. arms companies.

Katz, 70, was detained several days after Dotan's Oct. 30 arrest but was released after agreeting to testify for the state. Katz identified the companies that bribed Dotan and provided names of fictious companies and numbers of bank accounts he set up for Dotan outside the country, Ha'aretz reported.

Katz was mentioned by The Washington Post in April 1987 in connection with Jonathan Pollard, an American Jew convicted of spying for Israel. Katz denied any involvement in the Pollard case.

The Dotan affair, which could involve the embezzlement of millions of dollars in U.S. military aid to Israel and payoffs by American companies, has seriously worried senior Israeli government officials.

Israel received this year about $3 billion in military aid from the United States. Under the agreement between the two countries, Israel must spend most of it in the United States.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Moshe Arens have demanded a thorough overhaul of defense procurement procedures. ''If something has happened to destroy this trust ... we will demand the system to be reorganized accordingly,'' Shamir said.

Under the present system, virtual unlimited trust is put in the hands of a few army and defense officials who decide which companies will provide military hardware.

Dotan's breach of trust sparked unprecedented sharp reactions of many senior army and air force officials. Chief of Staff Dan Shomron called Dotan a traitor.

''It's treason considering the trust and work relations that exist within the Israeli air force,'' former Air force chief Mordechai Hod told Army Radio in an emotional interview.

Hod said he would mobilize a lobby of former air force officers to demand that Dotan's plea bargain be cancelled.

At a time when the reputation of Israel's armed forces has been damaged by its involvement in the Palestinian uprising, the air force has remained one of Israel's last military holy cows.

Many Israelis regard the elite force, known for its camaraderie, efficiency and performance, the embodiment of Israel's best values.

''Dotan betrayed us all; the air force and me personaly,'' Gen. Avihu Ben Nun, Israel's air force commander, said in a special message to the air force.

Ben Nun, who appointed Dotan, said he would act without mercy to lift the stain and asked his men to remember they are responsible for Israel's safety.

''Now that the hour of trial nears ... we have to make clear to the threat from the East (Iraq) that the air force is ready and unified,'' Ben Nun said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The Food and Drug Administration Friday approved a genetically engineered drug for a rare, inherited immune disease that strikes mostly boys and young men.

The disorder, called chronic granulomatous disease or CGD, renders white blood cells unable to fight infections. CGD currently afflicts fewer than 400 Americans.

The new drug, a genetically engineered form of a naturally occurring protein called gamma interferon, appears to boost the effectiveness of white cells in CGD patients.

The drug, to be sold under the trade name Actimmune by Genentech, Inc., of South San Francisco, Calif., will be injected three times a week in most cases.

Genentech spokesman Jack Murphy said Actimmune will be available by April 1991. Murphy had no exact estimate of the drug's price, but said, like other genetically engineered drugs, it will probably be relatively expensive. However, Murphy said Genentech would provide Actimmune free to needy patients.

CGD patients suffer frequent life-threatening bouts of bacterial and fungal infections, often requiring hospitalization, that traditionally could be treated only with high-dose antibiotic therapy.

''With the use of gamma interferon, we can now expect patients to have a more normal day-to-day life,'' Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan said in a statement.

Gamma interferon is naturally produced in minute quantities by the body in certain types of white blood cells to help fight off infection. This protein has now been copied and produced commercially using a harmless bacteria altered with genetic engineering techniques.

Tests involving 128 CGD patients found a 67 percent reduction in serious infections among patients receiving Actimmune compared to those who got dummy injections.

Common side effects from the drug were short headaches, fever, rashes and chills. The long-term effects of the drug on normal growth are unknown, and gamma interferon has been shown to induce miscarriages in animals. The drug's labeling will warn doctors that the drug should not be used during pregnancy unless the benefits clearly outweigh potential risks.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (DEC. 21) UPI - Japanese billionaire Masao Nangaku - one of the richest men ever to seek a Nevada gambling license - temporarily lost his bid for a permanent Nevada gambling license to operate the Dunes hotel-casino on the Las Vegas Strip.

Instead, the five-member Nevada Gaming Commission on Thursday granted the 72-year-old entrepreneur only a four-month limited license which allows operations to continue uninterrupted at the Strip resort while Nangaku supplies the state with more information about his international business empire.

The permanent license was rejected because state investigators had been unable to obtain documents and information necessary to complete their probe into Nangaku's worldwide business dealings.

The commission, which has the final word on Nevada licenses, meets again April 25 in Carson City, Nev., to consider Nangaku's request for a permanent license. The three-man Nevada Gaming Control Board unanimously had recommended on Dec. 13 that the commission grant a permanent license Thursday but attached 15 conditions, mostly related to missing documents.

Nevada gambling applicants traditionally must provide total business, financial and personal disclosure to state gaming license investigators. Failure to do so often is grounds for denial.

''Everybody else has to do it, why shouldn't he,'' said commission chairman John O'Reilly in complaining that Nangaku and his staff had failed to cooperate with state gaming investigators in surrendering all the necessary documents about his business empire that includes more than 50 worldwide companies.

''I can't vote for an unlimited license when the investigation has not been completed,'' said commissioner Bob Lewis.

It became apparent during the lengthy Thursday commission meeting and 16 hours of testimony at Nevada Gaming Control Board hearings earlier this month, that the state's investigation had been stymied by cultural and language differences as well as lack of cooperation by Nangaku's Tokyo staff.

The commission also directed Nangaku Thursday to outline his complete business plan for rennovation and expansion of the Dunes Hotel-casino and development of his $90 million Minami Towers, a downtown Las Vegas office skyscraper which has been stalled since the billionaire broke ground on the project last Spring.

O'Reilly said Nevada gaming regulators were concerned about Nangaku's financial suitability in view of his failure to meet announced construction plans for Minami Towers, the Dunes Hotel and promised developments in downtown

San Diego, Calif.

The billionaire's Minami Development company acquired the El Cortez Hotel in San Diego for rennovation and has contracted to build additional courthouse space for the city. Neither has materialized. Also, Nangaku currently is at odds with a partner in San Diego who wants to restore the El Cortez Hotel as an historical landmark while the Japanese businessman favors tearing down the historic structure.

''You obviously are a very successful businessman, but it appears you must come up with a business plan soon or you stand to lose millions,'' said O'Reilly.

Nangaku, speaking through an interpreter and flanked by scores of business aides and his Las Vegas attorney, George Dickerson, appeared unconcerned but agreed.

One Nevada gaming source described Nangaku as one of the richest men ever to apply for a Nevada gambling license and put him in the same league as the late Howard Hughes who once owned a half dozen Nevada casinos.

Nangaku told commissioners it currently was difficult to arrange financing through Japanese banks because of the world economic slump. But, he promised to sell some of his Tokyo or overseas properties, if necessary, in order to guarantee that the Las Vegas projects were completed. He specifically mentioned the possible sale of golf course resort property in France.

''I would expect a specific plan,'' said Lewis in demanding that the commission be given full details.

Nangaku purchased the Dunes Hotel out of bankruptcy in 1987 for $157 million cash and initially was granted a two-year Nevada gambling license, which expired at midnight Thursday. He said the fact he had been granted only a two-year limited license when he bought the Dunes, rather than a permanent license, also deterred long-term financing because Japanese bankers knew other Nevada casino operators held permanent gambling licenses.

''The fact a license is limited is not an excuse for non-performance, '' said O'Reilly.

Nangaku told commissioners their failure to grant him a permanent license would strongly impact upon the morale of his 1,800 Dunes Hotel employees. He apologized for past mistakes by his Tokyo staff who failed to obey his orders to fully cooperate with Nevada investigators.

''As you suggested, we will do our best to provide all the documents in a perfect manner and hopefully at that time (April 25) you will feel comfortable in granting me an unlimited license,'' said Nangaku. '' I understand why this hearing resulted in this conclusion, it was the fault of my people in Tokyo. I appreciate your useful advice and suggestions.''

''I feel sorry for my employees at the Dunes, but I will explain and tell them what happened tonight and to have a Merry Christmas. I will do my best,'' Nangaku told the commission shortly before it adjourned at 10 p.m. pst Thursday.

BONN, Germany (DEC. 21) UPI - Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, reacting to his Soviet counterpart's decision to resign, urged Friday that Western countries give stronger support to Moscow.

He said that by announcing his resignation Thursday, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze had set a signal and that ''the world, which is watching, should recognize this signal.''

''Recognizing the signal means realizing that we should not overstrain the Soviet Union as far as foreign policies go, and that where we can support the policy of reform, we must also give this aid. Germany does that,'' Genscher told German radio.

''We support the economic reform process to a massive extent and I believe that other Western countries should also recognize that the success of the Soviet reform policy also is important - very important - to us,'' he said.

The German government expressed confidence that Soviet foreign policy will remain unchanged and reiterated support for Moscow's reform policy.

''The federal government regrets the resignation announcement by Foreign Minister Shevardnadze, who proved to be a reliable and dedicated partner in the construction of European cooperation and peaceful, friendly cooperation between East and West,'' government spokesman Dieter Vogel said.

He said that Bonn ''sees in this move by Shevardnadze a strong signal for the continuation and strengthening of perestroika.''

London money dealers see the German economy as the most vulnerable to instability in the Soviet Union, with its massive outstanding debts to Germany.

''The recent events in the Soviet Union have just spooked people who have had German marks for a long time,'' said George Magnus, currency economist for Warburg Securities.

In Frankfurt the U.S. dollar closed at 1.5205 German marks, up from 1.4945 at Thursday's close.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) UPI - An agreement has been filed in U.S. District Court dividing the potential profits from the sale of four Manhattan buildings owned by the late Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos and his wife, Imelda, it was disclosed Friday.

The agreement, filed Wednesday, was confirmed by Jeffrey Greenbaum, a Newark, N.J., attorney representing the Philippine government. He said the government will receive $5 million from the first $10.75 in profit from the buildings' sale and 55 percent of any additional profit from the buildings.

''We are hoping the Philippine government will receive in excess of $5 million but it all depends on what the properties can be sold for at a time of declining real estate values,'' Greenbaum said.

''Unfortunately the money was not put into bank accounts that would have earned interest but in real estate that has a fluctuating value.''

One of the buildings, the gilt-tipped Crown Building on Fifth Avenue at 57th Street, was put up at auction two months ago and failed to attract the minimum bid of $100 million, a failure ascribed to the fact that there was not a clear title to ownership. Other previous attempts to sell also had been unsuccessful.

''The agreement represents a pragmatic resoution in a manner that gives the Philippines some recognition of the validity of its claims,'' Greenbaum said.

The settlement involves, in addition to the Philippine government, the New York Land Company headed by Joseph And Ralph Bernstein, who had handled three of the properties for the Marcoses, and Karl Peterson, a colleague of international businessman Adnan Khashoggi, who claimed to have bought the buildings from the Marcoses.

The four-year struggle over title to the properties was the crux of the trial of Imelda Marcos and Khashoggi in New York last summer, ending in her acquittal of charges that she and her husband bought the properties with money stolen from their country's treasury and Khashoggi's acquittal on charges of helping Mrs. Marcos conceal the investments.

The Marcoses never made a claim to the buildings, which included the Herald Center Shopping Mall, 40 Wall Street, and 200 Madison Ave. The mall and the Wall Street property are in foreclosure but no foreclosure judgment has been obtained against the Madison Avenue property.

''The settlement includes an acknowledgment by the parties involved that any monies paid the Philippines would be paid in recognition of its claim to a constructive trust for monies stolen from the Philippines by Ferdinand Marcos, Imelda Marcos and others,'' Greenbaum said.

Other sources said much of the money would go to creditors, including the Security Pacific Mortgage and Real Estate Service Co. of Los Angeles, and attorneys, leaving the Philippine government with very little of the $50 million to $100 million in expected profit from the sales.

The Bernsteins will get $2.12 million of the first $10.75 million in profits and 40 percent of any remaining profits. A law firm representing Peterson will distribute the remaining 5 percent of any remaining profits, Greenbaum said.

PARIS (DEC. 21) UPI - A meeting on a U.N. peace plan for Cambodia ran into a hitch Friday when Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen was rushed to hospital from the conference center after collapsing from what was called fatigue, conference sources said.

The Vietnamese-backed puppet leader was driven to the Val de Grace military hospital by ambulance from the Kleber Center near the Arc de Triomphe a short time after the conference participants finished lunch.

Conference sources said Hun Sen, who arrived from Cambodia early Thursday, was suffering from ''fatigue.''

People who were in the ambulance with Sen said he was conscious.

The meeting resumed despite the medical development and Cambodian Foreign Minister Hor Nam Hong took over as the head of the delegation from Phnom Penh.

However, the abrupt departure of Sen, a key figure in the talks, was seen by Western and Asian diplomats as a bad omen for the prospects of a breakthrough to end the Cambodian conflict.

The conference had opened with a stern warning from French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas that time was running out for the squabbling Cambodian factions to reach an agreement.

Some 150 Cambodians, including some Buddhist monks, demonstrated outside the meeting of the Cambodian National Supreme Council, scheduled to end Saturday.

Some of the demonstrators carried placards demanding ''peace for the Cambodians'' and expressing ''support for the U.N. plan'' to end the civil war in Cambodia.

The ''Supreme National Council'' is a body designed to represent Cambodian sovereignty before elections for a new government.

''The international community cannot concentrate indefinitely on the fate of Cambodia,'' Dumas told the participants. France and Indonesia are co-presidents of the peace talks.

''Other priorities require and will require our attention,'' he said in an obvious reference to the Persian Gulf crisis.

Dumas stressed there was no alternative to a peaceful solution. ''A military victory is a gamble as uncertain as it is dangerous and shocking,'' he said.

A representative of the U.N. secretary-general, Raffeuddin Ahmed, is slated to present formally to the Supreme National Council a peace plan for Cambodia drafted the five U.N. Security Council permanent members in Paris Nov. 26.

In a statement released at the start of the session, Hun Sen said he was in favor of a U.N. role in the future of the country as it was ''necessary,'' but that this should be ''well-defined.''

Hun Sen said there should be guarantees to prevent the return to power of the Khmer Rouge.

Hun Sen's position appeared to be a slight softening of the stance by Phnom Penh toward a U.N. role in Cambodia.

Cambodian Communist Party leader Heng Samrin was quoted by the SPK news agency Wednesday as rejecting plans to put the country under U.N. protection and calling for a dissolution of the Khmer Rouge resistance.

Samrin was quoted as saying the party rejected what he said were efforts by the three-party resistance coalition to undermine the government that was installed by the 1978 Vietnamese invasion.

The party leader did not specifically mention the U.N. peace plan under discussion in Paris but appeared to be rejecting the plan, which calls for a massive U.N. transitional authority in Cambodia.

Khmer Rouge radio Thursday proclaimed full support for the U.N. peace plan and the Paris meeting.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin said Friday sanctions are unlikley to hold long enough to get Iraq out of Kuwait and the best bet is diplomacy backed by the credible threat of war.

The influential Wisconsin Democrat, whose panel just finished three well-attended weeks of hearings on the Gulf crisis, laid out his views in a lecture at the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

His position could help focus opinion in a Congress where many in his party are demanding that the administration give economic sanctions additional time. The U.S. interests in the gulf, said Aspin, are vital and ''if all else fails, they are worth going to war for.''

Aspin said he concluded that relying on sanctions ''is not the answer'' because that while they are working well, ''keeping up the requisite political military and psychological pressure is the stumbling block. Can we keep the alliance together and focused - especially focused - long enough for sanctions to work politically? I judge the probability of that to be very low.''

''I judge the possibility of a diplomatic solution to be more promising. ... The test of a diplomatic solution is the extent of the compliance with the U.N. resolutions. A complete withdrawal by Saddam Hussein from Kuwait will be a victory almost regardless of what else is agreed upon around the edges. A partial withdrawal is only a partial victory,'' he said.

''Finally, we must mean what we say when we deal with the Saddam Husseins of the world. If the United States is to be credible in the post-Cold War world, if the United Nations is to be a useful vehicle for collective security, then we cannot shrink from the use of force. A future aggressor can ignore the U.N.'s next deadline if we ignore this one,'' he said.

While the basic requirements - Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the return of the ruling Sabah family - are not negotiable items, Aspin suggested discussions on other things are possible, such as happened during the Cuban missile crisis.

''One of the things (Kennedy) did at the time was agree not to do something he wouldn't have done anyway - namely invade Cuba. (Secretary of State) Jim Baker has already said that if Saddam Hussein pulls out of Kuwait, we would not attack Iraq. This might offer a model for other things we might agree to not do. Something along this line might be enough to get Saddam to withdraw,'' he said.

Aspin also noted there is what he called ''the momentum of choices already made.''

Rightly or wrongly, said the veteran House member, the administration ''has embarked on a course of action likely to bring this crisis to a head and it has brought the military alliance along with it.''

The administration's time line, he said, ''runs to February and it's there for everyone to see, including Saddam Hussein.'' It is difficult, he said, to ''attempt to walk the administration back down that time line.''

Doing that, he said, ''could spell failure in the crisis. It could send a very dangerous message to Saddam Hussein and probably to the world. ... Having once given the signal that we are heading for a showdown sometime in late winter, we'd have to calculate carefully what it would cost to switch signals.''

Aspin argued ''that maintaining our credibility now is more important if we hope not to go to war than it would be if we planned today to blast Saddam out of Kuwait.''

TIRANA, Albania (DEC. 21) UPI - Workers laboring before dawn tore down statues of Soviet dictator Josef Stalin across Albania Friday in the latest step by the Marxist regime to break with its hard-line communist heritage amid growing pressure for change, state-employed journalists said.

The government of President Ramiz Alia ordered the removal of the statues and other symbols and directed all state-owned institutions christened in honor of Stalin to drop his name.

An official statement said the regime had decided ''to deprive the state enterprises, objects and institutions bearing the name of J.V. Stalin of his name and to remove his symbols.''

The order came from the Politburo of the ruling Albania Party of Labor and was approved ''because the historic circumstances have changed since the time when decisions were adopted in our country to honor J.V. Stalin,'' the statement said.

''This decision immediately enters into force,'' it said.

A large crowd watched men wielding pickaxes and jackhammers tear apart the concrete pedestal on which a huge statue of Stalin had stood near Skanderbeg Square in the center of Tirana.

''This is the best news since the war,'' one onlooker remarked.

The statue, depicting a barrel-chested Stalin wearing a great coat with one hand inserted Napoleon-like between his lapels, was uprooted by a crane shortly after midnight and trucked away.

Left untouched on the opposite side of the street was a massive statue of the leader of the Communist revolution of 1917, Vladimir Lenin.

Another statue of Stalin, once hailed by Albania as one of history's greatest leaders, was removed from outside a major textile factory that bears his name some 3 miles outside the city.

The statue, one of its sculpted arms stretched out as if pointing toward the future, was a symbol meant to exhort factory workers to make greater efforts to build socialism.

By afternoon Friday, all that was left of the statue was the twisted steel girder that had supported the figure.

Journalists at state-run Voice of the People radio said statues of Stalin were torn down before dawn from every village and town of what was Europe's most repressive police state.

The removal of the statues marked another step by the regime of Alia to break with its past and recast its harsh image under a program of political and economic reforms implemented earlier this year.

The program of change has been sped up in the past two weeks because of growing demands of people hungry for democracy.

Major towns were rocked Nov. 15-16 by anti-government riots that forced the deployment of troops backed by tanks. The unrest erupted during protests by workers increasingly restive over severe financial problems wrought by the country's Marxist-style command economy and decades of self-imposed isolation from most of the world.

On Wednesday, the ruling Albanian Party of Labor legalized independent political parties for the first time since the founding of the communist bastion in 1944 by Enver Hoxha, a dictator who ruled with an iron hand until his death in 1985. A statue of Hoxha was reportedly dynamited in the town of Shkoder during last week's disturbances.

The removal of Stalin's statues came hours after the fall of another symbol of the country's Stalinist era.

Hoxha's widow, Nexhemije, Thursday evening resigned from the leadership of the Democratic Front, which is the ruling party's political organization.

She said she was quitting because of her age, 69, but Hoxha has long been regarded as a doctrinaire Marxist opposed to reforms.

TRENTON, N.J. (DEC. 21) UPI - Betty Peigelback has won an early Christmas present from the state of New Jersey - forgiveness of a $297,000 fine levied for alleged environmental violations at her Christmas ornament business.

''I guess they thought I was Ciba-Geigy and not a retired widow who made Christmas tree ornaments,'' Peigelback, 75, of Pine Beach said in a letter to Gov. Jim Florio, with copies to her local state legislators.

She suggested the ''bureaucrats of the state Department of Environmental Protection ... are well-intentioned but probably lack the common sense that unfortunately sometimes only appears with age.''

The fine was almost three times the $110,000 Peigelback, 75, received four years ago when she sold Woodland Manufacturing. She and her husband operated the company in Berkeley Heights with the help of a couple of part-time workers.

''I am really at my wit's end,'' she told the governor. ''The fine will bankrupt me and destroy the few years of retirement that I wanted so much to enjoy. Governor, please save me from the DEP.''

Peigelback's plea was referred to DEP Commissioner Judith Yaskin, who withdrew the fine.

Peigelback ran afoul of New Jersey's Environmental Cleanup Responsiblity Act, which requires industrial sites to be certified as free of environmental hazards when they are sold, transferred or closed. The law, one of the stiffest in the country, can create hardship for mom-and-pop companies operating on property that may have been fouled years ago by previous owners.

''Unfortunately, our people were looking at the technical aspect of the law and not the human aspect,'' said DEP spokesman John Hagerty.

MOSCOW (DEC. 21) UPI - Soviet soldiers of different cultures opened fire against each other in a western Ukraininan town, and 21 soldiers were hospitalized, the official Tass news agency said Friday.

The shooting in the town of Chop on the Hungarian and Czechoslovakian border broke out Thursday night and involved Armenians, Azerbaijainis, Uzbeks, Turkmens and Chechens, Tass said. All are Moslems except the Armenians who are Christians.

A weapons arsenal was assaulted, and the officers who came to the site of the skirmish were then attacked, Tass said.

''Twenty-one soldiers were hospitalized with serious injuries, and nine of them had bullet wounds,'' it said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - National security affairs adviser Brent Scowcroft said Friday the U.S. ''will not blink'' in the confrontation with Iraq's Saddam Hussein but ''January 15 is not an attack day.''

Scowcroft made the remarks in an interview with wire service reporters as the White House moved into a yuletide vacation mode with President Bush preparing to spend the holidays at Camp David.

Responding to questions concerning the countdown with Iraq under the U.N. demand that it withdraw its forces from Kuwait by Jan. 15, he said, ''January 15 is not an attack day at all. It is a deadline by which he ought to be out'' of neighboring Kuwait which he invaded last Aug. 2.

Asked if there could be an attack on Iraq on Jan. 16, he replied ''of course.''

Scowcroft, a retired Air Force general, told reporters that what the deadline tells Saddam Hussein ''is that he better get moving now.''

''What it doesn't say,'' he added, ''is that he is going to be attacked this date or that date. What it says is that he is at risk under the mandate of the U.N. Security Council.''

''What I'm saying is the 15th doesn't mean that the troops and aircraft start to move on the 15th,'' he explained. ''It's an authorization date for the use of all measures, and that obviously is the use of force.''

The specific date has caused confusion in some circles with suggestions that the U.S. would take military action on that day.

Asked if Bush had made a decision in his own mind on his next move if Saddam Hussein does not pull out, he said: ''I think the president is determined to reverse Saddam Hussein's aggression. Right now he's bending all his efforts to try to get him (Saddam) to realize what he faces and to pull his forces out.''

''What we're trying to get across to him (Saddam) is that we haven't blinked so far,'' Scowcroft said. ''We're not blinking now and we will not blink. Let's just leave it there.''

Scowcroft insisted ''We're not pointing toward war. What we're trying to do is to make it clear to Saddam Hussein what it is he faces - that is a clear demand by the world community, as represented by the security council and that he do it by a specific time.''

The augmentation of forces, expected to go as high as 400,000 troops, in the Persian Gulf area,''underscore that if necessary we will carry out the security council resolution,'' he said.

Meantime, Bush's proposal that he meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz and Secretary of State James Baker travel to Baghdad is stalled in a tug of war over dates for the visits.

Scowcroft did not rule out the possibility that talks still could be held, saying ''I don't know.''

But he said Saddam has tried to use the talks ''for manipulation rather than direct dialogue. We're doing our best... the president's idea was one more attempt to convince him,'' he added..

''There's still a lot of doubt in our minds that Saddam Hussein takes this thing seriously,''Scowcroft said. ''That is the chief danger of conflict.''

As for the duration if war breaks out, Scowcroft said that the president wants to have enough troops and military strength on had to ''enable it to be prosecuted swiftly.''

WASHINGTON (UPI)- Israel's ambassador to the United States, Zalman Shoval, said Friday the U.S. vote supporting a U.N. resolution condemning Israeli treatment of the Palestinians may cause lasting harm to the relations between Washington and Jerusalem.

Shoval was referring to the vote in the United Nations Security Council Thursday which condemned Israeli actions, including the deportations of some prominent Palestinians, which were described as a violation of international law.

In an interview with United Press International, Shoval said he wasn't surprised by the actions of the United Nations ''because we don't expect anything more of the U.N., which is taking part in a rising tide of anti-semitism.''

But, he said, ''What does concern me is the vote by the United States. I'm worried about the stance that the United States has taken.''

He said the U.S. vote was a mistake, morally, politically and diplomatically.

Morally, he said it was a mistake because the resolution was unbalanced and made no mention of violence against Israelis and the omission will harm the U.S. hopes ''of taking the high moral ground in every issue.''

Politically, it was a mistake, he said, because it will send the wrong signal to Israel's enemies, particularly the radical Islamic fundamentalists who are becoming more active in the occupied territories. He said, ''It hurts Israel's security.''

Diplomatically, he said it will be harmful for the U.S. effort to eventually get a peace process back on track in the Arab-Israeli negotiations.

''There are people in Israel,'' he said, ''who are going to say, 'how can we go forward with the peace process, and the risks that it entails, if we are isolated from the United States?'''

The vote by the United States, he said, ''can only hurt relations between us.''

A senior administration official said that the American vote was consistent with U.S. policy ''and doesn't do anything we didn't want to do.''

The official pointed out that the U.S. maneuvering headed off the Arab demand for an immediate international conference on the Middle East, something that was strongly opposed by the Israeli government.

Shoval said the United States appeared to have been based on a desire to satisfy the Arab countries which are taking part in the coalition against Iraq in the Gulf Crisis.

The administration official said that the United States is interested in keeping that alliance together in order to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, but he pointed out that the U.N. resolution did not make any direct linkage between the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait and the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza.

The administration official said the United States also wanted to make the point publicly that it had been making privately to the Israeli government: that the use of live ammunition by Israeli troops is not the way to handle demonstrations and stone-throwing by Palestinians.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 21) UPI - The Confederation of European Corn Producers Friday accused the European Community of giving in to U.S. blackmail in deciding to extend for one year privileged access for U.S. corn and sorghum to Spain.

The EC council of ministers agreed Friday with an executive Commission proposal to extend for one year imports of two million tons of corn and 300,000 tons of sorghum at reduced import levies from the United States.

After Spain joined the EC in 1986, the United States threatened to impose forbidding import duties on a series of EC goods because it would lose part of its export market for farm goods in Spain, which had to apply from then on the Community system of preference for EC products and of imposition of import levies on farm goods from non-member states.

To solve the crisis, the EC and the United States agreed on the European proposal to grant US exports of corn and sorghum preferential treatment for four years.

The agreement runs out at the end of this year and the United States had threatened to impose the import duties on EC farm goods if no solution was found.

"The EC has unconditionally surrendered to the economic blackmail exercised by the Americans," a statement from the Confederation of European Corn Producers said.

"It has authorized the United States to export corn to Spain under privileged conditions to the detriment of Community preference. The CECP is indignant because the trade blackmail used by the United States has proved effective and has made the EC give in," it said. The CECP said that in spite of Spain's entry into the EC, the United States had more than doubled its trade balance surplus with that country since 1987.

(DEC. 21) UPI - The wail of air-raid sirens broke the stillness of the air over Baghdad, Iraq, today. But it was only a drill. Witnesses later quoted by Cairo Radio disagreed on whether an estimated one-Million Baghdad residents actually took part, as Iraq said. All of this comes as Saddam Hussein prepares Iraqi civilians for any eventuality by January 15th. That's the U-N-set deadline for Iraq to leave occupied Kuwait or face the real possibility of being forced out militarily.

Few details are coming out of Moscow following meetings between Soviet President Gorbachev and Eduard Shevardnadze , who suddenly resigned yesterday as foreign minister. The talks were called ''business-like and detailed,'' a form of diplomatic shorthand for ''tense.'' Shevardnadze continues to work in his Foreign Ministry office, but there are NO signs that he will take back the resignation that stunned the world yesterday.

Statues of Joseph Stalin are disappearing in Albania, an ultra- Stalinist nation that once broke relations with Moscow when Stalin came under attack in his own homeland. Orders to remove the statues brought work crews out into the pre-dawn darkness in towns and villages across Albania. One statue in the capital of Tirana fell victim to pickaxes and jackhammers and the only thing eventually left was the twisted steel girder that once supported the figure. All of this comes two days after the ruling Albanian Party of Labor legalized opposition political parties for the first time since 1944.

British Prime Minister John Major is in Washington, D-C, for his first talks with President Bush since replacing Margaret Thatcher. The U-S Geological Survey in Golden, Colorado, said the quake measured six-point-one on the Richter scale.

BONN, Germany (DEC. 21) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said in an interview broadcast Friday that his troops will not pull out of Kuwait before the Jan. 15 deadline set by the United Nations.

He also said in the interview with ZDF-German television that President Bush would not be able to fight Iraq for long, because ''he is such a bad leader.''

But he said, ''From our side, the door to dialogue remains open.''

Asked whether his troops would withdraw from Kuwait before Jan. 15, Saddam said, without hesitation: ''No. I tell you, in a war there would be many losses, not only human lives. Also for those who say 'Yes' to war. Allah is on our side, therefore, we will defeat the aggressors.''

''I am convinced that every human being is a good fighter when his rights are concerned. Also the Americans. Then, everyone will use his weapons as well as he can. We have gone through wars and know that soldiers break down after some time if they are not fighting for a just cause,'' he told ZDF-German television.

''We are certain that even if Bush pushes his country into this war, which he is now planning, he will not be able to carry this through,'' Saddam told the interviewer.

''At the latest when 5,000 Americans have fallen, Bush will have to end such a war. Not because there are not enough of his soldiers, but because he is a bad leader.''

''He is sending soldiers to their deaths without reason. They could survive if he would talk to us,'' Saddam said about Bush.

A ZDF spokesman said the interview was conducted Thursday night in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The government spent $48 billion more than it received in November, bringing the deficit to $79.5 billion during the first two months of the fiscal year, the Treasury Department said Friday.

Total government spending last month reached $120.8 billion while government receipts totaled $72.8 billion. For the first two months of the fiscal year, the government has spent $231 billion while receiving $151.5 billion.

Spending for defense, fueled largely by the U.S. military response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, topped the government's spending in November with expenses of $29 billion. So far this year, defense spending has totaled $53.1 billion, up from $43.7 billion in the year-earlier period.

The Treasury forecast the federal deficit for the current spending year, which ends next Sept. 30 at $176.3 billion, compared with last year's deficit of $202.3 billion. Total government spending was forecast to top $1.3 trillion this year. To finance its monthly deficit, the government borrowed $46.7 billion from the public last month and reduced its operating expenses $12.5 billion.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 21) UPI - A state court of appeal has rejected the latest effort to upset Proposition 13, California's 1978 property tax-slashing ballot measure.

The 1st District Court of Appeal on Thursday rejected claims by Macy's department store chain that provisions of Proposition 13 were unconstitutional because owners of comparable real estate often pay widely varying property taxes, depending on when the property was purchased.

New York-based R.H. Macy & Co. and two subsidiaries sued in Contra Costa County Superior Court over the tax assessment of the Macy's store at the Sun Valley Mall in Concord, Calif.

Although Macy's had owned the store since 1967, a corporate reorganization in 1986 counted as a change of ownership under Proposition 13. The property taxes soared and Macy's sued. The taxes rose from $44,000 to $117,000 a year, 2.5 times the rate paid by competitors Sears and J.C. Penney at the same mall.

Macy's had asked the appeal court to declare the differing rates unconstitutional and order a rollback of the Sun Valley store's rates to the 1975 level.

The California Supreme Court ruled in 1978 that such differences do not violate the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution. Macy's countered that a U.S. Supreme Court decision last year nullified the state court action.

The state Court of Appeal rejected Macy's argument, saying the federal decision had no bearing. A state Court of Appeal in Los Angeles rejected a similar argument two weeks ago. Charles Ajalat, Macy's attorney, said he planned to appeal the ruling to the California Supreme Court.

BUCHAREST, Romania (DEC. 21) UPI - Some 20,000 demonstrators demanding the resignation of the government filled central Bucharest Friday to honor those killed a year ago when shooting broke out in the capital during the revolution.

The crowd shouted anti-government slogans such as, ''Iliescu it was you, who shot us after 22,'' an accusation that current President Ion Iliescu orchestrated the shooting to order to emerge as the hero of the revolution the following day.

Demonstrators calling for Iliescu's resignation packed University Square from mid-morning until nightfall, singing reveolutionary songs and kneeling in prayer in commemoration of the dead.

Official figures say 1,033 were killed across the country during the revolt, which toppled the dictatorship of President Nicolae Ceausescu. He and his wife Elena were executed on Christmas Day.

After dark, candles were lighted at shrines in every corner of the square, and the people knelt and bowed their heads as the names of more than 100 victims of the shooting were read out over loudspeakers.

The ruling National Salvation Front had appealed for the demonstration to be canceled.

Some felt the day was a last-ditch attempt to express discontent with the government.

''Something will have to happen,'' said waiter Ion Pop, who was working part-time as a taxi driver to buy meat for his children. ''Things can't go on as they are. People simply have no money.''

He said now that the government liberalized prices several months ago, the coat he is wearing would cost a month's salary.

In Parliament on Friday morning, opposition Peasant Party leader and former presidential candidate Ion Ratiu regaled the events of the past year.

''One totalitarian regime has been replaced by another,'' he said.

Two senators from the National Salvation Front, Dan Iosef and Gelu Voican, who were present at the front's first appearance on Dec. 22, 1989, were chased out of the square by the crowd, who hammered on the roof of their car as it sped away.

In late afternoon, as Christmas lights and huge floodlights lighted the square the crowd waved and cheered to one of the Romanian princesses, Princess Margaret, daughter of the exiled King Michael.

She waved from a hotel window to the delight of the crowd.

The present rulers of Romania have failed to explain who was shooting who in the revolution, which lasted more than a week and resulted in the emergence of the National Salvation Front which was subsequently returned to power in May elections.

The government has organzied six public commemorations Saturday at various points in the city where fighting was heavy. They include Victory, Palace and Roman squares in the morning and the TV station, cemetery and the Military Academy in the afternoon.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) UPI - Speculation that troubled Orion Pictures may be sold to a foreign buyer rose again Friday on a report that Hong Kong investor Raymond Chow may make a bid for the studio's motion picture arm.

Orion's stock, which has been gaining this week on the rumors, was up 25 cents to $14.50 a share in early afternoon trading on the New York Stock Exchange. It had opened at $12.875 a share Monday.

Chow controls Golden Harvest Films, which produced the surprise hit "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles" earlier this year. The movie, released through New Line Cinema, has grossed more than $133 million this year and trails only "Ghost" and "Pretty Woman" in ticket sales.

Rumors have also identified Chicago-based Tribune Co. as a prospective buyer for Orion's television arm. A spokesman for Orion refused to comment on the reports.

Orion, which is 70 percent owned by billionaire John Kluge, has been the focus of takeover speculation for most of this year. But some analysts doubt that many potential buyers are interested, since Orion is saddled with close to $400 million in debt and has been posted poor earnings this year.

The most attractive parts of the company are its distribution network and its 800-film library, which includes "Amadeus," "Platoon," "RoboCop," a number of Woody Allen movies and the "Cagney & Lacey" TV series.

Orion, which had revenues of about $485 million last year, is the smallest of the eight major Hollywood studios. It had been on a losing streak of more than a year as its major films flopped until it released "Dances With Wolves" last month. The three-hour film is expected to garner several Oscar nominations and has grossed more than $40 million in seven weeks of release.

"One could make a strategic argument that Orion would be attractive to someone like Chow, but it is encumbered with debt," said entertainment analyst Paul Marsh of Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards of Los Angeles.

"The key advantage for Chow would be that he would not have to use New Line to get films distributed," Marsh said. New Line was reported to have paid Golden Harvest $3 million for the domestic distribution rights to "Turtles."

Earlier this month, Orion's stock jumped from $13 to more than $15 a share after a report that Korean electronics gaint Samsung Group was considering buying it for about $300 million and making a cash infusion of $500 million. The stock fell after Samsung denied the report.

If Orion were acquired by a foreign buyer, it would become the fifth studio to fall out of American control, assuming Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.'s pending $6.6 billion buyout of MCA Inc. goes through.

Other studios that have been acquired by foreign interests include MGM/UA, bought in November by Italian financier Giancarlo Parretti for $1.4 billion; Columbia Pictures, bought by Sony Corp. last year for $5 billion, and Twentieth Century Fox, acquired several years ago by Australia-based News Corp.

CHICAGO (DEC. 21) UPI - Soybean and soybean meal prices tumbled during the final minutes of trading and were sharply lower at the close on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Professionals were aggressive sellers amid concern over the situation in the Soviet Union following the resignation of the Foreign Minister. The main worry is the possibility of delays in implementing the export credit package.

Several contract lows were established in soybeans and meal. January beans fell to $5.62 per bushel and closed at $5.62 3/4, down 8 cents on the day.

Soybean meal continued under pressure on the lack of export business and an increase in meal supplies during November.

Grain futures were narrowly mixed in light pre-holiday trading.

Wheat had underlying support from the offer of 2 million tons of export bonus wheat to Egypt and the possibility of damage to the winter wheat crop because of the cold weather in the Wheat Belt.

The purchase of 951,000 tons of corn this week by the Soviet Union kept a floor under corn prices.

Country movement was light.

At the close, corn was off 1/2 to up 1/4, soybeans down 4 to 8 1/2, wheat up 1/4 to 1 1/2 and oats unchanged to down 3/4.

WARSAW, POLAND (DEC. 21) UPI - President-elect Lech Walesa arrived by plane Friday with his family for his formal weekend inauguration ceremony amid growing troubles in formation of a new government.

Walesa, who won the presidency in an election Dec. 9, will be sworn in Saturday. He is to receive the presidential insignia not from outgoing communist President Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, but from Ryszard Kaczorowski, the president of the London-based Polish government-in- exile.

The Soviet-built Tu-154 plane landed in the Warsaw military airport in a freezing rain after a 35-minute flight from Gdansk. Reporters were not allowed to enter the airport.

A motorcade of 14 cars with the founder of the Solidarity trade union and his wife Danuta in a bulletproof Volvo 740 pulled up at their residence in downtown Warsaw near Belweder Palace, which will be his office.

Walesa, smiling and flashing his familiar ''V'' sign for victory, got out of the car and quickly entered the villa followed by Danuta.

He did not respond to queries whether he was in Warsaw early for consultations on the formation of a new government.

Their four sons and a daughter-in-law also arrived in Warsaw, as well as Walesa's brother Stanislaw.

Spokesman Andrzej Drzycimski declined to brief reporters on Walesa's schedule. The whole party began having lunch and the reporters, angry over being what they considered snubbed, left the premises.

Later in a telephone conversation, Drzycimski said Walesa and his associates will not have any consultations Friday. He said their goal was to work out technical details dealing with the swearing-in ceremony Saturday.

''The consultations will begin Saturday evening and Sunday,'' Drzycimski said.

Walesa has been unable to find anyone willing to be prime minister. Lawyer Jan Olszewski gave up his efforts to form a government after nearly two weeks of consultations, citing ''significant differences'' with Walesa, and economist Jan Krzyszt of Bielecki is also believed to have quit the mission.

Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki and his government resigned last week after he came in third in the election that Walesa won.

The National Assembly - composed of the Sejm, or lower house of legislature, and the Senate - will convene for the swearing-in of Walesa during a ceremony attended by Kaczorowski, who agreed to come to Poland to hand over the presidential insignia to Walesa.

The government-in-exile has not been recognized by the United States, England or France even though Poland was an ally of the West during World War II. The Western powers instead recognized the Polish communist puppet government formed in Moscow, which was considered by the majority of Poles as a betrayal.

In a statement released in London, Kaczorowski said the government- in-exile could end its mission because Poland was free now.

''Giving the office of president and the related insignia to Lech Walesa in the Warsaw Royal castle Saturday, I will confide entire, independent, free, democratic and just Poland to his care,'' he said.

Jaruzelski said he would not attend the swearing-in ceremony, apparently a move to express his displeasure over Walesa's intention to take the insignia from Kaczorowski.

CHICAGO (DEC. 21) UPI - The Chicago Mercantile Exchange plans to resume trading broiler futures Feb. 7, 1991, but the contract specifications have been revised from the one that was discontinued in 1982, the exchange said Friday.

Regulatory approval was received Thursday from the Commodity Futures Trading Commission. The new contract will be cash-settled based on the Agriculture Department's 12-city composite weighted average. The average represents 40,000 pounds of U.S. Grade A, plant-graded chill-packed and whole broilers without giblets.

Chicken futures were traded at the CME from 1962 to 1963 and broilers from 1979 to 1982. Both were based on physical delivery of the commodity. The cash settlement of the new contract is expected to eliminate the problems inherent in making or taking delivery of the commodity.

Contract months will be February, April, May, June, July, August, October, and December. Speculative limits allow traders to hold 2,000 contracts with a limit of 500 contracts in any specific contract month.

"We are very optimistic about the expected success of the new contract and the opportunities it will provide to both hedgers and speculators as part of the CME's livestock mix," Timothy Brennan, CME governor and chairman of the Broiler Committee at the Merc.

Both ConAgra and Goldkist were instrumental in development of the contract, and the National Broiler council gave the specifications unanimous approval, the CME said in a statement.

SAN SALVADOR, EL SALVADOR (DEC. 21) UPI - The Salvadoran army will deploy half of its 55,000 troops in a stepped-up military campaign against leftist rebels to maintain stability during the Christmas holiday, the military said Friday.

''The armed forces are expanding military operations and ground and air patrols throughout the country to guarantee the security of the country during the Christmas and New Year holidays,'' an army spokesman told United Press International.

But the spokesman said the army is ready to join a cease fire if rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN, stop fighting.

Rebels launched what they call a limited offensive Nov. 20 to force the government of President Alfredo Cristiani to make concessions in peace talks aimed at ending 11 years of civil war that has left more than 72,000 people dead, mostly civilians.

The FMLN has announced a limited cease fire only in San Salvador and only for 24 hours on Christmas and New Years day.

The military will concentrate most of its efforts in the border province of Chalatenango, about 30 miles north of the capital, which has been one of the most bloody fighting zones since rebels launched the offensive.

Two weeks ago some 200 Salvadoran troops in Chalatenango were forced by rebels to flee to Honduras for safety after a day of fighting.

After the incident the army increased the number of troops it stations in the province and has not had a confrontation with rebels since the deployment.

Recent fighting also has been concentrated in the province of Usulutan, about 60 miles east of San Salvador. The army said it has deployed more soldiers in the area because of the ''persistent guerrilla presence.''

The only fighting reported Friday occurred in the town of Guazapa, 18 miles north of San Salvador. The military said two soldiers were killed and four others injured when rebels through an explosive device at a military transport truck.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The United States cut off military aid to Guatemala Friday because that nation's government has failed to prosecute military suspects in human rights cases, the State Department said Friday.

In a statement, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher cited the implication of military men in the Dec. 1 slaying of 14 civilians and the killing of American hotel owner, Michael Devine, last June.

''The recent shooting of civilians in Atitlan is a vivid illustration of the violence which continues to plague the country,'' Boucher said. There are military suspects in that case, but none have been tried, he said.

Six suspects, all from the military, have been linked to the killing of Devine but the case has ''neither been resolved or moved ahead,'' said Boucher.

As a result, Boucher said that the United States was disappointed with the ''lack of commitment'' by the government of Guatemala on human rights and has concluded that ''it would not be appropriate'' to continue military aid.

''We will therefore stop deliveries of military assistance,'' Boucher said.

This year, U.S. military aid to Guatemala totals $2.9 million. In addition, aid from previous years still in the pipeline will be stopped. Payments under the economic assistance program totaling to $119.6 million will continue.

''While recognizing that the Guatemalan government does not pursue a policy of abusing human rights, we note that it rarely takes action to thoroughly investigate and prosecute those who do,'' said Boucher.

Although the government of President Vinicio Cerezo was democratically elected it has shown signs of losing control over military commanders, who have been fighting a sporadic war with left- wing guerrilla groups.

In the Atitlan case, those killed were protesting the detention of a fellow resident by the military on grounds of suspected anti-government activity. No motive has been disclosed in the Devine case.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The Securities and Exchange Commission said Friday it has filed a complaint in federal court against Bank of New England Corp. alleging the holding company violated federal securities laws.

The SEC's complaint alleged the parent of the troubled Boston-based Bank of New England violated provisions of federal securities laws concerning antifraud, periodic reporting, books and records and internal accounting controls.

Without admitting or denying the allegations, the holding company consented to a final judgment permanently barring it from future violations of securities laws.

The holding company also agreed to restate its financial statements for the third quarter of 1989 and agreed to have its independent accountants conduct a review of internal accounting controls and practices. The accountants also will review Bank of New England's quarterly financial statements.

The SEC complaint alleges that Bank of New England's parent "knowingly and recklessly understated the allowance for loan and lease losses and related provision for loan and lease losses" in its third quarter financial statement.

The understated losses, the SEC said, resulted in a "material overstatement" of the holding company's 1989 third-quarter earnings and rendered a profit statement filed with the SEC "materially false and misleading."

The SEC complaint said Bank of New England reported a loss for 1989 of $1.1 billion due to a fourth-quarter provision for loan losses of $1. 61 billion. The SEC said a "material portion" of the fourth-quarter provision should have been recorded during the preceding quarter.

The agency also alleged that Bank of New England failed to state in financial documents filed with the SEC that the deteriorating condition of the region's real estate market and the bank's loan portfolio "were reasonably likely to have material adverse effects" on future bank earnings.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 21) UPI - The nation's steel service centers, which buy and distribute one-fourth of the country's carbon industrial steel products and one-half of the stainless steel products, reported Friday that business was up in November.

The Steel Service Center Institute, a trade organization, reported a 4.1 percent increase in the average daily shipping rate from October to November. But while service centers continued to ship more than 91,000 tons of steel products a day, three fewer shipping days in November resulted in a total volume decline of about ten percent.

Shipments of alloy products were up eight percent, carbon tubing up 7.2 percent, plate up 6.5 percent and carbon bars up 6.4 percent. Stainless steel products were down 4.1 percent.

Shipments for the first 11 months were up 1.3 percent over last year's record pace when 23.7 million tons of steel products were shipped. The November average daily shipping rate, compared to November 1989, was up 1.3 percent.

"While November average daily shipping rates were higher than many expected, SSCI members continue to report slippage in nearly all product categories," institute President Andrew Sharkey said. "Executives at SSCI member companies are growing increasingly bearish as we head into the new year."

When asked what they expect the incoming order trend to be over the next three months, 54 percent of SSCI members polled said that they expect a decrease. One year ago, only 26 percent said that they expected a decline when asked the same question.

Sharkey also said companies are expressing increased concern about receivables. "Of those polled, 39 percent said that compared to three months prior, customers are now paying less promptly," he said. "That number was at seven percent as recently as August and at six percent last December."

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (DEC. 21) UPI - Nicaraguan legislators reversed course Friday and backed President Violeta Chamorro's veto of a 25 percent military spending cut they approved last week.

Chamorro said Tuesday she was vetoing the decision to slash about $20 million from a proposed $78.6 million in military spending because it would interfere with efforts to reduce the size of the armed forces.

Legislators of various parties belonging to the National Opposition Union, or UNO, met with Chamorro for several hours before Friday's vote in the National Assembly, saying they would support her veto if she agreed to oust Humberto Ortega as chief of the country's armed forces.

Chamorro did not agree to their demands but she picked up considerably more than the 46 votes she needed for the veto. The National Assembly, made up of 39 Sandinista legislators, voted 79-21 to support the veto.

Total proposed government spending for 1991 is $500 million.

Sandinistas, who ruled the country from 1979-89, have pressured Chamorro to back the proposed $78.6 million in military spending.

The military cut approved last week triggered grenade attacks on the homes and unoccupied cars of legislators who voiced strong support for the military spending cuts.

UNO legislators who voted against the veto said they would have supported it if Chamorro had agreed to replace Humberto Ortega, brother of former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega, as head of the country's armed forces.

The legislators say Ortega's presence has not contributed to stability and peace in the country.

The government hopes to reduce the size of the Sandinista army to about 30,000 troops by the end of the year. The army was made up of about 85,000 troops when Chamorro defeated Ortega in February elections.

During their meeting with Chamorro, legislators also asked Chamorro to reduce the number of Sandinista members on the Supreme Court and return property confiscated by Sandinistas during their 10-year rule.

UNO backed Chamorro's victory over Ortega in February elections but they have complained that she has given in to too many Sandinista demands since taking office in April.

(DEC. 21) UPI - The semi-official Middle East News Agency in Cairo reports that Iraq is trying to buy large numbers of gas masks... apparently part of its on-going preparations for war in the Persian Gulf. The report says the Iraqis tried to purchase gas masks from companies in Germany, Belgium and Britain in recent weeks. This morning, air-raid sirens sounded throughout Baghdad in a drill that was announced yesterday. Witnesses reported that thousands of people streamed into the streets and got into private cars and buses to move to a desert location where they would be housed until the drill ended.

Newly installed British Prime Minister John Major laid down the law to Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein today in a series of early morning broadcast interviews from Washington. Three weeks into the job, the British prime minister is in the United States for meetings with President Bush. Major gave his full backing to allied policy in the Persian Gulf and said any idea of a partial Iraqi withdrawal is unacceptable. He said the Iraqi leader may try to ''play games'' to evade the U-N order but Major said that such moves simply will NOT work.

The Japanese government expressed concern over the resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze at a time when the two nations are working to normalize relations. Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu said the Japanese are watching developments with what he termed ''strong concern.'' He added, however, that he still expects Soviet President Gorbachev to make a scheduled visit to Japan in April.

The family of Nancy Cruzan continues its watch in Mount Vernon, Missouri, as the condition of the severely brain-damaged woman deteriorates. The 33-year-old woman has been in a persistent vegetative state since a 1983 automobile accident, and a Missouri court ruled last week that doctors could remove her feeding tubes. That brought out scores of right-to-live activists who are trying to stop her eventual death. A federal judge in Kansas City has scheduled a hearing later today on one petition asking that the feeding tubes be reconnected.

Margaret Thatcher is NO longer prime minister of Britain but she still remembers those who helped her during 11 years of power and many were named today on her final honors list. It was checked by a parliamentary committee and approved by Queen Elizabeth before it was published. Included are most of Thatcher's key aides, her chief news secretary, along with messengers, telephone operators, guards, housekeepers and other staff members at the official Downing Street residence and the Chequers country retreat.

First-year defensive tackle Fred Washington of the N-F-L Chicago Bears and a friend were killed early today in a one-car traffic accident in north suburban Chicago. Police say the 23-year-old Washington and a woman were killed on impact when the car in which they were riding ran into a tree. Washington was a second-round draft pick and was scheduled to play against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Sunday.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - The Securities and Exchange Commission Friday filed a complaint against Latin Investment Corp. seeking to freeze the assets of the owners of the bankrupt investment company.

Latin Investment, of Washington, was forced into involuntary bankruptcy by creditors last week. The investment company specialized in selling securities to immigrants from El Salvador and other Latin American countries. Many of these immigrants lost their savings when the company went out of business.

The SEC complaint, which also seeks a permanent injunction, was filed against the company and its principals, Fernando Leonzo, Leonel Salinas, and Jose Cortes.

The SEC said it has contacted the government of El Salvador and intends to locate any assets the principals may have in that country that are subject to the freeze order.

The complaint alleges that because Latin Investment was operating without a bank charter, it was required to register with the SEC the securities it offered and sold in the form of pass book accounts.

The SEC also alleged the defendants committed fraud in offering and selling the securities by making "materially false and misleading statements" or omitted facts about the securities and the investment company.

The government alleged the company told investors they were investing in a bank "and that their funds would be safe and available on demand." But Latin Investment was not a bank and "investors' funds were subject to serious rise and were not insured and the funds were not available on demand," the SEC said.

The SEC also alleged that Latin Investment officers failed to tell investors that their investments "were to be used, in certain instances, for the personal benefit" of Leonzo, Salinas and Cortes.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) UPI - Pan Am's chairman Thomas Plaskett Friday opened the way for an acquisition of the airline by Trans World Airlines, depending upon bridge financing being provided by TWA.

In a letter sent to TWA chairman Carl Icahn, Plaskett said "the time is right" for us to see if we can put together a proposal that can both win approval from our shareholders and have every likelihood of being consummated."

Responding to an offer from Icahn to buy most of Pan Am for $1.50 a share in cash, and $1 a share in preferred stock or promissory notes, Plaskett said it would be futile for Pan Am to enter into a transaction without any bridge financing.

Pan Am has 150 million shares outstanding, so the value of the deal would be $325 million at the most. The acquisition would exclude some of Pan Am's routes to London that have been purchased by United Airlines in a sale currently under review by United States and British governments.

Plaskett's letter said, "The proposal contained in your letter could form the basis of a combination that would be advantageous to our shareholders, employees and other constituencies."

"Pan Am requires bridge financing to cover its financial needs during the several month period - coinciding with our low traffic season - that we expect it will take to obtain necessary regulatory and shareholder approvals.

A TWA spokesman said Icahn had issued a statement saying, "I view the response of Pan Am as a sufficient basis for continung to evaluate financing and merger possibiltiies and we are in the process of doing so."

Pan Am spokeswoman Pamela Hanlon said Plaskett's letter indicated that Pan Am is interested in the Icahn offer but needs "clarification" on it. Plaskett said in a letter said it would be "futile" to enter into a transaction without any provision for bridge financing, "especially if TWA were not to commit to close the transaction regardless of our financial situation.

"We would not want to enter into an agreement if we had reason to believe that it was not capable of being performed. I am sure that you share this view."

Plaskett said that as a first step, TWA should send a detailed term sheet indicating the terms of bridge financing, the conditions of closing and the terms of the securities it is offering.

"It therefore is important to make sure that what your letter refers to as 'closing conditions customary for a transaction of the kind' are not conditions that, in fact, it would be impossible to meet." Pan Am, with a heavy debt load and payments of $32 million due imminently, reportedly discussed filing for chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

TWA last Sunday agreed to sell six London routes to American Airlines for $445 million, and is expected to use the proceeds of that deal towards paying for the Pan Am deal.

Plaskett's letter added, "I am in complete agreement that given the state of the industry, the time is right "I look forward to hearing from you in the hope that we can reach agreement promptly."

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - British Prime Minister John Major and Secretary of State James Baker held their first official meeting Friday during which they discussed the decision by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to resign and its impact on world events, particularly the Persian Gulf crisis.

Baker gave no details of the one-hour meeting, but Shevardnadze's resignation listed as a top agenda topic suggested that both Baker and Major believe there will be unknown and possibly important consequences.

U.S. officials were stunned by Shevardnadze's announcement on Thursday although it has been known for some time that he has been under increasing attack from Soviet conservatives, especially those who lead the Soviet military establishment.

Shevardnadze had been regarded as a moderating influence on those conseratives and they, in turn, attacked him for bargaining away the Soviet military muscle at a time when it might be needed to put down nationalist and ethnic disturbances in the Soviet Union.

The military also criticized the foreign minister for allowing the unification of Germany to proceed at a pace they thought was too fast, leaving Soviet troops in East Germany demoralized and economically destitute.

Shevardnadze also earned the enmity of the Soviet military leadership by announcing that a decision had been made, without consulting the military, that Soviet security would be made more stable by a reduction of East-West arms, rather than by the former method of building Soviet military strength, at ruinous cost to the economy.

As a result of that policy decision, the Soviet military will have to scrap as many as three times as many armored vehicles as the western powers in the conventional forces in Europe agreement signed last month.

U.S. officials have complained that the Soviet military is dragging its feet in complying with the exhcnage of information about weapons required before the cuts actually take place.

Some officials think it is just a matter of bureaucratic inefficiency, putting together a massive amount of detailed information in a brief period of time. Other officials think that the foot-dragging is a way of sabotaging Shevardnadze's work in negotiating the treaty in the first place.

Another sign of the political-military split is that while Shevardnadze was negotiating down the size of the Soviet nuclear arsenal, the Soviet navy continued to build new ballistic missile subs at the same pre-perestroika rate.

According to U.S. officials some of the new subs are diesel-electric subs which, when operating on electric power alone, are extremely quiet and difficult to detect and track.

One U.S. military expert described the recently constructed diesel- electric subs as ''large naval mines.''

The U.S. intelligence community has put together a list of possible successors to Shevardnadze, but none of them will have the political seniority or the close relationship that the foreign minister has with President Mikhail Gorbachev.

On the list are Shevardnadze's chief deputy, Yevgeny Primakov, and the current Soviet ambassador to Washington, Alexander Bessmertnyhk, a former deputy to Shevardnadze.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) UPI - Stocks closed mixed in very heavy trading Friday as the expirations of futures and options inflated volume but failed to move the market in any direction.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 2.73 Thursday, gained another 4.20 to close at 2633.66.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index added 0.55 to 180.87 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.63 to 331.75. The price of an average share gained nine cents.

Declines just barely led advances 766-760 among the 2,028 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Big Board volume totaled 233,400,000 shares, up markedly from the 174,700,000 traded Thursday.

The expirations normally cause volume to swell at the opening and before the close of the market, when the various instruments cease trading. Futures traded on the S&P 500 for December expired Friday morning and the December Major Market Index futures and options expired as of the close. Options on other indexes and on individual stocks also expired.

Analysts had expected to see some pressure to the sell side as a result of the expirations, but they anticipated no major price moves. The market did just that. After showing double-digit gains shortly after the opening, the Dow drifted the rest of the day with slight gains.

"The triple-witching just increased volume. It was just random noise," said Michael Metz, analyst at Oppenheimer & Co. "But the underlying tone is still pretty firm, and the dollar is strong. The market is benefiting from the strength of the dollar," he said. "The market is attracting some foreign interest for the first time in a long time."

Traders did say, however, that because of the exchange's early 2 p.m. closing Monday before Christmas Eve, many investors closed out positions early and took an extended holiday.

The market will be closed Tuesday for the Christmas holiday. The early close Monday will be the first time the Big Board has shut down early before a holiday.

"Today was really just a random day," Metz said. "The activity had more to do with internal factors than anything else. There was really nothing guiding the market one way or the other."

On the trading floor, USF&G was the most active issue, down 1/4 to 7 5/8 in dividend-related trading. AT&T followed, up 5/8 to 31. Philip Morris was third down 1/8 to 51 1/8.

Boise Cascade was also active, up 1 3/8 to 27 5/8 in trading also related to the stock's dividend payment.

Among other blue chips, IBM rose 1/8 to 113 7/8 but American Express lost 5/8 to 21 1/8. Merck added 1 3/8 to 87 1/2 after reporting it has developed a new type of drug for fighting the AIDS virus and started tests of the drug in humans last month.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index lost 0.29 to 306.20. Declines led advances 317-260 among the 877 issues traded. The price of an average share was unchanged. Volume totaled 13,750,000 shares vs. 14,000,000 traded Thursday. Jan Bell Marketing led the Amex issues, off 1/8 to 7 3/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 1.31 to 373.61.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) UPI - The dollar surged again against the German mark and all the European currency on sustained and deepening concern about the implications of the Soviet foreign minister's resignation, but eased against Japan's yen.

Currency analysts said the announcement Thursday by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze that he was resigning cast a heavy pall over the formerly optimistic scenario for Germany and Europe, East and West.

Consequently, investors who earlier had hitched their financial wagons to the German mark fled to the dollar, which suddenly regained its traditional status as a haven amid political uncertainty, as well as to the yen.

Late in the New York session, the dollar was quoted at 1.5288 German marks, up strongly from 1.5105; and at 135.30 Japanese yen, off from 135.75. Traders said the yen's gain on the dollar was probably technical; simply put, many mark-holders skipped through the dollar to the yen.

Britain's pound sterling slipped to $1.8850 from $1.8960. Other New York dollar rates: 1.31 Swiss francs, up from 1.2990; 5.1940 French francs, up from 5.1300; and 1,150 lire, up from 1,137.

Analysts said Shevardnadze's warning of "dictatorship" brewing in the Soviet Union boded trouble for newly liberated Eastern Europe.

"First of all you had to get the euphoria out, and now you have the reality setting in," said Credit Suisse treasury vice president Francoise Soares-Kemp. "There's no straight line, and now comes crunch time." "The opportunities that investors were looking for are not coming," she said. "The entire focus of the market now is the political situation."

Soviet and Persian Gulf uncertainties have diverted the attention of currency market players from U.S. economic troubles, Soares-Kemp said, and could signal the beginning of the 1991 dollar recovery many expected. "It's already underway," she said. "All the elements are in place."

In Europe, the dollar also continued its rally on fears of a Soviet shuffle. "The recent events in the Soviet Union have just spooked people who have had German marks for a long time," said Warburg Securities analyst George Magnus.

In Frankfurt the dollar rose to 1.5205 German marks from 1.4945. London money dealers continue to see the German economy as most vulnerable to Soviet instability. The USSR has large debts to Germany, and still exerts an important influence over German neighbors in the East.

The dollar closed higher in Zurich at 1.3113 Swiss francs vs. 1.2830. London trading pushed the pound down to $1.8840 from $1.9075.

In Paris, Brussels and Milan, the dollar rose to 5.1620 French francs against 5.0745; 31.54 Belgian francs from 30.94; and 1,140 Italian lire from 1,125.80.

In Tokyo earlier, the dollar shot up against the yen on the Soviet foreign minister's resignation, but subsided later in the day. It closed at 135.70 yen a gain of 1.12 yen from 134.58 yen and a two-month high.

The shock of Shevardnadze's resignation speech drove investors to make heavy dollar purchases in the morning session, dealers said. "The impact of the news about Shevardnadze was heavy on pre-Cristmas trading, which is usually very thin," said Lloyds Bank vice president Hiroshi Adachi.

In Zurich, gold fell to $384 an ounce from $384.75, and in London gold closed lower at $383.50 an ounce vs. 385.75.

Silver in Zurich fell to $4.1750 an ounce from $4.20. In London silver closed lower at $4.16 an ounce from $4.21.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $381.50 an ounce, down from $383.75 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $382.50 an ounce, also down from $385.20.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.035 an ounce, down from $4.20. Comex silver finished at $4.025 an ounce, vs. 4.199.

(DEC. 21) UPI - Growing uneasiness over political conditions in the Soviet Union is leading to a growing exodus of Soviet Jews, most headed to new lives in Israel. Immigration officials say they expect to welcome 55-hundred Soviet Jews to Israel over a two-day period ending tomorrow night. The latest figures indicate that approximately 200-thousand immigrants will arrive in Israel this year, up from just 12-thousand last year. And most will be Soviet Jews.

Sources at the meetings in Paris on a U-N peace plan for Cambodia say the session was interrupted by Cambodian Prime Minister Hun Sen collapsed and was rushed to a hospital. About 150 Cambodians- including some Buddhist monks- demonstrated outside the meeting, some carrying signs backing the U-N peace plan.

Winter officially arrives across the country later tonight but the change of season is already self-evident in many areas. There are record lows to report from freezing in San Francisco to 16 degrees below zero in Denver. It dropped to below zero on parts of Kansas, where wind-chills made it feel like 50 below. But that was almost balmy in comparison to the Dakotas, where residents have battled wind-chill readings of 75 below for much of the week.

California Governor-elect Pete Wilson is expected to name someone to head a new oil spill agency once he takes office on January 7th. The California legislature finally decided in August to set up an Oil Spill Prevention and Response unit within the state Department of Fish and Game. The legislation provides for 50-Million dollars in state funding to help clean up oil spills and there are borrowing rights for another 50-Million dollars on short notice.

Six kindergarten children suffered burns in a fire sparked by a candle that touched off their Santa Claus masks during a Christmas show for their parents in Rome. Parents reported that the fire started as 27 children were seated in small chairs on a platform wearing Santa Claus masks and holding a candle. They say a candle held by one of the children touched off a fire in the cotton-wool beard of his mask, and the flames spread to the masks of five other children... two boys and three girls. Parents watching the show grabbed fire buckets and doused the flames. Three of the children were hospitalized for treatment of their burns.

The Israeli ambassador to the United States says the American vote for a U-N resoluktion condemning Israeli treatment of the Palestinians may cause lasting harm to the relations between Washington and Jerusalem. He told U-P-I today that he is worried by the U-S vote, which sends the wrong signal to the enemies of Israel.

Winter pushed into the West and Midwest today with an onslaught of brutal cold and miserable wind-chill conditions. The South was battered by severe thunderstorms. Winter was due to start officially at 10:07 p- m, E-S-T. But wind-chill factors of 30 below already were common in the mountains.

A newspaper in Cairo, Egypt, says a 65-year-old man got a big surprise this week when his young wife gave birth to quadruplets. The report says he refused to accept the babies at first, saying he already had 11 children by another wife. (DEC. 21) UPI - Chairman Les Aspin of the House Armed Services Committee says the economic sanctions are NOT likely to hold long enough to get Iraq out of Kuwait and the best bet is diplomacy backed by the credible threat of war.

National security adviser Brent Scowcroft says the United States ''will NOT blink'' in the confrontation with Iraq in the Persian Gulf.

(DEC. 21) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says his troops will NOT be out of Kuwait before the January 15th deadline set by the U- N Security Council. Saddam said in an interview broadcast in Germany that President Bush will NOT be able to fight Iraq for long because- quoting now- ''he is such a bad leader.''

Chairman Les Aspin of the House Armed Services Committee says he doubts that the sanctions against Iraq will be enough to get the Iraqi troops out of Kuwait. But Aspin says he believes the best chance for a peaceful solution to the crisis is in diplomacy and a credible threat of war.

National security adviser Brent Scowcroft told reporters today that ''January 15th is NOT an attack day.'' Scowcroft says the United States ''will NOT blink'' in the confrontation. He says the U-N Security Council deadline lets Saddam know that ''he better get moving now.''

British Prime Minister John Major and Secretary of State Baker held their first official meeting today, discussing the resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. They also talked about the impact of the surprise Shevardnadze action on world events, particularly the Persian Gulf crisis. Baker gave NO details of the one-hour meeting.

In Moscow, reformers in the Congress of Peoples Deputies seized on the Shevardnadze resignation as a rallying point, warning of an impending dictatorship. But the Congress chairman later introduced legislation that would give President Gorbachev virtual dictatorial powers. And some observers now are speculating that Gorbachev sacrificed Shevardnadze to gain enough votes from the right to get his measure approved.

The Nicaraguan legislature reversed itself today and supported the veto President Violeta Chamorro cast against a 25 percent cut in mililitary spending. The legislature approved the spending cut last week. But Chamorro struck it down, saying it would interfere with efforts to reduce the size of the armed forces.

GUATEMALA CITY (DEC. 23) EFE - The Guatemalan government Saturday dubbed "drastic" the U.S. decision to suspend military aid to the Central American country due to its appalling human rights record.

A government statement said that the decision showed nothing "but incomprehension and disrespect for Guatemala's international policy, which the U.S. State Department has viewed with disgust in the past".

The statement said the government did not have +a repressive and violatory policy+, and that President Vinicio Cerezo was very alarmed at the decision to suspend military aid.

The United States had earmarked dlrs 2.9 million for the Guatemalan military during the 1991 fiscal year.

The dlrs 112 million in non-military aid to Guatemala will not be affected, and Guatemalan officers will continue their training in the United States.

The U.S. State Department said Friday that Washington was not accusing the government itself of violating human rights, but criticized Cerezo for rarely taking action to thoroughly investigate and prosecute those who do.

The U.S. statement said the Army slaying of 14 peasants earlier this month was an example of the violence which continues to go unchecked in Guatemala.

The 14 peasants were killed and 19 others wounded when troops opened fire on a crowd gathered outside an Army barracks apparently to hand over a drunken soldier who had tried to steal from a local store.

The Guatemalan government Saturday admitted judicial difficulties in investigating criminal cases, but reiterated that it wanted to punish every person responsible for human rights abuses.

"There are groups of people hostile to the regime who carry out attacks on human rights," the statement said.

The U.S. prohibition extends to the commercial sale of arms to the Guatemalan Army and blocks the shipment of weapons it previously bought from the United States.

In 1977, former U.S. president Jimmy Carter suspended military aid because of similar abuses.

Military aid was resumed in 1988, during former president Ronald Reagan's term.

Human rights groups say the Guatemalan Army has killed tens of thousands of civilians during the past 20 years in counter-insurgency operations aimed at wiping out support for leftist rebels.

Security forces have also been accused of running death squads which have killed dozens of people in the capital in the past three years.

SAN SALVADOR (DEC. 23) EFE - El Salvador's leftist rebels said Saturday they would suspend a planned Christmas truce unless the Armed Forces ended what they called its persecution of the people.

In a telephone call to a radio station, a spokesman for the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) rebels said the Army continued with "repressive actions".

The FMLN has agreed not to conduct armed actions in the capital on Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, at the request of religious and civic organizations.

Since the rebels began an offensive at the end of November, the U.S.-backed Salvadoran military has undertaken extensive search operations in major towns, and particularly the capital.

On Saturday, inhabitants of Soyapango, on the outskirts of the capital, told reporters that a father and son were shot by police.

The FMLN has been locked in an insurgency against a series of governments for the last decade in which neither the Army nor the rebels has managed to gain the upper hand for any length of time.

United Nations-backed peace talks between the two sides have stalled on the FMLN's insistence on the removal of the Army from political life and an end to human rights abuses by the police and military.

Human rights groups and Church organizations have linked the Army to death squads which have killed more than half the 75,000 dead in the decade-long war.

LONG BEACH, CA (DEC. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - David O. Swain has been named vice president-general manager for the U.S. Air Force- McDonnell Douglas C-17 airlifter program, the company announced today.

Swain will lead the McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) program, which directly employs more than 8,000 at the company's Douglas Aircraft division in Long Beach and another 5,000 who work on the program in parts fabrication and support roles here and at other McDonnell Douglas facilities.

Swain, who served as vice president-general manager of quality, business and technology development for Douglas Aircraft, was assigned to the C-17 program in early October as vice president in charge of all program and business related activities. Since then, he began the transition to the general manager's position with John Capellupo, who has served as interim manager of the C-17 program since May 1990.

Capellupo, named deputy president of Douglas Aircraft in January 1990, continues in that position.

A 26-year veteran of McDonnell Douglas, Swain began his career in 1964 as an engineer on the Gemini Project. After serving in positions of increasing responsibility in space and missile programs, he moved to McDonnell Douglas Electronics Co., where he served as vice president-deputy general manager during 1985 and as vice president-general manager during 1986 and 1987.

He returned to the astronautics company in 1987 to become vice president of strategic business development, a position he held until becoming vice president-general manager of quality, business and technology development at Douglas Aircraft in early 1989.

Swain earned a bachelor's degree in aeronautical engineering from Purdue University and undertook graduate studies at St. Louis University. He is a member of the NASA Aeronautics Advisory Committee and the California State University, Long Beach School of Engineering Advisory Council.

LONG BEACH, CA (DEC. 22) PR NEWSWIRE - Assembly of the first U.S. Air Force C-17 airlifter has been completed by McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) at its new 1.1 million-square-foot assembly building here, a major event on the road to first flight in the first half of 1991.

More than 8,000 employees at the Douglas Aircraft division of McDonnell Douglas are directly assigned to the C-17 program in Long Beach. Approximately 5,000 others work on the program in parts fabrication and support roles here and at other McDonnell Douglas facilities.

More than 15,000 additional people work on the program at over 300 C-17 supplier and subcontractor facilities across the country, including Allied Signal, Beech Aircraft, Delco, General Electric, Grumman, LTV, and Pratt and Whitney.

Len Impellizzeri, C-17 vice president-deputy general manager, added, "Much credit must be given to all of our C-17 suppliers, and especially to General Electric for their work on the electronic flight control system and to Pratt and Whitney for their excellent work on the C-17 engines."

The C-17 is an advanced jet transport designed to fly Army, Air Force and Marine Corps combat equipment, troops and out-sized cargo and humanitarian aid directly to small austere airfields anywhere in the world.

Using a unique powered lift technology, in which exhaust from the four engines blows around extra-large wing flaps, the aircraft can make slow, steep landing approaches. This enables it to operate on very short runways with high payloads.

Completion of assembly of the first C-17 is a condition for award of Production Lot 3, consisting of four aircraft funded in fiscal year 1990. This will bring to 10 the number of C-17s that will be under Air Force contract. The 10 production C-17s are in addition to the first aircraft completed today, which is called T-1, the first test aircraft.

During the final assembly process, the C-17's flight control system has been tested and the operation of the elevators, rudder, ailerons and flaps and the associated electrical and hydraulic systems has been demonstrated.

The aircraft now will be painted and then spend several weeks in ground test activities before going to the ramp for first flight preparations. A two-year flight test program is scheduled to begin in June, and employees on the program are pushing to beat that date, Swain said.

DOHA, Qatar (DEC. 23) UPI - The emir of Qatar opened a Gulf Cooperation Council summit Saturday with a call for a regional security system that would guard in the future against aggressive acts such as the Iraqi invasion of member-state Kuwait.

The leaders of the six member-states of the GCC, meeting for the first time since the Aug. 2 invasion of the oil-rich emirate, were expected to discuss the creation of a regional Arab security force during the three days of talks in Doha.

Qatar's Sheikh Khalifa bin Hamad Al Thani described the Iraqi invasion as an act of aggression against all gulf states and said the developments made it imperative that the the GCC reconsider its security needs.

''We need now, more than any time before, to take a new look at our style of work and at a more active security system that would allow us to face the challanges of the aftermath of the crisis and prevent the dangerous repetition of such aggressions in our region,'' Khalifa said in an address at the opening session of the summit.

Khalifa gave no details on the type of security system he had in mind, but gulf diplomatic sources said the leaders of the GCC were likely to discuss a deterrent Arab force, or some type of defense system that would cope against future threats.

The GCC, which includes Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Oman, was formed in 1981 to deal with regional economic and security problems caused by the Iran-Iraq war, which had started several months earlier.

Foreign troops, most of them from the United States, were deployed in Saudi Arabia and the UAE following the invasion of Kuwait in order to guard against future aggression.

The United States later suggested the creation of a permanent gulf defense force, but the idea was rejected by several Arab states concerned about the presence of foreign troops in the gulf in the long run.

Saudi Arabia has said repeatedly the foreign troops will leave the kingdom when the gulf crisis is over, and diplomatic sources said any defense system discussed by the GCC leaders would be purely Arab in nature.

A GCC military force called the Peninsula Shield is based in Eastern Saudi Arabia, but it is considered inadequate.

The emir of Qatar lashed out at Iraq for the invasion of Kuwait, saying the aggression made it ''urgently necessary to draw a comprehensive and clear strategy on the policies that should be pursued in the future.''

He appealed to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw his troops from the emirate by Jan. 15, the deadline imposed by the United Nations, which has authorized the use of force against Iraq after that date.

Khalifa received separate messages from President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev before the start of the summit, assuring GCC leaders that the superpowers are committed to driving Iraq from Kuwait and restoring its territorial integrity, Egypt's Middle East News Agency said.

Kuwait's exiled emir, Sheikh Jaber Al Ahmad Al Sabah, was expected to brief the GCC leaders on the situation within the occupied emirate.

All heads of state of the GCC were present at the summit, except the emir of Bahrain Sheikh Issa Bin Salman Al Khalifa, who has been ailing for months.

MOSCOW (DEC. 23) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev invalidated the formation of separate Russian-speaking and Gagauz republics within Moldavia Saturday, but also ordered the Moldavian government to reconsider a language law and other acts.

The presidential decree ''to normalize the situation in Moldavia'' also ordered the republic's government in Kishinev to abide by national laws and decrees and ensure equal rights for all citizens of the republic.

Moldavia, a small republic in the western Soviet Union bordering Romania, has been split by ethnic unrest since elections brought a nationalist Moldavian-dominated government to power earlier this year. Ethnic Moldavians share a language and many cultural ties with Romania.

The new government in Kishinev immediately moved to assert Moldavia's sovereignty by replacing Russian with Moldavian, a dialect of Romanian, as the required language for all official business in the republic.

The Turkic-speaking Gagauzis in southern Moldavia and the Russian- speaking Ukrainians and Russians in the eastern Dniester region responded by declaring their areas sovereign republics.

Moldavia formed vigilante committees that attempted to stop the formation of separate Parliaments in the two regions, leading to ethnic clashes that resulted in at least three deaths.

Gorbachev's decree follows the Moldavian government's lead by declaring the formation of the separate republics invalid, but he also ordered that provisions of the language law and other nationalist legislation be repealed or reconsidered.

Moldavia's delegation to the current session of the U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies walked out of the conclave earlier this week, but apparently agreed to return after Gorbachev promised to issue his decree.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 23) UPI - Israeli soldiers Saturday shot and killed a man suspected of infiltrating across the Jordan River carrying a Molotov cocktail and two Islamic holy books, military sources said.

An Israeli patrol discovered tracks from Jordan leading into the Israeli-occupied West Bank, about 6 miles north of the Jordan Valley's Adam Bridge about 11 a.m. Saturday, military sources said.

''The (Israeli) patrol tracked the infiltrator, opened fire and as a result the infiltrator was killed,'' one military source said.

No Israeli soldiers were wounded. Military sources said the infiltrator carried a Molotov cocktail and two Korans, the Islamic holy book.

WARSAW, Poland (DEC. 22) UPI - Lech Walesa, the unemployed electrician who jumped over a shipyard fence a decade ago to lead a strike that shook the communist world, was sworn in Saturday as Poland's first freely elected president since before World War II.

''With this moment, the Third Republic of Poland is solemnly beginning,'' the Solidarity founder said in a brief inaugural speech. ''The bad time, when the authorities of our state were elected under pressure from aliens or as the effect of imposed compromises, is coming to an end.

''Today, we are taking a fundamental step along the long and bloodstained road to the rebuilding of our independence.''

Walesa is the first president elected by popular vote in Poland and the first democratically elected president since 1926, when the Parliament elected Gen. Jozef Pilsudski, although he refused to take the post and appointed Ignacy Moscicki instead. Moscicki fled Poland when Germany invaded Sept. 1, 1939.

Walesa, 47, the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize recipient, won the presidency in an election Dec. 9, a decade after founding the labor movement that eventually took control of the government as communism crumbled in the East.

In ceremonies brimming with traditions ignored in Poland since the communist takeover half a century ago, Walesa also reviewed the troops as commander-in-chief and accepted the insignia of the pre-war Polish republic - kept in London until Poland was able to freely elect a president once again.

Walesa, solemn in a black suit with the ever-present Black Madonna icon on his lapel and his wife, Danuta, at his side, repeated the oath of office administered by Mikolai Kozakiewicz, speaker of the lower house of Parliament, or Sejm.

With his right hand raised, Walesa concluded the oath but firmly added, ''So help me God'' - language not in the original oath - to the applause of deputies in this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic nation.

Later in the ornate ballroom of the Royal Castle, Walesa accepted the presidential insignia from Ryszard Kaczorowski, president of the Polish government-in-exile that fled Poland for London in 1939.

''In 1939, the president of the Polish Republic left this castle,'' said Walesa, who exchanged kisses on the cheek with Kaczorowski. ''Today, after all these years, this journey is coming to an end. The president of the Polish government-in-exile is back in the castle.''

Watching the swearing-in ceremony were the Polish primate, Cardinal Jozef Glemp, attending a swearing-in for the first time, and members of the outgoing government, including Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki.

But the chair of the outgoing president, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, was empty, and about 20 communist deputies refused to stand or applaud his speech.

Jaruzelski announced he would not attend after Walesa made it clear he would accept the presidential insignia from the government-in-exile - and not from the former Communist Party leader.

During his speech, Walesa pledged to continue the policies of the Mazowiecki government, but with modifications - including the faster distribution of state-owned property to private owners.

''Poland should become a nation of owners,'' he said. ''This is the simplest and best-proven way to responsibility.''

Walesa stressed Poland's role in Europe and its connections with the Ukraine, Byelorussia and Lithuania as well as Russia - pointedly omitting direct reference to the Soviet Union.

Lastly, the man who once worked as an electrician in a shipyard in the port city of Gdansk pledged not to forget his roots.

''I come from a peasant family and I have been a worker for many years,'' he said. ''''I wish that the fact of my elevation will make all ''

An hour after leaving Parliament, the new president - who holds the rank of corporal - reviewed the troops in the courtyard of the Royal Castle, returning to another prewar tradition.

The ceremony included his introduction to some 30 Polish generals, many of them Communist Party members who were told for years Walesa was their enemy.

Walesa burst onto the Polish and world stage Aug. 14, 1980, when he climbed over the fence at Gdansk's Lenin shipyard to join, and then lead, the 18-day strike that opened the way for the transformation of a nation.

He remained head of the union as it was suppressed by Jaruzelski's imposition of martial law Dec. 13, 1981, and in the difficult years that followed.

He engineered the roundtable agreement in 1989 that led to partly free parliamentary elections won by Solidarity, and then backed the installation of Mazowiecki as premier. But Walesa soon broke with his former adviser over the pace of reforms and announced he would run for president.

CAIRO, Egypt (DEC. 23) UPI - Iraq issued an order Saturday that all schools, including kindergartens, be closed if the the U.S.-led multinational force in the region attacks the country, the official Iraqi news agency INA reported.

''Closing these institutions will take place without a notification from the concerned authorities until further notice once the atheists and their tails (agents) start their aggression against the great Iraq,'' INA quoted a statement from the presidential palace as saying.

The U.N. Security Council has authorized the multinational troops to use force against Iraq if it does not withdraw its troops from Kuwait by Jan. 15.

On Friday, civil defense authorities in Iraq staged a massive evacuation drill of Baghdad in preparation for a possible war.

About 1 million Baghdad residents were believed to have been evacuated to safe camps outside of the capital in a defense exercise aimed at testing the country's ability to cope with any major attack.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (DEC. 23) UPI - A strong earthquake jolted the Costa Rican capital of San Jose Saturday, interrupting telephone service and causing some damage, but there were no immediate reports of casualties.

The quake registered 5.7 on the open-ended Richter scale with an epicenter in the Pacific Ocean, about 125 miles south of San Jose, according Russ Needham, a geophysicist for the U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo.

Telephone service was cut off for about two hours, windows shattered and some buildings sustained heavy damage but the Red Cross reported no injuries and said calm had returned to the areas most affected by the quake and its aftershock.

Saturday's earthquake was thought to be the largest in the country since 1975, when a temblor in Tilaran left 10 people dead and caused several landslides.

David Serrano, a radio reporter in San Jose, said his station sustained considerable damage when the quake hit the Central American nation at 11:28 a.m., cutting off station broadcasts for 25 minutes. He said a strong aftershock hit an hour later and disrupted telephone service.

''Part of the ceiling fell to the floor and the desks in the newsroom were overturned,'' Serrano said. He added San Jose's main cathedral was cordoned off because of cracks in the structure.

Maria Elena Ramirez Zuniga was sewing in her second floor bedroom when the quake shook her home in a suburb of San Jose.

''I dropped the scissors, I dropped everything,'' she said. ''I stopped in the door frame and I couldn't move out of fear. I thought everything was going to collapse.''

She said bottles of perfume and wall ornaments fell to the floor, and the street light outside exploded, but no one in her family was hurt.

''Thank God we're OK,'' she said. ''But we are shaken up because we've never seen one so enormous.''

The government released a report Friday that said some 20,000 earthquakes were recorded in Costa Rica during 1990. The report, which said 662 of the quakes could be felt,attributed the high number of temblors to a March 25 quake off the Pacific coast of Costa Rica that measured 6.9 on the Richter scale.

The quake, caused by the movement of the Caribbean and Coco tectonic plates, left the area prone to more temblors, the report said.

BANGKOK, Thailand (DEC. 23) UPI - Vietnam faces a difficult year ahead because of cutbacks in assistance from the Soviet Union, internal inefficiency and the continuing U.S. embargo, Prime Minister Do Muoi said.

''1991 is the year that we will face unprecedented challenges,'' Muoi said in a speech, closing the winter session of the National Assembly Friday. The speech was broadcast by Radio Hanoi late Friday.

He said 3 million tons of fuel, 2.5 million tons of fertilizer and 400,000 tons of iron and steel were previously provided by the Soviet Union at friendly prices in rubles.

''Now we have to buy these materials at the world market price and payment is made in hard currencies,'' he said.

He said the government would try to halt all ''unessential'' imports and reduce the number of government employees. Moreover, he said the national budget was in serious deficit because ''state revenue collection is low and uncertain.''

The state capital construction budget was limited to $234 million, far too low to maintain the country' s crumbling infrastructure.

Foreign debt service alone will eat up 15 percent of all revenues, he said.

''Chances for obtaining foreign loans, aid, and investments are not so great because of continued U.S. embargo policy,'' Muoi said.

The U.S. government has said the embargo, in effect since the Vietnam War, will continue until Vietnam helps find a satisfactory settlement to the conflict in Cambodia. Last week, however, Vietnam rejected a U.N. peace plan already approved by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Muoi said the government had targeted 5.6 percent growth for 1991, but the economy was more likely to grow at about 4 percent while the population continued to expand by 2.13 percent.

BOSTON (DEC. 23) UPI - Sanctions against Iraq are having a devastating effect on civilians, with a lack of medical supplies killing children every day, members of a Nobel Prize-winning physicians group said Saturday.

Three officials of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War returned Saturday evening from an eight-day trip to the Middle East that included meetings with up to 75 Iraqi doctors and tours of Iraqi hospitals.

''All (the doctors) had a common story of the effect of the blockade in keeping medicines out,'' said William Monning, executive director of the Cambridge-based group, which won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1985.

''They've totally squeezed off the country. Babies are dying. It's horrendous. This didn't even happen in Nazi Germany,'' Monning said after arriving at Logan International Airport.

The lack of essential medicines in Iraq affects newborn children, premature babies and the elderly most severely, Monning said. Polio, which had not been seen in Iraq for the past five years, is re-emerging, he said.

The embargo has also resulted in an increase in the mortality rate of young children, he said. ''About three to four are dying (in hospitals) each day,'' he said, attributing the deaths to the lack of medicine.

Monning said the United States and its allies are violating the United Nations sanctions in preventing medicine from entering Iraq.

''It's an absolute requirement of the sanctions. It says excepted from this embargo are medicines and other humanitarian aid. The sanctions are being violated,'' he said. ''It contravenes all principles of the Geneva Convention.''

Monning and two other IPPNW officials, co-president Dr. Bernard Lown and Dr. John Pastore, secretary of the organization, visited Amman, Jordan, and Cairo, Egypt, as well as Baghdad.

They were joined on their mission by Dr. Ulrich Gottstein of Germany, the group's vice president for Europe; Dr. Sergei Kolesnikov, president of the Eastern Siberian branch of the USSR Academy of Medical Sciences and people's deputy to the Soviet Parliament; and Dr. Aurora Bilbau, an official with IPPNW's Spanish chapter.

The delegation succeeded in establishing an IPPNW chapter in Iraq, which will be the 70th affiliate of the 200,000-member group, Monning said.

Monning said that while President Bush has directed the American public's focus on Saddam Hussein, it is not the Iraqi president but civilians who would suffer in the event of a war.

''It is the innocent civilians who will be the victims. President Bush focuses on Saddam Hussein, but for every soldier killed six to eight civilians will be killed,'' he said.

Monning said the plight of Iraqi children was brought home to him most vividly when a doctor in Baghdad relayed his children's fear of war to the visiting delegation.

''His children were asking him, 'Will they drop an atomic bomb on us? What are they going to do?'''

BAGHDAD (DEC. 23) - Iraq's new Defence Minister, Saadi Toamma Abbas, in a sharp reaction to recent remarks by the U.S. defense secretary said Sunday Baghdad's army was ready to crush any aggression by an American-led task force in the Gulf.

U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told U.S. troops stationed in Saudi Arabia Friday that it was increasingly likely that a war would be needed to expel Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

''Cheney and his aides will see how the ground under their feet will be burned not only by Iraq, but also by Saudi strugglers and Mujahedeen (holy warriors) '' said Lieutenant-General Abbas, who was named earlier this month to succeed Abdel Jabar Khalil Shanshal.

Abbas, in a statement broadcast by Baghdad Radio, said in the event of a U.S. attack on Iraq, Moslems all over the world would chant Allah Akhbar (God is great) and join in the battle against ''unbelievers and traitors''.

''For our part, we tell (U.S. Secretary of State James) Baker and his agents in Saudi Arabia that we are ready, with God's help, to crush their aggression if they decide to attack the land of dignity and faith in great Iraq,'' Abbas added.

''The oppressors will be defeated by (Iraq's) crushing strikes,'' said Abbas, who earned a reputation as tough military man and ''a war hero'' during the eight-year Gulf war between Iraq and Iran.

JOHANNESBURG (DEC. 23) - The Mozambican parliament has approved a bill which will permit a multi-party democracy in the war-ravaged state for the first time in 15 years.

The bill was passed by all 250 members of the Mozambican assembly and paves the way for the first free elections in the country since independence from Portugal in 1975.

While three other political parties have already indicated that they intend contesting the elections, due to be held sometime next year, the right-wing Renamo rebel movement, has not yet announced its decision.

Renamo is currently negotiating with the ruling Frelimo party on an end to the 15-year guerrilla war which has left the country's economy in ruins.

When Mozambique finally abandoned its socialist policies and implemented a western-style constitution at the end of last month, President Joaquim Chissano said although he wanted Renamo to participate in the 1991 elections, no party ''practicing acts of violence'' would be permitted to do so.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 23) - Christian bishops in Jerusalem's Old City are incensed at Israeli authorities for what they consider harrassment of their churches and are saying so publicly ahead of Christmas festivities.

"If the holy sites don't witness peace and justice, the Middle East will become a volcano," Monsignor Michel Sabbah, the Roman Catholic bishop here told east Jerusalem's Arabic daily Al-Fajr.

He said Israeli authorities had this year plunged Christian churches, against their will, into the heart of the battle.

Jerusalem's three bishops -- Catholic, Greek Orthodox and Armenian -- along with other leading co-religionists issued a joint statement last week criticizing new pressures on them in the past year.

The statement on Thursday referred to "constant (Israeli) efforts to alter the Old City's demography, notably with the appropriation of St. John's hospice, owned by the Greek Orthodox patriarch, by Israeli settlers."

The hospice near the Church of the Holy Sepulchre was taken over on April 11 by Jewish extremist settlers who claimed the building was sold by its owner to a Lebanese businessman and sublet to them by an Armenian man.

The Greek Orthodox patriarchate in Jerusalem has denied that any such transaction occured.

The bishops' statement voiced the religious leaders' concern about "the constant erosion of traditional rights and longstanding privileges of the churches, through municipal and governmental taxes."

"This year, the Israelis have openly declared war against the churches by trying to strangle them economically through heavy taxes," said a Catholic priest who asked not to be named.

MOSCOW (DEC. 23) - Tension heightened at the weekend in the Baltic republics, as a Soviet military building was bombed in Latvia and Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis warned citizens to prepare to resist a crackdown by Moscow.

Lithuanian Foreign Minister Romualdas Ozolas said on Saturday that he had been informed that commanders of Soviet army units in Lithuania had received sealed envelopes containing secret orders to be opened on Christmas Eve.

He said that they could contain orders to institute a state of emergency in the 80 per cent Catholic republic.

Meanwhile, Mr. Landsbergis called on Lithuanians to "resist in case of the institution of direct occupational rule in Lithuania", and suggested the formation of an independent army of "volunteer troops".

On Wednesday, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev threatened to introduce a state of emergency or direct presidential rule in the Soviet Union's "most troubled regions", and the Estonian government announced plans for a civil disobedience campaign in case of direct Soviet rule.

In the Latvian capital of Riga, a bomb exploded at a Soviet Army engineering academy on Saturday, blowing out 200 windows and causing 50,000 rubles (30,000 dollars) in damage, but no injuries.

Ten bomb attacks have been made since December 5, most of them aimed at military, KGB and Communist Party targets.

The Latvian government has denounced the bombings, and nationalists say they are the work of Soviet undercover agents seeking to justify the proclamation of a state of emergency in the republic.

On Thursday, an entire district of Riga was closed off without explanation by Soviet troops in combat gear who checked papers and vehicles.

Latvia, where only 54 per cent of the 2.7 million inhabitants are native Latvians and nationalists hold a thin majority in the republican parliament, appears to be the weak link in the Baltic independence movement.

Since Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's decree last month authorizing Soviet servicemen to use their weapons "in case of threat to their lives or those of their families", armed Soviet troops have been patrolling the streets of the main Lithuanian port of Klaipeda and making identity checks.

Soviet television has regularly shown pictures in recent weeks of Soviet soldiers on hospital beds saying that they had been beaten by Lithuanian youths while on leave.

Similar accusations were made in the Soviet press before the annexation of the Baltic countries in July, 1940, observers said.

The military, whose officers have flatly refused to give up their bases in the Baltics, has mobilized to obtain a harder line from the Kremlin on policy towards the rebellious republics.

Five hundred representatives of Baltic military garrisons, meeting on Friday in Riga, threatened to take control of vital facilities in the region.

Only hours after a violent attack on Saturday by the head of the KGB against nationalist movements in general, Mr. Gorbachev issued a decree overruling nationalist legislation passed by the Moldavian parliament and declaring null and void the declarations of independence by regions of the republic inhabited predominantly by ethnic minorities.

Mr. Okita, who was foreign minister in 1979-80, arrived Sunday in Amman for a two-day visit at the invitation of Crown Prince Hassan, Japanese embassy sources said.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 23) - The trial of a 21-year-old Israeli charged with the cold-blooded killings of seven Palestinians last May opened Sunday at a court in Tel Aviv.

Ami Popper was charged in June with the May 20 killings of seven Arab workers in Rishon Le Zion near Tel Aviv and with the attempted murder of 10 other Palestinians, all of whom were shot and wounded.

Mr. Popper's lawyers intend to argue that the defendant was "mentally unbalanced," as a result of having once been sexually assaulted, and that the killings were not premeditated, according to sources close to the defense team.

Mr. Popper is accused of having stolen an assault rifle from his bother, who was serving in the Israeli army, and of going to Rishon Le Zion where he began checking identity papers of Palestinians coming to work in Israel from the occupied territories.

He allegedly stopped an car registered in the Gaza Strip, ordered its Palestinian passengers to line up in front of him and opened fire.

DHAKA (DEC. 23) - Bangladesh's election commission Sunday said nomination papers for upcoming parliamentary polls could be filed until January 10, moving the deadline forward, state-run television reported.

The commission earlier said nomination papers for the February 27 polls could be filed up until election day.

No reason for the decision was immediately available.

Two main alliances, led by the Awami League of Sheikh Hasina Wajed and Begum Khaleda Zia's Bangladesh Nationalist Party and scores of smaller parties are expected to contest the 300 seats in parliament, the Jatiya Sangsad.

No announcement has been made on whether ousted president Hussain Mohammad Ershad's Jatiya Party would be allowed to stand in the elections.

Mr. Ershad, 60, dissolved parliament December 6, hours before he stepped down in the face of a mass upsurge against his eight-year-old government.

BELGRADE (DEC. 23) - The Albanian trade union federation has decided to break away from the communist party, the Albanian news agency ATA reported on Sunday.

The union body "insists on becoming a political, social and pluralist association, and an independent electoral force," it said in a statement published by ATA, following a meeting of its executive in Tirana.

The unions, said the statement, "will reform themselves so as to serve the vital interests of the workers," while remaining open to all people "regardless of political, ideological and religious convictions."

The federation demanded a hand in business decisions, planning and division of profits within companies.

The trade union federation is the third official organization to announce its independence from the Albanian Communist Party, after the Democratic Front and the Alliance of Albanian Youth last week.

The independence of these three organizations, while it may prove only nominal may lead in the long term to the weakening of the ruling Communist Party as these formations seek true autonomy, analysts said.

The legalization of opposing political parties, announced December 11, may also thin the ranks of the Communist Party, which is estimated to have 110,000 members out of a population of 3.2 million.

However, while most Eastern European communist parties were losing members well before the upheavals of 1989, the membership of the Albanian party has apparently continued to rise.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 23) - U.S. intelligence officials fear a ''suitcase war'' waged by Arab terrorists with targets already reconnoitred, should a Gulf war break out, it was reported Sunday.

The magazine ''U.S. News and World Report'' said Iraqi- and Libyan-financed terrorists were feared already to have built up underground cells in U.S. cities, awaiting a signal from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Intelligence experts said it was feared that new, undetectable explosives could easily be smuggled through airport security checks in luggage.

Evidence that such a terrorism wave would accompany any outbreak of war in the Gulf had come from information gathered in Turkey, Morocco and Pakistan.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 23) - Former secretary of state George Shultz Sunday said U.S. policy in the Gulf crisis should seek not only to force Iraq out of Kuwait, but also to neutralize the Iraqi military capacity.

"We have to correct the imbalance of power that is there when our forces are not there, we have to do something about (Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's) chemical weapons and ... other weapons of mass destruction," Mr. Shultz said in an interview on the ABC television network.

Mr. Shultz, secretary of state during the administration of Ronald Reagan, added that the United States should go beyond forcing Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait and hold Mr. Hussein accountable for the abuses of Iraqi occupying forces.

"War crimes have been committed and there must be accountability," Mr. Shultz said.

Asked about the means the United States might use to achieve its objectives,

Mr. Shultz noted there were means other than war, but that it was still necessary to be prepared to fight.

Mr. Chadli, on the last leg of a tour which has also taken him to Rome, Paris, Madrid and Rabat, denied during a press conference having said that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was ready to make concessions.

But, he added: "An Arab solution remains possible and can serve as the basis for an international solution."

Colonel Taya said that he hoped Mr. Chadli would be successful in his efforts to find a peaceful settlement to the Gulf crisis.

BAGHAD (DEC. 23) - Iraqi civil defense authorities on Sunday set off an alarm siren in eastern Baghad to test the population's readiness to take cover in case of foreign attack, correspondents reported.

The first test was immediately followed by a 10-minute power cut in the district, known as Rousafa.

With the electricity shut down, the alarm siren resumed for a one full minute.

Traffic during the power cut came to a halt in Rousafa.

The test was the first here since the start of the Gulf crisis August 2, which triggered the massive deployment of U.S. and other forces in the region opposed to the Iraqi seizure of Kuwait.

Authorities in Saudi Arabia, where more than 200,000 foreign forces are stationed, have also begun to test their warning sirens, notably in the eastern part of the kingdom near the border with Iraq and Kuwait.

On Friday, nearly a million Iraqis living in Baghad, from a total population of four million, were temporarily evacuated as preparation for feared U.S. air raids.

U.S.-led multinational troops have been authorized by the United Nations to use force against Iraq after January 15 if Iraqi units have not withdrawn from Kuwait by then.

RIYADH (DEC. 23) - French Defense Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement cancelled a meeting Sunday with his Saudi counterpart after failing to persuade authorities here to permit a rock concert for French troops, a French source disclosed in the Saudi capital.

In Paris the defense ministry announced that discussions with Saudi authorities had failed "and the definitive cancellation at the request of the Saudi side came this Sunday afternoon."

Saudi Arabia initially approved two rock concerts by singer Eddy Mitchell but cancelled them at the last minute on Saturday, citing excessive publicity surrounding the event.

The Saudis then relented and a concert had been planned for Sunday.

Committed to a strict and ascetic form of Islam, Saudi officials apparently feared the concerts could offend local traditions.

Mr. Chevenement "made every effort to ensure that the Eddy Mitchell concert, planned for Sunday, could take place," the French source said here.

But he added: "After French-Saudi discussions, a high-level French decision was taken to cancel the concert."

In Paris, sources close to the presidency said that in light of persistent Saudi objections, French authorities had no choice but to call off the performance.

Mr. Chevenement, who arrived here Sunday, cancelled a meeting he was to have had with Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan Bin Abdel Aziz.

Mr. Chevenement is spending Christmas with French troops stationed in the kingdom as part of a multinational force that deployed in the Gulf after the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

With Saudi approval for Sunday, stage crews had begun rebuilding a set in the desert that they had dismantled the day before.

The stage had not been completed when French troops began arriving on the scene early Sunday afternoon.

But an hour before the concert was to begin, the cancellation order struck like a bombshell, leaving soldiers disgruntled and incredulous.

"We're maybe going to the front for them and they deprive us of our concert," said one irritated officer.

Journalists were not allowed to meet Mr. Mitchell, who was touring nearby French positions.

After a mid-day press conference Monday Mr. Chevenement will spend the day in the desert with French units. He was also likely to travel on Tuesday to Houfouh, in eastern Saudi Arabia where French combat planes are based, and to the Red Sea port of Yanbu.

PARAMARIBO (DEC. 23) - The former military ruler of Suriname, Lieutenant Colonel Desi Bouterse, announced Sunday he was resigning as army chief because of differences with President Ramsewak Shankar.

He will be replaced by his second in command, Lieutenant Iwan Graanoogst, an army spokesman said.

Lt. Col. Bouterse said through a spokesman that he did not want his resignation to halt peace talks with guerrillas led by former army officer Ronny Brunswijk, and his 38-year-old successor said he would in fact continue the negotiations.

Lt. Col. Bouterse, 45, seized power in a 1980 coup and ruled for nearly eight years before handing over power to an elected government led by Mr. Shankar. But Lt. Col. Bouterse has remained a powerful figure in this former Dutch colony in northeastern South America.

He announced his decision to resign on returning home overnight from a trip to Europe. He accused Mr. Shankar of failing to support him during three run-ins he had with the Netherlands authorities during stopovers in Amsterdam last week.

On the three occasions, Lt. Col. Bouterse was refused permission to meet with journalists at Amsterdam airport. The Dutch authorities said the decision was "for his own safety and in the interest of public order".

"I have no respect for the way in which this man defends the interests of Suriname," Lt. Col. Bouterse said of the president, according to press reports.

"Even a beggar must have some pride," added the former strongman, apparently alluding to Suriname's reliance on Dutch financial aid.

Lt. Col. Bouterse was expected to formally submit his resignation Sunday or Monday.

He has led the army's fight against Mr. Brunswijk's Jungle Commando, which emerged in 1986 and is composed mainly of descendants of runaway slaves.

The war has claimed some 500 lives and forced an estimated 10,000 Surinamese to flee, most of them to neighboring French Guiana.

The rebels began peace talks in 1989 with the Shankar government, and later continued them with the Bouterse-led armed forces, but the negotiations have yet to yield a definitive agreement.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) - Space Communications Corp. (SCC), part of the Mitsubishi group, has cancelled all communications services via its Superbird A satellite because of technical problems, company officials said Monday.

The cancellation was announced by SCC President Hiromune Minagawa at a hastily-arranged press conference late Sunday, they said.

The announcement followed the malfunction since December 20 of the satellite's position control thruster system.

They said SCC would not resume services until it launches a Superbird B satellite in November.

The company's rival, Japan Communications Satellite, is expected to provide an alternative for SCC customers, including cable television, and satellite news gathering for major Japanese commercial and broadcasting companies.

The U.S.-made Superbird A satellite was launched on June 6, 1989, by a European Ariane-4 rocket from French Guiana to beam television programs, telephone signals and business data across Japan.

Company sources said SCC had invested about 90 billion yen (692 million U.S. dollars) to launch the satellite and build ground stations.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) - Japan is expected to conclude an agreement next year with the Soviet Union to promote bilateral cooperation in securing the safe operation of nuclear power plants, government sources said Monday.

The agreement is expected to be signed in April when Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev visits Japan, they said.

The Soviet Union has asked Japan to provide safety technology to help it prevent the recurrence of accidents at nuclear plants like the one at Chernobyl in 1986 that caused worldwide concern, they said.

The official Soviet news agency Tass last month said bilateral agreements in four fields, including the safety of nuclear power plants and the peaceful use of space, are expected to be signed during Mr. Gorbachev's visit here.

BOGOTA (DEC. 23) EFE - The leader of Colombia's notorious Medellin cocaine cartel has accused the chief of a rival gang of drug traffickers of hypocrisy for pinning the blame for kidnapping and murders on his gang.

Medellin-based kingpin Pablo Escobar Gaviria, Colombia's most wanted man, sent an open letter Saturday to Gilberto Rodriguez Orejuela, leader of the rival Cali cartel, charging him with attacks on the town of Medellin.

"Innocent people, including old people and children, have died or lost their homes in attacks on Medellin ordered by you," Escobar said.

The message was a response to a letter sent by the Cali cartel to Colombia's prosecutor-general denying involvement in "terrorist actions" and the recent wave of kidnappings of prominent journalists, which has included the daughter of a former president and the son of the owner of the Bogota daily El Tiempo.

In the last eighteen months, the Medellin cartel has used bomb attacks and hired gunmen to kill more than 300 people, mostly Medellin-based police officers, the police have estimated.

Despite repeated government crackdowns on the cartels and a dlrs 600,000 reward posted by former president Virgilio Barco for information leading to his arrest, Escobar has always narrowly managed to escape capture.

Bilbao, SPAIN (DEC. 23) EFE - The armed Basque separatist group ETA has claimed responsibility for a series of recent attacks in Spain which killed eight people, including six policemen in a car-bomb explosion.

In a statement published by the Basque newspaper Egin on Sunday, ETA said it had planted the December 8 bomb that blasted a police van carrying the police to patrol a football match in the northeastern town of Sabadell.

Six policemen died and two were injured in the explosion.

ETA also said it had set off two car-bombs in Spain's troubled Basque region nine days ago, killing a policeman and seriously injuring another.

The group also said it killed a news vendor, accused of being a police informer,in the Basque town of San Sebastian on December 14.

ETA, which is fighting for the right to independence of the Spanish Basque region, has killed 94 people and wounded almost 400 more in car-bomb attacks in the last eight years.

The statement said ETA had recently sent several letter bombs, including one to a company which is building a motorway in northern Spain which the group opposes on environmental grounds.

It also criticized the French and Spanish governments for crackdowns on ETA.

Authorities in both France and Spain have recently arrested dozens of suspected ETA members, and a Spanish high court Wednesday imposed an 86-year jail sentence on Frenchman Henri Parot who allegedly headed ETA's +roving unit+.

The unit has been blamed for some of the group's bloodiest attacks in recent years, including the 1987 bombing of a Civil Guard barracks in the northeastern city of Zaragoza in which 11 people, including nine children, died.

ETA has killed more than 630 people since it took up arms in 1968.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 23) EFE - An Israeli, accused of killing seven Arab workers in May, pleaded guilty to the charges Sunday but his lawyer said the murders were not premeditated as his client was mentally ill at the time of the attack.

The trial of Ami Popper, 21, continued in a Tel Aviv court on other charges connected with the killings.

He used a machine-gun to shoot dead seven Palestinian farm laborers waiting for work in the so-called "garden of the roses" in the Israeli city of Rishon LeZion.

Ten more Arabs were wounded in the attack.

The prosecutor said Popper, who was examined by psychiatrists after the attack had committed the murders +in cold blood+.

The crime triggered increased clashes between Arabs and the Israeli army in the Occupied Territories.

Palestinians two weeks ago commemorated the third anniversary of the start of the intifada, or uprising, against Israeli rule in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

More than 1,000 Palestinians and some 50 Jews have been killed in the intifada.

Nearly 300 of the dead Palestinians were killed by fellow Arabs for allegedly collaborating with Israeli security forces.

INDIANAPOLIS (DEC. 22) UPI - Alan Grant returned an interception 25 yards for a touchdown with 50 seconds left Saturday night, giving Indianapolis a 35-28 comeback victory over the Washington Redskins.

The Colts, 7-8, kept their slim playoff hopes alive with two touchdowns within 31 seconds in the final two minutes.

After Indianapolis tied the score 28-28 on a 12-yard pass from Jeff George to Bill Brooks, Washington's Mark Rypien threw a hurried pass that wobbled straight to Grant. The rookie cornerback rushed into the end zone untouched to conclude a 21-point Colts' fourth quarter.

George, a rookie, completed 18 of 33 passes for 252 yards and three touchdowns. The TD to Brooks came with 1:21 left. George previously found Stanley Morgan on scoring passes of 42 and 8 yards.

The Colts can earn the final AFC wild-card berth only by beating Miami next week if Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Seattle each lose their final two games. The Redskins, 9-6, lost ground in their race to stay ahead of Philadelphia for home-field advantage in the NFC playoffs. Washington has already clinched a wild-card spot.

Washington's Ernest Byner rushed for 154 yards on 31 carries for his fourth straight 100-yard rushing game. Rypien completed 18 of 36 passes for 249 yards including scoring passes of 53 yards to Gary Clark and 13 to Art Monk. Chip Lohmiller kicked field goals of 56, 53, 29 and 27 yards, his shortest giving Washington a 28-21 lead with 4:15 remaining.

Eugene Daniel missed a tackle and Clark turned a short catch into a 53-yard touchdown two plays into the fourth quarter for a 25-14 lead. The Colts answered quickly, moving 65 yards in four plays to pull within 25-21 on Morgan's 8-yard TD catch with 11:47 remaining.

Washington took a 15-14 lead on a safety 44 seconds into the third quarter when George was called for intentional grounding on a pass from the Colts' end zone. He was sacked for an 11-yard loss the play before. The Redskins moved 54 yards after the Colts' free kick, setting up a 29- yard Lohmiller field goal.

Lohmiller's 56-yard field goal kick on the last play of the first half bounced straight up after hitting the crossbar and fell through the far side, giving him the longest field goal of his career and pulling the Redskins within 14-13.

The kick came after referee Jerry Markbreit ordered one second returned to the clock. Ricky Sanders struggled for yardage after a 22- yard catch and the half appeared to end before he was tackled. But Markbreit ruled the play ended and the Redskins called a timeout before the half was over.

Lohmiller tied an NFL record with two field goals of more than 50 yards in the same quarte, having kicked a 53-yard field goal with 37 seconds remaining in the period.

Morgan beat the Redskin defense deep down the left sideline and caught a 42-yard touchdown pass from George, falling backwards into the end zone with 9:37 remaining in the first half to give the Colts a 14-7 lead. A roughing the passer penalty on linebacker Wilbur Marhsall on a second-down-and-20 situation from the Colts 15-yard line sustained the drive.

Keith Taylor intercepted a Rypien pass that deflected off linebacker Duane Bickett's helmet late in the first quarter. Penalties on four of the next six plays cost the Redskins 32 yards and set up Eric Dickerson' 4-yard touchdown run, tying the game at 7-7 just 11 seconds into the second quarter.

Washington's Art Monk extended his reception streak to 115 straight games by leaping over Grant and catching a 12-yard touchdown pass in the left rear corner of the end zone 12:25 into the game. The drive began after Indianapolis lost the ball on downs at its 43. Linebacker Ravin Caldwell stopped an Eric Dickerson dive for no gain on a fourth-and-one situation to give Washington the ball.

Washington's Sidney Johnson suffered a concussion on kickoff coverage, but awakened later in a hospital where he stayed overnight for further examination.

Jim Irsay, the Colts general manager, said Ron Meyer will coach the team next season, ending months of speculation he would be fired. Irsay termed rumors of major changes among Meyer's assistants ''premature.''

(DEC. 21) UPI - The Green Bay Packers and Minnesota Vikings were left out in the cold from the NFL postseason picture Saturday when they suffered home losses on the second-to-last weekend of the season.

The Detroit Lions cashed in on three fourth-quarter turnovers to dump the Packers 24-17, and the Los Angeles Raiders received four touchdown passes by Jay Schroeder to dump the Vikings 28-24.

The Packers and Vikings fell to 6-9, leaving Dallas, Tampa Bay and New Orleans in the running for the final NFC wild-card playoff berth. The Cowboys, 7-7, can clinch that spot with a victory Sunday in Philadelphia.

The Indianapolis Colts kept their slim playoff hopes alive Saturday night with a 25-28 comeback victory over the Washington Redskins.

The Packers and Lions played in the coldest game at Green Bay, Wisc., since the ''Ice Bowl'' for the 1967 NFL title. The temperature was two degrees with a wind-chill factor of minus 28 at the opening kickoff, and the wind chill was minus 36 by the fourth quarter.

The Packers took a 17-10 lead into the fourth quarter but Ray Cockroft recovered a fumble by tight end Ed West and raced 22 yards for the tying TD. Green Bay's Michael Haddix lost a fumble at the Lions 26 on the next possession and linebacker Chris Spielman recovered. Detroit drove to Barry Sanders' 6-yard TD to make it 24-17 and Cockroft intercepted his second pass from Blair Kiel near the Lions goal-line in the final two minutes.

Sanders gained 133 yards on 19 carries, taking over the NFL rushing lead with 1,281 yards for the season. There were seven turnovers in the frigid weather.

''The cold weather and wind chill did not really affect our performance today '' Packers Coach Lindy Infante said.

Weather conditions were as bad in Minneapolis, but the Vikings play indoors in 72 degrees at the Metrodome. Still, Schroeder froze Minnesota's playoff chances with scoring strikes to Mervyn Fernandez, Sam Graddy, Marcus Allen and Ethan Horton.

''In some ways it feels even colder (inside),'' Vikings Coach Jerry Burns added. ''I said it wasn't over until it was over, and now it is over.''

The Raiders knocked Vikings starting quarterback Wade Wilson from the game with a separated shoulder in the third quarter. Rich Gannon threw short TD strikes to Hassan Jones and Steve Jordan, the second one with 15 seconds remaining.

The Raiders, 11-4, won their fourth straight and moved within one victory or one Kansas City loss from clinching the AFC West title. The Raiders have already sealed a playoff spot.

BRISBANE, Australia (DEC. 23) UPI - Cyclone Joy, whipping up wind gusts of up to 143 mph, was slowly bearing down on the North Coast of Queensland State Sunday and expected to strike land sometime Monday, meteorologists said.

The cyclone was expected to hit the coast in the vicinity of Cairns, with a population 150,000, and the city was battened down Sunday, with all State Emergency Services on full alert, police said.

''The very destructive core of Cyclone Joy is posing a major threat to communities between Cooktown and Lucinda,'' the Brisbane Weather Bureau said in a special cyclone warning issued at 5 p.m. Sunday.

''Residents are advised to shelter in a safe place for the duration of the dangerous conditions,'' the warning said.

The Bureau rated Joy a ''category 4'' cyclone, the second-highest rating, and said its position at 5 p.m. (1 a.m. EST) was 77.6 miles northeast of Cairns. This was almost 7 miles closer than its position at noon local time and confirmed Bureau predictions that it was continuing its collision course with the Queensland coast, officials said.

''Destructive winds are being experienced along exposed coast between Cooktown and Innisfail and could extend south,'' the warning said. These destructive winds were being felt 87 miles out from the cyclone's center.

Police constable Kim Hill, of Cairns Police, said wind gusts over 62 mph were being experienced in the city Sunday night.

''There is a lot of debris on the roads and we are warning people to stay indoors,'' she said.

Hill said the local airport was closed and all emergency services on standby.

''Its very windy and rainy, but apart from that all is steady at this stage,'' she said.

The Weather Bureau also warned that tides along the coast could rise up to 6 feet above normal levels later Sunday.

''Sea levels may exceed high water mark with very rough seas and flooding over the foreshore,'' the warning said.

Resort islands off the coast also were preparing for the cyclone, which officials said was approximately the same intensity as Cyclone Tracey, which devastated Darwin on Christmas Day 1974, killing 184 people.

The Bureau said the central pressure of Cyclone Joy was 940 hectopascals compared with Tracey's 935 hectopascals.

#90357u0150 12/23/1990 ~United Press International
(DEC. 23) UPI - President Bush says he'll meet Monday at Camp David, Maryland with Defense Secretary Cheney and General Colin Powell to discuss conflicting reports on U-S readiness to fight in the Persian Gulf. Bush Saturday declared American forces are ready to battle now if necessary. The deputy commander of those troops on Wednesday said the United States is NOT fully ready to fight Iraq. Pentagon officials said one day later that NOT all ground forces are in place, but air strikes against Iraq could begin by the middle of January.

The U-S-S Saratoga will continue its mission in the Persian Gulf after holding a memorial Sunday for 19 servicemen killed when a ferry capsized off Israel. The two-tiered ferry was bringing 102 servicemen back to their ship late Friday after a pre-Christmas shore leave when it capsized. Rescuers recovered the bodies of 19 servicemen and rescued more than 80 more from the choppy waters. U-S and Israeli officials are investigating the accident.

Soviet lawmakers heard dark warnings Saturday from K-G-B chief Vladimir Kryuchkov as the debate continues over whether to expand Mikhail Gorbachev's powers. The secret police chief warned the C-I-A and other foreign forces are trying to impose doubtful ideas and plans,'' heightening the crisis in the Soviet Union.

Americans may or may NOT have a White Christmas, but chances are it will be cold. A massive cold front in the western United States brought record low temperatures to Los Angeles and Denver Saturday... and snapped power lines in Texas. The cold air moving East dropped temperatures as much as 40 degrees in the Midwest, bringing snow flurries to Illinois and prompting one forecaster to comment- ''any snow will linger into Christmas.''

The American Civil Liberities Union says an anti-solicitation law is being used to target homosexuals in Roanoke, Virginia. The A-C-L-U says the new statute has been used 25 of 30 times to prosecute homosexuals who solicited undercover police officers for sex. The same law came under fire a couple of weeks ago when a Roanoke judge threw one case out of court, saying it appeared the statute was being used to unfairly target homosexuals.

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (DEC. 23) UPI - Voters in Slovenia cast ballots Sunday in a plebiscite that would give the government of Yugoslavia's most Westernized republic the authority to declare independence despite threats by the army.

Twelve hours of voting began at 7 a.m. Sunday, but there were no immediate reports on the early turnout at some 4,200 polling stations.

A senior government official warned Saturday that Slovenia will use force to defend its sovereignty and independence if the Yugoslav army refuses to respect the right of the republic's citizens to self- determination.

''We say publicly and directly to the Yugoslav army leadership that Slovenian army reservists will not be the first to use arms. But they will respond to violence with violence,'' Slovenian Prime Minister Lojze Peterle told a group of foreign correspondents.

''But, we believe this will not happen and that the army will respect the constitutional rights that every nation has: the right for self- determination '' said the 42-year-old senior member of the ruling coalition of nationalist parties, the Democratic Union.

Peterle's comments came a day before the most Westernized and economically developed of Yugoslavia's six republics held a plebiscite that would arm its government with the authority to declare independence as a way out of the country's grinding ethnic morass.

The Marxist-led Yugoslav military, the last significant repository of the ideals of the late communist dictator Josip Broz Tito, has been fueling fears of intervention in Slovenia, with senior officers warning that the army would use force to preserve a socialist federation.

The Democratic Union government, which has been embroiled for months in a dispute with the army over command of its military reserve force, has posted additional security personnel around important public buildings.

The plebiscite has also been condemned by the country's eight-man collective presidency and national Parliament, both of which have called on the federal government to take action to prevent Slovenia from seceding.

A vast majority of 1.5 million registered voters was expected to vote ''yes'' for the question ''Should Slovenia become a sovereign and independent state?'' according to an opinion poll published in the Slovenian capital of Ljubljana, 350 miles northwest of Belgrade.

Peterle reiterated that Slovenia will not secede immediately, but would use the plebiscite as a bargaining chip in its fight to restructure the multi-ethnic nation's constitutional framework and transform the federation of 23 million into a confederation of independent states linked only by trade.

''The plebiscite does not mean secession, a sudden separation from the federation, but it will mean a constant readiness to work on an agreement with other republics on forging a new system different from the one we have now,'' Peterle said.

The plebiscite was motivated by historic fears of political and economic domination by the largest Yugoslav republic, Serbia, the presidency of which was retained by an orthodox communist in Dec. 9 polls.

Slovenia also objects to having to provide large amounts of financial aid to communist-ruled Serbia, which is believed to be close to bankruptcy.

Critics, however, charge that the vote is a political gimmick hatched by the Democratic Union to maintain its popularity, which has been slipping since it ousted communists last April in Yugoslavia's first multi-party polls since the end of World War II in 1945.

Serbia advocates maintaining the federal structure established in 1918 and says it would only accept confederation if its present borders are enlarged to include Serbian areas now in other republics.

Peterle said Slovenia will use the next six months to ''become independent through talks, but in case of violent pressure on Slovenia, there will be an emergency session of the Slovenian Assembly to secede the republic from the Yugoslav federation.''

Referring to Slovenia's quarrel with the military, Peterle said, ''We have to speak at a political level with Yugoslav leaders, not with the army because the military is subordinated to the federal bodies, about the presence of the Yugoslav People's Army in our republic.''

DAMMAM, Saudi Arabia (DEC. 23) UPI - U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, seeking to dispel appearances of timidness and disunity in the Bush administration, asserted Sunday that America is capable of striking ''today'' to drive Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

During an early morning news conference at Saudi King Fahd's Gulf Palace, Cheney also said prospects for a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis were growing dimmer as the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline for use of force grows near.

''The clock is ticking,'' said Cheney, wrapping up a five-day visit to Saudi Arabia in which he met with U.S. and allied commanders to plot war strategy and brought Christmas greetings to the troops from President Bush.

''There is only one acceptable outcome to the current crisis, and that's the complete and total withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait,'' Cheney said, shortly before leaving for Washington, with a brief stop in Cairo to meet with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

''That doesn't mean a partial withdrawal. That doesn't mean he gets to keep 10 percent or 20 percent or 30 percent of what he stole.''

The defense secretary grew testy over suggestions the administration was speaking with several different voices on the wisdom of going to war, blaming the press for trying to stir up controversy.

''I have not seen any fundamentally conflicting statements made by administration officials,'' Cheney told about 100 reporters brought to the plush palace in port city of Dammam on the gulf for the press conference.

Cheney's visit to the oil-rich kingdom got off to a rough start when Lt. Gen. Calvin Waller said in an interview last Wednesday that certain armored tank divisions would probably not be ready for combat on Jan. 15 and could use another month of training. National security adviser Brent Scowcroft has also preached restraint.

Since Waller's statement, Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have criss-crossed the desert trying to assure the nearly 300,000 troops deployed in the gulf region that the United States is ready for war and can deal Iraqi President Saddam Hussein a knockout punch.

At one stop Friday, Powell was asked by a squadron of Air Force pilots how he liked their A-10 ''tank killer'' jets. ''It's gonna be fun if you get started '' the top U.S. military commander kiddingly replied, evoking hoots and whistles.

Asked to clarify the question of U.S. readiness Sunday, Cheney said:

''We would be prepared today if we were ordered today to undertake military action. Obviously our capabilities will grow with the passage of time and I'm not going to speculate about what capabilities we may have on exactly what dates. Obviously Jan. 15 figures prominently in that.''

The U.N. Security Council set Jan. 15 as the date it would authorize the use of force against Iraq if Saddam does not withdraw from Kuwait, which his troops invaded Aug. 2. Twenty-seven nations, including the United States, Britain, France, Egypt, Syria and Bangladesh, have sent troops to the gulf region in the allied effort against Iraq.

On other topics:

-Cheney said the United States has been getting ''better all the time'' in protecting its troops against chemical weapons and said it had a ''complete spectrum'' of countermeasures, which he would not specify, to launch against Iraq. He would not answer questions about whether the U.S. forces would use chemical or nuclear weapons.

-He said the thousands of U.S. citizens who live and work in the Eastern Province of Saudi Arabia, which is closest to Kuwait and Iraq, should not feel the need to evacuate by Jan. 15. ''My perception is that this is one of the more carefully guarded pieces of territory in this part of the world,'' he said, referring to the massive U.S. and allied troop presence.

-Cheney mourned the drownings of at least 20 U.S. sailors whose boat capsized as they were returning to the U.S.S Saratoga from shore leave in Haifa, Israel. ''The accident involving crew members off the Saratoga is obviously a great tragedy,'' Cheney said. I suppose you could say that it was related to Operation Desert Shield. The Saratoga's been deployed in the Mediterranean. It's a different area of operations... but that really doesn't matter to the young men whose lives were lost or ''ives were lost

PARIS (DEC. 23) UPI - The four warring Cambodian factions said Sunday they agreed on most of the key parts of a U.N. sponsored peace plan to end the 12-year civil war in the beleaguered Southeast Asian country, according to participants.

But French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said some major issues remained to be solved, included the terms of a cease-fire.

The four factions said in a statement they reached agreement on ''most of the fundamental points'' of the U.N. plan on condition that the parties involved in the conflict make a serious effort to limit the level of fighting.

The plan worked out by the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council calls for a cease-fire and U.N. supervision of the country in the period leading to free elections.

Acceptance of the plan by the four Cambodian factions is seen by diplomatic observers as essential to its implementation and as a further step for the reconvening of the Coordinating Committee of the Paris Conference on Cambodia.

Dumas, who co-chairs the Paris Conference with his Indonesian colleague Ali Alatas, said he was ''satisfied'' with the preliminary accord.

''The debate is now very circumscribed, very limited,'' Dumas said, adding that the preliminary accord ''gives birth to the hope'' for a peaceful solution to the conflict.

But Dumas, who warned at the start of the Paris meeting Friday that time was running out for finding a peaceful solution to the conflict, said two major issues remained to be resolved - the details of the cease-fire and the use of the word ''genocide'' to describe past rule by the communist Khmer Rouge, when at least 1 million Cambodians allegedly were killed or starved to death.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia in late 1978 and ousted the Khmer Rouge. But the Vietnamese occupation triggered a civil war between the Hanoi- installed government and three rebel factions.

The three Cambodian opposition factions are the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge, the nationalists led by former Prime Minister Son Sann, and one headed by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who did not attend the Paris meeting.

Sihanouk, the former leader of Cambodia, issued a letter last week putting aside his demand to chair the Supreme National Council in an effort to avoid disputes blocking agreement on the U.N. peace plan.

The fourth group represented at the talks is the current Vietnamese- backed Cambodian government headed by Prime Minister Hun Sen, 39, who was hospitalized Friday after fainting from fatigue. Although he was reported to have completely recovered, he did not attend the Saturday sessions under doctors' orders.

The meetings in Paris brought together the 12-members of the Supreme National Council, made up of six representatives of the current Cambodian government and two members from each of the three guerrilla factions.

Under the U.N. plan adopted by the five permanent Security Council members - the United States, the Soviet Union, China, France, and England - the council would administer the country until U.N. sponsored elections can be held.

Speaking for the Cambodian government Friday, Hun Sen admitted the council's role was necessary but said it should be limited.

COLUMBUS, GA (DEC. 23) UPI - Police said they are closing a probe into the ingestion of 15 anti-anxiety pills by the woman whose two-year relationship with Atlanta Catholic Archbishop Eugene Marino led to his resignation.

Vicki Long, 28, took the Ativan pills Friday night at her mother's home and was rushed to Doctors Hospital. She was placed in the hospital's mental health unit, where later she was reported resting.

Poison control officials said the 15 pills were about four times the recommended dosage but were not enough to kill her.

Columbus police would not term the overdose an attempted suicide. Sgt. Robert Garrett said Long ''didn't make any statements that it was an intentional overdose, so there's no crime, no investigation. It's inactive. It's closed.''

Police also denied a report that Long had left a long suicide note. Lt. Bill Rawn said Long's writings on several sheets of paper appeared to be more of a diary than anything else.

Long's overdose followed by a day the release by the Catholic Archdiocese of Atlanta an audit showing that the church spent $21,096 on Long. Most of the money was paid to institutions and physicians for medical care. The cost of the audit came to $84,000.

Archbishop Marino is in seclusion, recovering from severe stress, church officials said. They admitted some time ago that Marino had given Long up to $1,500 per month from personal funds.

Another priest, the Rev. Michael Woods, who resigned after saying he had been intimately involved with Long, also is in seclusion.

Long had sued a third priest, the Rev. Donal Keohane and the church, alleging that the Keohane fathered her daughter, LaDonna, now 4. Blood tests, however, have indicated that Keohane is not the child's father.

WARSAW, Poland (DEC. 23) UPI - President Lech Walesa Sunday invited as his first guest to Belweder Palace the man who just vacated it and who also happened to be his former jailer: Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Jaruzelski was absent from Walesa's inauguration Saturday as Poland's first popularly elected president.

Walesa, the former Solidarity union leader and onetime shipyard electrician, had announced he would accept the symbols of presidential office not from his predecessor - but from Ryszard Kaczorowski, president of the Polish government-in-exile.

The new president met shortly before noon with Jaruzelski, who several months ago agreed to step down one year into his six-year term amid considerable public pressure.

Jaruzelski ''shared his experience as president with Walesa and wished him success in his mission'' during their meeting at the presidential palace, the Polish news agency PAP said.

Walesa, 47, the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize recipient, won the presidency in an election Dec. 9, a decade after founding the labor movement that eventually took control of the government.

It was Jaruzelski, as Communist Party chief and prime minister, who imposed martial law on Dec. 13, 1981, interning Walesa and thousands of other activists to crush the Solidarity movement.

But Walesa later regained his freedom and went on to engineer a roundtable agreement in 1989 that led to partly free parliamentary elections won by Solidarity. That resulted in the removal of the communist government and helped spark the fall of communist rule in much of Eastern Europe.

The meeting between Walesa and Jaruzelski could help assuage fears by the former communist elite, who still control a good portion of the Polish bureaucracy, that the inauguration of a former ''enemy of the people'' may not spell total disaster.

About 20 communist deputies in the parliamentary chamber where Walesa was inaugurated Saturday showed their displeasure by refusing to stand or applaud.

After meeting with Jaruzelski, Walesa returned with his family and aides to hometown Gdansk, from where he is expected to conduct much of the affairs of state.

Walesa's first task is to name a new premier. Two of his choices have already bowed out, one citing ''significant differences'' with the new president.

Among the possible candidates, the one considered most likely is Mieczyslaw Gil, chairman of the Solidarity parliamentary caucus.

Amid positive if cautious world reaction to Walesa's election, the French media noted France's close ties with the former Mazowiecki government, but suggested there would be no problem with changing alliances.

''Supporting Mazowiecki, we were not against Walesa,'' said a bank owner in Paris. ''We were for what we treat as our biggest ally - for stability, which is also Poland's ally.''

In Washington, the State Department treated the election as part of the normal process of democratic change - but relief was expressed that Walesa had pledged to continue most of the policies of the previous government which imposed strict measures to heal Poland's ailing economy.

In neighboring Czechoslovakia, which is struggling with similar problems in the conversion to democracy, observers noted Walesa will need all the help he can get.

''Walesa can help Poland and Poles stand up on their own legs,'' said Jan Sokol, chairman of the ruling Civic Forum parliamentary floor group. ''However the whole difficultiy is that he cannot do it alone. Thus I hope that Mr. Walesa succeeds in implanting in his people a new dose of optimism and faith.''

Poles who witnessed his inauguration said they hoped that neither the former communists nor Mazowiecki's supporters would stand in Walesa's way.

''We are afraid of the people from the Mazowiecki government as well as the former PZPR (Communist Party),'' said Alina Chrusciel, a teacher. ''He has a big role to fulfill. We are praying (for) his presidency and we want him to be a success.''

Walesa had initially backed the installation of Mazowiecki as premier, but soon broke with his former adviser over the pace of reforms and announced he would run for president.

DHAKA, Bangladesh (DEC. 23) UPI - Rival student groups clashed Sunday with guns and bamboo sticks on the streets of the capital and the southern port city of Chittagong for a second straight day, leaving 25 people wounded and several vehicles damaged, police said.

The violence erupted Saturday when students from the powerful All- Party Students Unity group defied a strike called by the Islamic Chatra Shibir organization to demand the resignation of the Chittagong University's vice chancellor.

It was the worst student violence since university youths led a campaign to oust President Gen. Hussein Mohammed Ershad. Ershad resigned his post Dec. 6 and was later charged with corruption and abuse of power.

Observers worried the unrest could escalate and spread to other cities unless mainstream opposition parties that joined the struggle for Ershad's ouster took steps to bring the youths under control.

At least 200 people were wounded in the first day of fighting Saturday in the southern port city, including 40 who were admitted to the hospital with bullet injuries, sources at the Chittagong Medical College Hospital said.

The clashes spread to the capital Saturday night, with students from the All-Party Students Unity attacking youths from the Islamic Chatra Shibir as they slept in their dormitory rooms. Witnesses said 60 rooms were ransacked and the belongings inside set ablaze.

Authorities closed the 11,000-student Chittagong University and youths vacated their dormitory rooms Sunday morning. Authorities said about 3,000 policemen were guarding the university to quell any disturbances.

Violence flared again Sunday when the All-Party Students Unity staged a march in Chittagong and held a rally in Dhaka to protest the clashes. They demanded a ban on the Jamaati Islam, parent organization of the Islamic Chatra Shibir.

At least 25 people were wounded and three vehicles damaged in Chittagong when workers from the Islamic Chatra Shibir clashed with the All-Party marchers in Chittagong.

The Islamic Chatra Shabir demanded an inquiry into the incident, charging it was deliberately provoked in a bid to keep the Jamaati Islami out of parliamentary elections.

The interim government that took over following Ershad's resignation has scheduled elections for Feb. 27.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 23) UPI - Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said Sunday Congress will debate and vote on U.S. policy in Iraq, including the issue of declaring war, in January after its return from the Christmas recess.

But Mitchell, D-Maine, said there remains a fundamental difference between himself and the administration as to who has the power to approve the use of force - the White House or Congress.

Mitchell said on the NBC television program ''Meet the Press'' that he expects members of Congress to be called back some time between Jan. 3 and President Bush's State of the Union address at the end of the month to discuss the issue of a war declaration.

''There is no doubt the Congress will debate, discuss and vote on this issue '' he said.

But the thorny question of who may press the proverbial button to start a war in the Persian Gulf - while spelled out in the Constitution - is apparently not at all clear.

Mitchell contended Bush wants Congress to pass a resolution giving the executive branch a ''blank check'' for initiating warfare against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein for his Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The U. N. Security Council has authorized U.S.-led forces deployed in the Persian Gulf to use force if Iraq fails to leave Kuwait by Jan. 15.

''The Constitution says that only the Congress can declare war,'' Mitchell said. The president ''does have to come to Congress if he decides to make war and I believe offensive military action in the current circumstances in the Persian Gulf are self-evidently the making of war.

''So I think he would need the prior approval of Congress,'' Mitchell added. ''I told the president that many many times. I regret to say that it appears the adminstration doesn't agree.''

But Mitchell said he agrees with Bush's actions to date to try to pressure Saddam into withdrawing from Kuwait with tight economic sanctions.

''I believe that we can't rule out the use of force, but I think it it should be a last resort, not an early resort,'' the Maine Democrat said.

Meanwhile, former Secretary of State George Shultz said on ABC's ''This Week with David Brinkley'' that he thinks a war probably will break out.

Shultz said in addition to putting Saddam ''back in his box,'' other objectives that need to be achieved include correcting the region's balance of power once U.S. forces leave, doing something about Saddam's chemical and nuclear weapon capability and the war crimes committed by the Iraqis against the Kuwaitis.

''I'm just stating the objectives and it may be that the only way to achieve them is through military means, but there are other ways too,'' Shultz said, adding, ''If we fail to achieve (these) objectives, the problem will just be in our lap again.''

Bush, who is at Camp David, Md., tentatively plans to meet Monday with Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to discuss their recent trip to the gulf.

Bush and his family are scheduled to be at the presidential retreat in the Maryland mountains through New Year's Day.

MOSCOW (DEC. 23) UPI - Several thousand Muscovites held an unsanctioned rally in the Soviet capital Sunday to urge the Congress of People's Deputies to reject Mikhail Gorbachev's bid for more presidential powers.

Pro-democracy activists gathered at Soviet Square on a cold and gray winter day as weary lawmakers rested after a dramatic first week of their legislative session that included the surprise resignation annoucement by Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardandze.

Signs and speeches at the demonstration across from the Moscow City Council indicated that Shevardnadze, the white-haired Georgian who heralded Gorbachev's ''new thinking'' around the globe, has quickly been adopted as a martyred hero by reformists at home.

Posters praising Shevardnadze bobbed above the crowd alongside portraits of Boris Yeltsin, the popular leader of the Russian Federation.

''Don't resign, Shevardnadze,'' beseeched one sign. Another said: ''Shevardnadze belongs to the democrats.''

An opinion poll conducted before Shevardnadze's announcement Thursday, released by the Interfax news service, put the foreign minister's national approval rating at 64, second only to Yeltsin among prominent political figures.

Gorbachev's name was not included in the survey. He had an approval rating of 21 in a separate poll last month.

Several protesters Sunday hoisted the white-blue-and-red flag adopted by radical Russian nationalists.

''The most destructive force in our society is our slave-like, lumpen psychology,'' said Eduard Kozin, a deputy from the Ukrainian city of Sumy. ''The second-most destructive force in our society is the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.''

The protest, staged by the Democratic Russia movement and other radical groups was much smaller than several pro-democracy rallies held in Moscow earlier in the year. Organizers blamed the modest turnout on cold weather and authorities' refusal to grant permission for the demonstration.

Moscow Mayor Gavriil Popov, a leading reformer, turned down an invitation to address the protest and said organizers failed to meet a 10-day notice requirement for an official permit.

Several speakers drew cheers when they spoke out against the expanded powers sought by Gorbachev, who is asking the Congress to approve constitutional amendments placing the government's central ministries directly under his control and basing several new law-enforcement agencies in his office.

In the Moldavian capital of Kishinev, several thousand people rallied to support Gorbachev's decree Saturday ordering the republican government to abide by national laws and ensure equal rights for all citizens.

Some of the demonstrators clashed with Moldavian nationalists chanting ''Occupiers, go home'' and other slogans, forcing police to intervene, the official Tass news agency said.

Shevardnadze's speech at the Congress on Thursday, when he warned of a return to authoritarian rule and accused reformists of abandoning the fight for democracy, has intensified debate over where the country is headed.

Lyudmila Arutyunyan, a deputy from the Transcaucasian republic of Armenia, wrote in the weekly Moscow News that ''the danger of a right- wing coup is terrifying because it is not perceived by the people as a danger if it is accomplished without violence, under the banner of ensuring law and order.''

In Vilnius, Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis called on his people Saturday to pursue active resistance if Moscow cracks down on the rebellious Baltic region.

KGB chief Vladimir Kryuchkov told deputies Saturday that the Soviet Union will slide further into chaos unless ''resolute actions to establish law and order.''

The Congress postponed a vote on Gorbachev's proposed executive powers, which have been approved by the standing Soviet Parliament that meets between the larger body's biannual sessions. The Congress, which must sanction all constitutional amendments, was to vote on the proposed powers Monday.

The amendments bolstering Gorbachev's command must be approved by two-thirds of the entire 2,250-seat Congress, a difficult threshold for the president because of full or partial boycotts by deputies from six of the 15 Soviet republics.

(DEC. 23) UPI - Divers in Haifa, Israel, today found the body of another U-S serviceman, bringing the death toll to 20 Americans killed when a ferry capsized while returning them to the U-S-S Saratoga after shore leave in Israel. Both Israel and the United States launched investigations into the tragedy yesterday. Senior Israeli military officials said divers making a preliminary check found no sign of sabotage.

Britain's Prince Charles visited his nation's famed ''Desert Rat'' brigade in Saudi Arabia yesterday and expressed confidence that Britain's soldiers would ''perform brilliantly'' in any conflict with Iraq. The prince shook hands and talked with about 40 British soldiers and also met a group of American Marines who have been training side-by- side with the British troops for two months.

Japan's leading news agency reported today that the Persian Gulf crisis was selected as the top international story of 1990. A poll conducted by the Kyodo News Service said the end of the Soviet Communist Party's monopoly of power and the continuing political and economic turmoil in the Soviet Union ranked second, followed by German unification in October.

The family of Philippine President Corazon Aquino's estranged cousin and bitter political rival returned from five years of exile in the United States today. Their return was made possible when an appeals court upheld an order to issue them their passports. Businessman Eduardo ''Danding'' Conjuango sneaked into the country last year after fleeing with the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos in 1986. The Philippine government had revoked his family's passports for security reasons.

At least six people died and 62 others were injured in a pre-dawn blaze in a nine-story residential building in Hong Kong today. fell on a fire truck. Hospitals say at least five of the injured are in poor condition.

(DEC. 23) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says America is capable of striking ''today'' to drive Iraqi troops from Kuwait. During an early morning news conference at Saudi King Fahd's Gulf Palace, Cheney also said prospects for a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis are growing dimmer as the January 15th U-N deadline for use of force grows near. Cheney spoke shortly before leaving for Washington, with a brief stop in Cairo to meet with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak .

Leaders of the pro-western Gulf Co-operation Council met in Qatar today and discussed a new security system for the oil-rich region that would include NON-Arab Iran. The possible involvement of Tehran in the new security plan for the Gulf is a departure from the delcared policy of the six-nation G-C-C toward Iran. The council backed Iraq during the 1980-1988 Gulf war and has rejected suggestions in the past that Iran be involved in council affairs.

Soviet military officials yesterday gave up custody of a Soviet war memorial at the famed Brandenburg Gate in Berlin and handed it over to German authorities. The stone monument, topped with a 25-foot bronze Soviet soldier flanked by two tanks, serves as a grave for more than two-thousand Red Army soldiers killed during the Soviet capture of Berlin at the close of World War Two in 1945.

A woman in Largo, Florida, with one son already in the Persian Gulf and another awaiting orders to go, has vowed to resist her condominium association's order to remove the U-S flag from outside her home. Consoli says the policy is ''anti-American.''

A private economic research organization based in Tokyo reports that most Asian countries, including newly industrializing nations, will keep their economies growing in 1991, but at a slower pace. (DEC. 23) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney wrapped up a five-day visit to Saudi Arabia today with assurances that the United States is ready to attack Iraq and drive its troops out of Kuwait. Cheney said ''We would be prepared today if we were ordered to undertake military action.'' Cheney has been trying to offset comments last week by Lieutenant General Calvin Waller, who said that certain armored tank divisions would probably NOT be ready for combat on January 15th.

Cheney traveled to Cairo today on his way back to Washington. After a one-hour meeting with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarek, Cheney told reporters there is NO indication that Iraq will withdraw from Kuwait by January 15th. He also said that the diplomatic situation ''is NOT improving.''

The death toll from Friday's capsizing of a ferry carrying U-S servicemen in Israel grew to 20 when divers found another body today. NEW DELHI, India (DEC. 23) UPI - In a blue office cramped with stacks of Hindu literature, B.L. Sharma gestured emphatically and pounded a desk with his fist while explaining recent violence between Moslems and Hindus in India.

''It is because of intolerant teachings of this bloody Koran,'' Sharma said. ''From the very beginning, since their inception, they (Moslems) have been intolerent. Until such time as Islam remains in this world, riots will continue.''

As general secretary of the Vishwa Hindu Parishad, a right-wing cultural organization, Sharma is one of the main people pushing for construction of a temple to the Hindu diety Lord Rama at the site of a 16th century mosque in northern Uttar Pradesh state.

Hindu pressure for construction of the temple led to the collapse of Prime Minister V.P. Singh's government last month and set Hindu-Moslem relations on edge. Renewed agitation this month touched off a wave of violence that has killed more than 200 people - including one who was stabbed to death Sunday.

Behind the Hindu demand for the temple to Rama is a growing Hindu consciousness and a general feeling among Hindus that they are being treated as second-class citizens despite their vast numerical majority.

That feeling has caused a groundswell of racist, anti-Moslem sentiment. Hindus express concern the estimated 110 million Moslems in India will breed faster than the 700 million Hindus and take over the country. And they damn politicians for catering to Moslem sensibilities.

Relations between Moslems and Hindus never have been ideal. Invaders brought Islam to India centuries ago and Moslems ruled over much of the country for generations until they were conquered by the Christian British.

''Their history is full of blood, blood, bloodshed,'' Sharma said of the Moslems.

Only with the coming of independence and democracy in 1947 did Hindus regain control of their government. And then it was Moslems, fearing secular rule by the majority, who demanded the subcontinent be carved up so they could have a separate Moslem state - Pakistan.

Many Hindus believe that after finally regaining political control, their own government began to cater to Moslem whims following independence.

''Hindus are feeling that even though our constitution gives equal rights to everybody, the Moslem community is getting better treatment than the majority community,'' said Kidar Nath Sahani, the general secretary of the Bharatiya Janata party.

Sahani, whose party gives a political voice to many of the ideals espoused by Sharmas cultural group, said what was particularly galling to Hindus was a decision by parliament several years ago to exempt Moslems from certain elements of Indian law.

As a result, he said, Moslems are governed by Islamic law on such isues as marriage, divorce and payment of alimony. While Hindus are allowed only one wife, Moslems may marry several times, and while Hindus pay alimony, Moslems are not required to do so.

''Naturally the entire country other than Moslems were enraged,'' he said. ''What is this? You call it a secular country where law should be applicable to every citizen, how come Moslems are being treated in a different way? That widened the gap.''

For many Hindus, the government had gone too far. And when the dispute over Babri Mosque in the city of Ayodhya - the traditional birthplace of Rama - began to simmer again, organizations like the Vishwa Hindu Parishad drew the line.

Many Hindus belive the Moslems invader Babar, who built the Babri Mosque, destroyed an ancient temple to Rama to make way for the structure. The truth about what existed before the mosque cannot be proved and has become largely irrelevant as belief has taken hold.

''Hundreds of millions of Hindus feel it is the birthplace of Lord Rama, whom they call the incarnation of god,'' Sahani said. ''It is as holy to us as the Kabba (in Mecca) is to Moslems, as Christ's birthplace is to Christians.''

But in an atmosphere of growing Hindu consciousness, the issue has become not only one of religion but of national pride.

''We hold that whatever structure Babar built at that particular place smacks of a period of slavery,'' Sahani said. ''It is a national insult, a monument of national insult, and now that we are free, that monument of national insult must go.''

JERUSALEM (DEC. 23) UPI - Palestinian Michel Sabah, who as Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem is spiritual guide to regional Catholics, nearly agrees with Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi's claim that it is impossible to be a Christian Arab, only a Moslem one.

''The situation is difficult, remains difficult and becomes even more difficult,'' said the Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem, reflecting on his position as the Arabic spiritual leader of the 125,000 Catholics living in Israel, Jordan and the Israeli-occupied territories.

''This violence - violence, killing and beating - are useless, useless, and we remain where we are,'' Sabah says.

Born in Nazareth, the affable 57-year-old Sabah was the first Arab prelate nominated to occupy the high office in Jerusalem in 143 years.

Sabah officiates Monday at his third consecutive Christmas Eve midnight mass in Bethlehem and reflected recently on his tenure that has paralleled the Palestinian uprising and on the uprising's effects on the Christian community.

The Latin patriarchate was established in the 11th century by the Crusaders, but it temporarily ended its presence in the Holy Land in 1291 with the demise of the Crusader kingdom. Pope Pius IX reestablished the Latin partriarchate in 1847.

Sabah, nominated by Pope John Paul II several months before the outbreak of the Palestinian uprising in December 1987, feels there is no conflict of interest in being both Palestinian and patriarch.

''It makes things clearer for the Palestinians and also the Israelis, '' says Sabah.

In an interview with United Press International, Sabah rejected allegations by Israeli authorities he has taken sides in the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising against the Israeli occupation of the territories. He believes it is all a matter of how you look at the situation.

''For me it's an issue of justice, of human relations, of reconciliation. For them as authorities it is a military problem, a political problem,'' Sabah says.

''We are fathers and brothers of the people who suffer, the people who are killed or beaten, imprisoned,'' Sabah says.

An internal Israeli report leaked to Israel Radio last week named Sabah among four senior church leaders actively involved in anti-Israeli propaganda.

The report, which Israeli officials refused to comment on, said church leaders were trying to show their loyalty to the Palestinian cause in order to hide increasing tensions between Moslem fundamentalists and the Christian community.

Church leaders published a joint Christmas message last week, saying they consider it their sacred duty to voice concern about human rights' violations in the Israeli-occupied territories.

Moslem fundamentalists have become a major force both among Palestinians living in the territories and Israeli Arabs.

''Christians and Moslems have lived together for 13 centuries and we shall live together forever. We are one people but two religions,'' says Sabah.

According to Sabah, if tensions exists they are a by-product of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

But Sabah is aware his flock is diminishing, and many Christian Arabs from East Jerusalem and Bethlehem are fleeing the physical and economic hardships caused by the Palestinian uprising. The number of Christians living in the Jerusalem area reportedly have decreased by a third to 14, 000 since the start of the uprising.

''We try to tell them you should not leave, your existence here in the Holy Land, being born here, is a special occasion. It's a vocation to a difficult life... and anybody wishing to live in the Holy Land must accept a difficult life.''

Sabah said he hopes Palestinians and Israelis will soon find a way to reconciliate their political differences.

''Miracles can happen also here and not only in Eastern Europe.''

(DEC. 23) UPI - Defense Secretary Cheney says he's convinced U-S troops are prepared for a possible war with Iraq. Cheney says his troops are capable of striking ''today'' to drive Iraqi troops from occupied Kuwait. The Pentagon chief made the comments in Cairo, Egypt, after an extensive review of U-S forces in Saudi Arabia. His visit came on the heels of a statement by a high-ranking U-S defense official that NOT all ground forces would be ready by the January 15th deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait.

Rescue workers off the coast of Israel, meanwhile, recovered the body of another U-S soldier today... bringing to 20 the number of Americans who died when a ferry capsized late Friday. The accident, which occured when 100 servicemen were being transported from Haifa, Israel, to the U- S-S Saratoga, was the deadliest since the United States launched Operation Desert Shield after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. Altogether, at least 77 American soldiers have died in accidents, including a serviceman killed yesterday when a truck overturned in eastern Saudi Arabia.

Authorities are investigating the cause of a deadly pre-dawn fire in a residential building in Hong Kong. At least six people died and 62 others were injured in the nine-story buildin. DALLAS (DEC. 23) UPI - Former insurance tycoon Robert H. Walker was in jail Sunday after being extradited from Barbados to Texas to face federal charges of defrauding his customers of more than $50 million.

U.S. marshals moved Walker to the Mansfield Law Enforcement Center, south of Fort Worth, after he arrived at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Saturday.

''There never was any money, anyway,'' Walker said as he left the plane, but did not elaborate. He added he went to Barbados for a vacation but it was ''great to be back in Texas.'' He also extended Christmas greetings.

The former chief executive officer of National County Mutual Fire Insurance Co., Walker fled the country in 1988 as the business began to crumble. The Dallas company's collapse was one of Texas' largest insurance industry failures.

National County Mutual was more than $50 million in debt when it was taken over by the Texas State Board of Insurance in October 1988.

Walker, 60, was arrested on a U.S. warrant citing 29 counts of wire and mail fraud July 4 by Barbados police at the Barbados Beach Village, a resort he owns on the Caribbean island.

An extradition order was granted, but Walker appealed. A high court justice dismissed the appeal Dec. 14, clearing the way for his departure.

If convicted, Walker faces a maximum penalty of 145 years in prison and a $7.25 million fine. He also could be ordered to pay restitution.

Walker also was indicted last week on a 19-count federal indictment that alleges he used millions in company funds for his personal use. He could receive 135 years in prison and $4.25 million fine on those charges.

A federal magistrate in Dallas will determine bail for Walker on Wednesday, said Michael Park, supervisory deputy marshal.

MOSCOW (DEC. 23) UPI - Eduard Shevardnadze's fears he was to be the latest sacrificial victim of President Mikhail Gorbachev's politics may have affected his decision to resign as foreign minister, lawmakers and Soviet journalists say.

Shevardnadze's feelings he was let down by his one-time patron are so strong that he most likely will never take another job under Gorbachev, the sources said during breaks in the session of the Congress of People's Deputies that began last week.

The observers noted that for the past several months, newspapers were filled with speculation about a new job for Shevardnadze, either as premier to replace Nikolai Ryzhkov or as vice president to fill the new post Congress is expected to create this week.

''Why the hinted change (of posts) when the whole course of foreign policy rested on his shoulders?'' Gudok newspaper reporter Robert Minasov asked. ''You know what (the great German writer) Friedrich Schiller said: 'The Moor has done what he had to do. The Moor can go.'''

Other analysts who follow Soviet politics closely pointed out the irony of Shevardnadze's departure one month after Gorbachev won the 1990 Nobel Peace Prize for ending the Cold War.

Still others asked why Gorbachev sent Presidential Council member Yevgeny Primakov, rumored for weeks to be next foreign minister, on two missions to Iraq in October when Shevardnadze was clearly available to mediate in the gulf crisis by meeting with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

One veteran Soviet wire correspondent noted that Gorbachev got rid of archconservative Yegor Ligachev to win backing from the left in July and fired moderate Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin three weeks ago to appease the right.

The correspondent, who preferred not to be named, noted Ryzhkov's days as premier had been numbered for months as the scapegoat for failed economic plans, but ''Ryzhkov has begun to fight hard'' against being forced to resign in disgrace.

Gorbachev, the correspondent said, was prepared to sacrifice Shevardnadze in order to get needed votes from right-wing lawmakers at the current Congress of People's Deputies to give the president new powers over central ministries and law-enforcement bodies.

But Shevardnadze pre-empted the move and quit first, capitalizing on his international name and the respect he has won in all capitals of the world, the correspondent said.

Several analysts agreed Shevardnadze was sincere in linking his resignation to fears of a ''reactionary'' dictatorship, but they said his feelings of personal betrayal at Gorbachev's hands also may have impelled him.

Deputies from Shevardnadze's native Georgia advised Western reporters to read his resignation speech closely. They noted the famous diplomat's hints that key officials had failed to come to his defense when he was criticized for ''losing Eastern Europe'' and acquiescing on German unification.

In his dramatic address, Shevardnadze said the issue of German unification was slipped onto the Soviet Parliament's agenda at the insistence of parliament chairman Anatoly Lukyanov, a close Gorbachev ally, while the minister was out of town.

When he returned to Moscow and appeared at the parliament, Shevardnadze said, he was upbraided by conservative critics for ''one- sided concessions, incompetence and even illiteracy.''

''And not one person, even the chairman (Lukyanov) could be found to speak up to them and say that it is indecent, and that is not how things are done in civilized states,'' Shevardnadze said.

''I am deeply hurt,'' he told deputies. ''It has come to personal insults, and I have withstood it. Comrades, a campaign of harassment is going on.''

Shevardnadze's resignation stunned Gorbachev and hurt perestroika's image, with the president himself expressing hurt over his minister's decision taken without consultation.

But Alexander Bovin, one of the the nation's most respected political analysts said although Shevardnadze may have been wrong to quit, Gorbachev acted improperly by watching silently as his friend took mounting abuse.

''This bitter lesson relates also to Gorbachev,'' Bovin wrote in the government newspaper Izvestia. ''Politics is a tough business. There is no place for sentiment. Nevertheless, I believe that the president should have shown more consideration to the feelings and mood of those on his team and his closest aides.''

SACRAMENTO, CA (DEC. 24) BUSINESS WIRE - The Department of Defense has said that it is not prepared to expand Foundation Health Corporation's (AMEX: FH) military healthcare reform program, the CHAMPUS Reform Initiative (CRI), into New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada because it would compete with military-run test projects in two of the states.

The Rand Corporation study preliminary estimates were disclosed in a November meeting of military healthcare officials and is expected to be released soon by the Department of Defense. Rand Corporation also has been retained by the DOD to evaluate the military's alternative model, called Catchment Area Management (CAM), and is slated to release its first report in February. While expressing surprise with the Pentagon's decision, Crowley said the impact would be negligible on Foundation's financial performance, given the slim profit margins of the three-state expansion effort and also the better-than-expected performance in the Company's commercial HMO operations. For a full year, the three-state program had projected revenues of about $100 million. Last year, Foundation reported total revenues of $895 million and net profits of $11 million, approximately one-quarter of which were derived from its military contract.

The Rand Corporation's evaluation of CRI found that the total CRI costs, including overhead, have risen about five-to-seven times more slowly than CHAMPUS costs elsewhere in the nation. Based upon actuarial estimates that translated into $51 million in annual savings to the government.

The two-year-old CHAMPUS Reform Initiative was authorized by Congress to help determine whether private industry-run managed care could help stem rapid inflation and improve service in the CHAMPUS program, where annual costs have tripled to $4 billion since 1985, with a $1 billion cost overrun predicted for the current year. So far, the CHAMPUS Reform Initiative has enrolled 100,000 members into an HMO-managed care program called ''Prime,'' with another 300,000 using a Preferred Provider Organization (PPO) option called ''Extra.'' ''Prime'' is especially popular with military families because it greatly reduces members' out-of-pocket costs for healthcare while eliminating claim forms and deductibles.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) - Japan and the Soviet Union Monday agreed here on 1991 fishing quotas in their respective 200-mile economic sea zones of 182,000 tonnes, unchanged from this year, Japanese officials said.

Under the accord, Japanese fishing boats are allowed to catch that amount in waters off the Soviet Pacific coast without paying fishing fees, they said, adding Japanese fishermen are to pay 1.12 billion yen (8.6 million dollars) in fees to catch an additional 35,000 tonnes in the Soviet zone.

During the talks, which got under way on December 10, Japan also agreed to allow Soviet fishing boats to call at Onahama Port in Fukushima Prefecture, 200 kilometers (160 miles) northeast of Tokyo, next year for supplies and to rest their crews, they said.

SYDNEY (DEC. 24) - Tropical cyclone Joy hovered 115 kilometres (70 miles) off the north Australia tourist centre of Cairns Monday, its 200 kilometres per hour (125 miles per hour) winds threatening long stretches of the Australian coastline.

"This is a very severe cyclone with an extremely destructive core, but it is moving only very slowly south," a spokesman for Queensland's State Counter Disaster Oranisation said.

"Destructive winds are being experienced along the coast and could extend as far south as Townsville overnight.

"Winds up to 200 kph (124 mph) extend in a radius of 140 kms (87 miles) from the core.

"Sea levels are expected to exceed high water mark and very rough seas and foreshore flooding are expected overnight," the spokesman said.

There has been widespread disruption of supplies of electricity and water and residents of affected coastal areas have been advised to remain indoors.

Cairns police said looters had broken into business premises, according to local media reports.

"It is despicable and will not be tolerated," said Cairns mayor John Cleland after two men had reportedly been arrested following an attempted break-in at a chemist's shop.

Cyclone Joy's appearance is an uncanny flashback to Christmas Eve 1975 when Cyclone Tracy was poised off the northern coastal city of Darwin.

The following day it ripped through the city, destroying half the structures and killing more than 60 people.

AMMAN (DEC. 24) - Jordan's Ambassador to Saudi Arabia, Nasser Bataineh, returned to Riyadh last week three months after he was recalled to protest Saudi Arabia's expulsion of Jordanian diplomats, Foreign Minister Marwan al-Qassem said Monday.

"Our ambassador has been in Saudi Arabia for the last four days," Mr. Qassem told the English-language daily Jordan Times. "Bataineh was recalled to Amman for consultations."

Jordan recalled its envoy from Riyadh on September 25 as bilateral relations soured following Amman's criticisms of the deployment of foreign troops in the Gulf region following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

On October 6, Saudi Arabia retaliated by recalling its ambassador to Jordan, Mohammad Issa.

Mr. Issa has not yet returned to his post in Amman, Jordanian foreign ministry sources told Agence France-Presse.

BONN (DEC. 24) - The Soviet Union has asked Germany for a loan of two billion Deutsche marks (1.3 billion U.S. dollars) so it can repay debts to German commercial firms, the financial daily Handelsblatt reported on Monday.

The paper said it had the information from the economic commission in charge of relations with countries of eastern Europe.

Last summer, the Soviet Union obtained a German loan, guaranteed by the government, of five billion marks (3.3 billion dollars) which it used to honour unpaid debts. Since then however, Moscow has run up a new debt of 1.5 billion marks (one billion dollars), Handelsblatt said.

The report said German bankers now wanted the government to guarantee this latest line of credit even though the condition was not initially included in the terms.

ANKARA (DEC. 24) - Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein has said Turkish President Turgut Ozal would be ''welcome'' to visit Baghdad, in what is being seen in Turkey as a veiled call for mediation.

The semi-official Anatolian News Agency reported Monday that the Iraqi president made the remarks Sunday night when he met reporters covering the visit of Turkish opposition leader Erdal Inonu.

Asked about the chances of war after the expiry of the January 15 deadline set for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, Saddam said those who wanted war were the U.S., its allies and ''local traitors''. ''God and peoples want peace'', he said.

Saddam said Iraq wanted a dialogue but was prepared to fight until ''victory''. A peaceful settlement should be regionwide and include an Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories where a Palestinian state would be formed, he said.

The Iraqi leader conceded that the U.N. embargo had had some effects and that children were dying because of shortages of food and medicine. But he said the Iraqi people would not bend to pressure.

Saddam rejectd a call by Inonu for a simultaneous withdrawal of Iraqi and U.S. forces, saying: ''Why should we pay a price for the departure of U.S. troops from the holy land?'' dpa ms 241043 Dez 90

JAKARTA (DEC. 24) - Foreign investment in Indonesia in 1990 soared to an all-time record of 8.7 billion dollars, largely in response to the government's deregulatory measures of recent years, officials announced Monday.

The figure of foreign investment approvals represented an 85 per cent increase over last year's 4.7 billion dollars, a record at the time.

"It's been a very good year for investment in Indonesia," said Sanyoto Sastrowardoyo, chairman of the National Investment Coordinating Board (BKPM) which licenses domestic and foreign investment outside the oil, gas, banking, leasing, and insurance sectors.

Of the 8.7 billion dollar of foreign investment approved, 1.98 billion was for the chemical industry, 1.09 billion for the textile and garment sector and 826 million dollars for the hotel industry, Mr. Sanyoto said.

Indonesian investment regulations require foreign investors to form joint ventures with Indonesian companies, to limit their equity holding to a maximim 80 per cent, and to divest their shares to give the local partners a controlling majority after 15 years of commercial operation.

Japan topped the list in terms of value with 75 projects worth 2.23 billion dollars approved, followed by Hong Kong with 36 projects worth 993 million dollars, according to BKPM.

South Korea ranked third with investment of 721 million dollars for 85 projects and Taiwan fourth with 616 million dollars for 93 projects.

BEIJING (DEC. 24) - A top Chinese communist party hardliner lashed out Monday at bourgeois influences, declaring just ahead of a decisive party plenum that the fight against anti-Marxist elements would be long and "very intense."

Li Ximing, one of 14 politburo members and a key figure in crushing pro-democracy protests here last year, said in a published article that China should guard against the forces toppling other socialist states.

"In the world today, there still exist two opposing classes, the proletariat and the bourgeoisie, as well as an ideological battle between Marxism and anti-Marxism," he said in the front-page article in Guangming Daily, regarded as the intellectual's newspaper.

"Such a battle ... is very complicated, very intense and long-term," Mr. Li warned.

The harsh rhetoric comes ahead of this week's crucial eighth plenum of the party central committee, which will lay out the blueprint for the next decade of China's economic development, including the five-year plan from 1991-1995.

The plenum had been planned for earlier this year but was delayed, apparently due to strong differences within the party.

"We must also criticize the hypocrisy and false nature of bourgeois freedom, democracy, and human rights," said Mr. Li, a former colleague of conservative Premier Li Peng in the ministry of the electric power industry.

He stressed the need to analyze the forces that led to the downfall of some socialist countries -- a reference to Eastern Europe -- and called for "high vigilance" against this so-called "peaceful evolution."

CAIRO (DEC. 24) - Exceptional security measures have been enforced at the Suez Canal to protect ships crossing the waterway in anticipation of a possible Gulf war, said Mohammad Ezzat Adel, president of the Canal Authority, in a report published Monday.

Quoted by the semi-official daily Al Ahram, Mr. Adel said the measures were being taken by Egypt's security services "in cooperation with foreign security services", which he did not name.

He said "the dangers to which the canal is exposed, increase with the growing possibility of war in the Gulf."

He was referring to the rise in tension which has accompanied a war of words between Washington and Baghdad and the stalling of talks to resolve the crisis sparked by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Security forces are conducting careful search operations with electronic devices of all vessels crossing the canal and are maintaining a 24-hour watch on the waterway's two banks, Mr. Adel said.

The director also denied press reports that the Canal Authority had been tipped off about a plan to sink cement-laden vessels to block passage through the canal of ships supplying the multinational forces massed against Iraq in the Gulf.

JAKARTA (DEC. 24) - Bank Indonesia on Monday charged foul play behind a series of runs on several commercial banks and appealed to the public not to be taken in by rumours, the official Antara news agency said.

Rumours that a number of banks were having financial difficulties had led some people to withdraw their deposits from the banks, Antara quoted Dahlan Sutalaksana, a Bank Indonesia (central bank) spokesman, as saying.

Mr. Dahlan said he suspected that these rumours were floated in the expectation that people would transfer their money to other banks, adding that this reflected unhealthy competition in the banking industry.

"But if everyone is taken in by the rumours and withdraws their money, then the bank will really have problems," Mr. Dahlan said, adding that this could happen to any bank, even those run by the state.

He did not say which banks had been affected by massive withdrawals.

The rumours spread after Bank Umum Majapahit Jaya, a small commercial bank, collapsed this month owing more than 80 billion rupiahs (42 million dollars) to other banks, threatening to bring them down unless it was rescued.

The government has refused to intervene in the affair directly, but is believed to have been seeking new investors or other banks to take over.

Gen. Nwachukwu, who visited ECOMOG headquaters in Monrovia at the end of the ministerial meeting of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) mediation committee in Banjul, commended the performance of the 6,000-strong peace-keeping force saying it was proof that Black Africa could resolve its own problems.

While fulfilling their assignment in Liberia, the minister urged the troops not to tarnish the image of ECOMOG their respective countries and Africa, Vanguard said.

ECOMOG composed of troops from Nigeria, Ghana, Sierra Leone, Gambia and Guinea arrived in Liberia last August at the hight of the one-year-long war.

The minister, who was received at ECOMOG headquarters by the Vice President of the Liberian interim government, Bishop Diggs and Ecomog field commander, Major General Joshua Dogonyaro, also visited the Nigerian embassy in Monrovia to see the extensive damage done to the building, the report said.

KATHMANDU (DEC. 24) - Nepal's Election Commission called Monday on all political parties and groups seeking to run in April's scheduled general elections to register within a month.

The commission said in a statement that it would withhold recognition from parties or groups formed along religious, caste or tribal lines or seeking to sow discontent. Any party disavowing the norms of Nepal's constitutional democracy would also be refused recognition.

The panel said all parties should register within 30 days, providing their organizational bylaws and the names and addresses of executive committee members.

Under the new constitution proclaimed by King Birendra on November 9, at least five per cent of the total number of candidates contesting from any party must be women.

The new constitution was promulgated after an interim government was formed in April following a 10-week protest campaign led to the downfall of the 30-year partyless Panchayat system.

It said it estimated "Christmas sales" for western Germany at 25.5 billion Deutsche marks (17 billion dollars), while for the former East Germany they are expected to be only 1.5 billion marks.

HDE expects German retail sales this year to enjoy their biggest increase ever to around 700 billion marks as against 623.6 billion last year.

PARIS (DEC. 24) - The Labor Ministry reported Monday that industrial employment dipped by 0.1 per cent in the year's third quarter, according to final results of a quarterly survey of industry and job conditions.

At the same time, the number of job-holders rose by 0.6 per cent in the services sector, and employment as a whole rose by 0.3 per cent for all non-farm market sectors taken together, it said.

The data confirm reports of a general slowdown of job growth, which had reached 0.6 and 0.4 per cent in the previous two quarters.

The ministry noted that the dip in industrial employment had occurred "under conditions of lower economic growth", and was due to a "trend reversal in the manufacturing sectors" (in which employment fell by 0.1 per cent, following a 0.2 per cent rise the previous quarter).

Workers employed in consumer goods industries were down by 0.5 per cent in the quarter, while they increased by 0.2 per cent in capital goods (against a rise of 0.4 per cent in that sector in the second quarter). There was no change in jobs in intermediate goods.

The survey showed a 0.9 per cent in the average industrial wage in the third quarter, making a 5.1 per cent rise year-on-year and a "gain of 1.2 per cent in purchasing power" for the year.

But purchasing power declined by 0.8 per cent in the third quarter, the study showed.

Back home 11 days after a 30-year exile, the ailing Mr. Tambo had one hour of general talks with Mr. De Klerk and Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok in what a joint statement afterwards called a "courtesy visit."

"The hope was expressed that 1991 will bring about more real progress towards peaceful solutions," and that "violence and intimidation should come to an end in order to enable proper negotiations to start," the statement said.

Mr. Tambo, 73, severely weakened by a stroke in the Zambian capital Lusaka in August last year, could not descend the steps of the president's office in the administrative Union Buildings for customary photographs.

He reiterated that he would have to leave mid-January for further medical treatment, but said his hopes were that South Africa would have a "full recovery from apartheid" by next Christmas.

"We have no expectation at all that next December we shall be in the same position as we are," he said, flanked by his wife Adelaide and ANC executive members Joe Nhlanhla and Jacob Zuma.

PRETORIA (DEC. 24) - The expectation of a poor South African grain harvest worsened Monday with the Wheat Board's estimate of a 3.8 per cent decline in wheat production this year over last.

The fourth quarter estimate up to the end of November was 1.927 million tonnes down from 2.003 million last year.

With December rains in the grain belt too little and too late, the Maize Board has already predicted a worst-case scenario of six million tonnes, one million tonnes short of the amount needed for domestic consumption in a country where maize is the staple food for most people.

COVENTRY (DEC. 24) - The surprise buyout of British luxury car manufacturer Jaguar by the giant American Ford concern a year ago sent a shockwave rippling through the workforce.

The trade unions saw the move as sounding the death knell for the prestigious carmaker. To sell Jaguars from the showrooms of regular Ford dealers would mark the end of end of a British tradition, they protested.

During the course of the year, Jaguar employees have revised their opinion. ''We take it all back, in this economic climate we would not have survived if we didn't have Ford behind us,'' said John Halford, a trade union representative at Jaguar's factory in the central English city of Coventry.

At the same time, the U.S. concern gained the confidence of the Jaguar workers by assuring them that the company placed great store on retaining the luxury saloon maker's independence. For the time being at least, Jaguar would remain a largely British affair, they said.

Despite being in the hands of Ford, Jaguar has just been through a difficult year. The recession in Britain and in the United States -its second-largest market - has noticeably depressed the market for luxury cars. Only 42,000 Jaguars were sold around the world this year, 5,000 fewer than in 1989.

The Jaguar takeover appears to have been conceived by Ford as part of a lucrative long-term investment. Ford wanted to secure for itself one of the last luxury marques and was prepared to pay 1.6 billion pounds sterling for the privilege.

BETHLEHEM (DEC. 24) - Bethlehem's Mayor Elias Fredsh said Monday the city of Jesus Christ's birth was beginning to celebrate ''the bleakest Christmas we've ever had''.

The Palestinian uprising (intifada) and Gulf crisis were expected to hold attendance at religious services - including the famous Midnight Mass at the Church of the Nativity - to a few thousand.

As in 1989, Christian churches here and in Jerusalem have cancelled all receptions. In solidarity with the intifada, Bethlehem is also doing without traditional Christmas decorations and lights this year.

On the afternoon of Christmas Eve, only a few dozen tourists appeared on the square in front of the Church of the Nativity, which was heavily guarded by Israeli soldiers.

An Israeli police band tried in vain to create to strike up some festive spirit by playing Christmas songs and Handel's ''Hallelujah''. A cold wind and rain added to general gloom.

All shops in the city remained closed because of a protest strike called by the Islamic underground organisation Hamas.

Arabs stayed at home while Israeli occupation forces and police posted at roadblocks only allowed cars having special permission to pass.

NAIROBI (DEC. 24) - Government troops and rebels clashed in the Somali capital of Mogadishu Sunday in some of the worst fighting seen for years, the British Broadcasting Corporation (Bbc) reported here Monday.

The shooting close to the old cattle market in the city lasted several hours, according to a Somali government statement.

City residents said they had seen the bodies of many uniformed men in the street but no official casualty figure was issued.

A government spokesman said 17 ''armed bandits'' - the expression normally used by officials to describe the country's rebels - had been arrested.

Rebels seeking the overthrow of president Mohamed Siad Barre's military government have increasingly managed to penetrate the suburbs of Mogadishu in recent weeks.

Very few foreign nationals were said to be still living in the Somali capital after most were advised by their ambassadors to leave the city.

MOSCOW (DEC. 24) - The Soviet central bank on Monday publicly warned foreign companies working with Soviet firms and institutions not to accept payments in rubles, Soviet news agency TASS reported.

It said the bank had noted "a multiplication of payment documents (such as checks and letters of guarantee) denominated in rubles issued by Soviet banks or companies to totals of tens of millions of rubles, saying they were guaranteed by the central bank".

The central bank said that neither it nor the finance ministry had offered such guarantees, and the majority of such undertakings were not backed by assets able to constitute a guarantee.

The bank also noted that some counterfeit ruble checks were circulating abroad saying the persons accepting them risked "falling victim to their own credulity".

It also denounced the existence in some contracts of a ruble exchange rate deliberately reduced from the official commercial level. That is illegal and will be prosecuted, it said.

The bank said foreign firms took advantage of such arrangements to obtain more Soviet products or raw materials to export them, thereby harming the economy.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 24) - Israel warned Iraq Monday of quick and decisive reprisals if President Saddam Hussein carried out a threat to make Tel Aviv his first target in a Gulf war.

"If Saddam Hussein carries out his threats, he'll pay dearly," Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said. "We're used to threats. They don't scare us, but we take them very seriously," he added.

Mr. Shamir's spokesman, Avi Pazner, told Agence France-Presse: "We're ready to defend ourselves. It's not the first time Saddam Hussein tries to tie us to the Gulf crisis and we're ready for all eventualities."

In pre-released extracts from an interview with Spanish television, to be screened Wednesday, Mr. Hussein said Iraq would attack Tel Aviv even if Israeli troops took no part in an offensive against Iraq.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens said on Israeli radio that the country's army "is on an alert, ready for anything. Saddam Hussein's ability to harm Israel is very limited," he said.

An Israeli military official said Iraq was doing its utmost to drag the Israel into a war. Iraq wants to link the Gulf crisis, sparked by its own invasion of Kuwait on August 2, to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The official, quoted by the radio, said that as soon as war breaks out -- a prospect he considered inevitable -- "Saddam won't hesitate to launch his missiles on Israel's major population areas and strategic locations."

"Ours will be a lightning response," he added.

A senior defense ministry official, who declined to be identified, said the Israeli army was keeping "a permanent, watchful eye over Iraq's missile batteries and is observing their deployment with the greatest attention."

He said Iraq had already positioned missile batteries at strategic points along its border with Jordan.

Foreign Minister David Levy on Monday warned Jordan not to allow foreign forces to overfly its air space and to threaten Israel.

He said "Jordan should not permit an adventurer to use its territory or its air space to threaten Israel. Respect of this principle is a guarantee of Jordanian security."

Mr. Levy said the message had been clearly conveyed through various channels, adding that Israel had no aggressive intent toward Jordan and wanted Jordanian stability maintained.

Israeli military experts believe Mr. Hussein is trying to play for time until March 1991, in the hope that Arab countries backing the U.S.-led multinational force massed against him would reject fighting Baghdad during the Moslem holy fasting month of Ramadan which begins in mid-March.

"Saddam has his back against the wall. An attack against Israel can only aggravate the situation," said an expert quoted in the press Monday.

Israeli television, citing military sources, said Iraq could launch an attack against Israel before January 15, the deadline set by a United Nations Security Council resolution for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

In Amman, Jordan's Foreign Minister Marwan al-Qassem said the continued threat of the use of force would only invite a reaction consolidating an eventual outbreak of hostilities.

"The Iraqi leadership and people feel that war is inevitable because the other (party) has made it look like there is no way out but force, and violence just breeds violence," he told Jordan Times English-language daily.

Mr. al-Qassem said the United States would lose many of its interests as well as those of its allies and friends in the region if war breaks out.

He said if Washington wanted Iraq to understand the international community's position, then United Nations Secretary General should go to Iraq as a peace emissary rather than a U.S. envoy.

He was referring to President George Bush's proposal to send Secretary of State James Baker to Baghdad to meet with Mr. Hussein.

NAIROBI (DEC. 24) - Sudanese rebels claimed they had captured a key garrison in the south-western province of Bahr al Ghazal on Monday, and were about to launch a final assault on the provincial capital, Wau.

The radio of the rebel Sudan People's Liberation Army (SPLA), monitored here, said the SPLA had captured Bazjia garrison, 80 kilometres (50 miles) from Wau, which they said they had started bombarding from three sides. The radio gave no details of casualties.

It said the SPLA would capture Wau before the new year.

The SPLA, which has been fighting since 1983 to free mainly Christian and animist south Sudan from domination by the Islamic north, has claimed a string of victories in the past month, mainly in Western Equatoria province, south of Bahr al Ghazal.

The government has also claimed some successes, saying its forces had retaken the White Nile port of Melut, captured by the rebels in May.

The government also said its troops had killed a "large number" of rebels in fighting at Bongo, near the southern government-held town of Juba, besieged by the SPLA.

In another development, people's committees have called for a vast mobilisation to enforce strict Islamic law throughout the nation, the Sudanese news agency SUNA reported. The SPLA opposes the imposition of Islamic law throughout the country.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 24) - Belgium has one of the Western world's highest rates of AIDS among heterosexuals, the Belgian health research institute IHE said in a report released here Monday.

The Institut belge d'hygiene et d'epidemiologie (IHE) said 29 percent of all reported cases of adult AIDS had been contracted through heterosexual sex -- an increasing tendency over the last three years.

By contrast, the equivalent figure was six percent in the United States and France, and an average eight percent in Western Europe.

The institute said the incidence of heterosexual transmission was particularly worrying because it exposed a much greater population to AIDS. Homosexuals and drug addicts remain the most vulnerable.

But Dr. Nathan Clumeck, a prominent Belgian expert on AIDS, said infection was declining among homosexuals because they were taking precautions, and had stabilised amongst drug addicts.

Doctors here attribute much of the HIV infection among heterosexuals to the movement of Belgians among their country's former African colonies of Zaire, Burundi and Ruanda, where AIDS is particularly rampant among heterosexuals.

Dr. Clumeck said many women who tested HIV-positive were outside the traditional high-risk groups. They were often aged under 30, with middle-class professions such as teaching or the law, and were not particularly promiscuous.

The only way to identify heterosexual AIDS carriers, the doctor said, was to establish a register tracing back all the sexual partners of AIDS patients for the last five years, but on the basis of strict confidentiality.

In 1987, social security programmes spent 2.4 billion Belgian francs (78 million dollars) to treat 95 AIDS patients. By September 30 this year, 764 cases had been reported and 366 of the patients had died.

An average of three new HIV-positive cases are now reported each day, bringing the total since 1984 to 6,042. The eventual result could be a crushing financial burden, experts say.

TUNIS (DEC. 24) - Thirty-five militants of the Islamic movement Annahda have been taken in for questioning in the past 48 hours in Tunisia, including its chief spokesman Ali Laaridh, the movement said Monday.

Sources close to official quarters said the arrests were part of a probe into a terrorist network the authorities said they had dismantled early this month. Soldiers, customs men and police were among a first wave of about 70 people arrested. Some were implicated in a 1987 plot to topple the government of then president Habib Bourguiba, officials said.

Mr. Laaridh had been under police surveillance for some days, the movement said. He was twice taken in for questioning in July.

Three members of Annahda's steering committee were among those held in the latest swoops, which picked up people here in the capital and at Bizerta, Kef, Siliana and Kairouan, the movement said in a communique.

TEHERAN (DEC. 24) - The Iranian Oil Ministry is now prepared to resume oil sales to U.S. companies after a three-year suspension, a senior ministry official said here Monday.

Mehdi Hosseini, responsible for international affairs at the ministry, was responding to an announcement by the U.S. State Department on Saturday that U.S. companies had been authorized to import limited quantities of Iranian oil.

But the department said the firms would have to deposit earnings from such imports in an escrow account to finance U.S. claims against Iran now being adjudicated by a special tribunal in the The Hague.

"We are prepared to sell oil to U.S. companies," Mr. Hosseini told AFP. But he added that "selling oil to U.S. companies to support a fund in The Hague designed to compensate the Americans does not have much interest for Iran."

Mr. Hosseini also stressed that the ministry's position does not commit the Iranian government, as President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani has not yet given an opinion on oil sales question.

He said Iran had not been contacted by U.S. companies and insisted that any oil sold to them could not be re-sold to Israel or South Africa.

Iranian oil imports by the United States have been suspended since 1987, although technically Iran has been the target of a U.S. economic boycott since the early 1980s.

In another development, Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aqhazadeh has been quoted as saying Iran will boost its sustainable crude oil production capacity to 4.5 million barrels a day in 1992.

He told the Nicosia-based specialist newsletter Middle East Economic Survey that the hike would be about one million barrels a day above current production and 1.3 to 1.4 million barrels a day beyond Iran's present quota assigned by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

With OPEC quotas suspended because of the Gulf crisis, according to Mr. Aqhazadeh, Iran has been producing between 3.5 and 3.6 million barrels a day, its maximum capacity.

DOHA (DEC. 24) - King Fahd of Saudi Arabia on Monday said a decision to make peace could be a bolder stroke than going to war and appealed to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein for an "understanding" on the Gulf.

"We are ready to show, as soon as he (President Hussein) takes a decision in favor of an understanding, that we on our side can make such a move," King Fahd declared in a message addressed to leaders of the Gulf Cooperation Council meeting here.

"A decision for peace in decisive historical circumstances is most often a bolder act than war," he said.

He was speaking just three weeks before the expiry on January 15 of a United Nations deadline for an Iraqi military withdrawal from Kuwait, after which a U.S.-led multinational force will be authorized to launch a military strike to free the emirate.

"We have opted for neither war nor peace. We have adopted a decision on the liberation of Kuwait by peaceful means, as long as peace is possible, or by war, when war is the only way," the king said in a message appearing in the press here.

The six-nation GCC, grouping Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Oman amd Qatar, is still looking for a peaceful solution in the Gulf, according to King Fahd.

"We do not want to close the doors of hope," he added.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) - In a Christmas message to U.S. troops in the Gulf, President George Bush said Monday they were there ''because the world must not reward aggression, because our vital interests are at stake and because of the brutality and danger of Saddam Hussein''.

He added: ''We're there backed by 12 United Nations resolutions and the forces of 25 other countries. The sacrifices you make will never be forgotten.

''America is behind you. The world is behind you and history is behind you. When you come home, and we hope it's soon, you'll be welcomed as what you are - all-American heroes.''

Bush's message came from his Camp David retreat, where he was spending Christmas and being briefed by Defence Secretary Dick Cheney and Chief of General Staff Colin Powell, just back from an inspection tour of troops in the Gulf.

The Washington Post reported that the Pentagon was speeding up the development and deployment of new weapons systems, and that two brand new missiles - for the navy and army - were already in the Gulf although their testing was not yet completed.

LAHORE, PAKISTAN (DEC. 24) - Iran accused Monday a religious group in Pakistan of engineering the assassination of its diplomat Sadiq Ganji here last week and demanded Islamabad outlaw the organization.

If the Anjuman-e-Sahaba (ASS) was not banned, Pakistan-Iran relations would be "adversely affected," visiting Iranian deputy foreign minister, Ali Muhammad Basharati, warned at a press conference here.

Even Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif's visit to Iran, scheduled for January 19, could be "reviewed," he said.

Mr. Basharati described the ASS as an "agent" of Wahabism, a Moslem religious sect of Saudi origin that he said had always strongly opposed the Islamic revolution in Iran.

Mr. Ganji, director general of the Iranian Cultural Centre, was shot dead here Wednesday outside the International Hotel as he got out of his car to attend a farewell dinner.

Police have arrested a number of suspects, one of whom was apparently an ASS activist, but the investigation into the murder has not yet been completed.

One of the detained men tried to shoot himself when police surrounded him near the hotel soon after the diplomat's killing.

Press reports have since named him as Haq Nawaz and said he is the key suspect in the case.

Mr. Basharati, who met President Ghulam Ishaq Khan and Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif in Islamabad, said the Iranian government was under "tremendous pressure" from the Iranian people who were deeply hurt by the murder of Mr. Ganji.

The ASS is based in Pakistan city of Jhang in Punjab province. The city has frequently witnessed tension and clashes between ASS activists and members of the minority Shiite community.

Current ASS leader, Maulana Ziaur Rehman Farooqi, said Friday his organization had no hand in the murder.

MAPUTO (DEC. 24) - The Mozambique parliament has backed a law allowing a multiparty system in this southern African country.

The passing of the law at the weekend follows constitutional change which came into force on November 30 ending the monopoly of the ruling FRELIMO party.

Under the new law, all political parties must be nationally based and cannot adopt regionalist, secessionist, racist or religious platforms.

During debate here President Joaquim Chissano said this meant that for example no party could call itself Christian Democrat.

All parties will have to be registered with the justice ministry and will have to open their rules and programmes to inspection, along with their leadership and organisation and a report of their inaugural meetings.

They must also provide a list of 1,100 members or backers, meaning 100 members for each of Mozambique's 11 provinces.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) - Iraq's ambassadors to the United States and to the United Nations have been recalled to Baghdad for consultations, an Iraqi Embassy spokesman here said Monday.

The spokesman did not give a reason for the recall, nor did he say how long Ambassador Mohamed al Mashat and his U.N. colleague Abdul al Anbari would be away. He did not specify when they had left the United States.

The move came amid increasingly pessimistic talk by the United States and Iraq on the prospects of settling the Gulf crisis through diplomatic channels, and in the face of a stalemate over the holding of direct talks to avert war.

U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney warned in Egypt Sunday en route back from a visit to the Middle East that the use of force to drive Iraq out of Kuwait was becoming increasingly likely.

Mr. Cheney, and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Colin Powell, who accompanied him to the Middle East, were briefing President George Bush Monday at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Maryland.

Mr. Bush has proposed that Washington and Baghdad exchange visits by their foreign ministers, but the two countries have failed to agree on a date.

Iraq is insisting on January 12 as the date for Secretary of State James Baker to meet with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad, but Washington says that would be too close to the U.N. deadline of January 15 for Iraq to quit Kuwait. The U.N. resolution authorizes the use of force after that date.

DOHA, (DEC 24) - King Fahd of Saudi Arabia on Monday told President Saddam Hussein there was still time to avoid war in the Gulf and appealed to the Iraqi leader for an "understanding" on the regional crisis.

"Let the one we have considered a brother, a friend and an ally know that the curtain has not yet come down on a destructive war ... and that the horrors, of which he himself and his people will be the first victims, can be avoided," King Fahd declared in a message that appeared in the press here during a summit of Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) leaders.

"We are ready to show, as soon as he (President Hussein) takes a decision in favor of an understanding, that we on our side can make such a move," King Fahd stressed.

"A decision for peace in decisive historical circumstances is most often a bolder act than war," he said.

The king was speaking just three weeks before the expiry January 15 of a United Nations deadline for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, after which a U.S.-led multinational force will be authorized to launch a military strike to free the emirate.

"We have opted for neither war nor peace. We have adopted a decision on the liberation of Kuwait by peaceful means, as long as peace is possible, or by war, when war is the only way," the king asserted in his message.

The six-nation GCC, grouping Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Oman amd Qatar, is still looking for a peaceful solution in the Gulf, according to King Fahd.

"We do not want to close the doors of hope," he added.

The king, who following the invasion on August 2 agreed to accept the deployment of thousands of U.S., British, French, Arab, Asian and African troops on Saudi soil, also urged the GCC to ensure that the Kuwaiti "catastrophe" never happen again.

In addition to political and economic cooperation within the council, Gulf states must establish a "common military and defense structure," he said.

King Fahd spoke of the failure of Arab political order in the Gulf crisis and called for reforms through "the mobilization of Arab material and human potential."

BAGHDAD (DEC. 24) - Iraqi scientists have managed to produce artificial rain that fell recently on several provinces in the country, official television reported here Monday.

Three planes sprayed clouds with "chemical products" that triggered rainstorms the television said, quoting experts at the Ministry of Industry and Military Industrialization.

The report said the operation was made possible despite the challenges currently facing the country, notably a United Nations trade embargo.

The ministry last month announced that it was conducting experiments on artificial rain in order to boost agricultural output to thwart the embargo.

The United Nations sanctions were imposed to protest the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

NICOSIA (DEC. 24) - Libyan leader Colonel Moamer Kadhafi on Monday told the Pope and the U.N. Secretary General they should not celebrate Christmas as long as the fate of former Panamanian president Manuel Noriega remains uncertain.

Colonel Kadhafi, in a message to Pope John Paul II carried by the Libyan news agency monitored here, told the pontiff the family of General Noriega "will not share in the joy of Christmas because the Vatican last year turned over their father to a ferocious animal."

"You are responsible before God and Christ for this sin," Col. Kadhafi told the pope.

Gen. Noriega was overthrown in December 1989 in a U.S. military invasion of Panama, carried out after U.S. authorities charged the general with drug trafficking.

Gen. Noriega sought refuge in the residence of the papal nuncio in Panama City and was later arrested by U.S. forces after leaving the premises.

In another message, Col. Kadhafi called on United Nations Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar not "to celebrate Christmas as long as the fate of Gen. Noriega, the president of a member of the United States, is unknown."

Gen. Noriega is currently jailed in the United States awaiting trial on drug charges.

FREETOWN (DEC. 24) - African diplomats said on Monday they were sure the ceasefire agreement between the three warring sides in the Liberian conflict "will continue to be observed by all sides."

The diplomats, basing their assessment on intelligence reports from Monrovia, said that Charles Taylor, the leader of the main rebel group, the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) "still remains the man to do business with if an all round permanent peace settlement is to be achieved".

The diplomats acknowledged that Mr. Taylor was "still determined to restructure the set up of the interim government administration of Dr Amos Sawyer and that the presidency continues to remain the ultimate aim of the NPFL leader."

The diplomats said it was "not as clear cut" as before whether Mr. Taylor could win an outright victory if elections were held now.

The leader of the Independent National Patriotic Front of Liberia (INPFL) Prince Johnson remained "the least trusted of the three Liberian leaders", the diplomats added.

They all agreed that there was "a long term role" to be played by the Economic Community of West African States monitoring force "even when peace has come to Liberia in permanent form".

NEW DELHI (DEC. 24) - The speaker of the Indian parliament Monday officially approved Lal Krishna Advani, president of the Hindu Indian People's Party (BJP) as leader of the opposition in the lower house.

Mr. Advani, 63, replaces former premier and Congress (I) leader Rajiv Gandhi, whose party is currently backing the minority government of Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar.

Speaker Rabi Ray recognised Mr. Advani as leader of the opposition, the parliament secretariat said in an official announcement here Monday, three days before the national legislature begins its next winter session.

Mr. Advani, whose party is the largest single opposition group in the lower house, is entitled to the same status and privileges as a cabinet minister.

The Congress (I), with 192 MPs compared to the BJP's 85, had wanted to retain its position as the main opposition in the lower house, but the BJP had successfully argued that Congress (I)'s support for the government meant it was no longer in opposition.

Mr. Advani's party toppled the five-party National Front headed by Vishwanath Pratap Singh by withdrawing its support for the coalition government, which was then voted out by parliament in November.

The BJP engineered the collapse to protest Mr. V.P. Singh's hardline stance against Hindu revivalist plans to raze a 16th century mosque in the northern town of Ayodhya and build a temple on its ruins.

Earlier, Mr. Advani said India's next general election would centre on the temple-mosque controversy.

"It has now become impossible for the issue not to affect any election," he said in a speech to his party workers here.

He said the government was postponing a snap election because it knew the BJP had become "politically stronger and ideologically acceptable to the people."

More than 600 people have died in the past two months in Hindu-Moslem clashes linked to the temple-mosque dispute.

LONDON (DEC. 24) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein will be "very severely beaten" if he has to be driven from Kuwait by force, British Defence Secretary Tom King said here Monday.

In an interview with BBC radio, Mr. King said Iraqi forces would face a "very powerful onslaught" and there would be "no question about the outcome".

He said he had never considered the Iraqi president to be "a madman".

"I think he is an extremely cunning and calculating individual and he will push it as hard as he can. If the final crunch comes he knows he will be very severely beaten", he said.

Mr. King said sanctions had worked "to an extent" but sanctions alone could not deal with the problem caused by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

LONDON, (DEC 24) - British writer Salman Rushdie announced that he had decided not to have his controversial novel "The Satanic Verses" published in paperback, in a statement released Monday after meetings with moderate Moslem leaders.

The Indian-born author also said for the first time that he repudiated all insulting remarks towards Islam made by characters in the novel.

In an interview with BBC Radio, Mr. Rushdie expressed hope that he would be able to emerge from hiding "quite soon" and return to a normal life.

"This isn't the end of it, but this is, I very strongly believe, the begining of the end," he added.

The pledge back drew a cool response from British Moslem leaders, who are still demanding a complete ban on the book.

Sher Azam, the president of the Bradford Council for Mosques, who represents his city's 75,000 Moslems, said that Mr. Rushdie's promise was "a step towards the right direction, but we must point out that the book is still being published in hardback ... Until the book is completely removed, our campaign goes on."

Iqbal Sacranie, the joint convenor of the U.K Committee on Islamic Affairs said that the committee was "pleased" that its campaign against the book had been acknowledged by Mr. Rushdie, but called for the cancellation of existing publishing agreements.

In his statement, issued through the Islamic Society for the Promotion of Religious Tolerance, Mr. Rushdie said "I undertake not to publish the paperback edition of "The Satanic Verses" or to permit any further agreements for translation into other languages while any risk of further offence exists."

Mr. Rushdie met on Monday at a secret location with several moderate Moslem leaders, including Egyptian Religious Affairs Minister Muhammed Ali Maghoub, an imam from the London mosque, and the president of the Islamic Society for the Promotion of Religious Tolerance, Dr. Hesham El Essawy, according to his spokeswoman.

Dr. El Essaway has campaigned among Moslems for Mr. Rushdie's rehabilitation.

Mr. Rushdie told BBC Radio that the meeting had been characterized by "openness and positive spirit."

He has been living in hiding under the protection of British police since the late Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeiny issued a death sentence against him in February, 1989, following publication of "The Satanic Verses", which contained passages considered blasphemous by many Moslems.

The Rushdie affair caused Britain to break diplomatic relations with Iran in March, 1989. Ties were restored in September after Iran refused to back Iraq in the Gulf crisis.

In early December, Mr. Rushdie made his first public appearance since he went into hiding, at a London bookstore.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) - President George Bush Monday got a briefing from his two top military advisors on the readiness of U.S. forces in the Gulf to do battle with Iraq.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff General Colin Powell, just back from a Middle East tour, flew by helicopter to the presidential retreat in Camp David, Maryland, to bring Mr. Bush up to the minute on U.S. troops now in the Gulf region.

Pentagon officials who travelled to Saudi Arabia with Mr. Cheney said the logistical problems of the massive U.S. troop deployment were being solved gradually.

They said U.S. troops appeared to be in good spirits, despite being placed on alert for the Christmas holiday.

The majority of the troop reinforcements whose deployment was ordered by Mr. Bush in early November still are en route to the Gulf region, with two armored divisions to be transferred from Germany and a mechanized infantry division to be sent from the United States.

Almost 300,000 U.S. troops now are deployed in the region, with at least another 100,000 troops due to arrive for deployment there in the next few weeks.

Analysts agree that these three fresh divisions will not be operational by the January 15 date after which the United Nations has authorized the use of allied force to drive Iraqi occupying forces from Kuwait, which Iraq has held since August 2.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 24) - Israeli troops on Monday shot dead a Palestinian during a chase on the West Bank, Arab and Israeli sources reported.

They said the victim had been suspected of being an activist in the three-year old Palestinian uprising on the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

He and a companion, armed with knives, were being sought by an Israeli patrol in the village of Hirbet Safa, according to an army spokesman.

Troops opened fire when the pair refused an order to halt. One of the Palestinians was killed and the other was captured, the spokesman said.

The new death brings to 751 the number of Palestinians killed by Israeli gunfire in the occupied territories since the start of the uprising in December 1987, according to an unofficial toll compiled by AFP.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) - The United States Monday accused rebel forces in El Salvador of preparing a new offensive, after the guerrillas declared a nine day truce Sunday.

"We have reliable information that the FMLN (Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front) plans new intensive military attacks to begin the New Year," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

"Instead of negotiating to bring peace to El Salvador in 1990, the guerrillas have chosen to bring death and destruction to their country and its people. While professing to observe a 'truce', they are preparing for more war," Mr. Boucher added.

According to the spokesman, the most recent FMLN attacks left 16 civilians dead and 108 injured. Coffee and cotton plantations as well as banks and buses all have been attacked, although as targets they "have no conceivable military value."

The FMLN, which has waged an armed anti-government campaign since the late 1970's, announced Sunday a unilateral truce extending from December 24 through January 1.

WASHINGTON, (DEC 24) - The State Department Monday challenged as "completely unfounded" a Soviet charge that the West was seeking to subvert the Soviet economy by lacing food shipments with radioactivity.

Vladimir Kryuchkov, head of the Soviet secret service, the KGB, made the allegation in a speech to Soviet Congress on Saturday.

"The allegations of foreign subversion made by the KGB chairman are completely unfounded and inaccurate," said State Department spokesman Richard Boucher.

"We're concerned that such a senior Soviet official would return to this kind of outdated and inflammatory rhetoric which can only be described as inconsistent with the improvement that has taken place, in both the substance and the atmosphere, of U.S.-Soviet relations," he added.

"The Soviet Union's current internal difficulties, as senior Soviet officials have themselves readily admitted, are the result of policies adopted in the past by the country's leaders," Mr. Boucher said.

"They can only be solved through fundamental political and economic reforms," he added.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) - The U.S. government Monday warned Thailand that unless Thai protection of U.S. copyrights is stepped up, the United States may resort to import tariffs as a penalty.

U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills said Monday she had launched an investigation of Thailand's international copyright defense system.

"We have repeatedly expressed our strong concern to Thai officials at all levels that the rights of U.S. copyright holders are not adequately safeguarded," Ms. Hills said.

"Unfortunately, we have seen no improvement in Thailand's willingness to shut down the considerable illegal copying of U.S. movies, music, books and computer software or to ensure that U.S. companies obtain prompt and effective redress through Thailand's legal system," Ms. Hills indicated in a statement.

Ms. Hills decided to investigate alleged Thai abuses after receiving a November 15 petition from the Motion Picture Association of America, the International Intellectual Property Alliance and the Recording Industry of America.

The trade representative said her office will commence talks with the Thai government promptly to resolve the dispute. If such talks do not bear fruit, the U.S. government could outline a list of Thai exports to slap with higher U.S. import duties.

LONDON (DEC. 24) - A decision by Britain to avoid holding a Christian service for its troops in Saudi Arabia over Christmas, so as to avoid offending the country's rulers, was "deplorable," the Anglican bishop of Norwich said on Monday.

Britain has opted to hold its ecumenical Christmas religious service at a base in the more tolerant Gulf state of Bahrain, even though the vast majority of its 15,000 troops in the Gulf are in Saudi Arabia.

"I appreciate that we have to be sensitive to the customs of a foreign country but the diplomats should have insisted on the freedom to worship, particularly as this is possible in other neighbouring Moslem countries," the Right Reverend Peter Nott said during his traditional Christmas service.

"After all, the men and women of our armed services are out in the Gulf to defend the country with their lives," he said, referring to Saudi Arabia.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 23) - The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) said Monday it had removed a barrier to the sale of entertainment giant MCA to Matsushita Electric Industrial Co. of Japan.

The FCC approved the transfer of a New York-area television station, WWOR-TV, from MCA Inc. to MCA shareholders, partly clearing the way for Matsushita to acquire MCA, parent of Universal Studios.

Matsushita, as a foreign corporation, is barred from owning the radio station, which will be spun off to MCA shareholders as a separate company.

Last month, Matsushita agreed to acquire MCA for 6.6 billion dollars. It is the largest purchase of a U.S. company by one in Japan.

Under the FCC's decision, three MCA officials must resign their positions either with MCA or its subsidiary MCA Broadcasting Inc. and WWOR for MCA to complete the divestiture.

VATICAN CITY, (DEC 25) - Pope John Paul II led some 5,000 worshippers from all over the world in a prayer for peace at the traditional Christmas mass celebrated here at midnight on Monday.

Nawal El-Hage, a 24-year-old Lebanese student in Rome, read out an appeal in Arabic: "Lord, enlighten the spirits of heads of state and government so that they may be builders of peace, and overlook nothing to build a peace based on justice and mutual respect."

The pope, who devoted his homily to the theme of "the mystery of the night at Bethlehem," was to celebrate a second mass at Saint Peter's basilica on Christmas day, before reading a message for peace and giving his traditional blessing.

Vatican sources said threat of war in the Gulf, the difficulties facing the Soviet Union as well as Eastern Europe and the Third World, were on the pope's mind as he composed his message.

It was estimated that 250 million people throughout the world followed the service on television.

WARSAW (DEC. 24) EFE - Despite a request from the Soviet Union, Polish authorities have decided not to extradite 12 Soviet soldiers who have asked for political asylum in Poland, Interior Minister Kryszstof Kozlowski hassaid.

The soldiers deserted in November and signed a statement saying they wanted to leave the Soviet Army and to live in Poland for +political and ideological+ reasons.

An Interior Ministry spokesman said Poland did not wish to practice a policy that encouraged desertion for the Soviet Army, but would handle such requests on a case-by-case basis. The spokesman said Poland did not intend to offer residence to people who had committed crimes.

The Soviet Union earlier this year announced plans to withdraw by the end of the year about 10,000 of an estimated 58,000 troops stationed in Poland.

Polish authorities have said they are concerned other Soviet deserters might turn up in Poland as Red Army troops are withdrawn from other former Soviet Bloc countries.

The Polish government has expressed fears about a wave of Soviet refugees floodign the country if political and economic conditions in the Soviet Union continue to deteriorate.

According to estimates by the Interior Ministry, if martial law were imposed in the Soviet republics bordering Poland, several hundred thousand refugees could pour across the frontier.

Easier access to travel documents for Soviets and fewer restrictions on travel could also encourage a flow of refugees into Poland, authorities have said.

RABAT (DEC. 24) EFE - Mass trials began Monday of people detained 10 days ago during street disturbances in several Moroccan cities during which dozens were believed to have been killed in clashes with security forces.

Trials opened in Fez, Tangier, Rabat and Kenitra, cities where violence erupted on December 14 when a 24-hour general strike in Morocco turned violent.

More than 200 defendents were charged with civil disobedience, forming unlawful associations and causing public disorders.

In smaller trials last week the accused were convicted on similar charges and given sentences of up to five months in jail and fined up to dlrs 60.

Morroco's opposition press said Monday that trials had also opened in other cities. The media protested about the conditions of the defendants and said some had appeared in court suffering from bullet wounds.

The daily L'Opinion said that 10 days after the riots, the government had still not kept promises to raise salaries and improve welfare programs, adding that unions were prepared to launch another strike.

The newspaper reported sporadic outbreaks of violence were continuing throughout the country.

Figures for the number of dead in the disturbances differed. The government denied that up to 50 people had been killed as claimed by trade unions and said only five had died.

The government also said those arrested were drug traffickers and common criminals and that the violence was not caused by popular unrest.

But witnesses said the majority of those involved in the demonstrations were unemployed youngsters and students. Many of them have also been charged with looting and setting fire to public buildings and cars.

Opposition parties and human rights groups have called for trials to be delayed until an independent inquiry into the rioting is completed.

Trouble broke out after trade unions called a general strike following the collapse of pay negotiations with the government Thursday.

The unions are demanding that the minimum monthly wage of dlrs 120 be tripled to make up for consumers' reduced purchasing power in the midst of soaring inflation.

They argue that Morocco's rigid adherence to World Bank and International Monetary Fund austerity programs have led to positive economic growth for Morocco but at the expense of the poor.

Union leaders estimate that 12 million of Morocco's 22 million people live in poverty.

BEIJING (DEC. 24) XINHUA - AFFORESTATION PROJECTS IN CHINA DURING THE PAST FIVE YEARS, WHICH COVER OVER 30 MILLION HECTARES, ARE EQUAL TO THE TOTAL OF TREES PLANTED IN THE 40 YEARS SINCE THE FOUNDING OF THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC.

THE MINISTRY OF FORESTRY REPORTS THAT THE COUNTRY HAS BEEN ENGAGED IN MASS AFFORESTATION. IN THE EFFORT AIRCRAFT HAS BEEN USED TO SOW SEEDS, AND HILLSIDES HAVE BEEN CLOSED TO ENABLE UNDISTURBED GROWTH.

AT THE SAME TIME, THE PERCENTAGE OF LOGGING OF FOREST RESOURCES HAS BEEN CONTROLLED AND THE NUMBER OF SHELTERBELT, FUEL ECONOMIC FORESTS HAVE BEEN INCREASED. HOWEVER, THE USE OF FOREST RELATED PRODUCTS HAS ALSO INCREASED.

CHINA BEGAN CONSTRUCTION OF SHELTERBELTS IN COASTAL AREAS AND ALONG THE YANGTZE RIVER, AFTER COMPLETING THE GREEN GREAT WALL PROJECTS IN THE NORTHERN CHINESE PROVINCES AND TAIHANG MOUNTAINS.

THE MINISTRY OFFICIAL SAID THAT CHINA HAS PLANTED OVER 5.3 MILLION HECTARES OF TREES IN THE NORTHERN PROVINCES DURING THE PAST FIVE YEARS AS PART OF THE GREEN GREAT WALL PROJECT. THE PROJECT RESULTED IN AN INCREASE IN FOREST COVERAGE FROM 6.9 PERCENT IN 1985 TO THE PRESENT 7.09 PERCENT, AND SERVED TO GREATLY IMPROVE ECOLOGICAL CONDITIONS IN THE AREA.

EARLY THIS YEAR, CHINA COMMENCED CONSTRUCTION OF ANOTHER SHELTERBELT PROJECT IN 145 COUNTIES OF NINE PROVINCES ALONG THE YANGTZE RIVER AND, TO DATE, TREES HAVE BEEN PLANTED ON 670,000 HECTARES. IN ADDITION, 500 OUT OF 900 COUNTIES IN THE PLAINS AREAS HAVE ATTAINED THE "GREEN" GOALS SET BY THE MINISTRY OF FORESTRY BY INCREASING THEIR FOREST COVERAGE TO 12.8 PERCENT.

THE OFFICIAL SAID THAT IN THE PAST TWO YEARS THE NUMBER OF PEOPLE PARTICIPATING IN THE MASS AFFORESTATION PROJECT HAS INCREASED FROM 200 TO 300 MILLION AND THAT THE NUMBER OF TREES PLANTED HAS INCREASED FROM ONE BILLION TO 1.7 BILLION.

THE SOURCES SAID OFFICIAL STATISTICS WERE NOT YET AVAILABLE BUT AT A ROUGH ESTIMATE ABOUT 40,000 PEOPLE HAVE BEEN DISPLACED AND ABOUT 1,400 HOUSES COMPLETELY OR PARTIALLY DESTROYED.

MORE THAN 7,000 ACRES OF PADDY FIELDS HAVE BEEN AFFECTED BY THE HEAVY FLOODS WITHIN THE PAST FEW DAYS IN THE AREA.

MAIN ROADS ARE ALSO AFFECTED. THE POLLUTION OF WELLS AND OTHER WATER SOURCES HAS CAUSED A DRINKING WATER PROBLEM FOR RESIDENTS IN AND AROUND AMPARA, THE SOURCES SAID.

POLICE FROM AMPARA SAID THEY WERE ABLE TO PREVENT ANY DEATHS BY CAUTIONING THE PUBLIC ABOUT THE FLOOD THREAT AND EVACUATING PEOPLE IN LOW-LYING AREAS.

THE MET DEPARTMENT HERE TODAY SAID THE NORTHERN HALF OF THE COUNTRY IS OVERHUNG WITH CLOUDS AND THE NORTHERN AND EASTERN PROVINCES HAVE BEEN EXPERIENCING CONTINUOUS RAINS FOR THE PAST THREE DAYS.

WUHAN (DEC. 24) XINHUA - SUN HELI, A TEACHER FROM THE WUHAN MAPPING SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY UNIVERSITY (WMSTU), HAS SUCCESSFULLY TAKEN CONFIGURATION PHOTOS OF THE ANTARCTIC, WHICH HAVE BEEN A GREAT HELP FOR MAPPING THE CONTINENT.

SUN HELI, 26, ARRIVED IN THE ANTARCTIC IN JANUARY THIS YEAR, ALONG WITH AN CHINESE ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION TEAM. THE YOUNG MAN USED A HELICOPTER TO OVERFLY A 30 KILOMETER AREA SURROUNDING "ZHONGSHAN STATION," THE BASE ESTABLISHED BY THE CHINESE EXPEDITION. HE USED AN ORDINARY 120-MODEL CAMERA TO PHOTOGRAPH THE TERRAIN FROM ALTITUDES FROM 450 TO 3,250 METERS.

A MAP OF THE ZHONGSHAN STATION AREA BASED UPON THE PHOTOGRAPHS WAS RECENTLY COMPLETED AT WMSTU. THE MAP HAS PROVIDED SCIENTISTS WITH IDEAL CHARTS WHICH THEY CAN USE FOR SCIENTIFIC EXPLORATION IN THE ANTARCTIC. THE CONTINENT IS A NATURAL EXPERIMENTAL AREA, OF INTEREST TO SCIENTISTS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, BECAUSE OF ITS ABUNDANT MINERAL RESOURCES, SPECIAL CLIMATIC CONDITIONS, GEOGRAPHICAL POSITION.

AT PRESENT MAPPING EFFORTS IN THE ANTARCTIC ARE ACCOMPLISHED BY USES OF SATELLITES OR SPECIAL AIRCRAFT. IN MOST CASES, HOWEVER, AERIAL PHOTOS DO NOT MEET THE REQUIREMENT FOR MAP MAKING.

THUS FAR, ONLY A FEW COUNTRIES IN THE WORLD, INCLUDING CHINA, THE UNITED STATES, THE SOVIET UNION, GERMANY, AUSTRALIA AND CHILE HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFUL IN AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY OF THE ANTARCTIC.

MANILA (DEC. 24) XINHUA - PRESIDENT CORAZON AQUINO HAS ORDERED THE COUNTRY'S ALL FIVE GOVERNMENT FINANCING INSTITUTIONS TO BEEF UP THEIR LENDING PROGRAM FOR SMALL ENTREPRENEURS TO CREATE MORE JOB OPPORTUNITIES NEXT YEAR, LOCAL PRESS REPORTS SAID TODAY.

THE MOVE WAS RECOMMENDED BY ACTING EXECUTIVE SECRETARY OSCAR ORBOS TO OFFSET THE POSSIBLE DECREASE IN JOB OPPORTUNITIES RESULTING FROM THE RECENT OIL PRICE HIKE.

PHILIPPINE LABOR SECRETARY RUBEN TORRES RECENTLY SAID THAT A MASSIVE LAYOFF OF WORKERS IS EXPECTED STARTING NEXT MONTH WITH THE UNEMPLOYMENT RATE HITTING 13.1 PERCENT OR ABOUT 3.4 MILLION WORKERS NEXT YEAR, IN A TOTAL WORKER FORCE OF SOME 24 MILLION IN THE COUNTRY.

THE FIVE FINANCING INSTITUTIONS ARE THE PHILIPPINE NATIONAL BANK (PNB), DEVELOPMENT BANKS OF THE PHILIPPINES (DBP), LAND BANK OF THE PHILIPPINES (LP), THE GOVERNMENT SERVICE INSURANCE SYSTEM (GSIS), AND THE SOCIAL SECURITY SYSTEM (SSS).

THE PRESIDENT SAID THAT THESE FINANCING INSTITUTIONS, WHICH USED TO BE IN THE STATE OF "BANKRUPTCY," HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFULLY REHABILITATED BY HER ADMINISTRATION AND ARE BACK IN SHAPE TO HELP PEOPLE IN NEED OF LIVELIHOOD ASSISTANCE.

THE PRESIDENT STRESSED THAT IT IS THE GOVERNMENT'S GOAL TO ERADICATE POVERTY BY CREATING MORE JOB OPPORTUNITIES.

THE LEVEL OF POVERTY INCIDENCE IN THE PHILIPPINES WAS 59 PERCENT IN 1986 WHEN MRS. AQUINO ASSUMED OFFICE AND, THREE YEARS LATER, IT WENT DOWN TO 49.5 PERCENT, THE PRESIDENT ONCE TOLD MANILA-BASED FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS.

HARARE (DEC. 24) XINHUA - ABOUT 1,000 ZIMBABWEAN TROOPS YESTERDAY WITHDREW FROM COMBAT POSITIONS IN CENTRAL MO- ZAMBIQUE, REPORTED THE ZIMBABWE INTER-AFRICA NEWS AGENCY (ZIANA) TODAY.

THE TROOPS MOVED TO BEIRA CORRIDOR IN LINE WITH A PARTIAL CEASEFIRE AGREEMENT SIGNED BETWEEN THE MOZAMBICAN GOVERNMENT AND THE REBELLING MOZAMBIQUE NATIONAL RESISTENCE (MNR), SAID ZIANA.

THE MOVEMENT OF THE 1,000 ZIMBABWEAN SOLDIERS TO BEIRA CORRDOR HAS BROUGHT TO 4,000 THE NUMBER OF ZIMBABWEAN TROOPS GUARDING THE CORRIDOR IN CENTRAL MOZAMBIQUE, WHICH LINKS LANDLOCKED ZIMBABWE TO THE MOZAMBICAN PORTS OF BEIRA AND MAPU- TO.

ZIMBABWE DISPATCHED THOUSANDS OF TROOPS EIGHT YEARS AGO INTO MOZAMBIQUE TO ASSIST THE MOZAMBICAN GOVERNMENT IN ITS WAR AGAINST MNR AND TO ENSURE A SMOOTH FLOW OF ZIMBABWE'S EX- OPORTS AND IMPORTS THROUGH THE CORRIDOR.

A CEASEFIRE AGREEMENT WAS SIGNED BETWEEN THE MOZAMBICAN GOVERNMENT AND THE MNR ON DECEMBER 1 DURING THE PEACE TALKS IN ITALIAN CAPITAL OF ROME, WHICH RESTRICTS THE MOVEMENTS OF THE ZIMBABWEAN TROOPS IN MOZAMBIQUE TO TWO RAIL CORRIDORS OF LIMPOPO AND BEIRA, RESPECTIVELY IN SOUTHERN AND CENTERAL MOZAMBIQUE.

ACCRA (DEC. 24) XINHUA - A PRICE INCREASE FOR VARIOUS COMMODITIES HAS FORCED GHANAIANS TO CUT SPENDING FOR THIS YEAR'S CHRISTMAS.

WHILE TENS OF THOUSANDS OF GHANAIANS TODAY CONVERGED AT MAJOR DEPARTMENT STORES IN ACCRA TO MAKE THEIR LAST MINUTE SHOPPING FOR THE CHRISTAMS, FEW PEOPLE REALLY MADE PURCHASES.

OBSERVERS HERE NOTED THAT PURCHASES FOR THIS YEAR'S CHRIS- TMAS WERE FAR LESS THAN LAST YEAR.

ONE SALESMAN HERE SAID THAT PREVIOUSLY ONE CUSTOMER COULD BUY FOUR OR FIVE DOZENS OF BOTTLES OF BEER OR SOFT DRINKS FOR CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS BUT NOW "THEY GO OUT WITH ONLY ABOUT SIX BOTTLES."

PRICE HIKES FOR COMMODITIES IN THE COUNTRY HAVE REDUCED THE PURCHASING POWER OF ORDINARY GHANAIANS.

LAST DECEMBER ONE EGG WAS SOLD AT ABOUT 30 CEDIS (ONE U.S. DOLLAR EQUALS TO 345 CEDIS) IN ACCRA, BUT NOW IT COSTS ABOUT 50 CEDIS.

GHANAIANS NOW HAVE TO PAY 1,000 CEDIS FOR ONE GALLON OF PETROL INSTEAD OF 280 CEDIS A YEAR AGO.

AS A RESULT, THE USUAL HUSTLING FOR VEHICLES ASSOCIATED WITH CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS AT THE LORRY AND TAXI PARKS IN ACCRA WAS ABSENT AND MUCH FEWER CARS ARE NOW RUNNING IN THE CAPITAL'S STREETS.

BEIRUT (DEC. 24) XINHUA - ISRAELI TROOPS STARTED THIS MORNING SHELLING AN UNSPECIFIED NUMBER OF VILLAGES IN SOUTH LEBANON FROM THEIR ARTILLERY POSITIONS WITHIN THE JEWISH STATE'S SELF-DESIGNATED "SECURITY ZONE," REPORTS REACHING HERE SAID.

ONE SHELL HIT THE VILLAGES IN AN AVERAGE OF EVERY THREE MINUTES, SAID THE REPORTS WHICH DID NOT SPECIFY THE CASUALTIES.

THE "ZONE," A 1,100-SQUARE-KILOMETER STRIP OF LAND NOW POLICED BY ISRAELI TROOPS AND THE RENEGADE SOUTH LEBANON ARMY (SLA), WAS UNILATERALLY SET UP BY ISRAEL IN 1985 ALLEGEDLY TO PROTECT ITS NORTHERN AREAS FROM CROSS-BORDER GUERRILLA ATTACKS.

CLASHES BETWEEN ISRAELI AND LEBANESE RESISTANCE FORCES HAVE INTENSIFIED IN AND NEAR THE ZONE SINCE THE LEBANESE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED COMPLETION OF THE "GREATER BEIRUT PLAN" ON DECEMBER 3.

THE PLAN CALLED FOR CREATING A REUNITED, MILITIA-FREE CAPITAL AND ITS COMPLETION REPRESENTED THE FIRST STEP FOR THE LEGITIMATE GOVERNMENT TO DEPLOY ITS TROOPS ALL OVER THE COUNTRY, INCLUDING SOUTH LEBANON.

OURI LOUBRANI, ISRAELI COORDINATOR IN SOUTH LEBANON, HAS SAID THAT ISRAELI TROOPS WILL REMAIN IN THE "SECURITY ZONE" "SO LONG AS A STRONG, ABLE LEBANON IS ABSENT."

ON SUNDAY, SLA COMMANDER ANTOINE LAHD SAID THAT HE WOULD NEVER ALLOW THE STATE TO TAKE ANY DECISION ON THE "SECURITY ZONE" WITHOUT COOPERATION AND COORDINATION WITH HIM PERSONALLY.

SINGAPORE (DEC. 24) KYODO - SINGAPORE'S LARGEST LOCAL RETAILER, METRO HOLDINGS, SAID MONDAY IT HAS SIGNED A CONDITIONAL AGREEMENT TO LEASE ITS ENTIRE RETAIL SPACE IN A MEGA-SHOPPING COMPLEX BEING BUILT IN ORCHARD ROAD TO A COMPANY AFFILIATED WITH ITS JAPANESE RIVAL, TAKASHIMAYA.

THE CONDITIONAL AGREEMENT WITH TOSHIN DEVELOPMENT CO. WAS DESCRIBED ON MONDAY AS ''ONE OF THE MOST STUNNING CORPORATE DEALS OF THE YEAR'' BY THE BUSINESS TIMES NEWSPAPER.

METRO'S WITHDRAWAL FROM THE RETAIL SPACE IN THE NGEE ANN CITY PROJECT, SCHEDULED TO BE READY BY 1993, REFLECTS THE TOUGH COMPETITION POSED BY THE ADVENT OF JAPANESE DEPARTMENT STORES ON THE RETAIL SCENE.

UNDER THE CONDITIONAL AGREEMENT, METRO WILL SIGN A PACT IN THE NEAR FUTURE TO LEASE ITS 21,000 SQUARE METER RETAIL SPACE IN THE COMPLEX TO TAKASHIMAYA FOR 20 YEARS STARTING FROM THE END OF 1992.

THE PACT IS SUBJECT TO APPROVAL FROM THE GOVERNMENT. TAKASHIMAYA WILL PAY METRO AN ANNUAL RENTAL OF ABOUT 28 MILLION SINGAPORE DOLLARS (16 MILLION DOLLARS) A YEAR FOR THE FIRST THREE YEARS. THE RENTAL IS SUBJECT TO REVIEW EVERY THREE YEARS.

METRO HAS A 27 PERCENT STAKE IN THE NGEE ANN CITY PROJECT, WHILE NGEE ANN KONGSI, A CLAN ASSOCIATION, ORIGINALLY HAD A 73 PERCENT STAKE BEFORE IT SOLD 30 PERCENT OF IT TO TAKASHIMAYA. IT ALSO LEASED OUT ALL ITS RETAIL SPACE TO THE JAPANESE STORE.

THE SIGNING OF THE DEAL MEANS THAT TAKASHIMAYA, WHICH ALREADY OCCUPIES 48,000 SQUARE METERS OF THE SHOPPING SPACE IN THE COMPLEX, WILL HAVE FULL CONTROL OF THE WHOLE RETAIL AREA.

THE ENTRY OF BIG JAPANESE DEPARTMENT STORES HAS CREATED COMPETITION AMONG LOCAL RETAILERS, AND RAISED THE PRICE OF PROPERTY IN THE ORCHARD ROAD SHOPPING DISTRICT.

TAKASHIMAYA HAD PLANNED TO MAKE ITS 48,000 SQUARE METER STORE, WHICH WILL OPEN BY 1993 INTO SOUTHEAST ASIA'S LARGEST DEPARTMENT STORE.

IT ALSO PLANS TO BRING A WHOLE NEW CONCEPT OF SHOPPING TO SINGAPORE BY BECOMING A COMBINED SHOPPING AND CIVIC CENTER.

METRO, WHICH WANTS TO CAPTURE A SHARE OF THE JAPANESE TOURIST MARKET, HAD WANTED TO TEAM UP WITH A JAPANESE STORE.

BUT LAST YEAR, SEIBU DEPARTMENT STORE ABANDONED A JOINT VENTURE TO OPEN A STORE WITH METRO BECAUSE LAND PRICES AND TENANT FEES WERE SURGING IN RESPONSE TO THE PRESENCE OF JAPANESE RETAILERS.

COMMENTING ON THE LATEST MOVE BY TAKASHIMAYA, METRO SAID IN A STATEMENT THAT ''THIS WILL CONTRIBUTE SIGNIFICANTLY TO THE IMAGE OF ... THE PROJECT AND TO THE ENHANCEMENT OF ITS VALUE.''

IT ADDED, ''METRO BELIEVES THAT THE LEASE OF THE RETAIL PREMISES IS ECONOMICALLY THE BEST OPTION CURRENTLY AVAILABLE.''

SINGAPORE ALREADY HAS SIX JAPANESE DEPARTMENT STORES AND SUPERMARKETS -- ISETAN, YAOHAN, DAIMARU, SOGO, TOKYU, AND MEITETSU.

SEOUL (DEC. 24) KYODO - NORTH KOREA, APPARENTLY ANGERED BY UNWANTED PUBLICITY HAS REFUSED TO ACCEPT 800 TONS OF RICE DONATED BY A SOUTH KOREAN VOLUNTEER GROUP, A SOUTH KOREAN NEWSPAPER SAID SUNDAY.

THE JOONGANG ILBO QUOTED PARK KYONG YUN, A U.S.-BASED KOREAN BUSINESSMAN INVOLVED IN THE DONATION PROJECT, AS SAYING THAT NORTH KOREA WILL BE RETURNING THE RICE TO SOUTH KOREA IN THE NEW YEAR.

THE RICE WAS COLLECTED MOSTLY BY CHRISTIANS IN SOUTH KOREA UNDER THE ''RICE OF LOVE'' PROJECT.

ACCORDING TO PARK, NORTH KOREA HAD ORIGINALLY ACCEPTED THE RICE DONATION ON CONDITION THERE WAS NO PUBLICITY ABOUT THE GIFT, AND HAS DECIDED TO SEND IT BACK TO SOUTH KOREA BECAUSE THE SOUTH KOREAN SIDE HAD BROKEN THE PLEDGE.

PARK ALSO DENIED SOUTH KOREAN PRESS REPORTS THAT UNDERWEAR AND OTHER CONSUMER GOODS HAD BEEN SENT TO NORTH KOREA ALONG WITH THE 800 TONS OF RICE.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) KYODO - THE FINANCE MINISTRY PRESENTED MONDAY A DRAFT BUDGET FOR THE COMING FISCAL YEAR THAT AIMS TO BRING JAPAN'S INFERIOR LIVING STANDARDS TO LEVELS COMMENSURATE WITH ITS ECONOMIC STRENGTH.

THE DRAFT BUDGET ALSO FEATURES CONTINUED EFFORTS TOWARD FISCAL RESTRUCTURING BY ACHIEVING SOME REDUCTION IN GOVERNMENT BOND ISSUES DESPITE SLUGGISH TAX REVENUE GROWTH AMID A SLOWDOWN IN THE JAPANESE ECONOMY.

THE DRAFT BUDGET, APPROVED AT A SPECIAL CABINET MEETING, ALLOCATED 70,347.4 BILLION YEN FOR ITS GENERAL ACCOUNT FOR FISCAL 1991, STARTING NEXT APRIL, A 6.2 PERCENT INCREASE OVER THE INITIAL BUDGET FOR THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR.

OF THE SUM, THE GOVERNMENT WOULD SPEND 37,238.2 BILLION YEN, UP 5.3 PERCENT OVER FISCAL 1990. THE REMAINING AMOUNT WOULD BE SET ASIDE FOR DEBT-SERVICING COSTS AND FUNDS ALLOTTED TO LOCAL GOVERNMENTS.

THE 5.3 PERCENT EXPANSION IN GENERAL OPERATING EXPENDITURES, THE BIGGEST SINCE A 5.1 PERCENT RISE IN FISCAL 1980, IS CHIEFLY ATTRIBUTABLE TO JAPAN'S 10-YEAR PROGRAM OF SOCIAL INFRASTRUCTURE SPENDING EMBODIED IN THE STRUCTURAL IMPEDIMENTS INITIATIVE (SII) TALKS WITH THE UNITED STATES.

IN LINE WITH THE FINAL SII AGREEMENT IN JUNE, WHICH OBLIGES JAPAN TO SPEND 430 TRILLION YEN OVER THE NEXT DECADE ON PUBLIC WORKS PROJECTS, THE MINISTRY ESTABLISHED A NEW BUDGET ITEM WORTH 200 BILLION YEN FOR IMPROVEMENT OF THE NATIONAL QUALITY OF LIFE.

MINISTRY OFFICIALS SAID THE FISCAL 1991 BUDGET MARKS A FIRST STEP TOWARD IMPROVEMENT OF ITS POOR SOCIAL INFRASTRUCTURE, AN URGENT TASK FOR A COUNTRY FACED WITH A RAPIDLY AGING POPULATION.

DESPITE HAVING ONE OF THE HIGHEST PER CAPITA INCOMES IN THE WORLD, THE QUALITY OF JAPAN'S SOCIAL INFRASTRUCTURE IS BELIEVED TO BE BELOW EVEN THE 1965 STANDARDS IN THE UNITED STATES, GERMANY, AND FRANCE.

THE DRAFT BUDGET, WHICH PROVIDES THE BASIC FRAMEWORK FOR GOVERNMENT SPENDING IN THE NEW FISCAL YEAR, IS SUBJECT TO FURTHER NEGOTIATION AND SLIGHT MODIFICATION BEFORE THE GOVERNMENT ADOPTS ITS FINAL PROGRAM ON THE WEEKEND. THE BUDGET WILL THEN BE SENT TO THE DIET FOR APPROVAL IN LATE JANUARY.

DEBT-SERVICING EXPENSES, ANOTHER ITEM PUSHING UP GENERAL EXPENDITURES, WOULD RISE 10.8 PERCENT TO 15,834.3 BILLION YEN, ACCOUNTING FOR 22.5 PERCENT OF THE GENERAL-ACCOUNT OUTLAYS.

MINISTRY OFFICIALS ATTRIBUTED THE RISE MAINLY TO INCREASED INTEREST PAYMENTS ON GOVERNMENT BONDS OUTSTANDING. THE COUPON RATE ON SUCH BONDS HAS RISEN ABOUT 2 PERCENTAGE POINTS IN THE PAST YEAR.

THE DRAFT BUDGET IS BASED ON A GOVERNMENT ESTIMATE THAT THE JAPANESE ECONOMY WILL GROW 3.8 PERCENT IN THE COMING FISCAL YEAR, MODEST COMPARED WITH A REVISED 5.2 PERCENT EXPANSION FOR FISCAL 1990.

TAKING INTO ACCOUNT THE EXPECTED SLOWDOWN IN THE ECONOMY, THE DRAFT BUDGET CALLS FOR A 6.5 PERCENT GROWTH IN TAX REVENUE, TO 61,772.0 BILLION YEN, A SUBSTANTIAL DECLINE FROM THE 13.7 PERCENT INCREASE ORIGINALLY ENVISAGED IN THE FISCAL 1990 BUDGET.

THE LEVEL-OFF IN TAX REVENUE WOULD LEAD THE GOVERNMENT TO ISSUE LARGER-THAN-EXPECTED PUBLIC WORKS-FINANCING BONDS, OR CONSTRUCTION BONDS, TOTALING 5,343.0 BILLION YEN, BRINGING OUTSTANDING GOVERNMENT BONDS TO ABOUT 168 TRILLION YEN AT THE END OF FISCAL 1991.

THE TOTAL ISSUES, THOUGH SMALLER BY 250.2 BILLION YEN THAN FISCAL 1990, MEAN THAT THE GOVERNMENT WOULD FAIL TO ACHIEVE ITS ORIGINAL PLAN TO SLASH ITS BOND ISSUES BY 400 BILLION YEN IN THE NEW FISCAL YEAR UNDER ITS FISCAL RESTRUCTURING POLICY.

THE COMBINED SUM OF BOND ISSUES REPRESENTS 7.6 PERCENT OF THE TOTAL REVENUE, AGAINST AN 8.4 DEBT DEPENDENCE IN THE ORIGINAL FISCAL 1990 BUDGET.

UNDER THE RESTRUCTURING PROGRAM, THE GOVERNMENT IS SUPPOSED TO REDUCE THIS RATIO BELOW 5 PERCENT IN THE FIVE-YEAR PERIOD, BEGINNING NEXT YEAR.

THE MINISTRY OFFICIALS EXPRESSED REGRET OVER THE FAILURE TO CURB BOND ISSUES TO THE ORIGINALLY PLANNED LEVEL, BUT THEY SAID THIS IS INEVITABLE, GIVEN SLOWER TAX REVENUE GROWTH AND RISING INTEREST RATES.

''SHAVING 250 BILLION YEN WOULD BE A NEW MOVE TOWARD FISCAL RESTRUCTURING,'' A MINISTRY OFFICIAL SAID.

WITH TAX REVENUE AND BOND ISSUES FALLING FAR SHORT OF GENERAL EXPENDITURES, THE DRAFT BUDGET CALLS FOR CONTRIBUTIONS FROM THE BANK OF JAPAN (BOJ) AND A TRANSFER OF FUNDS FROM A SPECIAL ACCOUNT FOR FOREIGN EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS AS WELL AS PROCEEDS FROM SALES OF THE GOVERNMENT'S HOLDINGS IN NIPPON TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CORP (NTT).

IN ADDITION, THE GOVERNMENT WOULD FREEZE A PORTION OF ITS TAX GRANTS TO LOCAL GOVERNMENTS.

ALONG WITH THE 200 BILLION YEN SPECIAL OUTLAYS, PUBLIC WORKS SPENDING UNDER GENERAL EXPENDITURES WOULD INCREASE 6.0 PERCENT OVER FISCAL 1990 TO 6,589.7 BILLION YEN, A SHARP RISE FROM THE 0.3 PERCENT GROWTH IN THE FISCAL 1990 BUDGET.

THE MINISTRY OFFICIALS SAID THESE EXPENDITURES, COMBINED WITH OTHER OUTLAYS FOR PUBLIC WORKS PROJECTS IN THE BUDGET, WILL ENABLE JAPAN TO ENSURE THE 6.3 PERCENT GROWTH IN PUBLIC SPENDING ENVISAGED UNDER THE SII AGREEMENT.

IN VIEW OF THE QUICKLY RELAXING TENSIONS BETWEEN THE EAST AND WEST, DEFENSE SPENDING WOULD BE GIVEN LESS IMPORTANCE, RISING 5.1 PERCENT TO 4,372.9 BILLION YEN, THE LOWEST GROWTH SINCE 1960.

THE GROWTH, WHICH COMPARES WITH A 6.1 PERCENT INCREASE IN THE FISCAL 1990 BUDGET, REPRESENTS 0.951 PERCENT OF THE NATION'S GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT (GNP), MAKING FISCAL 1991 THE SECOND CONSECUTIVE YEAR IN WHICH DEFENSE OUTLAYS ARE KEPT BELOW 1 PERCENT OF GNP.

JAPAN HAD KEPT THE RATIO BELOW 1 PERCENT FROM 1976 THROUGH 1987 AFTER WHICH THEN PRIME MINISTER YASUHIRO NAKASONE SCRAPPED THE CABINET-IMPOSED LIMIT UNDER PRESSURE FROM WASHINGTON TO SHARE MORE OF THE DEFENSE BURDEN.

THE DRAFT BUDGET ALSO EARMARKS ABOUT 865.0 BILLION YEN FOR OFFICIAL DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE (ODA), OR AID TO DEVELOPING COUNTRIES AND INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS, AN AROUND 5.8 PERCENT INCREASE OVER THE FISCAL 1990 BUDGET.

THE INCREASE, COMPARED WITH 8.2 PERCENT GROWTH IN FISCAL 1990, IS FAR SMALLER THAN THE 9.7 PERCENT INCREASE THE FOREIGN MINISTRY CONTENDED IS NEEDED TO ACCOMPLISH JAPAN'S PLEDGE TO EXTEND 50 BILLION DOLLARS IN ODA OVER A FIVE-YEAR PERIOD STARTING IN 1988.

OF THE OUTLAYS, 302.5 BILLION YEN WOULD BE SET ASIDE FOR FUNDS GOING TO THE GOVERNMENTAL OVERSEAS ECONOMIC COOPERATION FUND (OECF) IN RELATION TO JAPAN'S FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO THE SO-CALLED FRONTLINE NATIONS -- EGYPT, JORDAN, AND TURKEY -- THAT HAVE BEEN HARDEST HIT BY THE CRISIS IN THE PERSIAN GULF.

THE ODA OUTLAYS WOULD CONFIRM JAPAN'S POSITION AS THE WORLD'S TOP DONOR OF ODA FUNDS ON A DOLLAR-BASIS FOR THE THIRD STRAIGHT YEAR.

AT THE SAME TIME, THE MINISTRY PROPOSED A MILD 5.2 PERCENT GROWTH IN THE FISCAL INVESTMENT AND LOANS PROGRAM TO 36,362.2 TRILLION YEN FOR THE NEXT FISCAL YEAR.

THE PROGRAM, KNOWN AS THE SECOND BUDGET, DRAWS ON RESOURCES FROM POSTAL-SAVINGS ACCOUNTS AND OTHER NON-TAX REVENUE AND IS USED FOR SPENDING ON HOUSING LOANS, ROADS, AND OTHER ITEMS.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) KYODO - THE FINANCE MINISTRY PROPOSED ON MONDAY A DRAFT DEFENSE BUDGET FOR FISCAL 1991 BEGINNING APRIL NEXT YEAR TOTALING 4,372.9 BILLION YEN, UP 5.1 PERCENT OVER THE PREVIOUS FISCAL YEAR, BUT POSTING THE LOWEST INCREASE IN 31 YEARS.

THE 5.1 PERCENT INCREASE IS THE LOWEST SINCE 1961 WHEN THE FIGURE WAS 0.6 PERCENT, THE YEAR BEFORE A SUDDEN LEAP TO DOUBLE DIGIT FIGURE INCREASES WHICH WENT VIRTUALLY UNBROKEN UNTIL 1979.

THIS LATEST LOW IS ATTRIBUTABLE TO A RELAXATION IN TENSIONS BETWEEN THE SOVIET BLOC AND THE WEST'S CAPITALIST NATIONS, A FINANCE MINISTRY OFFICIAL SAID.

THE OFFICIAL SAID THE NEW AUSTERITY IN DEFENSE SPENDING IS IN LINE WITH THE 1991-1995 FIVE-YEAR MID-TERM DEFENSE SPENDING PROGRAM BEGINNING APRIL NEXT YEAR, APPROVED BY THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT ON DECEMBER 20.

THE MID-TERM DEFENSE PROGRAM WILL COST A TOTAL OF 22.75 TRILLION YEN. IT REPRESENTS AN AVERAGE ANNUAL INCREASE IN DEFENSE OUTLAYS OF 3 PERCENT, ABOUT HALF OF THE 5.4 PERCENT ANNUAL RATE OF INCREASE IN THE PREVIOUS 1986-1990 PLAN.

DESPITE A 3 PERCENT ANNUAL INCREASE ENVISAGED FOR THE NEXT FIVE-YEAR DEFENSE PLAN, A 5 PERCENT ANNUAL HIKE FOR DEFENSE SPENDING IN THE DRAFT FISCAL 1991 BUDGET IS CAUSED BY RISING PERSONNEL COSTS AT 1.75 TRILLION YEN AND PREVIOUS CONTRACT COSTS AT 1.7 TRILLION YEN SCHEDULED TO BE PAID DURING THE NEXT FISCAL YEAR.

THE DEFENSE AGENCY EARLIER REQUESTED THE MINISTRY ALLOCATE 4,402.3 BILLION YEN UP 5.8 PERCENT OVER THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR.

THE FINANCE MINISTRY WILL FINALIZE DEFENSE SPENDING FOR FISCAL 1991 LATE THIS WEEK FOLLOWING BARGAINING WITH THE AGENCY.

IN ITS PROPOSAL, THE FINANCE MINISTRY REFUSED THE AGENCY'S FUNDING REQUESTS FOR 34 TYPE-90 TANKS FITTED WITH 125-MM GUNS AND ONE AEGIS SHIP, WHILE REDUCING FROM 11 TO SIX THE NUMBER OF F-15 FIGHTERS. ;;MORE NNNN R026 R CA15 R :BUDGET-DEFENSE 2 TOKYO:

DEFENSE EXPENDITURES WERE PUT AT 0.951 PERCENT OF THE NOMINAL GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT (GNP). THIS WOULD BE THE SECOND CONSECUTIVE YEAR SUCH SPENDING HAS BEEN KEPT BELOW 1 PERCENT. AN OUTLAY OF MORE THAN 1 PERCENT OF GNP WAS RECORDED FROM 1987 TO 1989.

THE RESTRICTION OF DEFENSE SPENDING TO 1 PERCENT OF THE NATION'S GNP WAS INITIATED BY PRIME MINISTER TAKEO MIKI'S CABINET IN 1976.

STANDARDIZED CALCULATIONS OF MILITARY STRENGTH USED BY THE NATO ALLIANCE HAVE MADE JAPAN THE THIRD HIGHEST DEFENSE SPENDER IN THE WORLD. DEFENSE EXPERTS POINT TO HIGH PERSONNEL SPENDING AND THE HIGH VALUE OF THE YEN AGAINST THE DOLLAR TO ACCOUNT FOR THE AMOUNT.

REFERRING TO ITEMS SET ASIDE BY THE MINISTRY, MILITARY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT COSTS INCREASED FROM 103.2 BILLION YEN FOR FISCAL 1990 TO 104.4 BILLION YEN FOR FISCAL 1991.

THE MINISTRY ALSO ALLOCATED 46.6 BILLION YEN ON A CONTRACT BASIS FOR MILITARY BARRACKS AT 67 SITES AND 1,159 DEFENSE PERSONNEL FAMILY HOUSING UNITS. BARRACKS AT 43 OF 67 SITES WILL BE IMPROVED BY EXPANDING FLOOR SPACE AND BY ACCOMMODATING FEWER PERSONNEL PER ROOM IN EACH BARRACK.

THE MINISTRY ALSO INCREASED ITS ALLOCATION FOR THE COST OF SUPPORTING U.S. FORCES STATIONED IN JAPAN FROM 168 BILLION YEN IN FISCAL 1990 YEAR TO 177.5 BILLION YEN IN FISCAL 1991 YEAR.

OF THE 177.5 BILLION YEN, 10.2 BILLION YEN IS FOR HEATING AND WATER COSTS, WHICH JAPAN WILL PAY FOR THE FIRST TIME IN FROM FISCAL 1991.

ADDITIONAL DISBURSEMENT FOR HEATING AND WATER UTILITIES WILL REACH 84 BILLION YEN IN 1995, THE LAST YEAR OF THE FIVE-YEAR DEFENSE PLAN BEGINNING APRIL NEXT YEAR, BRINGING JAPAN'S TOTAL SPENDING TO 50 PERCENT OF TOTAL U.S. BASE SUPPORT COSTS.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) KYODO - JAPAN'S BUSINESS CIRCLES ARE DOUBTFUL THAT THE COUNTRY'S WIDELY-TRUMPETED 10-YEAR PROGRAM OF GREATER SPENDING ON THE SOCIAL INFRASTRUCTURE WILL REALLY HELP IMPROVE NATIONAL LIVING STANDARDS.

IN THE WAKE OF THE FINANCE MINISTRY'S PRESENTATION OF ITS BUDGET DRAFT FOR THE NEW FISCAL YEAR, BUSINESS LEADERS EXPRESSED DISSATISFACTION THAT THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE NEW 200 BILLION YEN ALLOCATION FOR PUBLIC WORKS SPENDING IN THE DRAFT LACKS FLEXIBILITY.

''THE DRAFT BUDGET DEMONSTRATES THE DIFFICULTY OF CHANGING THE RIGID

DISTRIBUTION OF PUBLIC SPENDING THAT HAS LONG BEEN WEDDED TO ENTRENCHED INTERESTS,'' SAID TAKASHI ISHIHARA, PRESIDENT OF THE JAPAN ASSOCIATION OF CORPORATE EXECUTIVES.

THE 200 BILLION YEN OUTLAY, THE HIGHLIGHT OF THE DRAFT BUDGET FOR FISCAL 1991, STARTING NEXT APRIL, WAS ESTABLISHED IN LINE WITH JAPAN'S PLEDGE AT THE STRUCTURAL IMPEDIMENTS INITIATIVE (SII) TALKS WITH THE UNITED STATES TO SUBSTANTIALLY BOOST ITS PUBLIC WORKS SPENDING OVER THE NEXT DECADE.

DESPITE THE SPIRIT OF THE PLAN, HOWEVER, 25 BILLION YEN OF THE AMOUNT WOULD BE SET ASIDE FOR NONPUBLIC WORKS PROJECTS, APPARENTLY IN RESPONSE TO STRONG LOBBYING FROM VARIOUS MINISTRIES.

THIS DISAPPOINTED BUSINESS OFFICIALS, WHO HAVE HAILED THE PROGRAM AS BENEFICIAL TO THE IMPROVEMENT OF JAPAN'S STANDARD OF LIVING, WHICH IN MANY RESPECTS LAGS FAR BEHIND THOSE OF OTHER INDUSTRIALIZED NATIONS.

ROKURO ISHIKAWA, PRESIDENT OF THE JAPAN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY, IS DISSATISFIED WITH THE TOTAL SUM OF PUBLIC WORKS OUTLAYS ENVISAGED IN THE BUDGET DRAFT, INCLUDING THE 200 BILLION YEN.

''THE AMOUNT IS TOO LOW FOR THE 10-YEAR PROGRAM TO BE ACCOMPLISHED,'' HE SAID.

THE 200 BILLION YEN WILL COME ON TOP OF ROUTINE PUBLIC WORKS SPENDING UNDER THE GENERAL ACCOUNT BUDGET, WHOSE GROWTH HAS BEEN STRICTLY LIMITED BY GOVERNMENT POLICY.

BUSINESS LEADERS, HOWEVER, HAILED THE REDUCED EMPHASIS ON DEFENSE EXPENSES IN THE BUDGET DRAFT, WHICH CALLS FOR A 5.1 PERCENT GROWTH IN SUCH OUTLAYS, THE LOWEST SINCE 1960.

''THIS REFLECTS REALISM TOWARD THE QUICKLY IMPROVING RELATIONS BETWEEN THE EAST AND THE WEST,'' SAID GAISHI HIRAIWA, NEW CHAIRMAN OF THE FEDERATION OF ECONOMIC ORGANIZATIONS (KEIDANREN).

TOKYO (DEC. 24) KYODO - THE FINANCE MINISTRY ANNOUNCED ON MONDAY IT WILL ALLOCATE 90 MILLION YEN FOR FISCAL 1991 TO PROMOTE LABOR-RELATED PROJECTS IN TWO EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES, THE FIRST TIME IT HAS DONE SO IN THE POSTWAR PERIOD.

THE LABOR MINISTRY EARLIER ASKED THE FINANCE MINISTRY TO ALLOCATE 212 MILLION YEN FOR HUNGARY AND POLAND THROUGH THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR ORGANIZATION (ILO) BECAUSE OF A NEED FOR TECHNICAL AND MANAGEMENT TRAINING ASSISTANCE TO THE COUNTRIES, A LABOR MINISTRY OFFICIAL SAID.

HUNGARY AND POLAND HOPE TO RECEIVE TECHNICAL AND MANAGEMENT TRAINING AID. THEIR GOVERNMENTS SAY THE AID WILL BE ONE WAY TO STOP A DETERIORATION IN THEIR ECONOMIES SINCE LATE LAST YEAR.

THE FINANCE MINISTRY ALSO PROPOSED ALLOCATING 3.3 BILLION YEN FOR A SHARE OF COSTS WHICH JAPAN WILL EXTEND TO THE ILO FOR FISCAL 1991, UP FROM 2.7 BILLION YEN FOR FISCAL 1990.

LABOR-RELATED AID TO THE TWO EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES AND SHARE COSTS FOR THE ILO ARE PART OF 13.87 BILLION YEN FOR INTERNATIONAL LABOR COOPERATION, WHICH THE LABOR MINISTRY EARLIER ASKED THE FINANCE MINISTRY TO ALLOCATE.

THE LABOR AND FINANCE MINISTRIES ARE EXPECTED TO ENTER A ROUND OF BARGAINING OVER THE LABOR BUDGET FOR FISCAL 1991 TO FINALIZE IT BY LATE THIS WEEK.

THE LABOR MINISTRY SOUGHT TO RECEIVE 544.5 BILLION YEN FOR FISCAL 1991 FROM THE FINANCE MINISTRY LAST AUGUST, UP 5.7 PERCENT FROM THE PREVIOUS FISCAL YEAR.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) KYODO - THE FINANCE MINISTRY PROPOSED MONDAY TO ALLOCATE MORE FUNDS IN ITS DRAFT BUDGET FOR FISCAL 1991 TO ENCOURAGE COUPLES TO HAVE MORE CHILDREN AND STOP A DECLINE IN JAPAN'S BIRTHRATE.

THE MINISTRY SAID IT PLANS TO ALLOCATE 200 BILLION YEN, UP FROM 150 BILLION YEN IN THE CURRENT BUDGET, TO INCREASE GOVERNMENT CHILD-CARE ASSISTANCE.

A REPORT OF THE HEALTH AND WELFARE MINISTRY RELEASED IN JUNE SAID JAPAN'S BIRTHRATE FELL TO A RECORD LOW OF 1.57 CHILDREN PER WOMAN IN 1989.

ALARMED BY THE REPORT, THE HEALTH AND WELFARE MINISTRY AND THE RULING LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY HAVE PRESSED THE GOVERNMENT TO BOLSTER FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO NEEDY FAMILIES.

UNDER THE FINANCE MINISTRY DRAFT BUDGET, THE GOVERNMENT WILL PROVIDE FAMILIES WITH A MONTHLY ALLOWANCE OF 5,000 YEN EACH FOR THEIR FIRST AND SECOND CHILDREN AND 10,000 YEN FOR EACH SUBSEQUENT CHILD.

AT PRESENT, ONLY FAMILIES WITH A SECOND CHILD ARE ENTITLED TO CHILD-CARE ASSISTANCE. THE AMOUNT IS 2,500 YEN PER MONTH FOR THE SECOND CHILD AND 5,000 YEN FOR EACH SUBSEQUENT CHILD.

THERE IS, HOWEVER, A CATCH UNDER THE PROPOSED SYSTEM. WHILE UNDER THE PRESENT SYSTEM FAMILIES ARE ENTITLED TO COLLECT CHILD ALLOWANCE UNTIL THEIR CHILDREN ENTER PRIMARY SCHOOL -- GENERALLY AT THE AGE OF SIX -- THE NEW CHILD-CARE ENTITLEMENT STOPS WHEN THE CHILD TURNS THREE YEARS OLD.

THE MINISTRY ALSO PROPOSED SUBSIDIES OF 5 MILLION YEN A YEAR FOR EVERY NURSERY IN THE COUNTRY TO ENABLE THE CHILD-CARE FACILITIES TO EXTEND THEIR NURSERY HOURS TO 10 P.M.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) KYODO - THE FINANCE MINISTRY MONDAY WITHHELD GOVERNMENT FUNDS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF AN AIRPORT ON CORAL-RICH ISHIGAKI ISLAND IN OKINAWA PREFECTURE UNDER THE BUDGET PROPOSAL FOR THE NEW FISCAL YEAR.

THE TRANSPORT MINISTRY REQUESTED 360 MILLION YEN TO START THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE AIRPORT IN FISCAL 1991, BUT THE FINANCE MINISTRY REJECTED THE REQUEST, SAYING IT WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE TO START CONSTRUCTION BECAUSE THE OKINAWA PREFECTURAL GOVERNMENT PLANS TO RECONSIDER THE PROJECT.

INSTEAD, THE FINANCE MINISTRY ALLOCATED 9 MILLION YEN, OUT OF AIRPORT DEVELOPMENT FUNDS FOR OKINAWA, AS INVESTIGATING COSTS FOR THE PROJECT.

ENVIRONMENTALISTS CLAIM CONSTRUCTION OF A NEW AIRPORT WOULD THREATEN THE EXISTENCE OF THE WORLD'S OLDEST BLUE CORAL REEF LOCATED OFF ISHIGAKI ISLAND, SOME 400 KILOMETERS SOUTH OF THE MAIN ISLAND OF OKINAWA.

APART FROM ENVIRONMENTAL CONCERNS, THE ISHIKAGI AIRPORT PROJECT HAS ALSO BEEN BOGGED DOWN IN CONTROVERSIES SURROUNDING LAND ACQUISITION AT THE PROPOSED CONSTRUCTION SITE.

POLICE IN OKINAWA ARE INVESTIGATING A COMPANY IN CONNECTION WITH AN ALLEGED SPECULATIVE LAND DEAL INVOLVING THE PLANNED SITE OF THE AIRPORT.

MASAHIDE OTA, WHO WAS ELECTED GOVERNOR OF OKINAWA LAST MONTH, HAS CALLED FOR A THOROUGH INVESTIGATION INTO THE SCANDAL AND FOR CONSERVATION OF THE ENVIRONMENT.

ECONOMY.

British shares are lower, with the FTSE off 8 points in early afternoon trading ... Tokyo exchanges are closed. ... The dollar is higher and the long bond is priced to yield 8.28%. ... Brent crude is up 80 cents to $26.60. ... PAN AM CORP.'s board says it may accept a $375 million takeover offer from TRANS WORLD AIRLINES, but will need short-term financing to complete a deal. ... TEXAS INSTRUMENTS says it has reached an agreement with SAMSUNG ELECTRONICS for greatly increased semiconductor royalty payments from the Japanese company. bonds for stock, a move that would give them a 92% stake in the bank and reduce debt from $705 million to $100 million. Meanwhile, the bank has settled a civil fraud suit with the SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION by neither denying or admitting guilt, but agreeing to correct its third-quarter 1989 financial statement.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

Most financial markets close today at 2 p.m. ... Tomorrow: MERRY CHRISTMAS. ... Automakers report mid-December sales on Wednesday and the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS reports on existing home sales for November. ... On Thursday, the COMMERCE DEPARTMENT issues durable goods statistics for November and THE CONFERENCE BOARD puts out its December consumer confidence index. On Friday, COMMERCE issues leading economic indicators for November and the LABOR DEPARTMENT puts out the November import and export price indexes. ... Japan's FINANCE MINISTRY has started an investigation into whether Japanese brokerage houses intimidated two Japanese companies into canceling an agreement to issue new bonds through SALOMON BROTHERS.

FROM THE BULLS:

"I think this market made a major bottom at its October low," says GENE SEAGLE at GRUNTAL & CO. "We've had a number of higher highs and higher lows confirmed by both averages which, to me, is a Dow theory signal that hasn't been talked about very much. The trend of the market has turned up out of a rather large-sized saucer bottom. The big Christmas present to the bulls was the move by the FEDERAL RESERVE. The one wild card is the Middle East, but a great deal of that is already in the market. ... But to my mind it [even a shooting war] isn't going to turn this market from a bull to a bear. I think we've got a return to the old highs of 3000 [on the Dow] probably some time in the first half of the new year." (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 12/21)

"We're more optimistic than we have been in a long time," says ROBERT CHESEK, manager of the PHOENIX GROWTH FUND. "People are talking about failures in the banking system and war in the Mideast. Nobody's looking past the next quarter. ... I think 1991 will be a pretty good year and it will continue through 1992. Then we'll probably overdo the damn thing and we'll have a correction." (WSJ,

FRANK CAPPIELLO says stocks "probably are on a comeback trail for real. If you take a contrary view, everything is gloomy out there. This is the worst psychological depression in the economy I've ever seen. ... The recent survey of investment advisers indicated that 16 percent of them are bullish, as opposed to 31 percent last week. That's extraordinary. ... I would say that the majority is waiting for the market to top out in here and come down to 2100 or 2200. ... I would be worried about being out of the market at this stage -- very worried." ("Wall Street Week", 12/21)

"I think very short-term it might be tough to have a significant rally, but the overall rally that began in October is not complete," says STEVEN SHOBIN at MERRILL LYNCH. "I kind of look for a two-phase rally -- the first phase ending soon, somewhere around 2650-2660, then a little interim pullback and then possibly sometime in the first quarter of 1991 another good shot on the upside." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/21)

FROM THE BEARS:

None of the four market experts interviewed by "Barron's" for their 1991 outlook believes the bear market over -- but they differ on how far down it will work. JOE FESHBACH at SHEARSON LEHMAN sees the current rally ending in a slide toward about 2400 on the Dow and then a recovery next year to 2700-2800. STEVE LEUTHOLD of the LEUTHOLD GROUP also expects a recovery late next year, but only after the Dow goes down to 2100-2200. NED DAVIS of the research company that carries his name thinks the current rally could go to 2700, but looks for a slide below 2000 later in 1991. BOB FERRELL at MERRILL LYNCH expects the Dow to go down to 2000 or 1900, before launching a 1991 rise. He wants to be fully invested in stocks by the final quarter of 1991, but cautions that the Dow may do not better than bounce in a trading range between 2000 and 3000 for the next four or five years. ("Barron's", 12/24)

STOCK MARKET:

When concern about the Soviet Union caused stock prices to fall on Thursday, short arbs took advantage and bought back in at low prices. "That's why [triple witching Friday] didn't explode as it usually does, one way or the other," says PETER GRANDICH, chief strategist at AFM INVESTMENTS. He says stocks have been in a textbook bear market rally: "Momentum is waning, we're seeing less new highs. All indexes have only gone back to their previous major support levels -- they haven't gone any further." (CNBC "World Business", 12/24)

"I feel we'll be in a trading range type market for some time, perhaps for two years," says JOHN LEE, who heads PENSION MANAGEMENT CO. of Houston. "I don't believe are in a catastrophe-type market because a lot of bad news has been discounted. My guess is the Dow will trade between 2200 and 2900 the next few years." He is optimistic longer term, saying the Dow could double to 5000 in the mid-1990s. ("Investor's Daily", 12/24)

"In the next six months I think we are going to see a very good market," says WILLIAM WATERS. "But I think long-term there are a lot of things that have to be shaken out before we make a new bottom. ... For example, price-to-book is about 1.8 and it's usually 1.2 at a bottom. ... Price-earnings ratios are now about 14 on the Dow and they're usually about 10 on the bottom and price-dividend ratios are around 22 now and they're usually around 16 or lower on the bottom. I think we are going to have a new bottom in 1991, but I think '92 and beyond will see a resumption of a real good bull market." He would hold cash and not get into the market until the Dow goes below 2350. ("Wall Street Week" 12/24)

RICHARD EAKLE at EAKLE ASSOCIATES thinks the stock market has been discounting a recession for at least a year. "The vast majority of stocks made their tops in August of 1989," he says. "The economic community is very late in calling a recession." He says the Dow close of 2344.31 on Oct. 11 was "clearly the bottom." ("Investor's Daily", 12/24)

"I'm assuming the market will move [up] before the economy will move and I think, therefore, the market will start to move aggressively sometime toward the end of the second quarter into the early part of the third," says MONTE GORDON, who will continue to be a regular guest on "Wall Street Week" after retireing next week from DREYFUS CORP. "There has been a structural change in the economy, a weakening of some of the basic fundamentals, and as a consequence the recovery itself will be a little bit more labored and a little slower than we might have expected and might have hoped for. We are not going to respond significantly to the efforts of the Fed to reliquify and to lower rates as we might have done historically. ... That suggests that if you do begin to buy stocks here, where you come in is on the cyclical side." ("Wall Street Week", 12/21)

"If the economy is doing as poorly as some claim, then stock prices appear to be absurdly high at 15 times corporate earnings," says JOHN LONSKI, senior economist at MOODY'S. "That's simply too steep compared to the long-term average of 11.3 times earnings." ("Investor's Daily", 12/24)

Despite the heavy trading Friday, analysts say it was mostly because of the quarterly "triple witching" expiration of index futures and options and stock options. "It's been all expirations-related," observed TIM HELLMAN at DREYFUS. "Nobody did much of anything in the cash market." THOMAS GALLAGHER at OPPENHEIMER saw the same thing" "Nobody's doing anything heavy in the cash market right now." ("The Washington Post", 12/22)

mutual stock funds late last week show "a desire to be [invested] in North America" rather than Europe. "I think what we are seeing here is a flight ... out of Europe into North America because people are concerned that this [the resignation of SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER EDUARD SHEVARDADZE] may be just the first of a number of unsettling events in Russia." MONEY & CREDIT:

FRANCIS SCOTLAND, managing editor of "International Bank Credit Analyst" in Montreal, says the Fed "will have to cut interest rates a lot more before the stock market and the economy can be expected to bottom out, let alone recover." ELLEN HARRIS, chief investment officer for PAINEWEBBER's domestic mutual funds, says that so far as interest rates and the Fed are concerned, "the [stock] market is very much into a 'What are you going to do for me today and tomorrow'" mood. ("The Washington Post", 12/23)

"The Fed can turn the economy around. The question is, 'Will they?'," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "They're afraid of inflation, they're afraid of the dollar, they're afraid of their own shadows. They have a long tradition of But they're going to have to move pretty hard before this is over. ... If it appears that these moves toward easing money don't have an effect, they will ease some more. ... Money will ease. Interest rates will go down. The economy will come out of the recession [but] it may be very difficult." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/21)

"The recent sell-off of bonds could delay another round of ease until more bearish news on the economy arrives," says JOHN LONSKI, senior economist at MOODY'S. "Most likely that will occur with the release of the December employment report in early January. Ultimately ... bonds will take direction from inflation. ... Bonds may yet get support from a stock market tailspin." ("Investor's Daily", 12/24)

"The working backdrop of the fixed-income market right now is one of a dealer community that doesn't want to own any paper at year-end and an investor community that is unwilling to add any new paper to their portfolios," says DAVID RESLER, chief economist at NOMURA SECURITIES INTERNATIONAL. "But as we move into 1991, the uncertainty in the Middle East and the Soviet Union adds to the arguments that the yield curve will steepen." (NYT, 12/24)

"In the near term, the [bond] market contains a little uncertainty because of political issues, end-of-year pressures and because of supply," says DONALD FINE at CHASE MANHATTAN BANK. "But if you look further out, inflation is abating and the U.S. economy is weak -- and that is a prescription for lower bond yields." (WSJ, 12/24) THE ECONOMY:

"After eight years of economic growth, recessionary budget plans for at least the first half of 1991 are now a must," writes ROBERT EGGERT, editor of "Blue Chip Economic Indicators." ("Investor's Daily", 12/24)

"The outlook here is quite somber and frosty in most of the nation's retail chains, especially if they happen to be located in New England or the Northeastern U.S. or Southern California," says JANET MANGANO at JESUP JOSEPHTHAL & CO. "These regions have been the most negatively impacted by the frosty sentiments that consumers have this Christmas season." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/21)

IN WASHINGTON:

The SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION is preparing an overhaul of the regulations and laws governing the mutual fund business. "The goal is to allow for the development of new products without unnecessary impediments," says MARIANNE SMYTHE, director of the SEC investment management division. "But we also don't want to do anything that would diminish the protection that investors enjoy under the existing law." (NYT, 12/24)

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 24) PR NEWSWIRE - The carolers have stopped singing. The yule log has burnt to a cinder. And your living room floor is strewn with pine needles, empty boxes and strings of ribbon. If the go-go-go of the holidays has got you down, the following action tips from Dr. Peter Hanson -- stress management expert and best-selling author of "The Joy of Stress" and "Stress for Success" -- can get you on the road to recovery in no time:

-- Walk it off. Most people forget exercise just when they need it most. For many, a constant round of holiday parties, feasts and indulgences can result in depression or stress following the holidays. Schedule some time for your favorite recreational activity. If your schedule is too hectic, at least try walking or some other exercise for a half-hour each day. The result will reduce your stress and rejuvenate you for the new year.

-- Take a break. Even though it is grand to see a house full of relatives and friends together for the holidays, it can be wearing on the nerves. Try breaking away for a brief respite. Take your kids skiing, take in a museum, play or movie or even schedule a weekend away. Hilton Hotels offers a BounceBack weekend especially designed to reduce stress.

-- A little moderation. A house full of leftovers can be a dieter's worst enemy. Overeating is a major cause of post-holiday stress. Avoid this by limiting yourself to a mere taste of the holiday goodies. If you can't "just say no" say "just one."

Holidays can be the most active, but also the most stressful of times. By following these tips, you can greet the new year in better health and with a wealth of good feelings.

BOSTON (DEC. 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Michael LeM. Kennedy, chairman of Citizens Energy Corporation, announced today the start-up of the non-profit energy company's Shelter Winter Assistance Program to provide free heating oil to homeless shelters throughout the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Now in its fourth year, the Citizens program has delivered over 210,000 gallons of home heating oil to more than 35 shelters across the state since 1987. Local oil dealers deliver the fuel and agree to bill Citizens at their wholesale, rack price, thereby foregoing their profit-margin. The program covers deliveries made during the months of December, January and February.

"Last December's cold snap showed just how important homeless shelters really are," said Kennedy. "This year, the shelters are facing a double threat: the probability of severe weather and the possibility of rising oil prices due to the crisis in the Persian Gulf. We've had to increase our program budget by more than 60 percent this winter to provide the same level of service to our shelters. Citizens Energy remains committed to supporting these shelters and grateful to the local oil dealers for their generosity and cooperation in this effort to warm the lives of the homeless."

Homeless is the following cities will benefit from this program: Adams, Attleboro, Boston, Cambridge, Dorchester, East Boston, Fitchburg, Framingham, Gloucester, Greenfield, Halifax, Hingham, Holyoke, Ipswich, Jamaica Plain, Lowell, Lynn, Orange, Oxford, Pittsfield, Quincy, Roxbury, Salem, Springfield, Waltham, West Bridgewater, Worcester.

DARIEN, CT (DEC. 24) PR NEWSWIRE - Hundreds of cases of shampoo and hair conditioner will soon reach troops stationed in Saudi Arabia, Philip Voss Jr., president of Zotos International, announced today.

From the company's manufacturing facility in Geneva, N.Y., product has been trucked to the Picatinny Arsenal in Dover, N.J., where it's scheduled to be airlifted later this week to the troops in Operation: Desert Shield.

The contribution by Zotos is part of an industry-wide effort being mounted by the Salon Development Corporation of East Hanover, N.J., an owner and operator of 46 hair salons in seven East Coast states.

Voss, a former Army lieutenant, hopes that the company's products, which are only sold in hair salons, will be of some small comfort to the troops. While the Zotos products are largely consumed by women, Voss hopes that the shipment will be appreciated by both sexes.

If troops don't have the time (or available water) to use hair conditioner, he said that the product can double as a waterless shaving preparation.

Zotos, which sells a variety of professional hair care products worldwide, invented the permanent cold wave nearly 60 years ago. The packaged solutions for hair perms, however, will not be included in the shipment to Saudi Arabia.

BASKING RIDGE (DEC. 12) PR NEWSWIRE - AT&T (NYSE: T) announced today that it will provide a free High Seas Radiotelephone Service for U.S. Navy sailors and U.S. Marines stationed on ship in the Middle East from Christmas Eve through New Year's Eve.

Here's how the system works: A radio operator on a Navy ship selects a radio frequency monitored by an AT&T Coast Station. The caller's voice is transmitted in the from of high frequency radio signals and bounced off the ionosphere, a layer of the atmosphere about 210 miles about the surface of the earth.

After bouncing off the ionosphere, the radio signal is monitored at one of three AT&T Coast Stations: WOO is located in Manahawkin, N.J.; WOM near Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; and KMI near Inverness, Calif. The Coast Operator monitors the call, and tunes the antenna to optimize the radio circuit. The Coast Operator then turns the call over to a TSPS or OSPS operator to complete the call within the United States.

The Christmas week free offering follows two weeks of free calling in October and November for U.S. Military stationed in Saudi Arabia.

AT&T High Seas Radiotelephone Service is used primarily to communicate with ships, aircraft and oil rigs.

TOUCHING UPON THE PROBLEM OF SIGNING A NEW UNION TREATY, YELTSIN SAID THAT THE MOST IMPORTANT MATTER NOW IS TO PREVENT THE CENTRE'S CONFRONTATION WITH UNION REPUBLICS.

THE HEAD OF THE RUSSIAN PARLIAMENT EMPHASISED THAT A NEW UNION TREATY SHOULD BE BASED ON "HORIZONTAL TREATIES" BETWEEN UNION REPUBLICS.

"WE HAVE NEVER WANTED AND DO NOT WANT TO BE INITIATORS OF A BREAK-UP OF THE UNION. ON THE CONTRARY, WE ARE FOR A RENEWED UNION", YELTSIN EMPHASISED.

IN RESPONSE TO A QUESTION BY A USSR PEOPLE'S DEPUTY ABOUT YELTSIN'S ATTITUDE TO AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION, THE RUSSIAN PARLIAMENT PRESIDENT EMPHASISED THAT HE IS AGAINST THE "ABSOLUTISATION OF POWER" UNDER WHICH REPUBLICS WOULD REMAIN RIGHTLESS IN THE FACE OF A STRONG CENTRE.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Defense Secretary Cheney is warning Iraq's Saddam Hussein that ''the clock is ticking.'' At a news conference Sunday before leaving Saudi Arabia, Cheney said prospects for a peaceful solution to the Persian Gulf crisis are growing dimmer as the January 15th U-N deadline for use of force draws near.

In response, Iraq's minister of defense is quoted by the Iraqi news agency as saying that- in his words- ''Cheney will see how land burns under the feet of his troops and stooges, NOT in Iraq only, but it will be burnt by Saudi militants.''

Haiti's electoral council officially declared radical Catholic priest Jean-Bertrand Aristide president-elect of the Caribbean nation Sunday. In a speech aired Sunday afternoon over nationwide television, Aristide congratulated the Haitian people for their courage in supporting him over former World Bank economist Marc Bazin... the candidate backed by the U-S government.

Voters in the Yugoslavian republic of Slovenia overwhelmingly voted ''yes'' in Sunday's independence referendum. The vote authorizes the republic's nationalist government to secede from the Yugoslav federation. However, Slovenia's leaders say they DON'T plan immediately to declare independence.

In Serbia, an alliance of major opposition groups is claiming an early lead in returns Sunday from the final round of the largest Yugoslav republic's first post-war multi-party assembly elections. The opposition says it trounced the ruling communists in Belgrade and several other towns. But it declined to forecast whether it'll achieve its longshot goal of denying the communists a majority in the 250-seat Serbian Assembly.

Hospital officials in Dallas say one of six nursing home residents attacked late Saturday by a pipe-wielding man remains hospitalized for observation. The attacker- who also was carrying a Bible- broke into the facility and attacked the elderly residents... then sat down and waited for police to arrive. A former administrator of the nursing home, who witnessed the attack, says the attacker ''may have been deranged.''

(DEC. 24) UPI - The United States and Israel continue to investigate Friday's night ferry capsizing that killed 21 American sailors. The accident... off the Israeli coast and within sight of the U-S-S Saratoga... is the deadliest involving U-S service personnel taking part in Operation Desert Shield. On Sunday, a memorial service was held aboard the aircraft carrier. Sailors offered a 21-gun salute and dropped a wreath into the Mediterranean in tribute to their mates who drowned.

The four warring Cambodian factions, meeting in Paris, said Sunday that they've agreed on most of the key parts of a U-N-sponsored plan to end the 12-year civil war in the Southeast Asian country. The plan calls for a cease-fire and U-N supervision of the country in the period leading to free elections. But French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas says some major issues remained to be solved... including terms of the cease- fire.

A federal jury in New York has convicted a Brooklyn man of running a multi-Million-dollar drug operation that dominated the borough's heroin market in the late 1980's. Prosecutors say 28-year-old Ricardo Melendez. .. whose gang was directly linked to five drug-related murders and numerous kidnappings shootings, stabbings and beatings... faces a mandatory life sentence. He'll likely be sentenced in two months.

The increasing number of salmonella outbreaks nationwide may change the way American shoppers buy their eggs- pasteurized eggs in the carton instead of raw eggs in the shell. CHICAGO (DEC. 24) UPI - The Chicago White Sox completed their Christmas shopping Sunday night, trading Ivan Calderon and Barry Jones to the Montreal Expos for outfielder Tim Raines and a minor league pitcher.

Although a White Sox spokesman would not confirm the deal, General Manager Ron Schueler said the trade was done. A Calderon-for-Raines deal was discussed during the winter meetings, but the hangup at that time was Expos General Manager Dave Dombrowski's insistence on getting more than Calderon.

The White Sox were expected to call a news conference Monday to announce the trade.

''Just looking back over the last few years, every club that has won or participated in the World Series has had a quality leadoff hitter that created a lot of things to happen,'' Schueler told the Chicago Tribune Sunday night. ''Rickey Henderson. Steve Sax. Brett Butler. Barry Larkin. And I think Tim Raines is that kind of player.''

Raines, 31, hit .287, with 49 stolen bases and 62 RBI. The switch- hitter, whose best season offensively was 1986 when he batted .334, will fill the White Sox's needs for a leadoff man.

He played in 130 games this season, his 10th in the majors and all with Montreal.

Raines will be reunited - sort of - with former Expos teammate and close friend Andre Dawson, who plays for the crosstown Chicago Cubs.

From 1984 to 1987, Raines became only the eighth player - and first since Ty Cobb - to hit .300 and steal 50 bases for four straight seasons. He didn't reach either plateau in 1988, batting .270 with 33 steals.

The trade fulfills the Expos' search for someone to drive in runs. Calderon, 28, batted .273 in 1990 with the White Sox, hitting 14 home runs and 74 RBI. He also stole 32 bases in his fourth season with the White Sox, and was a much improved defensive player once he switched to left field.

Jones appeared in 65 games for the White Sox, primarily as closer Bobby Thigpen's setup man. Jones, a right-hander, who was hampered in 1989 with elbow problems, compiled a 11-4 record with a 2.31 ERA in the just completed season.

It is the White Sox's third transaction since the end of the season. Chicago also acquired outfielder Cory Snyder from Cleveland for pitchers Eric King and Shawn Hillegas, and signed free agent knuckleballer Charlie Hough.

TOKYO (DEC. 24) UPI - Christmas came to Japan a little early this year.

An unusual three-day weekend led some Christians to sing their hosannas early and many young people to celebrate with shopping sprees that left merchants ho-ho-hoeing ahead of schedule Monday.

In a land where only 1 percent of the citizens are Christian, Dec. 25th is just another workday.

That lead the Rev. Inoue to hold Christmas services Sunday at the tiny Tsutsujigaoka Apostolic Church.

''It's only two days before the day Jesus Christ was born,'' he told the dozen worshippers and their children who gathered in the unadorned wooden church in suburban Tokyo.

Christmas may not be an important religious holiday to many Japanese, but its secular aspects have a tremendous grip on the public imagination - one that businesses are pleased to exploit.

Piped-in Christmas carols filled the air from subway stations to roof-top restaurants. Wreaths, Christmas trees and holly were everywhere.

Merchants were helped this year by fair weather and a three-day weekend to mark the 57th birthday of Emperor Akihito, whose birthday became a holiday for this first time this year.

Armies of young people swarmed over department stores and shops in search of Christmas presents for their boyfriends or girlfriends.

'Young people prefer to give Christmas presents to their personal friends, rather than the traditional Japanese year-end gift, which has a business connotation,'' said Minoru Inoka, a spokesman for the trendy Parco department stores.

In Japan, where a strong economy and tight labor market have driven wages up quickly, youngsters are formidable consumers.

Some magazines advised young men that one month's salary was the correct amount to spend on a gift for their beloved.

Consquently, jeweled accessories for men or women were the hot items to give for Christmas this year, Inoka said.

Tiffany's Tokyo store was reportedly overrun for its open-heart silver pendant. There was a run on pearls at Mikimoto's, the originator of cultured pearls.

At Parco's Christmas ornaments section, a string of bells that play a carol - under the baton of a semiconductor - proved popular.

Figures for Parco's Christmas season were not yet compiled, but Inoka said sales were better than usual and appeared ready to peak Monday.

But not all Japanese were doing Christmas shopping over the weekend.

Some 175,000 of them poured into Tokyo Disneyland on Sunday and Monday to see the Christmas Fantasy parade there. The crowds were 60 percent larger than normal, a Disneyland spokesman said.

The parade, a rollicking melange of Santa's elves and Disney's favorites, drew an exceptionally high number of young couples, the spokesman said.

(DEC. 24) UPI- The Montreal Canadiens found themselves in an early 4-0 hole against the Philadelphia Flyers.

But they peppered 49 shots on Philadelphia goaltender Ron Hextall and climbed back to record a 4-4 overtime tie with the Flyers in Philadelphia Sunday night.

The Flyers took a 4-0 lead in the first period, then saw backup goaltender J.C. Bergeron stop the rest of their 17 shots, including three in OT.

Hextall, meanwhile, faced 17 shots in the first period, 15 in the second and 17 more in the third before the Canadiens sagged and did not record a shot in overtime.

''Hexy was great,'' Montreal Coach Pat Burns said. ''No doubt about that. I think they went into cruise control after they got the lead and thought it would be easy. But we scored one, then two, then three and finally four.''

Flyers Coach Paul Holmgren agreed that Hextall made it possible for his team, which is 2-7-3 in its last 12 games, to escape with one point.

''Without Hextall, it could have been 4-4 or worse in the first period,'' Holmgren said. ''There were a lot of scoring chances at both ends early. Ours just went in.''

Hextall took no solace in surviving the barrage.

''We're extremely disappointed with the way we played,'' he said. ''We didn't play well. We got a four-goal lead in the first period and it seemed like we let down.''

Russ Courtnall capped the Canadiens' comeback when he scored his 10th goal of the season at 15:06 of the third period.

Philadelphia's Gord Murphy failed to get the puck out of his own end and Mike McPhee passed to a wide-open Courtnall in the center of the ice.

Courtnall skated in alone on Hextall and beat him to the right side.

Denis Savard scored his second power-play goal of the game at 9:48 of the third period to bring the Canadiens within 4-3. Hextall stopped a shot by Tom Chorske but was out of position when Savard snapped the rebound into the net.

Montreal outshot Philadelphia 15-6 in the second period and scored two goals to cut the Philadelphia lead in half.

The Canadiens drew within 4-1 on Savard's power-play goal at 12:46, his 11th goal of the year.

Philadelphia's Ron Sutter received a major penalty for butt ending Savard and a game misconduct and the Canadiens had a two-man advantage thanks to a minor assessed against Mike Ricci when Savard put the rebound of a Stephane Richer shot past Hextall.

Shayne Corson scored on a wrap-around shot that beat Hextall at 18:22 to cut the Flyers' lead to 4-2. It was Corson's seventh goal of the season.

''It was a good comeback,'' Savard said. ''We made some mistakes in the first period but I don't think we played that badly. We did get 17 shots on goal.''

The Flyers took a 4-0 lead in the first period as Murray Craven scored twice against starting goaltender Andre Racicot.

Craven tallied his eighth goal of the season at 13:26 when the Flyers were awarded a penalty shot because Montreal's Mathieu Schneider closed his hand on the puck in the goal crease.

Craven faked Racicot to his backhand, then slipped the puck through Racicot's legs for Philadelphia's seventh goal in 18 penalty-shot attempts in franchise history.

Craven added another goal at 18:37 of the first period when his slap shot from

Philadelphia took a 1-0 lead on Tony Horacek's third goal of the season 4:46 into the game. Horacek was alone at the right side of the net when he took a pass from Norm Lacombe, paused to get control of the puck, then scored into the open net.

The Flyers went ahead 4-0 on Rick Tocchet's 23rd goal of the season, 59 seconds after Craven had scored his second goal. Tocchet put the rebound of a Jiri Latal shot into the net.

In other games Sunday night, Buffalo pounded Quebec 10-3, Chicago nipped Detroit 3-2, New Jersey held off Toronto 4-2, the NY Rangers tied Boston 5-5, Edmonton edged Vancouver 4-3, the NY Islanders overcame Pittsburgh 4-3 in overtime, and Minnesota shot down Hartford 5-2.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Sabres 10, Nordiques 3

At Buffalo, N.Y., Christian Ruuttu had two goals and two assists to lead the Sabres. Uwe Krupp had three assists and a goal for Buffalo.

Blackhawks 3, Red Wings 2

At Chicago, Steve Larmer and Jeremy Roenick each had a goal and an assist and goalie Jim Waite won his first NHL start, helping the Blackhawks snap the Red Wings' three-game winning streak.

Devils 4, Maple Leafs 2

At East Rutherford, N.J., Claude Lemieux scored twice and Brendan Shanahan added a goal and an assist to help the Devils extended their unbeaten streak to seven games. The loss snapped Toronto's unbeaten streak at three and was Toronto first road loss in six games.

Rangers 5, Bruins 5

At New York, Darren Turcotte capped the Rangers' three-goal third- period comeback, scoring the tying goal with 2:37 remaining. The late surge, with the Rangers scoring three times within 6:10, helped New York snap a two-game losing streak. Dave Christian scored two goals for the Bruins and Dave Poulin added a goal and an assist.

Oilers 4, Canucks 3

At Edmonton, Alberta, Esa Tikkanen scored on a power play at 12:07 of the third period to lift the Oilers, who snapped a three-game Vancouver winning streak.

Islanders 4, Penguins 3

At Pittsburgh, Patrick Flatley's third goal of the game with 31 seconds left in overtime lifted the Islanders to the victory, snapping the Penguins' six-game winning streak.

North Stars 5, Whalers 2

At Hartford, Conn., Dave Gagner scored twice in a 65-second span of the second period and completed his third career hat trick with 2:22 to play to carry Minnesota.

(DEC. 24) UPI - American forces were ready to attack Iraqi troops ''today'' to drive them out of Kuwait, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said, but Congress will debate the issue of who can declare war and troops prepared for Christmas in the desert.

Cheney was back in Washington after a five-day trip to the Gulf to review U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia and meet with troops who were homesick during the holidays but gung-ho for war.

''We would be prepared today if we were ordered today to undertake military action,'' Cheney said Sunday. ''If there was some clear provocation 10 minutes from now, the allied forces are ready to respond vigorously.''

Meanwhile sailors aboard the USS Saratoga tossed a wreath into the sea in a tribute to their 21 mates who were killed Friday when a ferry carrying them back to the aircraft carrier from the Israeli port city of Haifa capsized.

''We have suffered a very great tragedy. Every man on this mighty ship has had his heart in this throat, tears in his eyes and a knot in his stomach since the event,'' Capt. Joseph Mobley, commander of the USS Saratoga, told reporters after the memorial service. ''It is 21 lives lost. We still have the man whom we have not recovered. We have the utmost confidence that he did perish.

Divers brought up the 20th body Sunday morning and helicopters crisscrossed the water during the service in search of the last missing man in the worst accident involving servicemen participating in Operation Desert Shield.

Altogether, at least 78 American soldiers have died in accidents, including a serviceman killed Saturday when a truck overturned in eastern Saudi Arabia.

Cheney, who stopped in Cairo on his way home, said prospects were dim for a peaceful solution to the crisis because ''the clock is ticking'' on the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said in Washington that Congress will debate U.S. gulf policy when it convenes after Jan. 3, citing differences between some Congressional leaders and the Bush administration over who has the power to order using force in the gulf.

''The Constitution says that only the Congress can declare war,'' said Mitchell, D-Maine, speaking on the NBC program ''Meet the Press.' The president ''does have to come to Congress if he decides to make war and I believe offensive military action in the current circumstances in the Persian Gulf are self-evidently the making of war.

''So I think he would need the prior approval of Congress,'' Mitchell added. ''I told the president that many many times. I regret to say that it appears the adminstration doesn't agree.''

Troops in the Gulf region prepared for a very untraditional Christmas, but for Britain's famed ''Desert Rats,'' now deployed across one of the most barren expanses in Saudi Arabia, it is the way things must be this holiday and their commander expects his 250 soldiers to make the best of it.

''I always say to the lads, bearing in mind that we can't be with our nearest and dearest, the next best thing is to be with the regiment,'' Lt. Col. Andrew Denaro said.

Cheney's visit to Saudi Arabia came on the heels of a statement by Lt. Gen. Calvin Waller, who said certain armored tank divisions probably would not be ready for combat on Jan. 15 and could use another month of training. National security adviser Brent Scowcroft has also preached restraint.

But Cheney told reporters at a news conference in the port city of Dammam he was convinced his troops were prepared for a conflict.

Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, criss-crossed the desert trying to assure the nearly 300,000 troops deployed in the gulf region that the United States is ready for war and can deal Iraqi President Saddam Hussein a knockout punch.

At one stop, Powell was asked by a squadron of Air Force pilots how he liked their A-10 ''tank killer'' jets. ''It's gonna be fun if you get started,'' the top U.S. military commander kiddingly replied, evoking hoots and whistles.

Iraqi Minister of Defense Said Tuma Abbas was quoted by the Iraqi News Agency as saying in response to the defense secretary's statements ''Cheney will see how land burns under the feet of his troops and stooges, not in Iraq only, but it be will burnt by Saudi militants.''

INA also quoted reputed terrorist George Habash, secretary general of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, as saying his forces would retaliate against any ''aggression to be perpetrated by the United States against Iraq.''

Another alleged terrorist, Abul Abbas - leader of the Palestine Liberation Front and accused of masterminding the 1985 Achille Lauro cruise ship hijacking - said two weeks ago that his followers had picked out U.S. targets for possible terrorist attacks in case war in the region erupts.

In Doha, Qatar, leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council discussed the formation of a military defense network that would guard in the future against aggressive acts, such as the invasion of Kuwait, a member state.

Diplomatic sources said the leaders of the GCC, which is comprised of Saudi Arabia, Oman, Bahrain, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar, were considering asking Iran to be included in the security arrangements.

The proposal is in sharp contrast to past policies of the GCC, which supported Iraq during the 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war.

(DEC. 24) UPI - The maintenance crew came prepared as it should for any pregame at Boston Garden - practice balls, mops, electric fans.

These are all essential items when you play basketball at the Garden. You never know when the parquet floor will spring a leak.

The last time the Atlanta Hawks and the Celtics tried to play there Nov. 28, that's exactly what happened. The floor was unplayable because of condensation caused by heat at the Garden. It became so wet and slippery, the referees called the game with 10:30 to play in the second quarter.

They resumed the game Sunday with Boston leading 37-22 and the Celtics rolled over the Hawks by hitting their first 10 shots en route to a 132-104 victory.

Before play resumed, there was concern the game would be postponed for a second time. Unseasonably high temperatures, which caused the original problem with the floor last month, hit the Boston area Sunday. The thermometer reached the upper 60s in the afternoon and there were some slick spots on the Garden floor before the game.

The Celtics took extra maintenance precautions, including the use of electric fans before the game and during halftime to keep the surface dry. A different type of insulation was used between the age-old parquet floor and the ice surface below. The playing surface was also swabbed by large brooms during all time-outs.

Larry Bird scored 14 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and handed out 10 assists for his second triple-double of the season (and 57th of his career) as the Celtics ran their winning streak to seven consecutive games. Kevin Gamble scored 25 points, Robert Parish 18 points and Brian Shaw 16.

The Celtics have won 18 of their last 20 and 12 in a row at home. For the Hawks, who had won eight of their previous 10 games, John Battle was the high man with 17 points, followed by rookie Duane Ferrell with 16.

Already leading by 15 when play resumed, the Celtics hit their first 10 shots in a span of 4:50, swelling the Boston lead to 57-28. Gamble had four baskets during the 20-6 run while Bird had three assists and four points.

About three minutes into the resumption, disgusted Hawks Coach Bob Weiss cleared his bench. Boston led 69-41 at halftime and increased its lead to 37 several times in the third quarter. The lead peaked at 120- 82.

''It looked like we were worried about the floor,'' said Weiss. ''They weren't and they hit their first couple of shots. Our guys just weren't ready.''

(DEC. 24) UPI - Defense Secretary Cheney is back in Washington after a five-day trip to the Gulf to review U-S forces in Saudi Arabia and meet with troops. Cheney said prospects are dim for a peaceful solution to the crisis.

Prince Charles met Sunday in Saudi Arabia with members of the British contingent to the Persian Gulf forces. Most of the men were impressed at meeting the prince, but many expressed disappointment that Princess Diana had stayed home.

Members of the pro-Western Gulf Co-operation Council will issue a communique at the conclusion of their summit in Qatar today. Sources say the statement will call for the UNconditional withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait and might contain resolutions on a new defense network for the region.

Pro-democracy activists staged an UNsanctioned rally Sunday at Soviet Square in Moscow to urge the Congress of People's Deputies to reject Mikhail Gorbachev's bid for more presidential powers.

Officials in Yugoslavia say voters in Slovenia endorsed an independent state Sunday, authorizing the republic's nationalist government to secede from the Yugoslav federation. With 55 percent of the votes counted in Slovenia, 94 percent of voters endorsed independence.

COLOMBO, SRI LANKA (DEC. 24) UPI - Fourteen government soldiers and three civilian women were killed Monday when Tamil rebels detonated a land mine beneath a military truck that was taking sick troops for treatment at a hospital in the eastern part of the country.

Another five soldiers were critically wounded when the powerful land mine exploded 8:30 a.m. near the eastern port city of Trincomalee, 160 miles northeast of the capital, a senior military official said.

''Eighteen soldiers who were sick were being taken to the Horowapothana Hospital from the Diyatittewewa camp ... when the terrorists exploded the land mine under their vehicle,'' the official said.

He said the driver of the heavy military truck, which was carrying 18 sick soldiers, had also given a lift to three civilian women who wanted a ride to Horowapothana village. The three women and 14 of the soldiers were killed by the blast.

Security forces immediately cordoned off the area and launched a search for rebels belonging to the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, who are fighting for an independent Tamil homeland in the north and east of Sri Lanka.

The land mine attack came less than a week after Tiger rebels triggered an explosion beneath an army convoy in the Trincomalee area, killing Brigadier Lucky Wijeratne, a senior police official and six other soldiers.

Wijeratne was a leading strategist in the war against the Liberation Tigers. He was the top officer in the Trincomalee military district and the highest-ranking military official killed so far in seven years of fighting with the Tamil rebels.

His death led the government to renew its offensive against the Liberation Tigers. At least 92 rebels and 30 soldiers have been killed in the north and east of the country since Wijeratne was slain Dec. 18.

The Liberation Tigers have been fighting for an independent homeland off and on since 1983. The latest round of combat erupted in mid-June, when rebels launched simultaneous offensives against four military camps in the eastern part of the island nation.

Since then more than 3,600 rebels, soldiers and civilians have been killed in the fighting.

The Liberation Tigers claim that Sri Lanka's Tamil minority, which is predominantly Hindu, needs an independent homeland because of years of discrimination at the hands of the majority Sinhalese, who are mostly Buddhist.

SOWETO, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 24) UPI - Black leader Nelson Mandela, recalling his tough prison life and preparing to celebrate his first Christmas in almost 30 years as a free man, called Monday on the black majority to vow never to spend ''another Christmas in chains.''

''The message we wish to convey to you all is one of hope. ... We have a right to be free, and we shall be free,'' the African National Congress deputy president said in a Christmas message to the country.

''Let us vow never to celebrate another Christmas in chains,'' Mandela said, speaking at his home in the nation's largest black township of Soweto, south of Johannesburg.

He noted ANC President Oliver Tambo, who returned to South Africa Dec. 13 after three decades in exile, would be meeting President Frederik de Klerk for the first time Monday on a ''courtesy visit.''

''The South Africa so many have sacrificed so much to achieve is within sight '' Mandela said, referring to the ANC's fight against white minority rule, de Klerk's 11 months of racial reforms, and preliminary talks between the ANC and Pretoria on ending apartheid.

''Together let us walk this last, long grueling mile to reach a non- racial, non-sexist society ... where all forms of racial discrimination are abolished '' he said.

The 72-year-old Mandela, released from prison Feb. 11 after more than 27 years said his own first Christmas in jail was ''very miserable.''

But Mandela said that despite a year of factional black violence which has killed some 3,000 people and threatened to derail the talks between the ANC and the government, he was confident of a peaceful future.

He also repeated ANC predictions that the splintered black opposition could soon begin the process of unification. ''Practical steps may be in the pipeline to deal with this situation,'' he said.

''We have confidence in the wisdom and good sense of the majority to share the hope with you that the New Year will bring all of us nearer to a situation of justice and peace for all the people of our country,'' Mandela noted, apparently seeking to play down a recent war of words between the ANC and the government.

De Klerk, facing a surge of black impatience over the pace of racial reform, last Tuesday in his own Christmas message attacked the ANC for fanning ''the flames of confrontation.''

The ANC had issued Pretoria an ultimatum two days before to push through certain reforms before the end of April 1991 or face a possible suspension of the preliminary talks on ending white rule.

Government sources have since leaked the news that de Klerk intends to meet a key ANC demand, the scrapping of segregationist laws, at his opening of parliament speech on Feb. 1, 1991.

Other demands, including the complete return of all of an estimated 20,000 political exiles by the end of April and the release of some 1, 500 prisoners held for politically motivated crimes, are also expected to be met.

CAIRO, EGYPT (DEC. 24) UPI - Two U.S. servicemen from the aircraft carrier USS Midway were killed and five others were injured when a vehicle taking them on an off-road tour of the United Arab Emirates overturned, the U.S. Embassy in Abu Dhabi said Monday.

The accident occurred at 11 a.m. Sunday about 50 miles south of the town of Al Dofra while the sailors were riding in off-road vehicles, said Lt. Dane La Joye, a Navy spokesman in Washington.

The names of the dead and injured were withheld, but La Joye said two people were seriously injured and helicopters from the Midway were used to evacuate the victims.

The cause of the accident, which occurred during a ship-sponsored liberty trip was under investigation.

The deaths bring to 79 the number of U.S. servicemen killed in Operation Desert Shield since troops were deployed to the region in the aftermath of the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Twenty soldiers were killed over the weekend when a ferry carrying them back to their ship overturned off the coast of Haifa, Israel.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (DEC. 24) UPI - Unidentified gunmen late Sunday shot dead an official of the conservative Christian Phalange Party in a second such incident in less than a week, dealing another blow to a month-old government plan to restore law and order in unified Beirut, police said Monday.

Police said two assailants, using silencer-equipped guns, opened fire at Elie Daou and his pregnant wife at their house in the Christian neighborhood of Kfarshima.

Daou, a veteran leading figure of the Phalange Party, died instantly while his wife was critically wounded and taken to a nearby hospital, police said.

An Army communique said that following Daou's assassination Lebanese soldiers, entrusted to maintain law and order in unified Beirut, combed the area and arrested a number of suspects.

Lebanese Army troops have boosted their presence in and around Beirut after a Syrian-led force ousted renegade leader Gen. Michel Aoun on Oct. 13 and militias in the city began to formally disband.

But the government peace efforts in ''Greater Beirut'' have been marred with recurring violence.

On Tuesday, men using silencer-equipped guns killed Sami Abu Jawdeh, a Phalange official, in broad daylight in the Christian area of Zalka.

His assasination followed a series of night attacks on Phalange offices that wounded a number of people.

Phalange leader George Saadeh has repeatedly protested an increased presence of Syrian-backed militiamen in mainly-Christian areas.

(DEC. 24) UPI - The Soviet Congress of People's Deputies today approved largely symbolic resolutions calling for the Soviet Union to remain intact and to retain the name ''Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.''

Former national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said yesterday it would be ''difficult to justify'' U- S economic aid to the financially troubled Soviet Union if a move toward dictatorship results in bloodshed.

In the Philippines today, UNidentified assassins shot and killed a top aide to a vice mayor and his bodyguard as they cruised along a highway outside the U-S Clark Air Base in a jeep. The mayor was from Angeles, 50 miles north of Manila.

The South Korean government paroled 470 prisoners, including 76 juveniles, today in a special pardon marking Christmas. Officials say those guilty of political offenses and heinous crimes were excluded from the pardon.

Australians in two major states continued Christmas preparations Monday night under threat of major loss of life and property from a cyclone and widsespread bushfires. Cyclone Joy is heading for the north Queensland State coast.

In New South Wales State, large bushfires which smouldered overnight again flared up. Officials say hundreds of firefighters were battling to contain them. More than 20 homes were destroyed and more than one thousand Sydney residents were forced to leave their homes.

(DEC. 24) UPI - The Soviet Congress of People's Deputies voted today to approve largely symbolic resolutions calling for the Soviet Union to remain intact and to retain the name ''Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.'' The votes to preserve the Soviet Union will have little practical effect, however, because the fate of a union treaty binding the 15 republics together still depends on the agreement of each republic.

South African black leader Nelson Mandela today recalled his tough prison life and prepared to celebrate his first Christmas as a free man in almost 30 years. Mandela urged the vote-less black majority to vow never to spend what he called ''another Christmas in chains.'' In a Christmas message to the country, Mandela said ''We have a right to be free, and we shall be free.''

In Beirut last night, UNidentified gunmen shot and killed an official of the conservative Christian Phalange Party, in the second such incident in less than a week. The killing deals another blow to a month- old government plan designed to restore law and order in unified Beirut. Police said two gunmen, using silencer-equipped guns, opened fire at the official and his pregnant wife at their house. The woman is in critical condition.

South Korean President Roh Tae-woo says he would like his predecessor, Chun Doo Hwan, to return to normal life in Seoul before the end of the year. Chun has been under more than two years of self- imposed internal exile at a remote Buddhist temple. Roh said it is not desirable to have the former president spend another winter at a temple in a mountain. Chun left Seoul on November 23rd 1988, after apologizing to the nation for his alleged wrongdoings during his eight-year rule which ended earlier that year.

In Sri Lanka today, 14 government soldiers and three civilian women were killed when Tamil rebels detonated a land mine beneath a military truck that was taking sick troops for treatment at a hospital in the eastern part of the country. Another five soldiers were critically wounded when the powerful land mine exploded 160 miles northeast of the capital city of Colombo.

Communist guerrillas in the Philippines claimed responsibility today for the hijacking of a delivery truck in Manila three days ago and distributing its contents of butter and cheese to delighted slum dwellers. The rebels of the communist New People's Army said their action was part of ''Operation Yuletide Seizure,'' a Robin Hood-style of robbing from the rich and giving to the poor.

LONDON (DEC. 24) UPI - Stock prices ended lower Monday in thin Christmas Eve trading on the London International Stock Exchange, with the Persian Gulf crisis occupying the minds of the few dealers who took part in the shortened session.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which added 5.6 points Friday, slipped back 8.1 points to 2,156.3. The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 9.5 points to 1,678.9.

Volume amounted to 103 million shares, compared with the 526 million that changed hands Friday.

Analysts said stocks eased as a result of sabre-rattling comments by U.S. government officials on the Persian Gulf crisis over the weekend, cutting down any hopes of a Christmas Eve rally.

Among widely traded stocks, only oil stocks had cause for celebration, with Enterprise gaining 20 cents to $11.59 and London & Scottish Marine Oil adding 19 cents to $7.37, reflecting slightly firmer crude oil prices.

The 12 newly privatized British electricity companies suffered a bout of profit taking, with the combined package falling $76 to $2,774.

Retail stores eased, as Boots slipped 10 cents to $6.06 and Marks and Spencer weakened 6 cents to $4.20.

Meanwhile, debt worries undermined News International, which lost 10 cents to $2.09.

Imperial Chemical Industries fell 18 cents to $16.70 as the effects of recent downgradings continued to hit the London market's bellwhether chemicals company.

Markets were closed in Frankfurt for the holidays.

CAIRO, Egypt (DEC. 24) UPI - Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak renewed a warning Monday that Iraq would suffer massive numbers of casualities if war erupts in the Persian Gulf, and said the likelihood of war is increasing as the Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait draws near.

''Every day that passes is bringing Iraq closer to a war,'' Mubarak, a strong supporter of U.S.-led efforts to oust Iraq from the occupied emirate, told reporters in Cairo.

The U.N. Security Council has authorized multinational troops in the gulf region to use force against Iraq if it has not withdrawn from Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Mubarak's statements came one day after Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said during a visit to Cairo that there were no signs Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was going to pull out of the emirate, which he invaded Aug. 2.

''The Iraqi people will suffer severe casualties if a war erupted,'' Mubarak said.

The Egyptian president, who has sent 20,000 troops to join the U.S.- led force in the gulf, said the world was united against Saddam.

''When a leader of a state faces danger against his country, he should return to his senses and protect his people, even if he is forced to retract his word 500 times, so long as it is in the interest of his country,'' Mubarak said.

''The political solution does not mean a surrender,'' he added. ''We have to be realistic, but regretably some are still stubborn.''

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 24) UPI - Eight historic sites that closed this fall because of a federal budget crunch will reopen in 1991, federal officials said Monday.

A combination of public outcries and loosening federal budget strings made the openings possible, said Independence National Historic Park Superintendent Hobart Cawood.

''Because of the concern, not only in Philadelphia but across the country, and the real need that has been brought to the attention of those who could do something about it'' all the sites will be open by the spring, Cawood said.

The portrait gallery in the Second Bank of the U.S., which hosted 140,036 visitors last year, will reopen Feb. 17 and seven other tourist attractions in the vicinity of the Liberty Bell will reopen April 21, Cawood said.

The structures were shuttered in October when the federal government failed to provide enough money to keep them open. The Liberty Bell and Independence Hall the area's most popular tourist destinations, were not affected.

The bell and hall did close, however, for three days in October when the federal government temporarily ceased operating while Congress haggled over a new budget.

Cawood said the National Park Service, which oversees the historic sites, was able to free up some discretionary funds for Philadelphia and federal officials have promised increased funding in the next fiscal year.

He said the eight sites now have enough funding to remain open through the current fiscal year. In addition, other, unspecified, funding sources were being explored.

In October, U.S. Rep. Thomas Foglietta, D-Pa., was able to shake loose $650,000 for emergency repairs to the roof of Independence Hall.

Eight of the city's 19 historic federally run buildings closed to the public Oct. 1 amid an anticipated $483,000 budget shortfall for the current fiscal year.

Besides the Second Bank, the affected sites and their 1989 attendance figures are Old City Hall, 77,271; Graff House, 36,931; Pemberton House (Army/Navy Museum), 102,286; New Hall (Marine Corps Memorial Museum), 83,255; Todd House, 15,941; Bishop White House 12,869, and an architectural exhibit at 318 Market St., 93,658.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Two U-S servicemen from the aircraft carrier U-S-S Midway were killed and five others were injured last night when a bus taking them on a tour of the United Arab Emirates overturned. Two of the injured are in serious condition. The deaths bring to 79 the number of U-S servicemen killed in Operation Desert Shield since troops were deployed to the region.

Sailors aboard the U-S-S Saratoga fired a 21-gun salute and tossed a wreath into the sea yesterday in tribute to their 21 mates who drowned in a ferry accident Friday in Israel. Divers brought up the 20th body yesterday morning, several hours before the memorial service for those killed. Another American serviceman is missing and presumed dead in the deadliest accident involving U-S servicemen participating in Operation Desert Shield.

Crews worked for eight hours yesterday to clean up 10-thousand gallons of acid that spilled after a tank truck skidded on icy Interstate 10 in Baytown, Texas. Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells said the tanker was carrying 40-thousand gallons of hydrocholoric acid solution. The driver told officers the truck hit ice on the roadway and skidded into a guardrail. The tank ruptured before bouncing into a ditch and spilling about one fourth of its load.

Government troops and communist guerrillas in the Philippines silenced their guns today at the start of a Christmas holiday truce, allowing Filipinos a brief respite from the bloody 21-year insurgency. But special combat units in Manila and strategic provinces have been placed on alert due to fresh rumors that right-wing soldiers are planning to stage a seventh coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino.

Former South Korean Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Cho Soon delivered a letter from President Bush to President Roh Tae-woo today. Cho returned from the Untied States yesterday after a 12-day visit as a special presidential envoy. Seoul newspapers speculated that Bush hoped in the letter for active South Korean support for the establishment of a free world trade order.

In his annual Christmas message, Germany's president today called on all Germans in the east and west to overcome final divisions in the re- unified country, and to support European unity and peace throughout the world. President Richard von Weizsaecker said that citizens in former East and West Germany should meet each other half way to overcome the economic hardships endured by those living through the rehabilitation of the country's new eastern part.

BONN, Germany (DEC. 24) UPI - President Richard von Weizsaecker, in his annual Christmas message Monday, called on Germans to overcome remaining divisions in their reunified nation as well as support European unity and world peace.

Von Weizsaecker said Germans should meet each other half way to overcome hardships during the rehabilitation of the economically ailing former East Germany.

''We sincerely want to meet one another and become one,'' the 70- year-old president said in the nationally broadcast message. ''Nobody should wait until the other has arrived, but instead walk toward him.''

Von Weizsaecker, who recently toured the five new eastern states that once comprised communist East Germany, reminded his audience that ''freedom is full of chances, but also bears unusual challenges and risks.''

''The previous system under which so many suffered for so many years, has collapsed. But the new one will not grow over night,'' he said, referring to the fall of the East German communist system last year and German reunification on Oct. 3.

He appealed to the western German states to support the five new states in the east, emphasizing Germany's federalist system is ''a truly precious good.''

Alluding to Germany's Nazi past and Adolf Hitler's uniform and militaristic Third Reich, the president said definitely: ''There will not be a centralized unitary state.''

Von Weizsaecker, who has served as West Germany's president since 1984, said Germany owes its reunification to the peaceful revolution in Europe, and added many countries now need the help and support of Germany - particularly the Soviet Union amid its reform process.

Quoting Russian author Lev Kopelev, von Weizsaecker said, ''One burning room can destroy the European house. We will live together or die together.''

He also said while the end of the Cold War brought peace to Europe, peace must spread to other parts of the world - ''also to the (Persian) Gulf region.''

Cautioning all sides involved in the gulf conflict triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, he said ''we should bear in a mind the big picture, meet strangers with respect and tolerance, and turn toward one another without inner prejudice.''

CHICAGO (DEC. 24) UPI - An agreement was announced Monday on a letter of intent regarding GLOBEX, the automated after-hours trading system for futures and options.

Representatives of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade and Reuters Holdings PLC met last week in Chicago to finalize the details.

''This resolves all substantive issues toward the completion of a 20- year contract,'' said Robert Crooke, spokesman for Reuters America Inc.

The letter of intent is subject to execution of a final agreement among the parties, approval by the respective governing boards and ratification by the memberships of the CME and CBOT.

''Today's announcement of a letter of intent is a positive step toward the contract side,'' Crooke said. ''While it is not a contract, it is an outline of what it should look like and is a prelude to a contract.''

He said the key issues of a contract have been identified and predicted it will soon be signed.

GLOBEX is scheduled for actual on-site testing in Chicago, New York, and London around the end of the first quarter of 1991. Several hundred terminals will be used in the test, which will involve scripted but realistic trading.

Based on the results of the test, officials will determine the date for the official launch of the ambitious GLOBEX system, much anticipated in the financial community.

Reuters has placed increased emphasis on on-line financial trading services in recent years.

The London-based news and information agency already runs Instinet, an electronic, off-exchange stock trading system, and Dealings 2000, a currency-trading service.

In addition, Reuters has plans to develop an after-hours stock and options trading system in conjunction with the Chicago Board of Options Exchange, the American Stock Exchange and the Cincinnati Stock Exchange.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has reportedly said the Israeli city of Tel Aviv would be one of his first targets if the United States battles Iraqi forces in an attempt to drive them out of Kuwait. The Spanish news agency reported that Saddam recently gave an interview to a Madrid television station, in which he expanded on earlier threats against Israel in the event war breaks out. He reportedly said he would attack Tel Aviv, even if Israel is NOT involved in fighting.

Two U-S servicemen from the aircraft carrier U-S-S Midway were killed and five others were injured last night when a vehicle taking them on an off-road tour of the United Arab Emirates overturned. A Navy spokesman in Washington said two of the injured are in serious condition. The cause of the accident, which occurred during a ship-sponsored liberty trip, is under investigation.

The Suez Canal Authority has stepped up security after warnings that a ship might try to block the waterway by dumping a load of cement if war breaks out in the Persian Gulf. Sources said the authority had intelligence reports that a ship would try to block the canal to prevent supplies and ammunition from reaching the multinational troops allied against Iraq.

Leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council held closed meetings in Qatar today on the third day of their summit. There were reports that the leaders of the pro-western conservative alliance would develop a new security network to ward off future attacks on the oil- rich region. Diplomatic sources said the creation of a new security network figured prominently in the talks.

The Soviet Congress of People's Deputies voted today to hold national referendums on whether the Soviet Union should remain intact, and on land ownership. President Mikhail Gorbachev pushed through his plan for the referendums at the beginning of the second week of the Congress, which still must vote on controversial new presidential powers.

African National Congress President Oliver Tambo, who returned to South Africa after 30 years in exile, met President Frederik de Klerk for the first time today. A government statement said the two leaders jointly expressed a hope for a peaceful resolution of South Africa's racial conflict. Tambo returned to South Africa December 13th.

A newspaper report in Seoul, South Korea, says North Korea is angry at broken secrecy and will return 880 tons of rice received from a church-affiliated charity group in South Korea. The report quoted a Korean resident in the United States who represented North Korea in the rice donation arrangement. He reportedly said the rice shipped to North Korea in July will be returned to the South either in January or February because promised secrecy for the deal was broken by South Korea.

DOHA, QATAR (DEC. 24) UPI - Leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council met in closed sessions Monday on the third day of a summit amid reports the pro-Western conservative alliance would set up a security network to ward off future attacks on the oil-rich region.

The summit, which began in the Qatari capital on Saturday, includes the leaders of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Oman.

Diplomatic sources said the creation of a new security network figured prominently in the talks, which were held in private Monday. They also said it was possible non-Arab Iran would be included in the plans, signaling a radical change in policy for the GCC, which backed Iraq during the 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war.

The sources added the final communique, to be issued at the conclusion of the summit Tuesday, was likely to call for the upgrading of the defense capabilities of the member states, which already have a joint task force based in Hafr al-Batin in eastern Saudi Arabia.

The joint force, called Peninsula Shield, was inadequate to cope with the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait - a GCC member state.

Instead, Saudi Arabia called for the deployment of Arab and foreign troops in the kingdom to guard against further Iraqi agression, as did the UAE. The United States has deployed some 280,000 troops in the region along with troops from other nations.

The summit in Qatar is the first time the gulf leaders have met since the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait showed how vulnerable the region was to attack.

''The Iraqi occupation of Kuwait and the proposed security arrangements are the pivotal points in the leaders' sessions,'' one conference source, who asked not to be identifed, said. ''Any future security or defense arrangements in the gulf region should involve Iran. ''

Iran's relations with Saudi Arabia have been tense since Saudi troops killed an estimated 400 Iranian pilgrims during riots in the holy city of Mecca four years ago.

But Tehran, Iraq's long-tim foe, has emerged as a key player in the gulf crisis, renewing links with some of the countries allied against Iraq, as well as with Iraq itself.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Temperatures along the East Coast began to fall, joining the western two-thirds of the nation in the Christmas Eve deep freeze.

The cold front, which dropped wind chill factors to minus 60 degrees in several Western states and made life difficult wherever it went, began pushing the mercury downward along the East Coast after a day of rain.

Temperatures in New York City, which tied a 99-year-old record with a high of 66 degrees Sunday, began dropping Monday.

''It looks like cold weather for Christmas and right on through, with lows in the 20s in the mornings to the 30s in the afternoons for the rest of the week '' said Tom Grant, a meteorologist for the National Weather Service in New York.

The warm weather caused snow to melt in northern New England, swelling rivers in New Hampshire and causing the Saco River in Maine to flood its banks. Police in North Conway said the river was 1 1/2 feet above flood stage but caused no damage. Colder weather and snow was on the way for the region.

Residents of Illinois awoke to wind chills factors as low as 36 degrees below zero Monday and there was a possibility it would get worse. At least two people died of exposure in Chicago, even though shelters for the homeless reported Monday hundreds of beds were going unused.

The National Weather Service reported the temperature fell to 8 below zero overnight in Springfield and a wind chill of 36 below was reported at Midway Airport in Chicago at 8 a.m.

''Today and tonight won't be so bad. But wait till tomorrow,'' NWS forecaster Paul Merzlock said.

Merzlock said Monday's cold, dry weather may give way to snow early Tuesday, dropping the temperature to well below zero all over the state because of the new snow cover. The low temperatures, coupled with northwesterly winds, may produce wind chills in the 40-below range.

The cold even marched through Atlanta, pushed by 25-mph winds that gusted to 40 mph. Temperatures early Monday were below freezing and the wind chill made it seem like 5 degrees.

Unstable weather lingered over the upper Midwest Monday, dumping several inches of snow on Ohio and Indiana and leaving rain and icy roads in its path in Kentucky and West Virginia.

''It's cold and it's blowing, we got about 3 inches and the roads are very slippery,'' said chief dispatcher Patricia Seetch of the Cleveland police, who said she was not thrilled with the prospect of a white Christmas. ''I would prefer it clean and dry.''

Ohio drivers apparently did well Monday morning as they faced their first significant snowfall since last winter. Five inches of snow was on the ground near Russell east of Cleveland, 4 inches at Cleveland and Findlay, 3 at Akron-Canton, Mansfield and Toledo, and one-inch at Columbus, Cincinnati, Dayton, Youngstown and Zanesville.

Light traffic on Christmas Eve also helped the situation.

''We had a few accidents but I don't think we had any injuries,'' Seetch said. They were mostly fender benders.'' Asked what might have happened if there would have been normal Monday morning rush-hour ''

In Medina County, Ohio, however, there were two fatal accidents Sunday night.

The weather in a word for the rest of the nation was cold. The Rocky Mountain states continued to suffer through chilly temperatures made more brutal by winds that gusted to 60 mph in Colorado and Wyoming prompting high wind advisories. Temperatures were 10 degrees above zero.

The cold weather even chilled California, where a freeze warning was in effect for San Franciso with lows in the 20s and winds at 25 mph while in Southern California, cold weather caused major damage to citrus, lettuce and avocado crops.

''It's the most extensive damage I've seen, ever,'' said Clark Briggs of the California Farm Bureau Federation.

Produce prices will almost certainly increase because of the damage, he said.

Homeless people across the southern third of the country packed shelters as temperatures from California to Mississippi were well below normal.

The fast-moving storm over downeast Maine continued to produce a variety of winter weather across much of Vermont and northeast New York at mid-morning. Mooers, N.Y., in northern Clinton County, picked up over 8 inches of snow while the largest snow tallies in Vermont include 7 1/2 inches at St. Albans and 6 inches at Fairfield.

MOSCOW (DEC. 24) UPI - The Congress of People's Deputies approved a symbolic resolution Monday calling for the Soviet Union to remain intact and ordered a national referendum to decide the issue.

President Mikhail Gorbachev pushed through his plans for a national vote on the future of the union and another referendum on land ownership at the beginning of the second week of the Congress, which still must vote on controversial new presidential powers Gorbachev is seeking.

Earlier Monday deputies approved largely symbolic resolutions supporting the call for the country to remain intact, approving Gorbachev's draft of a new ''union treaty'' and retaining the country's name ''Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.''

But the congressional votes to preserve the Soviet Union will have little practical effect, however, because the fate of the union treaty binding the 15 republics together still depends on the agreement of each republic.

The resolution ordering a referendum on whether the Soviet Union should remain ''a single united state'' - approved by a vote of 1,678-32 with 65 abstaining - said the issue was ''the most vital problem of the life of the country.''

It called for the Supreme Soviet or standing Parliament to set a date for the vote ''to decide the question of maintaining a renewed union as a federation of sovereign Soviet socialist republics having equal rights, with a vote of each republic considered separately.''

The Baltic republics have already declared their independence from the Soviet Union and along with other separatists have opposed the idea of a referendum.

Even if the majority of a republic voted to secede, Gorbachev has said the republic would still need to follow a long and complicated process set by the central government before it would be allowed to leave the Soviet Union.

Details of the referendum were to be worked out by the Supreme Soviet. The country still does not have a final law governing referendums, and a bill earlier given preliminary approval by the Supreme Soviet prohibited a popular vote from changing the borders of the country.

Asked by a deputy why a referendum was necessary when the republics should be able to determine for themselves whether to remain in the Soviet Union, Gorbachev responded angrily, ''We are talking about the expression of the people's will on the core questions of the life of the country.''

A poll taken last week by an arm of the Congress found that 52.7 percent of those questioned supported keeping the Soviet Union intact, but the survey did not include Lithuania, Latvia and Georgia, republics where independence sentiment is high.

An earlier symbolic measure supporting ''the preservation in its entirety the country ... and the transformation of the multinational state into a voluntary union of sovereign equal republics'' was approved by an overwhelming 1,657-20 vote.

A proposal to accept ''in principle'' Gorbachev's draft of a new ''union treaty'' won by a 1,491-88 vote.

But several republics have already said they will refuse to sign the treaty or indicated they will demand that it include provisions unacceptable to Gorbachev. The breakaway Baltic republics as well as Armenia and Georgia are at least partially boycotting the Congress.

The order for a referendum on land ownership, approved by a 1,553-83 vote with 70 abstaining, also faces a tough challenge. The huge Russian republic's legislature approved private ownership earlier this month and leaders of the republic have said a referendum is not needed on the issue.

The Congress, which entered the second week of its fourth session Monday, also voted 1,365-169 with 170 abstaining to maintain the name ''Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.''

The draft of the new union treaty dropped the word ''socialist'' from the name of the country, replacing it with ''sovereign,'' and Gorbachev has recently supported a change to ''Union of Sovereign Soviet Republics.''

(DEC. 24) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney reports chances of peacefully settling the Iraqi crisis are fading with each passing day. He offered that assessment today in Cairo on his way back to Washington from a tour of front line positions in Saudi Arabia. Cheney's comments come as Iraq's Saddam Hussein says he will strike first at Tel Aviv, Israel, if attacked- even if the Israelis are NOT involved in the conflict. Hussein has made vague threats before to drag Isral into the conflict but this new statement, made during an interview with a Spanish T-V station, is the first naming a specific Israeli target.

The very future of the Soviet Union will be decided by national referendum, a proposal backed by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev . He was able to get the Congress of People's Deputies to approve the idea as it began a second week of meetings that will have far reaching implications on future Soviet history. The delegates also approved referendum's on a prime tenant of Communism, the issue of who owns the land. Congress members must still vote on the controversial issue of giving Gorbachev wider ranging powers to battle the country's latest crisis.

The severe cold that sent temperatures plummeting througout the Midwest has finally arrive on the East Coast. New York City tied a 99- year-old record of 66 degrees yesterday but temperatures have been dropping ever since. Unstable weather remains hung up over the upper Midwest where wind chills of 60 degrees below zero have been common since late last week. And the cold helped chill Californians again. A freeze warning was posted for San Francisco as temperatures headed into the 20's.

The Navy has yet to release the names of two servicemen from the aircraft carrier Midway who died yesterday in the Unied Arab Emirates. Five other Midway servicemen were injured when the vehicle taking them on an off-road tour overturned. They were on a ship-sponsored liberty trip at the time.

Australians are bracing for Cyclone Joy as it aims 124 mile-an-hour winds toward Queensland State on Austalia's northeast coast. Forecasters in Brisbane report the storm is moving southwestward towards land. They warn of the possibilty of major destruction if it makes landfall over any populated area of northeast Australia.

Boot prints and tire tracks left in the snow are enough to give authorities in Michigan a good idea of who let eight buffalo out of their pens in the state's eastern Upper Peninsula. But that doesN'T do much good when it comes to getting the buffalo back safely. They've been spotted from the air twice less than three miles from their pen near the community of Brimley, Michigan. And attempts to lure them back with bales of hay have proved unsuccessful.

SRINAGAR, India (DEC. 24) UPI - Moslem militants attacked paramilitary patrols in three places in the Kashmir Valley, triggering reprisal raids by security forces that killed nine people, including a 10-month-old baby, police said Monday.

At least 22 people, including three troopers from the Central Reserve Police Force, also were wounded in the incidents, which were part of the ongoing Moslem secessionist campaign in northern Jammu and Kashmir state, a police official said.

The revolt in Kashmir gained widespread popular support in mid- January when security forces opened fire on a peaceful protest, killing at least 35 people. More than 2,500 people have been killed in violence since then.

Moslem rebels are demanding a Kashmir free of India because of alleged discrimination practiced against the Moslem-majority state by the Hindu-dominated central government in New Delhi.

The worst of the incidents Sunday took place near the village of Pakharpora, 30 miles south of the state capital of Srinagar, after militants ambushed a convoy of 10 army vehicles, a police official said.

No soldiers were wounded in the attack, but 30 minutes later, military reinforcements arrived and stormed the nearby village of Pakharpora looking for the attackers, the official said.

The soldiers killed nine people, including a 10-month-old baby, and wounded 15 other people while conducting house-to-house searches in the village, the official said. The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, did not say why the villagers were killed. Most of the people were shot in their homes, he said.

The wounded were taken to Srinagar and admitted in Shri Maharaja Hari Singh hospital.

A state government spokesman denied the account given by the police official. The spokesman said the people killed and wounded in the incident had been caught in the crossfire when Moslem militants ambushed the army convoy.

Security forces angered by militant ambushes have repeatedly attacked villages in Kashmir, ransacking homes, shooting residents and setting houses on fire in retaliation.

Emergency regulations passed by the New Delhi-appointed governor allow authorities to destroy houses used by militants for planning or staging attacks on security forces. Authorities have cited the regulations as a rationale for the retaliatory raids.

Residents from nearby villages staged a strike Monday to protest the killings, the police official said.

Militants also ambushed security patrols at two places in downtown Srinagar Sunday, wounding three paramilitary policemen. The troopers opened fire at one place, wounding four bystanders, a state government official said. In both incidents, the militants escaped.

India has repeatedly accused neighboring Moslem Pakistan of arming and training the Kashmiri rebels. Islamabad denies the charges but acknowledges moral support for the Kashmiri secessionist movement.

Authorities said two rebels had been killed Monday while trying to cross the frontier into India from Pakistan.

ATHENS, Greece (DEC. 24) UPI - A special magistrate investigating a major embezzlement scandal issued a warrant Monday for the arrest of former Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou, court officials said.

Special Magistrate Spyros Spyrou, who was authorized by the Greek Parliament to probe a scandal involving the embezzlement of more than $200 million from the Bank of Crete, issued the warrant after Papandreou ignored a court summons to testify.

Spyrou summoned the former premier to appear in court after hearing testimony from three former ministers in Papandreou's Cabinet. Two were remanded to custody.

Papandreou, prime minister of Greece for two terms between 1981 and 1989, refused to obey the court summons, saying the case was politically motivated and he had already told Parliament whatever he had to say.

The scandal involved the former Bank of Crete President George Koskotas who allegedly embezzled $200 million from the bank and funneled part of the money into the campaign funds of Papandreou's Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement.

Koskotas, who fled Greece in 1988 when the scandal began to unravel, was arrested in the United States on other charges weeks later, and is currently being held in a Massachusetts jail awaiting extradition to Greece.

The so-called ''Koskotas scandal,'' and other scandals involving Papandreou's personal life-style, were believed responsible for PASOK's defeat in the 1989 general elections, and Papandreou's fall from power.

MANILA, Philippines (DEC. 24) UPI - Government troops and communist guerrillas silenced their guns Monday at the start of a Christmas holiday truce, allowing Filipinos a brief respite from the bloody 21- year insurgency.

Special combat units in the capital and strategic provinces, however, have been placed on alert amid fresh rumors right-wing soldiers were planning to stage a seventh coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino.

Meanwhile, Aquino in a Christmas message called for peace in her troubled nation, hard hit by a series of natural calamities, threats from both left and right, and the impact of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Cardinal Jaime Sin, Manila archbishop and highest church leader in this predominantly Roman Catholic country, said in a message the holidays were a ''Christmas-in-crisis'' and said ''a climate of vague fears and gloom is before us.''

The government has declared a three-day Christmas cease-fire beginning Sunday, while the 17,000-strong communist New People's Army has said its members would halt hostilities for two days starting Monday.

Both forces also have agreed to observe a three-day truce during the New Year. The NPA has for 21 years waged a war to overthrow the government and set up a Marxist state in the Philippines.

The armed forces joint operations center in the capital said reports from field commanders showed the truce appeared to be holding across the archipelago's 7,100 islands.

A military report showed the last insurgency-related incident occurred Saturday when guerrillas ambushed a car carrying a northern town mayor, killing one of his security escorts and wounding another.

Mayor Virgilio Herrero of Baggao town in Cagayan province, 240 miles north of Manila, was unhurt when the vehicle managed to speed away and elude the ambushers, the report said.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein reportedly says even if Israel is NOT involved, his first target will be the Israeli city of Tel Aviv if war erupts in the Persian Gulf. That's according to the Spanish news agency E-F-E which quotes Saddam's interview with spanish television.

Saddam has made vague threats against Israel in the event of war, but his vow to attack Tel Aviv appears to be the first time he's mentioned a specific Israeli target. The threat follows comments by Defense Secretary Cheney that U-S forces are ready to attack Iraqi troops ''today'' if necessary to drive them out of Kuwait.

Investigators want to find out why a vehicle overturned in the United Arab Emirates yesterday. The U-S embassy reports two American servicemen from the carrier Midway died and five others were injured. The deaths raise to 79 the number of U-S serivcemen killed by various accidents in Operation Desert Shield.

A referendum to be held at a date yet to be set will decide if the Soviet Union remains a federation, or if individual states go their separate ways. The Soviet Congress of People's Deputies approved the referendum idea in a clear 16-hundred-78 to 32 vote with 65 abstentions.

The carol about ''away in the manger'' might be changed to ''away from the manger'' this Christmas. Police barricades and security booths ring Manger Square in Bethlehem as armed solders and journalists far outnumber the few pilgrims who turned up in the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Military officials in Sri Lanka say Tamil rebels today detonated a land mine beneath a military truck that was taking sick troops for treatment at a hospital in the eastern part of the country. The blast killed 14 soldiers and three civilian women. The attack comes a week after six soldiers and a senior police official died in a similar blast.

In the Philippines, a top aide to the vice mayor of the liberty city of Angeles and his bodyguard were gunned down by unidentified assassins as they cruised along a highway outside the U-S Clark Air Base in a jeep. Police sources say the assailants could be right-wig extremists or political opponents of the victims.

Lebanese Army troops have arrested a number of suspects in the killing of an official of the conservative Christian Phalange Party. Police say two assailants, using silencer-equipped guns, opened fire on Elie Daou and his pregnant wife late yesterday at their Beirut home. Daou died instantly while his wife was critically wounded.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (DEC. 24) UPI - The ruling Communists retained control of Serbia's assembly, while the Communist Party chief in neighboring Montenegro won election as president, returns runoffs of the first post- war multi-party elections held by the two Yugoslav republics said Monday.

In a related development, officials in the Slovenian Republic said that final results from a plebiscite Sunday on independence showed that 88.2 percent of more than 1.35 million voters decided in favor of secession from the Yugoslav federation that was forged in the aftermath of World War I in 1918.

The decision will allow the ruling nationalists of the most economically developed republic to declare independence unless the leaders of the five other republics and the federal government agree within six months on a new Yugoslav constitution converting the multi- ethnic nation of 23 million into a loose confederation of independent states.

Slovenia and nationalist-ruled Croatia want to abandon the federal system because of fears of political and economic domination by Communist-governed Serbia, the largest republic.

In Belgrade, the Serbian Election Commission announced that according to incomplete returns, the Socialist Party of Serbia - the name adopted by the Communists in July - captured 44 out of the 154 seats in the unicameral assembly that were contested in second-round runoffs on Sunday.

Combined with the 87 places won in the Dec. 9 first round, Marxist President Slobodan Milosevic's party commanded 131 seats, five more than needed for a working majority in the 250-member assembly, the commission said.

The commission said the 10-party United Opposition of Serbia coalition won at least 45 seats in the second round, establishing the first significant opposition bloc in the legislature of Yugoslavia's largest republic since the Communist takeover at the end of World War II in 1945.

The results, however, also dealt the coalition a major embarrassment as they contradicted opposition leaders' claims at a news conference late Sunday that their candidates had won all but one of the 30 assembly seats in Belgrade, which doubles as the Serbian and national capital.

The commission said that 16 opposition candidates - eight from the Serbian Renewal Movement, seven from the Democratic Party and one from the Party of Yugoslavia - and 10 Communist contestants won seats in the prestigious Belgrade area. Results in the remainder were awaited.

Second-round runoffs were required between the two top vote-getters from first-round contests in which no one won more than 50 percent of the ballots. Some 4.3 million of 6.8 million registered voters were eligible to participate. There was no official announcement on the turnout.

The Communist victory reinforces the mandate won by Milosevic in first-round balloting for president, raising serious concerns about the course he will now follow in the dispute over the future political structure of Yugoslavia.

Milosevic, 49, has rejected the confederation proposal by predominantly Roman Catholic Slovenia and Croatia unless Serbia's borders are enlarged to include Serbian enclaves in neighboring republics, a demand seen as an almost certain formula for civil war. He has refused to negotiate on his call for maintaining the federation, in which the more than 8 million Christian Orthodox Serbs form the majority.

That view is also embraced by Milosevic's Communist allies in Montenegro, where the party leader, Momir Bulatovic, was elected president with 186,150 second-round votes, said election commission in the capital, Titograd, 250 miles southwest of Belgrade.

It said 54,167 votes went to Ljubisha Stankovic of the Alliance of Reformist Forces, which favors Western-style political and economic reforms.

The two were forced into a runoff after the Dec. 9 first round because Bulatovic failed to get the votes of 51 percent of the votes.

The League of Communists of Montenegro won 83 seats in the Montenegro Assembly in the first round, while the reformists captured 17, the Democratic Coalition 13 and a nationalist party 12.

Serbia and Montenegro, many of whose 500,000 people claim to be ethnic Serbs, were the last two republics to hold multi-party polls following the breakup last January from ethinc rivalries of the Yugoslav Communist organization. Nationalists ousted Communists in the other four republics.

NEW YORK (DEC. 24) UPI - Northwest Airlines reportedly has arranged financing to buy the Northeast shuttle of struggling Pan Am Corp. for about $150 million.

The sale, if concluded, would ease the cash shortage at financially strapped Pan Am, with has opened talks about a possible merger with Trans World Airlines Inc.

The Wall Street Journal reported Monday that Northwest had arranged financing with PacifiCorp. of Portland, Ore. Northwest, a unit of NWA Inc., would operate the shuttle linking New York, Boston and Washington, with an option to buy it from PacifiCorp., the newspaper said.

Northwest spokesman Doug Miller declined comment on the report.

Northwest has not publicly expressed an interest in the shuttle, which Pan Am placed on the market earlier this year. However, the airline held talks with Pan Am in the fall, regarding a possible deal for unspecified assets.

''Nothing came of that,'' Miller said.

A spokesman for Pan Am in New York could not be reached for comment.

Meanwhile, representatives of Pan Am and TWA were exploring the possibility of a merger between the two carriers. The status of those talks Monday was not known.

Pan Am Chairman Thomas Plaskett opened the way for a possible merger Friday in a letter responding to an offer from TWA owner Carl Icahn. Plaskett said ''the time is right'' for the two airlines to explore a possible combination.

But, he added, ''Pan Am requires bridge financing to cover its financial needs during the several-month period - coinciding with our low traffic season - that we expect it will take to obtain necessary regulatory and shareholder approval.''

Icahn, who offered to buy Pan Am for $1.50 a share cash plus $1 in preferred stock or promissory notes, has said he would be willing loan Pan Am money only as part of bankrutpcy court proceeding that would give TWA a priority lien on unsecured Pan Am assets. Pan Am has 150 million shares outstanding.

Icahn is said to be willing to loan Pan Am between $75 million and $100 million, the Journal reported Monday.

Spokesman for Icahn could not be reached for comment.

Cash-strapped Pan Am, which has sought waivers from its creditors in recent months, reached a separate agreement in October to sell its five U.S-London routes and other assets to United Airlines for $400 million.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) UPI - President Bush met for three hours Monday with his senior military advisers to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis and he delivered a televised Christmas Eve message to the troops deployed in the Middle East.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, met at Camp David with Bush from 9 a.m. EST until about noon, a White House spokesman said.

Cheney and Powell detailed the findings of their just-completed trip to the gulf region.

Neither the White House nor the Pentagon would discuss the assessment offered by Cheney and Powell, but it was believed they discussed the readiness of U.S. and allied forces to conduct offensive operations against Iraq after the United Nations-mandated Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to pull out of Kuwait.

It was the first meeting between Bush and his two top military advisers since last week's statement by a top U.S. commander in Saudi Arabia that American forces and equipment may not be in place by the mid-January deadline.

Bush has ordered the deployment of 430,000 American forces to the region and thousands of fresh troops are arriving in the desert every day. Cheney, Powell and other administration officials have said that all air force units and most ground operations will be in place and ready for combat by the Jan. 15 deadline.

Bush went to his presidential retreat in the western Maryland mountains Friday for the holidays. He took time for briefings on developments in the gulf where troops are on heightened alert.

So far, there has been no give on either side to arrange for an exchange of meetings with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz visiting Washington and Secretary of State James Baker going to Baghdad.

Other top administration officials were either out of town or leaving. Vice President Dan Quayle planned to ski with his family at Vail, Colo. before leaving for Saudi Arabia Saturday. Secretary of State James Baker was vacationing and Cheney planned to fly home to Wyoming Monday afternoon.

In his holiday message, taped last week and broadcast Monday, Bush said:

''We're in the gulf because the world must not reward aggression, because our vital interests are at stake and because of the brutality and danger of Saddam Hussein. We're there backed by 12 United Nations resolutions and the forces of 25 other countries.

''The sacrifices you make will never be forgotten,'' he said. ''America is behind you. The world is behind you and history is behind you. When you come home, and we hope it's soon, you'll be welcomed as what you are - all-American heroes.''

Bush planned to conduct his official business from his hideaway in Catoctin National Park with a complex state-of-the-art communications at his disposal.

Meanwhile, members of the Bush clan converged to celebrate Christmas Day with the first family.

In addition to the gulf crisis, Bush closely monitored developments in Moscow where a domestic political upheaval threatens the government of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

On the domestic front, the president was culling ideas for his State of the Union address Jan. 29 and preparing a new federal budget for the 1992 fiscal year.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (DEC. 24) UPI - Relatives and friends of U.S. hostage Terry Anderson and British hostage John McCarthy sent them messages of support on Christmas eve urging them to keep morale high.

''John. The fifth Christmas without you, without your laughter and kindness. For a fifth time, our tidings of comfort and joy are diminished by your absence,'' said a message to be published McCarthy's loved ones.

''Again, we try to imagine your plight and hope you realize we all miss you,'' the message said. ''Stay as cheerful as you can and please be assured we all miss you and love you.''

The message was to be published by two leading Beirut newspapers, An- Nahar and As-Safir, Tuesday.

McCarthy was en route to Beirut airport April 17, 1986, after completing a 32-day assignment in Lebanon with Worldwide Television News when he was snatched by gunmen.

McCarthy had fallen victim of a wave of anti-Western abductions by pro-Iranian zealots that broke out in 1984.

The Beirut newspapers were also scheduled to publish two other statements, one signed by Anderson's sister Peggy Say, and the other by his wife Madeleine and his daughter Sulome.

''I hope you are staying strong and well, and like us, living in hope that this will be your last Christmas in captivity. Perhaps our miracle will happen and we'll welcome you home in time to share the beginning of the new year,'' Say said.

Say, who has relentlessly campaigned for the release of her brother, said: ''You and your fellow hostages have not been forgotten, Terry, and you will never be.

''For every day that you suffer, thousands of Americans agonize with you.''

Madeleine and Sulome urged him to maintain high morale, saying ''we are so near you and yet so far. But our hopes are always high for a bright future and reunion forever.''

Sulome was born shortly after her father was kidnapped March 16, 1984, in the mainly Moslem sector of Beirut.

Anderson and McCarthy are among 12 foreigners still held by pro- Iranian Moslem fundamentalists in secret hideouts in Lebanon.

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA (DEC. 24) UPI - The government devalued the Nicaraguan currency by 9 percent Monday, despite citizens' hopes for Christmas relief from the regular devaluations.

The old codoba dropped to 2.73 million to the dollar from 2.48 million. The dollar is worth about 3 million cordobas on the black market.

The newspaper Barricada said the Nicaraguan people had falsely expected a Christmas break from the regular currency devaluations.

''This means Nicaraguans will have to pay out more money today (Christmas eve) '' Barricada said.

The Christmas eve devaluation brought immediate price hikes in gasoline, transport and basic products.

The cordoba oro, Nicaragua's alternate official currency that continues to have very limited circulation, remained on a par with the dollar.

Salaries have remained fixed since October, after the government signed an agreement designed to control inflation with certain private and labor sectors.

Nilo Salazar, a carpenters' union secretary general, said that after the first of the year workers will be out on the street demanding work and wage increases.

''The workers cannot survive with the rhythm of inflation, especially when we are unemployed,'' Salazar said. ''We are starving to death.''

Economists and labor leaders say some 10,000 contruction workers have been out of a job for months, while the government has put a ban on hiring.

MOUNT VERNON, MO (DEC. 24) UPI - A federal appeals court Monday refused to intervene in a court order that allowed Nancy Cruzan's parents to remove a feeding tube that has kept her alive in a vegetative state for nearly eight years.

A three-judge panel of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued a one-page ruling Monday dismissing the motion for a temporary injunction filed on behalf of Cruzan by the Rev. Patrick Mahoney, director of the Center for Christian Activism in Boca Raton, Fla.

The ruling said Mahoney's motion was denied ''for failure to demonstrate a basis for a stay pending appeal.'' The panel also found Mahoney ''has no standing to bring this appeal and the appeal is hereby dismissed.''

Officials at the Missouri Rehabilitation Center in Mount Vernon continued to list her condition as deteriorating.

Only three protesters remained outside the hospital Monday to voice their opposition to the judge's ruling, a hospital spokeswoman said. Bitter cold weather and the approach of the holidays apparently helped reduce the number of demonstrators, which had been around 20 last week.

Leaders of four Protestant denominations urged prayers for Cruzan and her family but called on opponents to stop trying to force hospital officials to resume feeding her.

Last Friday, a federal judge in Kansas City and the Missouri Supreme Court both refused to order Nancy Cruzan's feeding tube reconnected.

Doctors have said Cruzan, 33, would die within two weeks without the feeding tube that has kept her alive since a 1983 car accident left her brain-damaged. The tube was removed Dec. 14.

In June, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the Missouri Supreme Court's ruling that the Cruzans could not remove their daughter's feeding tube without ''clear and convincing evidence'' of her wishes in the absence of a written statement.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) UPI - Fear of recession may have put a dent in some retail sales this holiday season, but Americans won't do without a Christmas tree.

That's the word from the National Christmas Tree Association headquarters in Milwaukee which is expecting to wrap up a 5 percent jump in sales to a total of 36 million trees this season.

''We're hearing great reports'' on tree sales, association spokeswoman Jean Weiss said. ''The holidays usually aren't affected by any recession when it comes to Christmas trees.''

Weiss said while a few areas may have seen slighlty lower prices for Christmas trees this season, nationwide prices have remained stable for the past few years at $3.25 to $5.25 a foot.

The scotch pine has been the most popular Christmas tree choice for the last several years, followed by the Douglas fir. But Weiss says most people usually choose a tree based on family tradition.

The tradition of having a family tree may be helping to keep sales of live trees up as baby boomers raise their children, according to Weiss.

''The 1990s are going to be the decade of the family and going out and picking out a tree is a real family occasion,'' she said. ''You don't get that feeling when you crawl up to the attic and get out the artifical tree.''

Another area of growth for tree growers is mail order. Weiss says in the last couple of years mail order trees have become increasingly popular with major mail houses like L.L. Bean, Hammacher Schlemmer offering them in their catalogs.

''What's great about catalog trees is that trees shipped by mail are usually very fresh trees,'' Weiss said. ''They're often cut the same day they're shipped.

''They're also usually top of the crop because most catalogs have guarantees on their merchandise,'' she said.

So how do you mail a Christmas tree?

Weiss says most often in long cardboard boxes that keep trees nicer than those arriving in bulk for tree lots. Most mail-order trees are limited to about 7 feet in height to accomodate shipping.

She added mail-order Christmas trees are an especially attractive holiday option for those living in big cities where tree lots are far away, for the disabled or homebound, or for folks who just don't have the time to go out and pick the perfect tree.

BEREA, OH (DEC. 24) UPI - The Cleveland Browns will release their assistant coaches at the end of the season, allowing them to search for new jobs before the team hires a new coach.

While it is not surprising that the Browns, who fired Bud Carson Nov. 5, would release his assistants, it is unusual that the news has come out before the end of the year. The assistants were first made aware of the situation when a cable television station reported the news Saturday.

Browns' spokesman Kevin Byrne said Monday the club had planned to tell the coaches at the end of the year that they were free to seek other jobs. It also is possible one or two of the 11 assistants currently with the team will be retained by the new coach.

The assistants will be allowed to use their offices at the team's training headquarters until they either find a job or a new coach is hired by the Browns.

The names of the assistants will be put on an inter-office computer message system that goes to all the teams in the league on Dec. 31, the day after the 3-12 Browns end their season. If one of the assistants is hired by another team and is paid less than what the Browns are scheduled to pay him, Cleveland would have to make up the difference in salary.

''I think the greatest fear an assistant coach has, even if he's being paid, is to sit out a year,'' Byrne said. ''It's tough to get back into the loop.''

Shofner, who had been an NFL assistant for 20 years before taking over for Carson, said it was not surprising that the team would allow the coaches to become free agents.

''When Bud got fired, we all knew we'd be looking for a job at the end of the year,'' Shofner said.

Shofner will be retained by the Browns, taking an as-yet unspecified job in the front office. Joe Popp, special assistant to the head coach, was released along with Carson.

''I've been in these situations and the new head coach probably won't keep more than one or two (of the current staff),'' Shofner said. ''That's just the way it works.''

All the assistants were given two-year contracts after last season, which means the Browns not only have to pay Carson his $400,000 salary next year but must also fork out the money for his 12-man assistant coaching staff for another season.

Even though the assistants are guaranteed a salary next year, knowing they possibly will be out of coaching next season is difficult, Shofner said.

''It's not a good deal,'' he said. ''No question, it's not a good situation.''

It's not a good situation in Cleveland for anyone these days, with the Browns coming off a 35-0 loss at Pittsburgh in which they lost eight of nine fumbles, including losing fumbles on their first three plays from scrimmage.

''Obviously, the fumbles just took the game out of hand,'' Shofner said. ''I really don't know how to evaluate it after that. Obviously, we're so fragile that when we spotted them seven or 14 points it was difficult for us to come back. We were never in the ball game.''

Shofner said quarterback Bernie Kosar, who suffered a hairline fracture in his right thumb, would not play Sunday in Cincinnati.

''I think it would be very foolish,'' Shofner said of Kosar playing and risking further injury.

The only injury suffered in the Pittsburgh game were the sore ribs experienced by receiver Reggie Langhorne, although he said he was feeling better Monday and would be re-examined Wednesday.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 24) UPI - Despite reported threats by Saddam Hussein, Israeli leaders said Monday they did not believe Iraq would launch a pre-emptive strike but warned Israel's military would respond with great force if attacked.

While maintaining the possibility of war in the Persian Gulf was higher than at any other time since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir urged Israelis not to worry because the Israeli military was ''ready and prepared.''

Even before the Persian Gulf crisis erupted, the Iraqi president had threatened to wipe out half of Israel with chemical weapons if the Israeli military attacked any Arab country.

In an interview with independent Madrid television station Telecinco, Saddam for the first time mentioned a specific target within Israel when he said his first target would be the coastal city of Tel Aviv if war erupted in the Persian Gulf, the Spanish news agency, the Spanish news agency EFE reported.

The news agency said Telecinco broadcast part of the interview late Sunday as a preview to a full interview scheduled to be shown Wednesday.

''There are people who speak about the possibility that Saddam Hussein will launch a pre-emptive attack'' against Israel, Defense Minister Moshe Arens told Israeli high school students in Holon, a town slightly south of Tel Aviv. ''But I don't think it is very probable.

''But of course, with that man, one cannot know. Anything can happen, '' Arens said, adding Iraq had a ''very limited capability of reaching Israel with its missiles.

Israeli leaders have emphasized during the crisis that the country was maintaining a low profile. But at the same time Israeli officials also have repeatedly stated that the Israeli military could defend the country well in case of attack.

Israel has distributed gas masks and civil defense kits to large parts of the country since the Iraqi invasion.

''He (Saddam) knows that Israel does not participate in this confrontation,'' Shamir said. ''He wants to drag us into this confrontation in order to give it the character of an Israeli-Arab confrontation.''

Israel, however, takes such threats seriously, Shamir said, adding, ''whoever will dare to attack us, will be attacked seven times more.''

''We are ready for every possibility and the Israel Defense Force is on alert in anticipation of every danger,'' Shamir said.

Arens also said Jordan had held military maneuvers but the Jordanian army posed ''no serious challenge'' to Israel.

''I hope such a conflict will not happen,'' Arens said.

(DEC. 24) UPI - President Bush is to get an update today on the Iraqi crisis from his top military leaders, just back from a front-line tour in Saudi Arabia. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and General Colin Powell will brief the president at the Camp David retreat outside Washington. Powell is chairman of the joint Chiefs of Staff and both he and Cheney returned to Washington late yesterday. The two are expected to tell Bush that chances of using the diplomatic option are rapidly fading.

Iraq's Saddam Hussein is rattling sabres at Israel. The Iraqi leader says he will first launch an attack on Tel Aviv if he is attacked by allied forces in the Persian Gulf. The threat was made in an interview with an independent television station in Madrid, Spain. And Saddam told the Spanish interviewers he would attack Israel- even if it is NOT involved in any military moves against his country.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said today the likelihood of war is increasing as the January 15th deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait draws near. Mubarak told reporters in the Egyptian capital- quote- ''Every day that passes is bringing Iraq closer to a war.'' And he renewed a warning that Baghdad will suffer massive numbers of casualities if war erupts in the Persian Gulf.

Two more American servicemen have died in Operation Desert Shield. The U-S Embassy in Abu Dhabi says the servicemen from the aircraft carrier U-S-S Midway were killed and five others injured when a vehicle overturned while taking them on an off-road tour of the United Arab Emirates. A Navy spokesman says the accident occurred yesterday about 50 miles south of the town of Al Dofra. The cause of the accident is under investigation. It comes two days after 21 American servicemen drowned in an Israeli ferry accident.

South African officials use the phrase ''useful'' in describing 60 minutes of talks today between President Frederick de Klerk and Oliver Tambo, president of the African National Congress. Tambo returned to South Africa December 13th after three decades of exile and met with de Klerk in Pretoria. A government statement said the two jointly expressed hopes that South Africa's long years of racial conflict could be ended peacefully.

British hostage John McCarthy is spending his fifth holiday season in captivity in Lebanon. Relatives and friends today sent McCarthy a Christmas Eve message urging him to keep his spirits up. (DEC. 24) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein recalled key ambassadors to Baghdad for consultations and told a Spanish TV station the Israeli city of Tel Aviv would be his first target if U.S.-led forces launched an offensive.

Turkey closed its border with Iraq Monday in preparation for war.

The Spanish news agency EFE reported Monday that Saddam told independent Madrid television station Telecinco he would order a strike on Tel Aviv first even if Israel was not part of the forces battling Iraq to recapture Kuwait.

Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney had said Sunday after inspecting American troops in Saudi Arabia that U.S.-led forces were ready to launch an immediate offensive against Iraq, and said the likelihood of war was increasing as a U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait draws near.

The United Nations has authorized the U.S.-led troops to use force against Iraq if the troops are not out by that date.

President Bush met three hours Monday at his Camp David mountain retreat with Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. It was believed Cheney and Powell - who spent five days in the gulf area before returning Sunday - were briefing Bush on the readiness of U.S. and allied forces to go to war after Jan. 15.

In other developments:

-Two U.S. servicemen participating in Operation Desert Shield were killed in a traffic accident, bringing to 79 those killed since the operation began.

-Sources in Cairo, Egypt said security had been tightened at the Suez Canal amid intelligence reports of a possible sabotage attempt if war erupts.

-Saudi Arabia's King Fahd, speaking at a summit of the six-member Gulf Cooperation Council in Doha, Qatar, said the kingdom had not decided whether Kuwait would be restored through peace or war.

Even before the crisis erupted over Baghdad's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, Saddam had threatened to wipe out half of Israel with chemical weapons if the Israeli military attacked any Arab country - and since then he has repeated the threats.

But Saddam's vow to attack the coastal city of Tel Aviv was his first mention of a specific Israeli target. Saddam, whose interview with Telecinco was to be broadcast in full Wednesday after a preview Sunday night, has tried to win sympathy from Arabs by linking his occupation of Kuwait with the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza strip.

EFE said Saddam also said in the Telecinco interview that the United States wants to control the Middle East's oil fields so it can dominate Europe, Japan and eventually the Soviet Union.

Israel has distributed gas masks and civil defense kits to much of the country since the Iraqi invasion.

But despite Saddam's latest threat, Defense Minister Moshe Arens said Monday, ''There are people who speak about the possibility that Saddam Hussein will launch a pre-emptive attack (against Israel), but I don't think it is very probable.''

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Israel takes threats seriously, but urged Israelis not to worry because the military was ''ready and prepared'' and ''whoever will dare to attack us, will be attacked seven times more.''

In Washington, an Iraqi Embassy official said Saddam has recalled Iraqi ambassadors posted in key world capitals, including those posted in the United States, the United Nations and European capitals.

''They were summoned by the Foreign Ministry for normal consultations,'' said Khalid Schewayish, embassy charge d'affaires.

He said the ambassador to Washington, Mohammed al-Mashat, flew back to Baghdad Friday and was expected to stay a week.

first summit since the Iraqi invasion.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (DEC. 24) UPI - Vietnam has set up a socioeconomic plan for 1991 that focuses on cutting the population growth and improving government efficiency in anticipation of a difficult new year, Official Radio Hanoi reported.

The radio, monitored late Sunday, said the plan has adopted several measures to contribute in the 1991 socioeconomic development.

''Our country's socioeconomic situation will be very difficult in 1991,'' the radio said. ''We must continue to restrain inflation, strengthen financial and currency management.''

The radio said the plan will improve government officials' efficiency and people' standard of living. It also said illegal activities and corruption are on the target of tough crackdown.

In addition, the government wants to cut the population growth rate to 0.06 percent compared with 1990, the radio said.

The radio said the plan will ''firmly maintain political stability, secure national defense and security and create condition for further development in subsequent year.''

The broadcast came two days after Vietnamese Prime Minister Do Muoi expressed that Vietnam will face a difficult year because the Soviet Union has cut its assistance and the remaining U.S. embargo.

The radio said Vietnam expected the gross social product will increase by 4.3 percent while national income is expected at 4.5 percent.

It said new equipment and technology are also needed to assist productive manufactories.

''We must quickly increase the value of exports to ensure that demands for the import of important materials and new equipment and technology for the 1991 plan are met,'' it said.

It said the state budget will be at $322 million to meet the demand of capital construction.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 24) UPI - Israel in 1990 received the highest number of immigrants in one year since the country's foundation more than 40 years ago and expected new records to be set in 1991, immigration officials said Monday.

Approximately 187,000 immigrants, the majority of them Soviet Jews, have arrived in Israel since January 1990, immigration officials said.

Their number is expected to reach 200,000 by Dec. 31, the highest number since 1949 - a year after independence - when 239,964 Jews arrived in Israel in a one-year period, officials said. In 1989, approximately 12,000 newcomers arrived in Israel.

''Every month exceeded the previous month (in 1990). The trend is upwards all the time,'' said Gad Ben-Ari, spokesman for the quasi- governmental Jewish Agency.

Israeli officials have repeatedly underlined their belief that there is an urgency to bring as many Soviet Jews to Israel as soon as possible. Ben-Ari said a combination of growing political and economic instability and rising anti-Semitism were driving Jews out of the Soviet Union.

Ben-Ari said the airlifting of Soviet Jews to Israel had entered a new phase in recent days with the arrival of approximately 1,500 immigrants daily instead of 800 as in previous months. Since Dec. 19, approximately 8,000 immigrants arrived at Israel's Ben Gurion airport.

Israeli absorption officials are preparing a new terminal at Ben Gurion airport that will be able to handle the absorption of an additional 1,000 immigrants daily.

''It's an increase of 30 percent to 40 percent. This is going to be the pace for immigration from now on,'' Ben-Ari said. He expected in 1991 at least 400,000 immigrants would arrive in Israel.

An editorial in the mass circulation Yediot Ahronot newspaper said Israel's wildest dreams had come true, but along with the dreams came the nightmare of housing shortages. The daily said more than 600,000 immigrants will have arrived in Israel by the end of 1991 but only 400 pre-fabricated housing was ready to house the immigrants.

The mass immigration has caused a major housing shortage while rents have skyrocketed 30 percent to 40 percent since 1989. The Israeli government has pledged to build 80,000 apartments starting in 1991 but so far only several thousands are ready to house the approximately 30, 000 immigrants expected to arrive each month.

More than 1 million Soviet Jews have received invitations to emigrate to Israel, immigration officials said. Soviet authorities require any Jew who wants to emigrate to Israel to present an invitation by a relative.

Experts in Israel estimate that approximately 3 million Jews live in the Soviet Union.

Ben-Ari said the Jewish Agency currently has the potential to airlift 50,000 immigrants a month to Israel and is working to increase its capacity but he did not want to disclose further details.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Gifts and family gatherings proved to be a partial distraction from the Persian Gulf crisis and the flagging economy but many Americans still spent Christmas Eve thinking about loved ones in the Middle East.

Shoppers made their traditional last-minute raids on stores to finish off their Christmas shopping before joining their families for presents, caroling, religious services or acts of holiday charity.

The needy huddled in bitter cold Monday morning waiting for the 15th annual holiday food giveway at the Paul Hall Community Center on Chicago's South Side. Volunteers like Torrence Green, 17, prepared packages of cereal, bread, canned soups, canned vegetables and butter.

''That's what Christmas is all about, helping people in need,'' he said.

Leslie Searcy, an Atlanta area resident, said the sick economy seemed to have made shoppers leery about making Christmas purchases.

''I saw a lot of people doing a lot of looking before actually buying, as in comparing prices before buying - like I did,'' Searcy said.

The possibility of war with Iraq also clouded Christmas for the family and friends of the 280,000 American military personnel stationed in the Persian Gulf region. Yellow ribbons - symbolizing the troops abroad - were as prevalent as red and green ones in some households.

In Texas, Uncle Sam, not Santa Claus, was the guiding figure for 300 members of a Texas Army National Guard unit who got a Christmas Eve call telling them to report for Operation Desert Shield duty.

''Whether it's Christmas Eve or the middle of May, we have to deal with it,'' said Capt. Henry Hamner, a spokesman for the 217th Evacuation Hospital guard unit based at San Antonio. ''Everyone is taking it as a matter of fact. That's what we've been trained to do for a good number of years. It shouldn't have been a surprise, considering the world situation.''

It was tougher for the family of Army Spec. Alyssa Mehl, who left behind three sons between the ages of 6 and 2 and her husband, Tom, when she shipped out for Saudi Arabia. The economic downturn of 1990 also compounded the problems surrounding the Mehls' Christmas.

''Those guys (his stepsons) need somebody here,'' Tom Mehl said. ''I wanted to get them an electric train set but it was too expensive. They're not getting all the things I was going to give them. That does hurt.''

Christmas cheer also was low in Killeen, Texas, as the 67,000 residents struggled against the twin specters of a drooping economy and the Middle East. About 20,000 soldiers from Fort Hood have been shipped to the Middle East and some 3,500 were deactivated earlier.

The result has been the closure of more than 100 businesses since the first of the year, officials say, and sales are off 60 percent. Hundreds of homes have been repossessed and about 50 percent of the apartments are empty.

''We have been knocked on our knees,'' City Manager Dan Hobbs says. ''It's an incredibly bleak picture.''

Pat Gallager, a chef at the Red Lion Inn in Omaha, Neb., carved 12 4-foot-high blocks of ice into a nativity scene and hoped it would promote the Christmas spirit over the Persian Gulf.

Two-thirds of the nation shivered under a cold front, which made things more Christmas-like for Caye Robinson, a nurse in Nashville, Ga.

''It finally feels like Christmas,'' she said. ''Now I can light a fire and not have to turn on the air conditioner. It's cold and it's windy and it's wonderful because it's Christmastime.''

In Detroit, Margie Thompson, 53, and her daughter Margaret, 25, opened their presents Monday and had an even more important exchange scheduled for Wednesday, when doctors will transplant one of Margie's kidneys to Margaret. Margaret has had kidney disease for almost two years as the result of her 19-year battle with diabetes, which also has left her partially blind.

CHICAGO (DEC. 24) UPI - Grain and soybean futures were mixed in light pre-holiday trading Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The market will be closed Christmas Day and reopen at the normal time Wednesday.

Soybeans were pressured by professional and commission house selling and made contract lows in the nearbys. January beans fell to $5.56 1/2, but rallied near the close and were only one-half cent lower on the day.

Soybean oil futures were virtually unchanged while soymeal was moderately lower and recorded a number of contract lows.

Traders attributed the bearish tone across the soybean complex to light trading overseas and the tension in the Persian Gulf and the Soviet Union.

Wheat closed higher on short-covering and continued worries over the possibility of cold weather damage to the winter wheat crop in the Plains. The sale of nearly 250,000 tons of wheat by exporters also was supportive.

Corn was narrowly mixed, pressured by steady selling and the lack of buying interest throughout the day.

Country movement was light and basis levels were unchanged.

At the close, corn was off 3/4 to up 3/4, soybeans down 1 3/4 to up 1 1/4, wheat up 1 3/4 to 5 and oats up 1/2 to 1 1/4.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Iraq has called back the ambassadors it has posted to key world capitals including the United States. They are being ordered back to Iraq for what are called ''normal consultations''. The recall orders cover the Iraqi ambassador to Washington, along with his counterparts in London and Paris.

In Jeruslem, Israeli leaders are saying they don't believe Iraq will launch a pre-emptive strike against Israel's coastal city of Tel Aviv, despite reported threats by Saddam Hussein. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir today urged Israelis NOT to worry, saying the Israeli military is- quote- ''ready and prepared.'' Defense Minister Moshe Arens also said an Iraq attack is NOT ''very probable.'' But he adds that with a man like Saddam- quote- ''one canNOT know. Anything can happen.''

Saddam reportedly said in an interview that Tel Aviv would be his first target if U-S-led forces launch an attack. Spanish news reports quote Saddam as saying he would order such a strike even if Israel was NOT part of the forces battling Iraq to recapture Kuwait. The Iraqi president has threatened before to strike at Israel, but this appears to be the first time he's mentioned a specific target.

Meanwhile, Turkey reportedly closed its border with Iraq today in preparation for war. Egypt's Middle East News Agency reports Turkey sealed all crossings along its 125-mile border with Iraq because President Turgut Ozal is convinced chances of a peaceful settlement in the Gulf are slim. Turkey asked NATO last week for 50 military aircraft and one-thousand troops to help guard the border region.

Sources in Egypt report security has been increased along the Suez Canal on threats that a ship might try to block the vital waterway if war breaks out. Intelligence reports tell of a ship that might try to dump a load of cement into the canal, effectively blocking reinforcement or supply ships from reaching allied military positions in the Persian Gulf.

Authorities say at least nine people were killed and at least 22 others wounded in India's troubled Kashmir Valley. Police say Moslem militants attacked paramilitary patrols in three locations as part of the ongoing secessionist campaign in the state. The attacks triggered reprisal raids by security forces that left nine people dead, including a 10-month-old baby.

Authorities in Greece have issued an arrest warrant for former Prime Minister Andreas Papandreou after he ignored a court summons to testify in a growing political scandal. It involves embezzlement of over 200-Million dollars from the Bank of Crete. Some of the money reportedly made its way into campaign funds for Papandreau's Pan-Hellenic Socialist Movement.

New York City police are looking for two teenage boys in the latest incident of people being shot for the jackets they wear. Five people have died in such incidents in New York City and on Long Island since the start of the month. Five others have been injured, including a 13- year-old girl shot last night. The girl was wounded after a ski-masked gunman and an accomplice demanded the jackets she and two friends were wearing.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) UPI - The State Department denounced Monday charges levied by the head of the KGB that western assistance and investment in the economically troubled Soviet Union amount to foreign interference.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher called last week's allegations by Vladimir Kryuchkov ''completely unfounded and inaccurate.

Kryuchkov said western economic advances were really foreign intelligence efforts to ''exert overt and covert pressure'' on the Soviet Union.

U.S. officials said the statement was reminiscent of Cold War sentiment and apparently reflected the deep divisions within the Soviet government.

''We're concerned that such a senior official would use such outdated and inflammatory rhetoric, which can only be described as inconsistent with the recent improvement in the substance and the atmosphere of U.S.- Soviet relations,'' said Boucher.

Soviet political turmoil led to last week's announcement by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze that he would resign. He warned of the growing threat of dictatorship in the Soviet Union.

What was not clear was whether Kryuchkov was merely representing one of the factions within the split, or whether he was prompted by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to make the statement to illustrate to the West the dangers faced by his program of economic and political reform.

Generally, the KGB aligns itself with the military in the internal Soviet dispute, although Kryuchkov was chosen for his job by Gorbachev because he was willing to go along with political reforms.

One of Kryuchkov's deputies, Major General E.N. Yakovlev, admitted in an interview last week, published in the newspaper Pravda, that the KGB coninutes to gather information ''by covert means,'' about western political and economic plans.

Foreshadowing the KGB blast against the western intelligence agencies, Yakovlev said, ''Not all the forces in the world want the Soviet Union to become an economically strong and united state. Complex processes are taking place in the third world, and some of them could pose a direct threat to our state.''

He said the economic aid coming from the west ''is not a matter of indifference to us'' and therefore, ''There is going to be plenty of work for the intelligence service.''

The KGB statements suggest that there is great skepticism about prospects for western aid and that not all of Gorbachev's deputies favor the prospect of the close relations with the the United States that were symbolized by the working partnership between Shevardnadze and U.S. Secretary of State James Baker.

NEW YORK (DEC. 24) UPI - Stocks closed lower Monday in a shortened Christmas Eve session that saw the lightest trading of the year, with the market pressured by concerns about the Mideast crisis.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 4.20 Friday, fell 12.37 to close at 2621.29.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 0.86 to 180.01 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dipped 1.85 to 329.90. The price of an average share lost 15 cents.

Declines led advances 857-519 among the 1,921 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Volume amounted to 57,200,000 shares, a dramatic plunge from the 233,457,430 traded Friday, when ''triple-witching hour'' expirations of stock-index futures, options and options on individual stocks inflated volume.

The market closed at 2 p.m. EST Monday, and volume did not even match the paltry 63.4 million shares that changed hands on the day after Thanksgiving, which had been the thinnest trading thus far this year. Trading was the lightest since the day after Christmas of 1986, when 48. 86 million shares changed hands.

Activity was very light from the opening, began to fade even more by midday, and slowed to a trickle late in the day as traders started to wind up activity before Christmas, when the market will be closed.

Prices opened lower and drifted with modest losses all session. Analysts said some saber-rattling in comments about the Mideast crisis pressured stocks.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, seeking to dispel appearances of disunity in the Bush administration, echoed the president by asserting America was capable of striking ''today'' to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

During a news conference Sunday at Saudi King Fahd's Persian Gulf palace before flying to Cairo, Cheney also said prospects for a peaceful solution to the gulf crisis were growing dimmer as the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline for use of force draws near.

''We had some tough talk out of Cheney about the ramifications of the uncertainty in the Mideast,'' said Ron Doran, director of institutional trading at C.L. King & Associates in Albany, N.Y. ''I think ... people may want to cut down their positions a little bit.''

But all in all, he said, peace and quiet ruled the day. ''It was tough in here today, you didn't find a lot of customers around. We expected it to be quiet but this was even quieter than we expected,'' Doran said.

On the trading floor, Manufacturers Hanover was the most active issue, off 1/8 to 23 7/8 in dividend-related trading.

Southern New England Telecommunications followed, down 3/8 at 33 1/8, also in trading tied to the stock's dividend. J.P. Morgan was third, down 1/8 to 46 1/8.

Among the blue chips, AT&T lost 3/8 to 30 1/4, Coca-Cola fell 1 1/8 to 47 3/8, American Express was up 1/8 to 21 1/8 and Exxon was up 1/2 to 51 1/4.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 72,298,660 shares, compared with 271,827,680 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices fell in very light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index lost 1.61 to 304.59. Declines led advances 280-210 among the 756 issues traded. The price of an average share was down 5 cents. Composite volume totaled 6,191,360 shares vs. 17,342,800 traded Friday.

Media General led the Amex issues, up 1/4 to 18 1/8.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index lost 1.19 to 372.41.

(DEC. 24) UPI - The next-to-last weekend of the NFL season showed all is not lost for the Houston Oilers and Dallas Cowboys, who must play their regular-season finales without their starting quarterbacks.

Seven teams started backups because of injuries to starters, and four of those clubs won, including playoff-bound Buffalo, Chicago and the New York Giants.

Four teams lost quarterbacks during the games, and all four lost. Houston, with Warren Moon, and Dallas, with Troy Aikman, were in that group.

So now the Oilers will send Cody Carlson against Pittsburgh with the AFC Central title on the line, and the Cowboys count on Babe Laufenberg to win a playoff-clinching victory in Atlanta.

''Next week is one we're going to have to win if we're going to have a shot at the playoffs,'' Carlson said. ''I'm going to go out there and do everything I can to beat Pittsburgh.''

Moon dislocated the thumb on his throwing hand in the final minutes of a 40-20 loss to Cincinnati. Aikman suffered a separated shoulder during the second series of a 17-3 loss to Philadelphia.

Carlson completed 1 of 6 passes while Laufenberg was 13 of 36 with four interceptions, including one at the Philadelphia 3 with the Eagles leading 10-3 in the second quarter. Eric Allen returned another interception 35 yards for a fourth-quarter score.

''I wasn't real precise,'' said Laufenberg, who threw 12 straight incompletions in one stretch.

The backups for the Bills, Bears and Giants earned high marks Sunday. Frank Reich passed for 234 yards and two touchdowns in place of Jim Kelly to lift

Buffalo to a 24-14 AFC East-clinching victory over Dan Marino and the Miami Dolphins. The victory improved Reich's career record as a starter to 4-0.

''Frank is a very intelligent person,'' Bills tackle will Wolford said. ''He studied long and hard this week to be able to go out there and do what he did. It's a real show of how good he really is.''

Mike Tomczak filled in for Jim Harbaugh for the Bears, and threw for 239 yards and two TDs in a 27-14 victory over Tampa Bay. Tomczak, who started 11 games in 1989, made his first start of the season against the Buccaneers.

Tomczak was rusty, throwing an interception on his second attempt and failing to complete any of his first five passes. After settling down, he finished 16-for-33.

Bears Coach Mike Ditka, a frequent critic of Tomczak in the past, had no complaints.

''I think Mike did a heck of a job,'' Ditka said. ''I like him. I'm going to have him over for Christmas dinner.''

The Giants edged Phoenix 24-21 with Jeff Hostetler playing in place of Phil Simms. Hostetler threw for just 190 yards and a TD, but ran for a score and threw no interceptions.

''I thought Hoss did a pretty good job,'' Giants Coach Bill Parcells said. ''He played error free. I can't think of a decision he made that was incorrect.''

The Atlanta Falcons defeated the Los Angeles Rams 20-13 with No. 3 quarterback Hugh Millen starting because of injuries to Chris Miller and Scott Campbell. San Francisco, Cleveland and Green Bay lost over the weekend with backups starting.

Besides Moon and Aikman, New England's Tommy Hodson and Minnesota's Wade Wilson were sidelined in losses.

The Browns, whose fell to 3-12 with a 35-0 loss to Pittsburgh, announced Monday all their assistant coaches would be released after the season. Interim head coach Jim Shofner had already announced he would move into the front office and a new coach will be brought in.

''No question,'' Shofner said, ''it's not a good situation.''

WEST YELLOWSTONE, MO (DEC. 24) UPI - A minor earthquake struck in a remote area about six miles northwest of West Yellowstone but caused no damage or injuries, seismologists said Monday.

The temblor, measuring 3.8 on the open-ended Richter scale, hit at 7:54 p.m. Sunday.

It was followed by a series of aftershocks ranging from 2.5 to 3.3, Sue Nava of the University of Utah's Seismograph Stations said.

Some of the quakes were felt by residents in the sparsely populated area, near the Wyoming-Idaho state lines, Nava said.

The quake occurred along the eastern end of the rupture zone of a 7.5 temblor that hit on Aug. 17, 1959 in the Hebgen Lake, Mont., area, Nava said.

Several people were killed in that earthquake, and it resulted in the creation of a body of water now called ''Earthquake Lake.''

Raines, also a left fielder, signed a 3-year deal with Chicago.

BASKETBALL

The Dallas Mavericks waived guard Kelvin Upshaw, who scored 8 points in eight minutes while playing four games since he was activated No. 12 to replace injured Roy Tarpley. ... Milt Newton scored 28 points and Barry Mitchell added 19 to lead the World Basketball League All-Stars to a 124-109 victory over the host Belgian team, Saun Air. OLYMPICS

The Soviet Ukrainian republic has set up its own national Olympic Committee, but it was unclear if it would push to field a team independent of the Soviet Union. The Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia have also set up independent Olympic committees since they declared independence from the Soviet Union earlier this year, and they are pushing for recognition of separate teams at the next Olympic Games.

(DEC. 24) UPI - Iraq has recalled its ambassadors to Washington, London, Paris and the United Nations for what are called ''normal consultations.'' The move comes ahead of the U-N's January 15th deadline for Iraq to get out of Kuwait. Officials of the Iraqi Embassy in Washington expect the ambassador will return by Friday.

Israeli officials may NOT think much of the latest blustery statements by Iraq's Saddam Hussein but they are taking NO chances. Saddam has threatened to attack Tel Aviv first if he is attacked, even if Israel is NOT involved. Israel says its military is ''ready and prepared.''

President Bush and his top military advisers huddled for three hours today at Camp David to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis. Defense Secretary Cheney and Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman General Colin Powell detailed the findings of their just-completed trip to the gulf region. Neither the White House nor the Pentagon would discuss what was said.

In Yugoslavia, returns from runoffs of the first post-war multi-party elections show the ruling Communists retained control of Serbia's assembly. And the Communist Party chief in neighboring Montenegro won election as president. Also today, final results from yesterday's plebiscite on independence in the Slovenian Republic show 88 percent want to seceed from Yugoslavia.

This may NOT become a white Christmas for many areas of the nation but it will be a cold one. Cold, dry weather has settled down in many states for what could become a long winter's night and the chilly temperatues now reach deep into the south. Atlanta woke to temperatures of below freezing.

A federal appeals court today refused to intervene in a Missouri right-to-die case involving a 33-year-old comatose woman who's feeding tube was removed. The three-judge panel dismissed a motion for a temporary injunction filed by religious activists on behalf of Nancy Cruzan, who's being allowed to die after being kept alive in a vegetative state for nearly eight years.

The Grinch of Recession may be lurking somewhere around the corner but he apparently is NOT standing near where Christmas trees are sold. The National Christmas Tree Association expects sales will be up five percent this year to 36-Million trees.

South African black leader Nelson Mandela is preparing to celebrate his first Christmas in almost 30 years as a free man. The African National Congress deputy president today called on South Africa's black majority to vow NEVER to spend ''another Christmas in chains.'' The 72- year-old Mandela was released from prison February 11th after more than 27 years.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) UPI - The Bush administration said Monday it is reviewing the possibility of resuming military supplies to the Salvadoran army following intelligence reports that guerrilla forces are planning a new offensive.

Fifty percent of the $42.5 million in planned military aid for the Salvadoran army was withheld last October by a congressional order as incentive for the government and the Farabundo Marti Liberation Movement to end their long war.

The order stated that U.S. military aid could only be delivered if the rebels refused to participate in the peace process, killed civilians or government officials or received weapons from outside sources.

If intelligence reports about a forthcoming FMLN offensive are correct, it would automatically allow for a resumption of military deliveries.

''We have reliable information that the FMLN plans new intensive military attacks to begin the new year,'' said State Department spokesman Richard Boucher, who said the movement declared a nine-day truce for Christmas.

''We are reviewing the resumption of military aid,'' he said.

The self-declared truce by the FMLN ended a spate of violence which, according to the United States, caused 16 civilian deaths and 108 civilian casualties. Also, the violence damaged farms, public transportation and banks.

''As the government has made more concessions at the bargaining table, the FMLN has stepped up violence and militarism,'' said Boucher. ''The guerrillas have chosen to bring death and destruction to their country and its people. While professing to observe a truce, they are preparing for more war.''

Boucher also said U.S. officials want to interview two Salvadoran government prosecutors who plan to resign from the investigation of last year's murder of eight people, including six Jesuit priests.

Boucher said the prosecutors are resigning for personal and professional reasons, but the United States continues to press the Salvadoran government for progress on the case.

No formal charges have been brought in the case, but suspicion has fallen on Salvadoran military officers who, according to reports, used a FMLN urban offensive as a cover for the murder of the six priests.

NEW YORK (DEC. 24) UPI - Pan Am Corp. received a $20-million cash infusion Monday from United Airlines, but the cash-strapped airline declined to comment on a report that a $150-million deal for the Pan Am Shuttle could be in the offing.

United agreed to make the advance payment as part of a larger $400- million sale agreement for Pan Am's coveted U.S.-London routes and other assets.

A Pan Am spokesman said the money would help the carrier meet current obligations.

''It eases our crunch, obviously, but we have further obligations that we have to be thinking about,'' said Pan Am spokesman Jeffrey Kriendler.

Also Monday, The Wall Street Journal reported Northwest Airlines had arranged financing with PacifiCorp. of Portland, Ore. to buy the Pan Am shuttle linking New York, Boston and Washington.

Northwest, a unit of NWA Inc., would operate the shuttle, with an option to buy it from PacifiCorp., the newspaper said.

The sale, if concluded, would further ease the cash shortage at Pan Am, which has opened talks about a possible merger with Trans World Airlines Inc.

Northwest spokesman Doug Miller in Minneapolis declined comment on the report, as did Pan Am's Kriendler.

The severity of Pan Am's cash woes was underscored Monday, when the airline announced that A.I. Leasing II had terminated the airline's operating leases on 21 Airbus A300 and A310 aircraft.

The company, an affiliate of Airbus Industries, terminated the leases after Pan Am failed to make a $16 million payment, as promised, following the sale of its Internal German Service to Lufthansa in late October, Kriendler said.

Pan Am later obtained a waiver for the payment, after rising fuel costs and softening traffic further squeezed its finances. Kriendler said Pan Am made a partial payment to A.I. Leasing, but he declined to elaborate.

A.I. Leasing will allow Pan Am continued use of the planes until Jan. 20 under an interim lease agreement, while a new lease agreement is negotiated, the airline said. Pan Am uses the planes on domestic, Caribbean and trans-Atlantic flights, Kriendler said.

Separately, Pan Am said the $20 million received from United was for certain airport leaseholds in San Francisco. Local approval of the transfer is not expected until next month, Pan Am said.

Kriendler said Pan Am expected to receive another $10 million from United later this week for spare parts. Both transactions are part of a larger deal in which Pan Am agreed to sell its five U.S.-London routes to United.

Meanwhile, representatives of Pan Am and TWA continued to explore the feasibility of a merger. An advisor to TWA owner Carl Icahn said no talks were held Monday, but he declined to comment further on the prospects of a deal.

''The situation is so fluid at this point, I really can't comment,'' said Mark Buckstein, general counsel at TWA.

Pan Am Chairman Thomas Plaskett opened the way for a possible merger Friday in a letter responding to an offer from Icahn. Plaskett said ''the time is right'' for the two airlines to explore a possible combination.

But, he added, ''Pan Am requires bridge financing to cover its financial needs during the several-month period - coinciding with our low traffic season - that we expect it will take to obtain necessary regulatory and shareholder approval.''

Icahn, who offered to buy Pan Am for $1.50 a share cash plus $1 in preferred stock or promissory notes, has said he would be willing loan Pan Am money only as part of bankrutpcy court proceeding that would give TWA a priority lien on unsecured Pan Am assets. Pan Am has 150 million shares outstanding.

Icahn is said to be willing to loan Pan Am between $75 million and $100 million, the Journal reported Monday. Buckstein declined to comment on the size of the loan under consideration.

MIAMI (DEC. 24) UPI - Dade County tourism officials say convention bookings are on the rise, despite a five-month-old boycott organized by members of Miami's black community angry over the local reception given Nelson Mandela.

The Greater Miami Convention & Visitors Bureau said Monday that bookings during October and November - the first two months of the fiscal year - rose by a record amount.

The bureau said 45 conventions equal to 142,987 room nights were confirmed during those two months. Bureau officials said the bookings will have a direct economic impact of more than $54.1 million.

By comparison, 32 conventions equal to 90,652 room nights were booked during the same period last year, officials said.

Leaders of Miami's black community have urged convention organizers to boycott Dade because local officials failed to welcome Mandela during a June visit to Miami.

Mandela, a leader of the African National Congress who spent 27 years in a South African prison, came to the United States shortly after his release.

Although the bureau announcement Monday failed to make note of the controversy the boycott has cost the county an estimated $12 million in lost business.

''I am delighted with the way the year is beginning,'' bureau president Merrett Stierheim said in a statement.

The sales staff is doing ''an outstanding job at a time when we are facing a recession and economic uncertainties due to the conflict in the Persian Gulf. Greater Miami continues to show that even during a year of economic adversities we can compete with other major cities for convention business,'' he added.

Officials have sought but failed to mollify boycott organizers, who now want the mayors of Dade, Miami and Miami Beach to issue keys to their jurisdictions and proclamations welcoming the anti-apartheid leader.

Bureau officials also said Monday that tourism business in general is up. The occupancy rate at area hotels for the first two months of fiscal 1990-1991 is running about 4 percent above last year, officials said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has summoned some of his key ambassadors for ''normal consultations,'' the State Department said Monday.

The Iraqi embassy said that ambassadors from the United Nations, London and Paris also returned to Iraq.

''They were summoned by the Foreign Ministry for normal consultations,'' an Iraqi diplomat said.

''I expect Ambassador Mashat to return at the end of the week,'' the diplomat said. Asked if he expected war, he said: ''We are hopeful of finding a peaceful solution.''

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 24) UPI - He entered the tent wearing a white beard and red suit. He carried a sackful of presents and bellowed ho ho ho, but even in New York, you don't expect to see Santa Claus toting an M-16 rifle.

When he comes to Saudi Arabia, Santa doesn't leave home without it.

Inside tents like this one scattered across the Saudi desert, U.S. Army infantrymen, Air Force fighter pilots, Marine special forces and Coast Guard reservists celebrated Christmas Monday night, praying for peace, preparing for war and wishing they were home.

''It's the time of year I'm always with my family. I never dreamed how much I would miss them,'' said Coast Guard Petty Officer 3rd Class Lynn Oberkrieser, 28, of Buffalo, N.Y..

With nearly 100 fellow reservists from western New York, Oberkreiser tried to make the best of a situation she never dreamed could happen, helping to decorate the tree, barbecuing steaks and observing the holiday she loves best.

It isn't an easy task in Saudi Arabia, where the law prohibits public recognition of any religion but Islam. When members of an Army unit celebrated the Jewish festival of Hannukah two weeks ago, armed guards were posted outside the tent.

Things have been a little looser with Christmas and the Saudi government has not objected to such manifestations of the holiday as Christmas trees, multi-colored lights and snowy postcards as long as the cross is not shown. The U.S. armed forces have been issued guidelines by their central command on how to celebrate the holiday without offending their hosts. Rule No. 1 is be discreet.

''It takes coming here to understand the meaning of religious freedom that we take for granted at home,'' said Oberkreiser, who thought her reserve call-up would last only three months from Sept. 23 and she'd be home for Christmas. But she found out on Thanksgiving that the hitch was extended through February and fears it could be longer.

''I'll do what I have to do but I'm not thrilled to be here,'' she said.

Oberkreiser, called up on reserve duty in Operation Desert Shield for at least six months, works as a gunner on a small craft patroling a port on the Persian Gulf. At home, she's a police officer walking the streets of Buffalo so she's comfortable with weapons.

But even this lady cop turned soldier said it was the first time she had ever seen Santa Claus armed like Rambo, even if it really was only her comrade, Machinery Technician Bob Miller, of Rochester, N.Y.

Asked whether Santa had brought anything for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, the plump white-haired reindeer rider cocked his M-16 and issued a merry laugh.

''I've got one round reserved just for him,'' he said. ''Got his name on it.''

DALLAS (DEC. 24) UPI - Cliff Stoudt, a 12-year veteran who has spent most of his career on the bench, came to terms with the Dallas Cowboys Monday and will serve as the team's backup quarterback for the rest of the season.

The Cowboys had been left with just one healthy quarterback after Troy Aikman suffered a separated shoulder Sunday in a loss to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Babe Laufenberg finished the Philadelphia game and will start Sunday against the Atlanta Falcons. A Dallas win or a New Orleans loss to the Los Angeles Rams next weekend will put the Cowboys in the playoffs for the first time in five years.

''All of our focus has to be on beating the Falcons,'' Dallas Coach Jimmy Johnson said Monday. ''We can't expect any help. If we want to get the job done, we will have to do it ourselves.''

New Orleans stayed alive in the playoff chase Sunday night by nipping San Francisco in a game that 49ers' quarterback Joe Montana sat out. Johnson said he had no problems with Montana's failure to play.

''San Francisco is doing everything it has to do to win its third straight Super Bowl,'' Johnson said. ''There is nothing wrong with that. ''

Stoudt spent seven years with the Pittsburgh Steelers beginning in 1977, but until his final year with the club he was used only sparingly. He started all 16 games of the 1983 season, however, guiding the Steelers to a division title.

He then moved on to the United States Football League, playing in Birmingham. After that league folded, Stoudt played three seasons with the St. Louis and then Phoenix Cardinals before spending 1989 with the guess who?

BOSTON (DEC. 24) UPI - The Boston Celtics put some coal in Dave Popson's stocking Monday, announcing on Christmas Eve they were waiving the little-used forward for the second time.

Popson, a 6-foot-10 fourth-year pro, was first signed by Boston as a free agent before the 1989-90 season, but was waived less than two months later.

He was re-signed by Boston Aug. 17, playing in 11 games with Boston this season and scoring 25 points in 36 minutes. His best game came against Washington Nov. 30 when he scored 10 points in four minutes, hitting all four shots and both free throws.

Popson, a graduate of North Carolina who was drafted fourth by the Detroit Pistons in 1987, spent his first season playing in France. He saw action the following year with the Los Angeles Clippers and Miami Heat before being signed by Boston.

After being cut by the Celtics the the first time, Popson played briefly with the Albany Patroons of the Continental Basketball Association and finished the season in Europe.

DOVER, DE (DEC. 24) UPI - Twenty sailors from the USS Saratoga who were killed in a ferry boat accident off the coast of Israel were honored as ''peacemakers'' and ''the sons of God'' Monday as their bodies arrived at Dover Air Force Base.

The flag-draped coffins, carried from the C-141 transport plane one by one, were greeted by an honor guard, government officials, tearful family members and friends.

''They have honored their families. They have witnessed their fidelity to our nation,'' said Rear Adm. David White, deputy chief chaplain of the Navy. ''They have presented themselves before your grace in the pursuit of peace. Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the sons of God.''

Twenty-one sailors drowned early Saturday within sight of the aircraft carrier in the Mediterranean Sea when their ferry capsized off the coast of Haifa, Israel. Twenty bodies were recovered. Another American serviceman is missing and presumed dead. The search for that sailor has been called off.

The U.S. Navy Honor Guard and distinguished officials braved a chill wind under partly cloudy skies in 30-degree temperatures to receive the remains.

As solemn music was played, the coffins were removed. Removing the bodies took more than an hour.

Arrival of the transport plane was delayed by five hours because of high winds said Lt. Teresa Shacllock, a spokeswoman.

Dover AFB is the location of the tri-service mortuary and receives the remains of most decreased service members from the European Theater, which includes the Middle East.

The remains will be prepared at the mortuary before they are claimed by next-of-kin for burial.

About 100 sailors were on the ferry returning from Christmas shore leave when the accident occurred. The ship is on support of Operation Desert Shield.

American and Israeli officials are investigating the incident.

The two-tiered ferry Altuvia, under contract to the U.S. military to shuttle servicemen to the Israeli port city of Haifa from the USS Saratoga, sank in less than 20 seconds in about 60 feet of water as it waited to unload the servicemen onto the USS Saratoga.

The carrier, with more than 4,500 servicemen aboard, arrived outside the Haifa port Friday morning for a recreational stop away from its duties in the Red Sea as part of Operation Desert Shield. It is scheduled to return to the Red Sea Thursday.

NEW YORK (DEC. 24) UPI - Arizona, despite two victories by Syracuse, jumped past the Orangemen Monday to the No. 3 spot in United Press International's college basketball ratings.

No. 1 Nevada-Las Vegas was a unanimous choice for the second straight week, earning all 27 first-place votes cast by the 42-member UPI Board of Coaches to finish with 405 points. Arkansas remained No. 2 with 348 points.

A lackluster 78-73 victory over Towson State apparently was enough to knock Syracuse from No. 3 position, as Arizona finished with 342 points and the Orangemen 338.

Syracuse's drop also comes following a week in which a newspaper report alleges current and former Orangemen players received cash, free merchandise and cut-rate rental cars from boosters.

''This isn't exactly the Christmas present we sought,'' Robert Hill, the school's vice president of community relations, said Thursday after the story appeared in the Syracuse Post-Standard.

Arizona beat Providence 99-87 Sunday in its only game of the week. The Wildcats saw a 13-point lead at home dwindle to three with 1:18 left, but made 9 of 10 free throws down the stretch to hold on.

''We know the kind of team we are - we're one of the best in the country and we were playing at home,'' Arizona forward Chris Mills said. ''We don't lose at McKale (Center) and we were't about to forget it.''

Arizona Coach Lute Olson said the finish ''was exactly the kind of game we needed at this point. We practice and practice what to do in late-game situations, but it's only when you're actually in one that you see how you react.''

Ironically, Syracuse faces Arizona Christmas Day - in football's Aloha Bowl in Honolulu.

No. 5 Indiana, No. 6 Ohio State, No. 7 North Carolina and No. 8 Duke all moved up one position in the wake of UCLA's 88-71 loss to Iowa, a game in which severe weather conditions diverted the Bruins' flight to Minneapolis and the team had to travel by bus to Iowa City.

''We just couldn't get over the hump,'' said UCLA Coach Jim Harrick, whose team dropped four places to ninth.

St. John's moved up four positions and into the Top 10 after running its record to 9-0 with a 74-62 victory over Fordham in its only game of the week. Fellow Big East member Pittsburgh improved five positions to 11th.

No. 12 South Carolina jumped five places and No. 13 Louisiana State slipped two spots following a 102-96 loss to Illinois. No. 14 Oklahoma also dropped two places after its 90-85 setback at home against Duke.

No. 15 Connecticut remained unchanged and No. 16 Georgetown plummeted six positions after its 71-60 loss to Ohio State on Saturday in Las Vegas, Nev. No. 17 Georgia fell four spots after losing in triple overtime to state rival Georgia Tech.

Michigan State jumped six positions into 18th. Nebraska, which at 10- 1 has matched its victory total for all of last season, tied with East Tennessee State for 19th.

No. 21 Iowa made the biggest entrance into the ratings this week, while New Mexico State and Southern Mississippi tied for 22nd. There was another tie for 24th between newcomers Virginia and Alabama.

Dropping out of the ratings this week were Princeton, the first ranked team from the Ivy League since 1979, Temple and DePaul.

The Big East dominated the ratings by placing five members in the Top 25, while the Big Ten was represented by four schools. The Atlantic Coast Conference and Southeastern Conference each placed three teams in the ratings.

BETHLEHEM, Israeli-occupied West Bank (DEC. 24) UPI - Bells pealed in the town of Jesus' birth for midnight mass on Christmas Eve while a smaller than usual crowd gathered to celebrate the holiday in the Church of the Nativity complex.

Latin Patriarch Michel Sabah told faithful that peace was absent in the town of Jesus' birth.

''This earth is tired, oversaturated with injustice,'' said Sabah, the spiritual leader of the 125,000 Roman Catholics living in Israel, Jordan and the Israeli-occupied territories.

While not mentioning the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising directly, Sabah talked of ''children thrown into the melee of violence.''

Born in Nazareth, Sabah is the first Arab prelate to occupy the high office in Jerusalem in 143 years. He has been outspoken during his 3 1/2- year tenure which has coincided with the Palestinian uprising.

''Here in Bethlehem, peace is absent,'' Sabah told those gathered in the Church of St. Katherine in the Church of the Nativity complex.

Despite travel advisories for the region issued by governments in the wake of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, visitors arrived from Germany, Canada, the United States and other countries to celebrate Christmas in Bethlehem.

But in comparison to years before the Palestinian uprising when thousands packed the complex, only several hundred people came Monday night to Manger Square.

Evelyn VandenBosch said she was not afraid to come to Bethlehem for Christmas Eve.

''You know what I feel when I come to Israel. I feel peace,'' said VandenBosch of Grand Haven, Mich. ''I do not feel fear at all.''

Manger Square was cordoned off with police barricades and security booths, where anyone wishing to enter the area was searched. At the entrance to the Church of the Nativity complex, visitors went through a second frisk by security forces while plainclothes security wandered nearby and along the roads leading off Manger Square.

The presence of Israeli security forces was greater during the day, when dozens of armed Israeli soldiers - as well as journalists - far outnumbered Christian pilgrims. The soldiers patrolled the narrow roads of Bethlehem and manned barricades along the main road to Manger Square.

Christian Palestinians from the town gathered in the wide square at midday, with few foreign visitors scattered among them, as they waited for the arrival of Latin Patriarch Michel Sabah to initiate Christmas Eve services.

''There are no people, look,'' said one Christian Bethlehem teenager as she stood inside the Church of the Nativity's enormous basilica.

''We are Christians and we must celebrate Christmas in our hearts and in our houses. Nobody can prevent me - no Jew, no Palestinian,'' said one of her friends, a 19-year-old resident of Bethlehem, who also declined to give his name.

Since the start of the Palestinian uprising, all non-religious Christmas celebrations have been cancelled. Few decorations adorned Manger Square, except for several strings of lights and a lone colorful star on a tree near the square's Christmas Tree cafe.

The uprising's underground leadership also called a general strike in Bethlehem Monday, forcing shopkeepers to keep their doors closed. City officials said Bethlehem hotels were empty, except for some foreign reporters.

Before the uprising, roughly a dozen local and international choirs sang on Christmas Eve to a packed Manger Square. This year, only two choirs were scheduled to present their program, one from Jerusalem and the other from the First United Methodist Church in Oklahoma.

Inside the musty grottos below the Church of the Nativity complex earlier Monday, a few Christian pilgrims sat silently in meditation or bowed before the silver star commemorating the spot tradition holds was the place of Jesus' birth. The Latin inscription reads, ''Here Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary.''

VATICAN CITY (DEC. 24) UPI - Pope John Paul II celebrated a joyous Christmas Eve midnight Mass before more than 20,000 worshipers in St. Peter's Basilica Monday and said an awareness of God's love is what the materialistic modern world most lacks.

Dressed in white and gold robes, the pope proclaimed the Gospel news that ''Christ has been born to us'' in a traditional ceremony televised to some 250 million people in 50 countries in five continents.

The midnight mass, celebrated in Christian churches all over the world, traditionally speaks of the spiritual meaning of the birth of Jesus Christ.

''The mystery of the night of Bethlehem has a universal meaning,'' the pope said in his homily. ''It is the first word of the Gospel, the Good News.''

John Paul said, ''God takes pleasure in every man and woman,'' and in God ''we become sons of the Son, the children whom God loves.''

''Is not this very fact the first and fundamental truth of the Good News?'' he asked. ''Is this not what the men and women of our time need, too, and perhaps in a special way? Amid all the achievements of the progress of material civilization, is not this what they most lack?'' he asked.

Attending the two-hour rites in the 16th century basilica were more than 20,000 worshipers, including cardinals, Vatican nobility and members of the diplomatic corps, along with thousands of ordinary pilgrims.

This year, the diplomats included ambassadors from the Soviet Union and East European countries, which this year followed the pope's native Poland in establishing diplomatic relations with the Holy See.

In following the traditional lines of the Christmas Eve Mass, the pope made no specific reference to the Persian Gulf crisis or to other current events that have made Christmas 1990 an anxious time for much of the world.

But in one of his prayers, John Paul said, ''Free us, O Lord, from all evil and concede us peace in our days.''

During the midnight Mass, short prayers are traditionally recited in an array of languages by priests from the various countries. The prayer recited this Christmas in Arabic contained an apparent reference to the Gulf crisis.

''Father, you wanted your son Jesus to be the reconciler and peacemaker of heaven and Earth,'' the Arabic prayer said. ''Enlighten the minds of the leaders of nations that they may be builders of peace and leave nothing untried to build it in justice and reciprocal respect. ''

At noon Tuesday, following a solemn Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, the pope is to deliver his traditional Christmas message and impart his ''Urbi et Orbi'' (''To the city and the world'') blessing from the central balcony of the basilica.

Normally some 200,000 pilgrims and tourists throng St. Peter's Square to hear the pope. But heavy rain fell throughout Monday and was forecast to continue Christmas Day, possibly affecting the turnout.

MIAMI (DEC. 24) UPI - Colorado receiver Mike Pritchard has fractured a bone in his left hand, but Coach Bill McCartney said Monday he hopes the big- play specialist will be able to play in the Orange Bowl against Notre Dame New Year's night.

Trainer Dave Burton said Pritchard, who is left handed, was kicked in the hand during goal-line drills late in the Buffaloes' practice Sunday, but the fracture wasn't discovered until he returned to the hotel.

Burton said Pritchard fractured the third metacarpal on the back of his hand and was fitted with a plastic and fiberglass cast that did not cover the fingers.

Pritchard suited up for practice for conditioning purposes Sunday.

''I'm going to play with pain,'' Pritchard said. ''Right now it hurts, but I'm confident by game time it will be minimized by the trainers.''

Pritchard was voted the top-ranked Buffs' most valuable player after this season. He played a major part in top-Colorado's 10-1-1 season.

With running back Eric Bienemy suspended for the first game against Tennessee, Pritchard played in the backfield and ran for 217 yards.

The senior from Las Vegas set a Colorado receiving record of 73 yards and averaged 20 yards every time he touched the ball. He is averaging 48.8 yards on his 11 scoring plays.

McCartney said it would take six to eight weeks for the fracture to heal, but if the hand was protected Pritchard should be able to play.

''If he's in too much pain to play, we won't play him, but right now, we're planning on playing him,'' McCartney said. ''He can catch the ball. He might not catch it as well as he would normally.

''We didn't do much with him today because it's so tender right now. With each day the swelling ought to go out of there. When we get the swelling out of there the pain won't be intolerable. Right now, it's intolerable.''

Linebacker Alfred Williams, the Dick Butkus Award winner, had to skip his third straight practice. Williams missed the team flight from Denver Friday and by the time he arrived on his own the next day, he had become ill and developed bronchitis. He is expected to be ready when practice resumes Thursday.

McCartney already had given his team Christmas day off, and decided to extend that another day because the team was having trouble adjusting to the heat. Temperatures ranged into the 80s for the third straight day Monday.

''My feeling is we need a couple of days off after observing the toll the heat has taken,'' the coach said. ''We'll let them go to the beach for a couple of days.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 24) UPI - President Bush declared Monday that a major disaster exists in Guam, making federal funds available to the Pacific island territory as it struggles to recover from damage done last week by Typhoon Russ.

Bush's declaration will enable victims of the storm to obtain temporary housing grants, low-cost loans to cover uninsured property and other aid, said Stephen Hart, deputy White House press secretary.

Typhoon Russ swept across Guam Friday with winds of up to 150 mph, leaving about 5,000 people homeless, said Peg Malloy, a spokeswoman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The agency said homeowners and businesses in Guam can apply for assistance by calling 1-800-462-9029 or 1-800-462-7585 (TDD). The latter number serves the hearing and speech impaired.

Wallace Stickney, FEMA director, named Alton Ray Jr. of FEMA's regional office in Denton, Texas, to coordinate recovery efforts.

Guam, southernmost and largest of the Mariana Islands with 209 square miles, lies 1,500 miles southeast of the Philippines and 3,000 miles west of Hawaii.

It was surrendered by Spain to the United States in 1898 after the Spanish-American War and became a U.S. territory in July 1950. Its people are American citizens but cannot vote for president.

ROANOKE, VA (DEC. 24) UPI - An infant found in a trash bin last week died Monday, and authorities say if they find the boy's mother, they will charge her with first-degree murder.

''I'm in total shock. I feel I've lost something out of me,'' said Lewis Williams, the unemployed construction worker who found the baby last Wednesday morning while hunting aluminum cans.

''I braced myself for the worst, but no matter how much you brace yourself, you can't get over the shock. It's just there.''

The infant, dubbed Isaiah by Roanoke Memorial Hospital intensive care unit nurses who decided he needed a name, was declared brain dead at 9:45 a.m. EST, Dr. Robert Allen said.

Allen said the two to fours hours Isaiah spent in a plastic trash bag in 40-degree weather after his birth caused hypothermia, resulting in decreased blood and oxygen flow to his brain, Allen said.

From the time he was found morning until Friday night, Isaiah appeared to be improving, prompting adoption offers and donations of cash and baby items.

But Isaiah suffered a repeat of the seizures doctors thought they had brought under control Wednesday, and by Saturday physicians were warning Isaiah probably had little time left to live.

Roanoke police still had not located the infant's mother by Monday. Roanoke Commonwealth's Attorney Don Caldwell said if the baby died, the mother would be charged with first-degree murder.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 24) UPI - Independent movie maker Carolco Pictures Inc., trying to regain credibility after its chairman was slapped with a court order limiting his operating abilities, denied Monday that it had done anything wrong.

Los Angeles-based Carolco, which released ''Total Recall'' and ''Jacob's Ladder'' this year, also said the court order would have no effect on its operations.

The order, issued last week by Los Angeles Superior Court John Zerbrowski, froze 2.2 million Carolco shares owned by Mario Kassar and told the company not to approve any loans or financial transactions with Kassar without court approval.

Zerbrowski took the action at a hearing of a shareholder's suit alleging self-dealing by Kassar in a $45 million stock transaction with the company last September. In that deal, Carolco bought back about 3.4 million shares from Kassar for $13 a share at a time when the stock was trading at about $7.25 a share on the New York Stock Exchange.

The company did not explain why it had agreed to the transaction at the time or in Monday's announcement.

''Management has believed, and continues to believe, that when all of the facts are reviewed in the appropriate forum, the actions of the board of directors will be seen as appropriate, fair and in the best interest of the company,'' the company said Monday.

''The transaction at issue was negotiated on an arm's length basis with the independent committee of the board of directors of Carolco and was ultimately approved by the unanimous vote of the disinterested members of the board,'' Carolco said.

The company also said it has received support for its position from institutional investors and other large stockholders representing shares not controlled by Kassar, who has control of 15.1 million shares, or 57 percent of the stock.

Carolco also brushed off the impact of the Zerbrowski's action, saying, ''The order has no effect on the business, assets, capital or activities of the company or its subsidiaries.''

Kassar founded Carolco in 1976 with Andrew Vajna, then bought out his 36 percent stake for about $108 million about a year ago for a price of about $9.60 a share.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 25) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein slammed what he said was Washington's unfair campaign against him and called for a new dialogue with the United States, the official Iraqi News Agency (INA) reported Tuesday.

"Our people in Iraq have been subjected to an unfair campaign launched by President George Bush with the help of international zionism and to an economic embargo depriving them of medicines and milk for infants," he said in a message addressed to a hitherto unknown peace group.

The Iraqi leader said Mr. Bush had "deployed troops on our borders . . . equipped with technology aimed at killing, destroying and defeating the will of a people determined to protect their legitimate rights."

He said injustice created wars and that peace could not be achieved without a fair and just dialogue.

"Why all this evil deployment? Is it to defend the oil sheikhs?" he asked.

He was referring to the U.S.-led multinational force massed against Iraq in the Gulf since Baghdad's troops invaded Kuwait on August 2.

"These oil sheikhs, who belong to the era of decadence, were charged by their evil masters to protect the oil wells so that they (masters) can control and amass (riches) of the world," President Hussein said in his message.

The Iraqi leader added: "We are at the end of the 20th century while thousands of Palestinians have been dispersed for more than 40 years because of the United States' injustice and with the complicity of the zionists."

He said earlier that the Middle East would remain unstable so long as the Palestinian problem remained unsolved.

"The Palestinian cause is the center of the Arab struggle," he was quoted by Jordan's official Petra news agency as saying, adding that if the problem is unresolved "the region will know no peace."

JERUSALEM (DEC. 25) - The last three members of a Jewish terrorist organization jailed for anti-Arab attacks between June 1980 and May 1984 are to be freed Wednesday after President Chaim Herzog commuted their sentences, court sources said here Tuesday.

Menahem Livni, former head of the 28-member group, Uri Sharvav and Shaul Nir, were initially given life sentences for organizing, carrying out or planning bloody attacks against Palestinians.

The were charged with attacking the Palestinian mayors of Nablus, Ramallah and El Bireh in the occupied West Bank in 1980.

They killed three Palestinian students and wounded 30 others in a shooting spree at Hebron's Islamic high school. The group had planned to blow up the Omar and Al Aqsa mosque in Jerusalem "to hasten the arrival of the Messiah."

In 1987, President Herzog commuted the sentences of the three defendants to 24 years and reduced the term to 15 years in 1988.

In all, the extremists group's leaders will have served only seven years in jail.

Mr. Herzog said the inmates had behaved well and shown their sincere remorse.

On Sunday, the trial of a 21-year-old Israeli charged with the cold-blooded killings of seven Palestinians last May opened at a court in Tel Aviv.

The lawyers of Ami Popper were planning to argue that the defendant was "mentally unbalanced," as a result of having once been sexually assaulted, and that the killings were not premeditated.

He was charged in June with the May 20 killings of seven Arab workers in Rishon Le Zion near Tel Aviv and with the attempted murder of 10 other Palestinians, all of whom were shot and wounded.

HONG KONG (DEC. 26) - Hong Kong's inflation remained high in November, with prices 10.9 per cent higher than the same month last year, the government said Wednesday.

The hike was logged in the government's Consumer Price Index "A" covering 50 per cent of urban households, the Census and Statistics Department said in a statement.

The government attributed the rates of increase during the month to a combination of higher costs for food and the increasing cost of private sector housing rentals.

The private-sector Hang Seng Consumer Index put November prices at 12 per cent higher than November 1989. The index covers 10 per cent of urban households of higher-income families.

A weak economic showing in the first three-quarters of the year coupled with oil price hikes caused by the Gulf crisis led the government to trim its forecast of gross domestic product (GDP) growth for the year to 2.3 per cent from an initial estimate of three per cent.

TOKYO (DEC. 26) - Japan's cut flower imports, mainly from Taiwan and the Netherlands, will likely fall in 1991 from 1990 because of the weak yen and growing domestic production, the Nihon Keizai Shimbun said Wednesday.

The leading financial newspaper, quoting industry sources, said Japan's cut flower imports totaled 10,800 tonnes between January and November, down 10 per cent from the same period last year.

During the period, imports from Taiwan, the biggest supplier to Japan, fell 41 per cent to 2,600 tonnes, and imports from the Netherlands declined 15 per cent to 1,700 tonnes.

Total cut flower imports in 1990 were estimated to decline 10 to 15 per cent from the previous year as Japanese flower growers were shifting to mass production of uncommon varieties of flowers, which dominate Japan's flower market, the sources said.

THE HAGUE (DEC. 25) - The Netherlands Tuesday suspended economic aid to Suriname to protest the military coup that toppled the elected government in the former Dutch colony, the foreign ministry said.

The Hague condemned Monday's "anti-democratic seizure of power by the military in Suriname and deeply regrets that such a severe blow has been dealt to the consolidation of democracy" in that nation on the northeastern tip of South America, a ministry spokesman said.

Suriname, which gained independence in 1975, remains heavily dependent on Dutch economic aid. The government here had alloted the equivalent of 120 million dollars a year for Suriname, disbursing the funds on a case-by-case basis.

The Netherlands suspended aid to Suriname in 1982 after 15 opposition leaders died while in custody under the military regime of Lieutenant Colonel Desi Bouterse, who had seized power in 1980.

That regime surrendered power in 1988 to an elected government led by President Ramsewak Shankar, who was toppled in Tuesday's apparently bloodless putsch, but Lt. Col. Bouterse remained a powerful figure in his capacity as military chief.

Lt. Col. Bouterse, who resigned Sunday from his military post, had blasted Mr. Shankar for failing to stick up for him during run-ins he had with Dutch authorities during recent stopovers at Amsterdam airport.

BEIJING (DEC. 25) - The private sector made a slight comeback this year, after being hit by China's austerity program over the last two years, the New China News Agency (NCNA) reported.

An official of the State Administration for Industry and Commerce told NCNA there were now 20.24 million registered private business people, up 4.7 per cent from last year.

According to administration figures, 19.32 million people were engaged in private businesses last year, a drop of 16.44 per cent compared with 1988.

The number of private businesses grew quickly under reforms of the 1980s but were hit hard after the central government implemented an austerity program in late 1988.

Many were forced to close due to lack of credit, much of which was put aside for inefficient and loss-making state-run enterprises.

Beijing eased up in its loan restrictions from late last year.

The official also told NCNA the central government would encourage the private sector to develop further.

BANGKOK (DEC. 25) - Cambodian resistance guerrillas and Phnom Penh government troops Tuesday exchanged mortar and artillery fire near a northwestern border town, a Thai military source said.

It was the first outbreak of fighting in northwestern Cambodia since the conclusion Sunday in Paris of discussions aimed at settling the 12-year Cambodian conflict, the source said.

The battle, which could be heard on the Thai side of the border in Aranyaprathet township, occurred around 9:00 a.m. (0200 GMT) Tuesday along Highway 5, a strategic road linking northwestern Cambodia with Phnom Penh, the source said.

Guerrillas belonging to the non-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front attacked government troops in Ban Bakchan, Ban Koke-kow and Ban Sing north of Highway 5, the source said.

The Khmer Rouge also launched an offensive aimed at seizing a stretch of highway some 15 kilometres (nine miles) to the south.

Casualty figures were not immediately known.

KATHMANDU (DEC. 25) - Amid concern that the general election might be delayed if constituencies are not mapped out in time, Nepal's King Birendra on Tuesday announced the appointment of a three-member commission for the purpose.

An announcement by Radio Nepal said that the three-member constituency delineation commission was being formed with the advice and approval of the interim government.

It said the three-member commission comprises Jogendra Prasad Shrivasta, who heads the panel, Chandra Bahadur Shrestha, a member of Nepal's National Planning Commission, and Yogendra Nath Ojha, a joint secretary in Nepalese Interior Ministry.

The composition of the panel indicates that it will meet with the approval of the Nepalese of Indian origin who live in the kingdom's southern Terai Belt as two of the three members belong to that community.

The delay in the formation of the commission, which is to sumbit its report by January 28, had fuelled fears here that the general election might not be able to be held in April or May next year as originally planned.

The election will be Nepal's first multi-party poll in 32 years.

TOKYO (DEC. 25) - All Nippon Airways Co. Ltd. (ANA) and Japan Air System Co. Ltd. (JAS) said Tuesday they had applied for Japanese Transport Ministry permission to start new passenger services to New York and Honolulu next year.

ANA, the country's second-biggest airline and its largest domestic carrier, said it wanted to offer three round-trip flights a week between Tokyo and New York from March 9, using Boeing 747-200 aircraft.

The number of weekly flights would later be increased to five, the airline said in a statement.

JAS, the country's third-biggest carrier, is proposing two flights a week between Tokyo and Honolulu from June 3, using DC-10 aircraft, a spokesman said.

ANA began international services in 1986 and now flies to 17 foreign destinations including Los Angeles and Washington. JAS began international services in 1988 and currently flies to Seoul and Singapore.

The new company, capitalised at 24 billion won (34 million dollars), is to be 50 per cent owned by Lucky, the parent of South Korea's third-biggest conglomerate and the country's largest chemical concern.

The two Japanese companies will hold 25 per cent each, Sumitomo added.

The joint venture plans to complete a plant at Lucky-Goldstar's existing petrochemical complex in Yeochun in early 1993, producing up to 40,000 tonnes of methylmethacrylate (MMA) monomer and 30,000 tonnes of isobutylene a year.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 25) - After his troops finished serenading him with Marine versions of Christmas carols, Lieutenant Colonel Tom Jones' thoughts turned to war.

He feared his men would suffer heavy casualties because he said the Iraqis are skilled at laying mines and building defensive positions.

This war would also last longer than many think and would be more intense than his own experience in Vietnam, he said on Christmas Eve as he stood outside the camouflage netting that served as his home in the desert.

His troops, who had just sung modified carols like "silent night, we're going to fight," trudged back to camp.

"In Vietnam, regardless of what you think, it was a low-intensity to mid-intensity conflict," he said. "This here is almost the opposite. We're talking mid-intensity to high intensity."

As if to reinforce his concern, his battalion had upgraded security in the previous 48 hours, one of his officers said. It reflected a general security alert for multinational forces that had been imposed for the holidays.

(Back in the United States, President George Bush was told by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, General Colin Powell, that U.S. forces they had just visited in the Gulf would not be ready to fight Iraq until mid-February.

(The New York Times reported Tuesday Mr. Bush was told by his two senior defense aides that officers in the field said they would not be ready by January 15, the deadline imposed on Iraq by the United Nations to withdraw from Kuwait which it invaded August 2.)

But despite what is widely perceived as an increasing risk of war, U.S. troops opened presents, ate Christmas dinner, played sports and heard entertainer Bob Hope crack jokes.

In Col. Jones' battalion, Marines huddled in their makeshift chapel to sing carols, recite prayers, and share in communion -- their faces lit up by the red glow of the occasional flashlight.

Asked about the importance of the service, Lance Corporal William Jackson, Jr. of Connecticut said: "It's just keeping up on our religion, just giving us that extra little bit to go on -- some more strength."

Marines also said their morale was bolstered by the continuous flow of food and presents from friends, family and people they had never met.

Under scores of camouflage nets in the desert were miniature Christmas trees, candy canes, stacks of presents, and the occasionnal red Santa sock.

"Lots of people have missed holidays before, but this is kind of a special one because of the extra threat," said Lt. Daniel Egge, 29, from Rapid City, North Dakota. "My wife's never sent me so many 'care' packages.'"

While some Marines dug an air raid shelter in the desert sand and helicopters hovered nearby, Corporal Tony Amezcua held a megaphone over a tape recorder playing Bing Crosby's "Silver Bells."

He aimed it in different directions, grinning and dancing to the music.

Although Col. Jones said he was concerned for the fate of his men, he said they have matured quickly in difficult circumstances.

Whereas they first arrived in Saudi Arabia with false bravado, they now have a kind of "calm assurance," he said.

"None of them want to go to war, but they realize if they have to, they're pretty well prepared.

As for Christmas, he said it is "the holiday that reminds you about your family. That brings the stark reality of the separation ... to the young Marines. It's much more poignant in an environment like this."

ANKARA (DEC. 25) - A turk was sentenced here Tuesday to 12 years and six months in prison for spying for Iraq.

The military court found Ahmet Alver, an unemployed former oil industry official, guilty of providing information on military bases and facilities in south-eastern Turkey to his Iraqi controllers.

Alver told the court that he had been recruited when he applied to the Iraqi embassy for a visa earlier this year. He said all that he provided his controllers was information gathered from the newspapers and television.

The Iraqi military attache, Brigadier-General Fadhil Ahmed Septi, was withdrawn by Baghdad last month, apparently at Turkey's request, after he was named in the espionage trial.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 25) - The United States Tuesday condemned the coup that toppled the elected government in Suriname and called for the restoration of civilian rule in the former Dutch colony in South America.

"We condemn this violation of constitutional order in Suriname," the State Department said of Monday's apparently bloodless putsch.

"This action at a time when the entire hemisphere is moving toward democracy will only further isolate Suriname from the international community to the detriment of the Surinamese people," the department said in a statement read by a spokeswoman.

"We call on the Surinamese military to restore power immediately to the democratically elected authorities of that country," the communique added.

President Ramsewak Shankar, who was ousted in the coup, had taken power as the head of an elected government in 1988 after nearly eight years of rule by military strongman Lieutenant Colonel Desi Bouterse.

Lt. Col. Bouterse resigned Sunday as commander of the armed forces.

TOKYO (DEC. 25) - Japan's crude oil imports rose 9.6 per cent from a year earlier to 129 million barrels last month for the 10th increase in a row, the international trade and industry ministry said Tuesday.

Imports from the Middle East rose 5.7 per cent to 95.3 million barrels, accounting for 73.6 per cent of the November total, the ministry said.

Japanese purchases of crude oil from Iran soared 119.9 per cent, while those from Saudi Arabia jumped 77.7 per cent in November, it said without specifying the volumes.

There were no imports from Iraq with which Japan suspended all trade following its invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

Domestic sales of oil products in Japan in November dropped 1.1 per cent from the 1989 level to 112 million barrels, with kerosene plunging 17.7 per cent to 13 million barrels, the ministry said.

DOHA (DEC. 25) - Leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) ended a three-day summit here late Tuesday after a series of snags on bilateral and defense issues and resolution of the Gulf crisis, officials said.

The leaders were expected to approve and release their final resolutions after a formal closing and plenary session following a series of bilateral contacts, they said.

Heads of state from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Baharain, Oman and Qatar were meeting to discuss Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and what action to take as a regional body.

Conference sources earlier said that the council was divided on how to confront the Iraqi invasion but senior delegation officials denied the claim.

King Fahd of Saudi Arabia on Monday asserted that the GCC wanted to liberate Kuwait by peaceful means, "as long as peace is possible, or by war, when war is the only way."

In a final communique, the council called on Iraq to withdraw its troops "immediately and without preconditions" from Kuwait before the United Nations Security Council-mandated deadline of January 15.

"The six nation members of the Gulf Cooperation Council urge the Iraqi regime to immediately and without precondition pull out its troops from Kuwait before January 15, 1991," the statement ending the council's 11th summit said.

The GCC also voiced support for all the U.N. resolutions, notably those sanctioning the use of force against Iraq if it refused to withdraw from the emirate.

BUCHAREST (DEC. 25) - Former King Michael of Romania arrived late Tuesday in Bucharest but the interior ministry said he was in the country illegally.

He had come to "pray on the tomb of his ancestors" at Curtea de Arges in central Romania, his daughter Princess Margareta said. The former king, accompanied by his wife, Princess Anne of Bourbon Parme and his youngest daughter Sofia are to leave Romania on Wednesday afternoon, she said.

The Romanian interior ministry said the royal family had entered the country "fraudulently."

In a communique issued Tuesday evening, the ministry said the family had "no entry visas." It said that when the family arrived "at the border (at the airport) they deposited their passports and crossed the border without waiting for the legal decision of the border police."

"This has put them in an illegal situation," the communique said.

Princess Margareta arrived last Thursday in Bucharest and will leave on January 4.

The former king, who lives in exile in western Switzerland, tried to return to Romania on April 12 for Easter but was refused entry at the last minute although he had an entry visa.

Romanian authorities at the time said they were concerned with the effect the ex-king's visit could have on the country's stability just before elections on May 20. Prime Minister Petre Roman said the former monarch's proposed visit would be "a political act."

Three members of Annahda's managing committee, Ziad Doulatli, Jalaleddin Roueiss, and Mohamed Ben Salem as well as its spokesman Ali Laaridh were also detained.

Most of the arrested Moslems were teachers and civil servants, according to the movement.

DOHA (DEC. 25) - Leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) meeting here on Tuesday condemed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and called for an immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops from the emirate before the United Nations Security Council-mandated deadline of January 15.

"The six member nations of the Gulf Cooperation Council urge the Iraqi regime to immediately and without precondition pull out its troops from Kuwait before January 15, 1991," Secretary General Abdallah Bishara, a Kuwaiti, said as he read the final communique.

The council reaffirmed its "complete condemnation of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait," and pledged its "complete support for the Kuwaiti people in their struggle to end the occupation of their country and restoration of the legitimate government," of the ousted emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah.

The GCC also voiced support for all the U.N. resolutions, notably those sanctioning the use of force against Iraq if it refused to withdraw from the emirate, which it invaded on August 2.

The council will dispatch a delegation to the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council to discuss the Gulf crisis, the final communique of the GCC's 11th summit said.

The leaders will send the same delegation to several Arab countries to brief officials there on the GCC's views, it said.

Conference sources earlier said the council was divided on how to confront the Iraqi invasion but senior delegation officials denied the claim.

King Fahd of Saudi Arabia on Monday asserted that the GCC wanted to liberate Kuwait by peaceful means, "as long as peace is possible, or by war, when war is the only way."

The GCC states also thanked Arab, Moslem and friendly countries participating in the U.S.-led multinational force massed against Iraq in the Gulf and said the troops would be repatriated as soon as reasons for their deployment no longer existed.

The summit voiced the hope to speed up the process of integration between GCC members in a bid to create economic interdependence and a Gulf common market.

On the Arab front, the summiteers noted that the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait had "weakened Arab solidarity" and called for the establishment of Arab ties based on "respect for good neighborliness and non-interference in the internal affairs of others."

The summit also decided to create an aid program to support development efforts in Arab and Moslem countries "to encourage the opening of market economies," with the GCC providing the necessary funds, Mr. Bishara said.

The statement did not specify the amount to be disbursed but conference sources said the program could be funded at 15 billion dollars.

In other developments, the GCC leaders expressed concern about the adverse effects of the Gulf crisis on the Palestinian question and reiterated their complete support for the anti-Israeli uprising in the occupied territories.

The summit called for the convocation of an international peace conference on the Middle East with participation of all the parties concerned, but it failed to mention the PLO, which Gulf states had traditionally said was the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people.

GCC leaders gave their suport for the Lebanese government and praised President Elias Hrawi for reuniting the country. They added their support for the creation of an international fund to rebuild Lebanon.

Heads of state from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Baharain, Oman and Qatar also said they wished to establish special ties with Iran.

"The GCC welcomes Iran's wish to improve its relations with the council's members" and wishes to establish "special and privileged ties with Iran, based on good neighborliness, peaceful coexistence, and common religion and heritage " the communique said.

The GCC was established in 1981 after the Gulf war broke out, to counter what its members considered the Iranian threat against them and Iraq.

ALGIERS (DEC. 25) EFE - Algerian President Chadli Benjedid will undertake a "third phase" of his search to find a peaceful settlement to the Gulf crisis, official sources in the Algerian capital said Tuesday.

Sources said Chadli will begin his new peace tour before the end of the year that will include the Saudi Arabian capital of Riyadh and other unspecified capitals.

Chadli has visited more than a dozen nations this month, primarly in the Middle East and Europe, in quest of a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis.

One of Chadli's main objectives has been to organize a meeting between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Saudi Arabian King Fahd.

Fahd has so far rejected a meeting unless Iraq withdraws from Kuwait, which it invaded August 2.

European-Iraqi talks to solve the crisis are possible "although talks between Baghdad and Washington have not taken place", Algerian Foreign Minister Sid Ahmed Ghozali said in a radio interview.

The Algerian foreign minister said Iraq wants to find a peaceful solution to the crisis but is ready to go to war if it does not find one.

BOGOTA (DEC. 25) EFE - Leftist guerrillas destroyed two naval vessels in separate attacks in the Amazon region of Colombia on Tuesday, the Defense Ministry said.

Rebels of the Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces (FARC) and the National Liberation Army (ELN) set fire to one launch on the River Guaviare in a joint operation.

The boat was carrying telecommunication equipment for the Amazon town of San Jose, 380 km south of Bogota.

In another FARC-ELN action a vessel transporting food and livestock was destroyed on the River Orteguaza.

A policeman and a rebel were killed when guerrillas attacked a police column Tuesday in the district of Miraflores, 350 km south of Bogota, a ministry statement added.

(DEC. 25) UPI - Americans celebrated Christmas this year with gift giving and good works accompanied by concerns for the ''all-American heroes'' spending the holiday away from home in the Persian Gulf.

''The sacrifices you make will never be forgotten,'' President Bush said in a holiday message to the 280,000 troops in Operation Desert Shield, taped last week and broadcast Christmas Eve.

''America is behind you. The world is behind you and history is behind you. When you come home, and we hope it's soon, you'll be welcomed as what you are - all-American heroes,'' Bush said.

Yellow ribbons - symbolizing the troops abroad - were as prevalent as red and green ones in some households as the threat of war with Iraq loomed.

In Texas, Uncle Sam, not Santa Claus, was the guiding figure for 300 members of a Texas Army National Guard unit who got a Christmas Eve call telling them to report for Operation Desert Shield duty.

''Whether it's Christmas Eve or the middle of May, we have to deal with it,'' said Capt. Henry Hamner, a spokesman for the 217th Evacuation Hospital guard unit based at San Antonio.

''Everyone is taking it as a matter of fact. That's what we've been trained to do for a good number of years. It shouldn't have been a surprise, considering the world situation.''

It was tougher for the family of Army Spec. Alyssa Mehl, who left behind three sons ages 2 to 6 and her husband, Tom, when she shipped out for Saudi Arabia. The economic downturn of 1990 compounded their problems.

''Those guys (his stepsons) need somebody here,'' Tom Mehl said. ''I wanted to get them an electric train set but it was too expensive. They're not getting all the things I was going to give them. That does hurt.''

Christmas cheer also was low in Killeen, Texas, as the 67,000 residents struggled against the twin specters of war and a drooping economy. About 20,000 soldiers from Fort Hood have been shipped to the Middle East and some 3,500 were deactivated earlier.

The result has been the closing of more than 100 businesses this year, officials say, and sales are off 60 percent. Hundreds of homes have been repossessed and about 50 percent of the apartments are empty.

''We have been knocked on our knees,'' City Manager Dan Hobbs says. ''It's an incredibly bleak picture.''

Pat Gallager, a chef at the Red Lion Inn in Omaha, Neb., carved 12 4-foot-high blocks of ice into a nativity scene and hoped it would promote the Christmas spirit over the Persian Gulf.

In Chicago, Torrence Green, 17, a volunteer, helped prepare packages of cereal bread, canned soups, canned vegetables and butter for the 15th annual holiday food giveway at the Paul Hall Community Center on the South Side.

''That's what Christmas is all about, helping people in need,'' Green said.

Shoppers, meanwhile, made their traditional last-minute raids on stores Christmas Eve to finish off their shopping before joining their families for presents, caroling, religious services or acts of holiday charity.

Leslie Searcy, an Atlanta area resident, said the sick economy seemed to have made shoppers leery about making Christmas purchases.

''I saw a lot of people doing a lot of looking before actually buying, as in comparing prices before buying - like I did,'' Searcy said.

In Detroit, Margie Thompson, 53, and her daughter Margaret, 25, opened their presents Monday and had an even more important exchange scheduled for Wednesday, when doctors will transplant one of Margie's kidneys to Margaret.

Margaret has had kidney disease for almost two years as the result of her 19-year battle with diabetes, which also has left her partially blind.

Two grinches were caught trying to steal Christmas in Boston. Steven O'Neil, 25, and George McNelley, 32, allegedly stole nearly 100 Christmas presents from cars parked at shopping malls.

The stolen gifts were taken to the state police headquarters in Peabody where most were reclaimed by their owners.

TOKYO (DEC. 25) UPI - Share prices drifted lower Tuesday in light Christmas trading. An absence of foreign investors and concern over Soviet and Middle East situations and the yen's weakness allowed the market to fall prey to arbitrage, brokers said.

The 225-share Nikkei average, the market's key indicator, dropped 351.72 points to finish at 23,767.88. The Nikkei had lost 405.34 points in the Tokyo market's last trading session Friday. Monday was a national holiday in Japan.

The Tokyo Stock Price Index, which lost 30.55 points Friday, slid another 39.65 points. TOPIX ended the day at 1,725.17.

Volume was extremely thin at an estimated 210 million shares. By comparison, trading Friday amounted to 351 million shares.

Foreign investors were largely absent due to the Christmas holiday, brokers said, while domestic investors were loathe to buy.

''The Soviet situation and the Middle East look more threatening now, '' said broker Yoichi Sasaki of Jardine Fleming (Securities).

''In addition, the dollar was slightly stronger today, discouraging buying,'' he said.

Trading was so light that the market was dominated by arbitraguers, who sold against futures contracts, brokers said.

Exchange-rate-sensitive shares such as energy-importing utilities lost.

Tokyo Electric Power fell 100 yen to 3,530.

Electronics exporters, who ordinarily benefit from the yen's weakness, also dropped. Sony lost 100 yen to end at 6,000, while TDK plunged 150 yen to 4,490.

Overall, declining shares outnumbered advancing ones by nearly 7:1.

It's a white Christmas for much of the nation. And a cold one. The frigid temperatures in the western two-thirds of the nation pushed through to the East Coast yesterday. At least two people died of exposure in Chicago, even though shelters for the homeless reported that hundreds of beds went UNused. Temperatures in Atlanta combined with high winds to make the wind-chill five degrees.

The cold weather even chilled California, where a freeze warning is in effect for San Franciso with lows in the 20's. The cold in Southern California caused major damage to the citrus, lettuce and avocado crops. Clark Briggs of the California Farm Bureau says it's the most extensive damage he's ever seen. MOSCOW (DEC. 25) UPI - The popular Russian republic leader Boris Yeltsin said Tuesday he would vote against giving Mikhail Gorbachev the additional presidential powers he is seeking.

Yeltsin told reporters before Tuesday's meeting of the Congress of People's Deputies that he would oppose a government reorganization plan to give Gorbachev direct control of ministries because he feared ''the absolutization of power.''

''I feel that the center (central government) is anxious to leave the republics without rights as before,'' Yeltsin said. ''However, today orders and decrees from the center are landing on different soil, a democratic system.''

Yeltsin is currently the most popular politician in the Soviet Union, but it was unclear how much effect his opposition would have on a potential vote on constitutional amendments to give Gorbachev the new power.

Gorbachev's government reorganization plan has already been approved by the Supreme Soviet, the standing Parliament that meets between the Congress of People's Deputies biannual sessions. Under current rules the Congress must also sanction all constitutional amendments.

A vote on the amendments was possible at the Tuesday afternoon session of the Congress, but there was a chance the issue would be once again postponed.

Rules of the Congress, set up by Gorbachev under perestroika as the supreme legislative body in the country, require two-thirds of the entire 2,250 members to approve amendments, a difficult threshold because of partial boycotts of the session by deputies from breakaway republics.

The registration of blocs of deputies at the Congress Tuesday gave some idea of the breakdown of sentiment. The conservative Soyuz bloc claimed 561 deputies, a coalition of centrist Communists had 730 members and the radical Interregional group said it had 229 deputies.

On Monday Gorbachev won easy approval for his plans for a national referendum on whether the country should remain intact and another popular vote on land ownership.

Earlier Monday deputies approved largely symbolic resolutions supporting the call for the country to remain intact, approving Gorbachev's idea for a new ''union treaty'' and retaining the country's name ''Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.''

On Tuesday the Congress reaffirmed its support for Gorbachev's draft of a union treaty, and defeated by a 933-419 vote with 266 abstentions a proposal to add a clause recognizing the declarations of sovereignty by nearly all of the Soviet republics.

The Congress ordered the Supreme Soviet to set a date for the vote ''to decide the question of maintaining a renewed union as a federation of sovereign Soviet socialist republics having equal rights, with a vote of each republic considered separately.''

The Baltic republics have already declared their independence from the Soviet Union and along with other separatists have opposed the idea of a referendum.

Even if the majority of a republic voted to secede, Gorbachev has said the republic would still need to follow a long and complicated process set by the central government before it would be allowed to leave the Soviet Union.

A poll taken last week by an arm of the Congress found that 52.7 percent of those questioned supported keeping the Soviet Union intact, but the survey did not include Lithuania, Latvia and Georgia, republics where independence sentiment is high.

The vote by the Congress to support Gorbachev's idea for a new union treaty binding the 15 republics together and outlining significant powers for the central government still depends, however, on the agreement of each republic.

Several republics have already said they will refuse to sign the treaty or indicated they will demand that it include provisions unacceptable to Gorbachev. The breakaway Baltic republics as well as Armenia and Georgia are at least partially boycotting the Congress.

The order for a referendum on land ownership also faced a tough challenge. The huge Russian republic's legislature approved private ownership earlier this month and Yeltsin said the central government's call for a referendum ''brought into collision'' the Russian and central parliaments.

BEIRUT (DEC. 25) UPI - Lebanon's hardcore Christian forces intended to form an opposition block against the newly-formed pro-Syrian cabinet and threatened to boycott the ''puppet'' government, political sources said Tuesday.

Samir Geagea's Christian Lebanese Forces militia and the Phalange Party of George Saadeh exerted behind-the-scene efforts to persuade Christian figures who were appointed cabinet members to boycott the ministerial council, the sources said.

The campaign started immediately after Prime Minister Omar Karami formed a cabinet of 15 Christians and 15 Moslems late Monday, the sources said. The majority of the appointed ministers were staunch pro- Syrian figures.

''We don't recognize this puppet cabinet,'' an official Lebanese Forces militia spokesman said, adding that Geagea would declare a formal stand against the new government at a news conference.

Geagea's organization and the Phalange were seeking to establish an opposition block against the government, the sources said.

The Beirut Ad-Diyar newspaper reported that Geagea recently told President Elias Hrawi that the new cabinet ''was a government of war.'' Geagea made the stand after receiving a draft of the cabinet formation, it said.

Geagea was named a minister of state, while Saadeh was appointed minister of telecommunications.

The mainly-Christian Maronite Phalange Party engaged in confrontations against Palestinian-backed Moslem forces when the civil war broke out in 1975. The Lebanese Forces militia, which originally emerged as the military wing of the Phalange, became stronger and rallied all Phalange fighters.

Losing the military manpower as a result of inter-Christian power struggles, the Phalange became a political gathering, while the Lebanese Forces militia grouped 10,000 armed supporters.

''The Phalange Party and the Lebanese Forces will not take part in the new cabinet,'' said Alfred Madi, a Phalange politburo member. ''We will find ways to express our opposition.''

Political observers said the Lebanese Forces militia was dismayed partly because it failed to win a larger share in the cabinet, and noted that the majority of the cabinet members were staunch pro-Syrian politicians.

Christian political sources said the Patriarch Nasrallah Sfair, Lebanon's highest Maronite authority, had also expressed dismay at the formation of the new cabinet. Both Geagea and Saadeh are Maronites.

On Monday, Karami said he included militia figures in the ministerial council to facilitate the dissolving of militia infrastructures.

BEIJING (DEC. 25) UPI - The Chinese Communist Party's ruling central committee convened in private session Tuesday, striving to meet a Dec. 31 deadline to approve an fiscal blueprint that will guide China's economy through the end of the century.

The so-called plenary session apparently was convened during a formal - but secret - opening ceremony at the Great Hall of the People, the seat of China's government on central Tiananmen Square.

The party's leadership traveled Monday afternoon to an official retreat west of Beijing to continue the meeting, Western observers and Chinese sources said.

The state-run press carried no mention of the Communist Party plenum and Chinese officials would not comment on the meeting.

The meeting was expected to conclude Thursday with a speech by Communist Party General Secretary Jiang Zemin.

Plenary sessions, which typically go unreported until they conclude, are held on an as-needed basis to allow top communist leaders to approve promotions, firings and changes in government and party policies.

Premier Li Peng disclosed earlier this month that the plenum would be held in the latter half of December and said there would be only one topic on the agenda: China's economy.

The party and government face a pressing deadline for enacting a new economic plan, since China's so-called Seventh Five-Year Plan for economic development expires Dec. 31.

The Eighth Five-Year Plan has been hammered out in recent weeks and by unofficial accounts appears to be a a compromise between hard-line advocates of strict central planning and reformists who believe in pushing the frontiers of China's booming but ever-less-socialist market economy.

Most Western observers say the plan will offer little new and will hew closely to senior leader Deng Xiaoping's formula of gradual economic reform coupled with tight controls on political liberalization.

VATICAN CITY (DEC. 25) UPI - Pope John Paul II Tuesday made an emotional plea for the ''tormented nations of the Middle East'' and prayed for a peaceful solution to the dangerous Gulf crisis as he addressed the world from the Vatican's central balcony on Christmas Day.

Speaking to a crowd of up to 100,000 on a chilly, rainy morning in the Eternal City, the Polish pontiff also delivered a message of hope to the newly democratic nations of the former communist Eastern Europe, defended the rights of Palestinians and sent the world holiday greetings in 52 languages.

Aside from its traditional religious content concerning the ancient story of the birth of Christ, John Paul's ''Urbi et Orbi'' message (To the City and the World) dwelled on the deepening crisis in the Gulf following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait last August, which has brought the world to the brink of war.

''The light of Christ is with the tormented nations of the Middle East,'' John Paul said as he spoke from the central balcony of St. Peter's. ''For the area of the Gulf we await with trepidation for the threat of conflict to disappear.

''May leaders be convinced that war is an adventure with no return.''

Dressed in gold and white robes, the pope formulated his own recipe for saving the region from a bloody conflict between Iraq and the coalition of nations led by the United States which is determined to force Iraqi troops out of occupied Kuwait by Jan. 15.

''By reasoning, patience and dialogue, with the respect for the inalienable rights of peoples and nations, it is possible to identify and travel the paths of understanding and peace,'' John Paul said.

The pope said that the Holy Land ''has been awaiting this peace for years: a peaceful solution to the whole question which concerns it, a solution which takes into account the legitimate expectations of the Palestinian people and of the people who live in the state of Israel.''

Pilgrims from all over the globe who gathered in St. Peter's Square for the Christmas morning message stood around a life-sized Nativity scene depicting the birth of Christ almost 2,000 years ago. Nearby stood a 60-foot tall decorated Christmas tree, its ornaments dripping from two days of steady rain.

In his message, John Paul said that the light of Christ ''is with the people of Europe above the tumbled walls,'' a reference to the Berlin Wall, which fell in autumn 1989, as the winds of freedom swept across Eastern Europe.

''Europe's future will be filled with wonderful spiritual vitality, if hedonism and practical materialism are overcome,'' the pope said, ''and also if the barriers which divide the followers of the redeemer are broken down.''

The pope, a frequent visitor to Africa, offered a special prayer for the continent, but warned that ''freedom is compromised because of underdevelopment, peace and harmony between different people and traditions are disrupted by fratricidal struggles.''

In a message which he has often repeated, John Paul made a plea for the planet and its delicate ecosystem. ''I call once again for a more just sharing of the earth's resources, a new and more just world ethical and economic order.''

The pope said he is seeking ''effective and repectful cooperation between the rich countries and the emerging peoples.''

''(Only this) can prevent the contrast between North and South from becoming a widening abyss which will increase the already vast and disturbing archipelago of poverty and death.''

John Paul uttered holiday greetings in languages including Bengali, Urdu, Senagalese, Georgian and Burundi.

Earlier Sunday, the pope celebrated holy mass inside St. Peter's, the largest church in the Christian world, before delivering his message from the balcony.

(DEC. 25) UPI - Inside tents scattered across the Saudi desert, U-S Army

infantrymen, Air Force fighter pilots, Marine special forces and Coast Guard reservists are celebrating Christmas today. Coast Guard Petty Officer 3rd Class Lynn Oberkrieser of Buffalo, New York, summed of the feelings of the men and women serving in the Gulf by saying ''It's the time of year I'm always with my family. I never dreamed how much I would miss them.''

Two dozen National Guard members from Minnesota received their marching orders in their Christmas stockings yesterday. Eight members of the 109th Aeromedical Evacuation Flight will go on active duty tomorrow. .. and will be deployed in Saudi Arabia by January 2nd. The remaining 20 members of the unit are slated to be activated January 2nd... with deployment scheduled one week later. The guard members will staff ground hospitals for patients flown in from the front lines.

Russian republic leader Boris Yeltsin said today that he will vote against giving Mikhail Gorbachev the additional presidential powers he is seeking. Yeltsin told reporters before today's meeting of the Congress of People's Deputies that he would oppose a government reorganization plan to give Gorbachev direct control of ministries because he feared what he called ''the absolutization of power.''

Author Salman Rushdie is trying to appease those who still want him dead, but an Iranian newspaper today says the death sentence against Rushdie is irreversible. Rushdie yesterday declared his faith in Allah and said his controversial novel ''The Satanic Verses'' will NOT be published in a paperback edition. Rushdie went into hiding nearly two years ago, after the late Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Khomeini sentenced him to death because of the novel that many Moslems consider blaspehmous.

Political sources say Lebanon's hardcore Christian forces intend to form an opposition block against the newly-formed pro-Syrian cabinet, and threatened to boycott the ''puppet'' government. The sources said the campaign started immediately after Prime Minister Omar Karami formed a cabinet of 15 Christians and 15 Moslems late last night. The majority of the appointed ministers are staunch pro-Syrian figures.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (DEC. 25) UPI - A fugitive coup leader vowed Tuesday that mutinous soldiers would ''vigorously pursue'' their quest to topple President Corazon Aquino and appealed for the support of the Filipino people.

Former army Col. Gregorio Honasan made his statement four days after government troops foiled a rebel attempt to blow up fighter jets at a major air base supposedly to signal the start of a seventh coup try.

Authorities placed special combat units in the capital and strategic provinces north and south of Manila on heightened alert to thwart a possible uprising. Coup rumors have swept the capital since last week.

Military sources, who declined to be named, said Tuesday that Honasan, a key figure in the Dec. 1-9, 1989, coup attempt that nearly ousted Aquino, was sighted three times this month in the capital's financial district. The government has posted a $178,000 for his capture.

''You have sustained and nurtured us over the past years with your unyielding support and your unceasing prayers,'' said Honasan in a statement sent to news agencies. Honasan also led a failed coup attempt in August 1987.

''In return, we have consistently renewed and pursued our commitment to you, our people, to vigorously pursue the unfinished revolution of our forefathers to swiftly avert further violence inflicted on you through vindictiveness, infefficiency, ignorance and injustice.''

The elusive Honasan offered to ''serve as an instrument in our long delayed quest for good government.''

Honasan apparently was attempting to rally the support of Filipinos suffering from a series of natural calamities, left-wing and right-wing threats and the impact of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Critics have accused Aquino of ''lack of leadership and incompetence'' in dealing with the crises.

Honasan said Filipinos were paying the price for not having supported the previous attempts to overthrow Aquino and instead ''chose to heed and lay our hopes on empty promises, grand deceptions and outright lies.''

MOSCOW (DEC. 25) UPI - The Congress of People's Deputies gave preliminary approval Tuesday to parts of Mikhail Gorbachev's government reorganization, but the president was forced to abandon plans for a new super agency to ensure his decrees were carried out.

The Congress went through Gorbachev's proposed constitutional amendments article by article at its Tuesday afternoon session, agreeing by overwhelming votes to plans for a vice president and a streamlined Cabinet.

But by early evening there had been no action on the most controversial items, those that would give Gorbachev direct control over the new Cabinet of Ministers and other substantial new direct powers.

In one concession to fears of abuse of the new powers, Gorbachev said because of opposition he was withdrawing his proposal to create a ''Supreme Control Chamber,'' an agency that would have placed representatives around the country to ensure that presidential decrees are fulfilled.

''The president will consult with his constitutional advisers and come up with another organ of control,'' Gorbachev said with a smile on his face when he withdrew the proposal.

Popular Russian republic leader Boris Yeltsin said before the debate Tuesday he opposed giving Gorbachev additional presidential control, saying the Soviet leader may already have too much power.

Gorbachev defended his request for the reoganization and its additional powers as necessary to get the country out of its current crisis.

''Life is so rocky now, we see that power must be made more effective or else processes can take on a destructive character,'' Gorbachev told reporters outside the Congress of People's Deputies, which he set up under perestroika as the government's supreme legislative body.

Yeltsin said before Tuesday's meeting of the Congress that he would vote against Gorbachev's proposed reorganization because he feared ''the absolutization of power.''

''One man already has enough powers, what he has today is already risky,'' Yeltsin told a correspondent for the independent Interfax news agency.

''I feel that the center (central government) is anxious to leave the republics without rights as before,'' Yeltsin said. ''However, today orders and decrees from the center are landing on different soil, a democratic system.''

Gorbachev's government reorganization plan had already been approved by the Supreme Soviet, the standing Parliament that meets between the Congress of People's Deputies biannual sessions. Under current rules the Congress must also sanction all constitutional amendments.

The registration of blocs of deputies at the Congress Tuesday gave some idea of the breakdown of sentiment. The conservative Soyuz bloc claimed 561 deputies, a coalition of centrist Communists had 730 members and the radical Interregional group said it had 229 deputies.

On Monday Gorbachev won easy approval for his plans for a national referendum on whether the country should remain intact and another popular vote on land ownership.

Earlier Monday deputies approved largely symbolic resolutions supporting the call for the country to remain intact, approving Gorbachev's idea for a new

''union treaty'' and retaining the country's name ''Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.''

On Tuesday the Congress reaffirmed its support for Gorbachev's draft of a union treaty, and defeated by a 933-419 vote with 266 abstentions a proposal to add a clause recognizing the declarations of sovereignty by nearly all of the Soviet republics.

The Congress ordered the Supreme Soviet to set a date for the vote ''to decide the question of maintaining a renewed union as a federation of sovereign Soviet socialist republics having equal rights, with a vote of each republic considered separately.''

The Baltic republics have already declared their independence from the Soviet Union and along with other separatists have opposed the idea of a referendum.

Even if the majority of a republic voted to secede, Gorbachev has said the republic would still need to follow a long and complicated process set by the central government before it would be allowed to leave the Soviet Union.

A poll taken last week by an arm of the Congress found that 52.7 percent of those questioned supported keeping the Soviet Union intact, but the survey did not include Lithuania, Latvia and Georgia, republics where independence sentiment is high.

NEW YORK (DEC. 25) UPI - A man returning home with holiday presents for his wife was shot by two robbers on Christmas Eve and died Christmas day authorities said.

Berhane Waldermarian, 31, was accosted outside his building shortly before 11 p.m. Monday as he was returning with Christmas packages.

Waldermarian put down the packages and as he was doing so, one of the robbers, armed with a shotgun, shot him in the stomach, said spokesman Fred Weiner said. The robbers fled without taking any of the presents, authorities said.

Waldermarian, who was married but childless, died at 12:35 a.m. Christmas Day at St. John's Hospital.

DUBLIN, TEXAS (UPI)) - Two lively babies adopted four months ago in stark Romanian orphanages made Christmas a new experience for a Texas couple.

''I used to say, 'Maybe we'll have a baby next Christmas,''' Stacey Disney said, recalling the loneliness of some past holidays.

The two new arrivals, an 11-month-old son and a 7-month-old daughter, have changed all that this holiday season.

The babies also received a special gift. A notebook with an account of how their parents rescued them and videotapes of their homecomings and the ABC news program that first brought the Disneys' attention to their plight.

''We're putting everything in there, so when they're older, they'll know everything about where they came from,'' Ben Disney said.

When Cameron Garrett Nicolae Disney arrived in the United States on Oct. 8, he weighed 18 pounds. He now is a sturdily built, blue-eyed blond who weighs 26 pounds.

Laura, who weighed only 2 1/2 pounds at birth, is up to 16 pounds - 4 pounds more than when she arrived in Texas. Then, the dark-haired, brown-eyed girl couldn't sit up, couldn't grasp things and didn't smile. Before the adoption, Laura had never been turned onto her stomach in her crib, Stacey Disney said.

Laura sat in front of the family's Christmas tree, chattering, grabbing blocks and laughing at a tickling from her mother.

''Laura's the one I'm most proud of, as far as progress. She's changed dramatically. In a matter of days, we could see a difference. I think it's been due to diet, attention and a steady routine,'' Ben Disney said.

Disney is minister of First United Methodist Church of Dublin, a town of 2,850 about 75 miles southwest of Fort Worth.

The couple, both 33, had been trying to adopt locally but changed their minds after they saw an ABC 20/20 report early this year. It reported the plight of the Romanian babies, many in orphanages. Several of the babies gazed glassy-eyed into the news cameras, suffering from malnutrition, disease and neglect.

Many of the babies were born during the reign of Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu, who was executed in December 1989. In an effort to increase his nation's population, Ceausescu had halted birth control and abortions while ordering women of childbearing age to have at least five children. A 20/20 story that aired Friday said that about 1,000 of the estimated 130,000 babies and children in Romanian institutions have been adopted by Americans.

Ben Disney found Cameron in one of the better-maintained orphanages, which had 300 babies and about 10 staff workers.

Laura, whose Romanian name is Alina, was in an orphanage where staff members did not allow Disney inside the nursery, so he couldn't tell what conditions there were like.

''Every once in a while, you look at them and remember where they came from and what you went through to get them,'' Ben Disney said. ''I don't want to hurry them, but I want to see them grow up and see how they turn out.''

MOSCOW (DEC. 25) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev said Tuesday Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze had the right to speak out as he did in his resignation speech and said the two men remained friends and would likely continue to work together.

Gorbachev, speaking to reporters during a break at the Congress of People's Deputies, said that while he was stunned and upset by Shevardnadze's surprise announcement at the conclave last week, it ''does not change anything in our relations.''

''I consider Mr. Shevardnadze a person who has done a lot for perestroika and will still do a lot,'' Gorbachev said. ''The question of where and how still remains.

''For the time being I told him to fulfill his obligations (as foreign minister). While the Congress is still going on, we will sort everything out.''

Gorbachev did not elaborate on any possible plans he might have for Shevardnadze. The Congress is scheduled to end Thursday.

Shevardnadze shocked Gorbachev and the world last week by announcing at the Congress that he was resigning to protest against reactionary conservative forces he said were pushing the country toward a dictatorship.

''Mr. Shevardnadze has the right to react to all these processes,'' Gorbachev said. ''Now we all have the right to speak out. Before (glasnost) we did not have this right ... he could have kept quiet but he spoke up.''

JERUSALEM (DEC. 25) UPI - Defense Minister Moshe Arens denied Tuesday the Israeli military had heightened its state of alert in recent days and advised Israelis to view the Persian Gulf crisis in a proper perspective.

Arens' comments came in reaction to reports on Army Radio and in Israeli newspapers Tuesday. During an early morning Army Radio program, one commentator described the state of alert of the Israeli army and air force as the closest thing to pre-war preparations the country had seen in a long time.

''We didnt receive any significant signs which would lead us to conclude that the situation changed,'' Arens said. ''There is a crisis, there is a possibility if you want of danger of war in the region.

''But in this stage in the last few days we don't have any change,'' Arens said after meeting with the parliament's defense and foreign affairs committee.

Arens denied Israel had increased its readiness in recent days, saying ''we are ready since the start of the crisis.'' Army Radio reported he told the parliamentary committee there was no need to panic and ''one has to see the crisis in its right proportion.''

''We believe these reports (by the Israeli media) are being vastly exaggerated and even blown out of proportion,'' one Israeli military source said. ''It's clear that these types of reports can create an atmosphere which is misleading for Israel because everything here is business as usual.

''The Israeli air force all year round is on a certain state of alert for potential enemies. Since the beginning of the crisis, it has heightened its state of alert,'' the military source said, but added no other changes had occurred recently.

On Monday, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said he believed the possibility of war in the Persian Gulf was higher than at any other time since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2. But Shamir urged Israelis not to worry, saying the Israeli military was ''ready and prepared.''

In an oft-repeated statement by Israeli leaders, Shamir also warned that if Israel were attacked, its military would respond with greater force than that used against the country.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said on Spanish television this weekend that Tel Aviv would be his first target if Iraq were attacked, even if Israel was not part of the U.S.-led military coalition against him.

The military source played down the report and said the military did not ''feel any need to press the panic button.'' He said he believed the media reports arose Tuesday because of anticipation and tension in advance of the Jan. 15 deadline set by the U.N. Security Council for Saddam Hussein to remove his Iraqi troops from Kuwait or face military force by the U.S.-led coalition.

(DEC. 25) UPI - 250 Million people in 50 countries on five continents watched Australians celebrated Christmas Day free of fear of natural disasters. Officials say Cyclone Joy has weakened and is moving away from the coast, allowing thousands of people to travel today.

In New South Wales State where bushfires have raged for three days, firefighters are now in control and are mopping up the fires, or allowing them to burn out. Police say there will be NO traditional barbecues for Christmas.

Fugitive Philippine coup leader ex-army Colonel Gregorio Honasan vowed today that mutinous soldiers will ''vigorously pursue'' their quest to topple President Corazon Aquino. He appealed for the support of the Filipino people.

An earthquake measured at four-point-eight on the Richter scale struck Manila and nearby provinces today, but caused no damage or injuries.

VATICAN CITY (DEC. 25) UPI - A small bomb exploded early Tuesday within sight of St Peter's Basilica just hours before the pope delivered his Christmas Day message and caused minor damage to an American military club and Vatican radio headquarters, police said.

Officials said that the rudimentary black powder device, believed by experts to be composed mainly of gunpowder, went off around 2 a.m. on Christmas Day.

Bomb squad investigators said that the explosion broke two plate glass windows at the United Services Organization, a social club open only to American military personnel, and caused minor damage at the offices of nearby Vatican radio.

No injuries were reported.

Scene of the blast was the Via di Conciliazione, the broad, Mussolini-designed avenue that runs from the River Tiber to St. Peter's.

The attack, for which police said Tuesday that they still have no clues, came less than 12 hours before Pope John Paul II delivered his Christmas ''Urbi et Orbi'' message to the world from the central Vatican balcony, 1,500 feet away.

Investigators said that they believed that the USO was the prime target, but that the attackers placed the device nearby in the doorway of a music hall when positioning it at the American club's front door proved too difficult.

A 1988 car bomb attack in Naples outside another USO club by a Japanese terrorist gang killed five people and injured several passers- by.

(DEC. 25) UPI - Pope John Paul delivered his annual Christmas message and blessing today to a crowd of 100-thousand people gathered on a chilly, rainy morning in Vatican City. The pope made a plea for a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis, saying ''May leaders be convinced that war is an adventure with NO return.'' He also said ''The light of Christ is with the tormented nations of the Middle East.''

A pre-dawn Christmas fire swept a single-family house in Columbus, Ohio, today killing at least five people, including two children. Officials say two women one man and a girl were found dead at the scene, and the fifth, a boy, was pronounced dead at the hospital. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

President Bush may NOT have heard what he wanted to during a three- hour meeting yesterday with Secretary of Defense Cheney and General Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The Christmas Eve telephone calls came from Uncle Sam... not Santa Claus... when 300 members of a Texas Army National Guard unit based at San Antonio were

The New England Shelter for Homeless Veterans in Boston will serve Christmas dinner for 200 vets today. WASHINGTON (DEC. 25) UPI - Findings released Tuesday cast doubt on the much-publicized discovery of a gene linked to severe alcoholism, but scientists who conducted the original research insist their discovery is solid.

Government researchers said their study of 40 alcoholics and 127 other patients did not find widespread or consistent ties between alcoholism and a type of gene known as the dopamine-2, or D-2, receptor gene.

''Even though we have not found a linkage to this particular gene, it is wrong to conclude that there is not a genetic influence in alcoholism. What this tells us is that we may have a long way to go to identify the specific gene or genes,'' said Dr. David Goldman of the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, who led the study.

Pinpointing the gene or genes associated with alcoholism could lead to better ways to identify people at risk of becoming alcoholics, as well as a greater understanding of the underlying causes of the disease, which in turn could lead to new treatments and preventive measures.

In April, a team headed by Dr. Ernest Noble, director of the University of California-Los Angeles Alcohol Research Center, reported that the D-2 receptor gene was present in the brains of nearly 70 percent of 35 people who died of alcohol-related illness, compared to just 20 percent of deceased non-alcoholics.

That finding, published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, represented the first reported link between a particular gene and alcoholism, although there has been a growing body of evidence suggesting that heredity plays a role in the disorder.

Scientists think dopamine - a brain chemical - could be associated with ''pleasure seeking'' that allows alcohol to stimulate brain cells in a way that results in a sense of enjoyment. A defect in the D-2 receptor gene may interfere with the dopamine response so people who have the gene need to drink more alcohol than other people to get the same pleasurable effect.

However, Goldman and his colleagues said their work failed to uncover any strong tie between the D-2 receptor gene and susceptibility to alcoholism.

''Close linkage of the (dopamine) gene to alcoholism was ruled out,'' the NIAAA researchers wrote in their study, also published in JAMA.

The conflicting results indicate ''there is either a subgroup of alcoholics that have mutation in the D-2 receptor gene'' or that Noble's finding represents a statistical fluke, Goldman said.

However, Noble said some of results of the new study could be interpreted to support his original findings.

The new study showed the type of D-2 receptor gene that Nobel identified was more common in severe alcoholics, with about 45 percent having the gene, he said. In contrast, only about 30 percent of moderate alcoholics had the gene. That supports the likelihood that the gene plays a role in severe alcoholism, he said.

Goldman countered that the difference between the two groups was insignificant but added it did provide ''a hint of hope'' that the gene may be somehow tied to alcoholism.

Noble also objected to the government scientists' method of screening for alcoholics. The researchers used a ''very crude'' test, consisting of yes-or-no questionnaire, to determine if a person was an alcoholic and how severe the problem was, he said. Many severe alcoholics deny their problem on such tests, he noted. Furthermore, patients with severe alcohol-related disease - like cirrhosis of the liver - were excluded from the study.

To back up his conviction that the D-2 receptor gene plays a role in severe alcoholism, Noble noted that his recent tests of living, severe alcoholics ''have confirmed our original findings.''

Although most of the estimated 18 million alcoholics in America are not the severe type, Noble said such alcoholics make up a disproportionate share of patients suffering from severe alcohol-related disease or undergoing alcoholism treatment.

CHICAGO (DEC. 25) UPI - Programs aimed at preventing teenage suicides may be ineffective or may even make the problem worse, researchers reported Tuesday.

A study involving 973 ninth- and 10th-graders found suicide- prevention programs in schools appeared often to produce negative reactions, especially among those most prone to suicide - the students who had attempted suicide.

''The attempters' reactions to the programs were generally more negative than those of the non-attempters,'' wrote researchers led by David Shaffer of Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York.

''Attempters exposed to programs were significantly less likely to recommend that the programs be presented to other students and significantly more likely to indicate that talking about suicide in classroom makes some kids more likely to kill themselevs,'' they said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The study involved 524 students who were exposed to a program at school aimed at preventing suicide, including 35 students who said they had made at least one suicide attempt, and 449 students who did not go through such a program, including 28 who had attempted suicide.

Of those who attempted suicide, 74 percent thought other students should participate in the programs, compared to 89 percent of those who had not attempted suicide.

About 27 percent of those who had attempted suicide thought the program would actually increase the chance that some students would kill themselves, compared to only about 11 percent of those who had not attempted suicide.

When the researchers compared 35 students who had attempted suicide and were exposed to the program to 28 students who had attempted suicide but had not been exposed to the program, they found that ''program exposure did not significantly influence attempters' deviant attitudes.''

In an editorial accompanying the study, Dr. Susan Blumenthal of the National Institutes of Mental Health said the findings were ''an important contribution'' to research evaluating suicide prevention programs, and indicated more study was needed.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 25) UPI - Troops from 27 nations allied against Iraq celebrated Christmas with muted merriment Tuesday, singing carols, feasting on turkey and lining up for phone calls home, but keeping their guns loaded.

Mindful of Saudi Arabia's acute sensitivity to public displays of worship by all other religions but Islam, military leaders ordered all Christmas lights, Bibles and even Santa kept inside mess tents and canvas chapels.

Comedian Bob Hope said nobody could stop him from showing up for Christmas after 41 years of entertaining the troops, but the Saudi authorities were not shy about refusing visas to actress Brooke Shields and singers Janet Jackson and Paula Abdul.

Christmas trees, flown over from the United States, were acceptable as long as their trimmings were not overtly religious. In several base camps where U.S. and Saudi troops serve side by side, the gaily decorated shrubs tended to attract curiosity of Arab soldiers who had lived in the desert all their lives.

''They came up and asked us if there really are trees like that in the United States? We told them that's what's known as a conifer'' said Coast Guard Cmdr. Scott McComb, whose port security unit from Buffalo, N.Y., patrols the Saudi shores of the Persian Gulf.

The lessons were kept suitably vague, however, when it came to theological discussions.

''We don't talk about our God or Christ,'' said McComb. ''But we do tell them it's a celebration. It's a family time and a time to celebrate. We shared some Christmas cookies with them.''

Inside the tents, however, U.S. troops attended midnight mass, held Gospel readings, sang carols and ate traditional Christmas meals, which resembled, but did not exactly taste like back home.

''It's a nice try, but I sure miss my mom's cooking,'' said Pfc. Benjamin Lima 19, working on a plate piled high with turkey, potatoes, gravy, cranberry sauce, pecan pie and Snickers bars. The egg nog, in keeping with Moslem restrictions, was non-alcoholic and few soldiers were interested.

Lima, who comes from the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn, N.Y., said he planned to tell his parents ''how weird this place is. I never understood why freedom of religion was so important before.''

Scattered across the desert, troops scattered across the barren Saudi terrain from more than two dozen nations celebrated Christmas in their own style.

British troops performed skits satirizing their commanding officers, while French soldiers stewed over the absence of wine and the cancellation of their singing star, Eddy Mitchell, whose visa denial created a diplomatic row.

Spaniards, Canadians, Egyptians, Australians and thousands of other troops from the allied armies all managed to celebrate Christmas, but thoughts tended to drift towards home and holidays past.

Wherever possible, the U.S. military tried to give soldiers access to telephones to speak with their wives and families, with lines backing up for hours in hotel lobbies and military compounds.

But despite the holiday, whether in combat fatigues or shorts and T- shirts, the soldiers wore their chemical suits folded in little pouches hanging from their belts and kept their weapons loaded.

''You never know when Saddam Hussein is going to strike.'' said Lima. ''It could even happen on Christmas.''

(DEC. 25) UPI - Many of the multinational troops deployed in the Gulf celebrated Christmas in the Moslem region today. The recognition of any religion other than Islam in Saudi Arabia is forbidden, but the country has been tolerant of such holiday manifestations as Christmas trees and Santa Clauses for the foreign troops, celebrating the Christian holiday far from home.

Leaders of the conservative Gulf Co-operation Council conclude their four-day summit in Qatar today. Gulf sources say the leaders of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Qatar, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates and Oman are still trying to agree whether to hold talks with Iraq on its occupation of Kuwait, a member state. The council is expected to release a final communique today, renewing the call for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

The Chinese Communist Party's ruling central committee convened in private session today. The meeting is expected to conclude Thursday with a speech by Communist Party General Secretary Jiang Zemin .

10-thousand supporters of Taiwan's main opposition party marched through Taipei today to call for a package of reforms including independence from China. Earlier, President Lee Teng Hui announced that he wuuld lift an emergency decree which he said would pave the way for unification. Lee said the decreee would be lifted by the end of May.

Two Boston men have been ordered held on five-thousand dollars bail each on charges of stealing nearly 100 Christmas presents from cars parked at shopping malls. Steven O'Neil and George McNelley of Boston's Charlestown section were arrested Saturday night. Police say they found more than three-thousand dollars worth of merchandise in their van, including stereos, toys and golf clubs. Many of the gifts were already wrapped. State police say most of the presents have already been reclaimed by their owners.

A Pittsburgh expert on child behavior says many of today's toys give children the message that it's fun to kill and injure the human body. Doctor Joseph Strayhorn of Allegheny General Hospital says such toys have become the norm. He says there is evidence that children engage in more acts of aggression when they play with toys linked with violence.

MOSCOW (DEC. 25) UPI - KGB chairman Vladimir Kryuchkov said Tuesday his weekend speech warning of foreign economic sabotage had been misunderstood and vowed the Soviet Union will not return to the Cold War era of denunciations.

''It is impossible to return to the past, in the Soviet Union or abroad,'' Kryuchkov said at a news conference. ''If someone wanted to try to return to the past in the Soviet Union he would fail miserably.''

''We have entered a new stage of life in the U.S.S.R, and we are not going to reverse it. Our course is only forward toward renewal and development.''

Kryuchkov, whose speech Saturday to the Congress of People's Deputies was widely seen as a return to Cold War rhetoric, all but conceded the news conference was called because of the denunciation of his remarks in the West.

''They did not understand me correctly,'' Kryuchkov said. ''They should analyze the core of my speech.''

In the KGB chief's speech Saturday, he warned that the CIA and other unspecified foreign forces were trying to ''impose doubtful ideas and plans'' on the Soviet Union and charged that some foreign businessmen take actions ''that are in essence similar to economic sabotage.''

The U.S. State Department Monday denounced Kryuchkov's charges as ''completely unfounded and inaccurate'' and said the United States was concerned ''that such a senior official would use such outdated and inflammatory rhetoric.''

''As for the reaction to my speech, it would be strange if everybody received it in the same way: with stormy applause,'' he said. ''There is different understanding in Western countries of the processes of our country. There is apprehension, there is hope and we understand it well.''

Asked about the charge that foreign businessmen were sabotaging the Soviet economy, Kryuchkov simply responded, ''Look, there are (foreign) firms and there are firms, there are joint ventures and there are joint ventures.''

''There are some firms that I would recommend against having anything to do with.''

Kryuchkov did not explain the remark but seemed to be implying that some foreign firms doing business in the Soviet Union are connected with foreign intelligence services.

He was asked whether ''it was not strange'' that while foreign aid was pouring into the country, he spoke of foreign interference and economic sabotage. ''Paradoxical rather than strange,'' he said.

Kryuchkov said that in the event of the declaration direct rule from Moscow in various region, the KGB would carry out its role within the limits of the constitution.

Asked about the large numbers of Soviet citizens emigrating from the country, Kryuchkov called it ''anguishing'' and said some 440,000 left in 1990. ''I don't believe the number will be less in 1991,'' he said.

He said in answer to a question that Eduard Shevardnadze's resignation as foreign minister ''suprised him.'' He said he was on good terms with Shevardnadze and worked with him in Afghanistan on the pullout of Soviet troops two years ago.

Asked about Shevardnadze's charges that a right-wing dictatorship looms, he said the KGB is of course concerned about developments, and and has worked out various scenarios. ''Our task is not to allow any of them to happen,'' he said.

When asked if he thought Mikhail Gorbachev might be moving to the right in his politics, Kryuchkov said, ''Gorbachev is always moving in the right direction.'' He seemed pleased when the remark brought laughs.

(DEC. 25) UPI - Military forces seized power in the South American nation of Suriname, ousting an 18-month-old civilian government in a bloodless coup.

In Washington, the State Department said the American Embassy in Paramaribo confirmed the military takeover. State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty issued a statement condemning ''this violation of constitutional order in Suriname.''

Radio reports in neighboring Brazil said all communiations with Suriname were cut after Gen. Ivan Graanoogst, acting commander of Suriname's armed forces, announced the coup over the government owned television station Monday night.

The government apparently offered no resistance to Graanoogst's action and there was no bloodshed.

Graanoogst announced that an interim government would be formed to run the country until national elections could be held within the next 100 days.

The overthrow came one week after the head of the armed forces and former military ruler of the former Dutch colony, Desi Bouterse, resigned his post in protest over his temporary detention in Amsterdam.

The coup overthrew the 18-month-old civilian government of President Rameswak Shankar, of the Hindu-backed Progressive Reform Party, who was elected by the National Assembly Jan. 12, 1988. Shankar's whereabouts were unknown.

Shankar's administration had replaced the military government led by the Bouterse, a Netherlands-trained lieutenant colonel who seized power Feb. 25, 1980 to depose the civilian regime of Prime Minister Henck Arron.

Bouterse lost an election to Shankar in 1987.

Ongoing friction between the two men came to a head last week when Dutch police temporarily detained Bouterse in Amsterdam during an airline stop en route to Ghana, and Shankar, who was on the same plane, refused to intervene.

Bouterse subsequently resigned as chief of the armed forces in protest.

The State Department said it saw no immediate threat or danger to American citizens.

''We condemn this violation of constitutional order in surinam,'' the statement said. ''This action at a time when the entire hemisphere is moving toward democracy will only further isolate Suriname from the international community to the detriment of the Surinamese people. We call on the Surinamese military to restore power immediately to the democratically elected authorities of that country.''

Although Bouterse has not headed the government in 18 months, he has continued to exert a strong influence over developments in the country.

Graanoogst's position remained unclear, but observers said he appeared to be acting in the interests of Bouterse.

Bouterse and Shankar had been locked in a dispute over the terms of a 1989 peace treaty with Surinamese Bushnegro rebels, which gave the ethnic group semi-police powers and permitted them to carry weapons.

Until 1989, the Bushnegro Jungle Command, under the leadership of defected army officer Ronny Brunswijk, had been engaged in a war with Bouterse's forces that lasted three years and claimed more than 500 lives.

Communications with Suriname following the reported coup Monday night appeared to have been cut off, and repeated attempts to contact the Paramaribo, the capital of the former Dutch colony, were unsuccessful.

The tiny tropical nation, which gained its independence from the Netherlands on Nov. 25, 1975, lies on the coast of South America's Atlantic shoulder, bordered by Guyana to the west, French Guiana to the east and Brazil to the south.

(DEC. 25) UPI - Americans celebrated Christmas with traditional feasts and festivies across the nation Tuesday while in Saudi Arabia their menfolk struggled to preserve the holiday spirit midst war preparations in the desert sands.

A slow Christmas shopping season did not dampen the spirit of most Americans as they joined their families for holiday meals, caroling, religious services and acts of charity, but thousands of others, needy and hungry huddled in the bitter cold gripping most of the country.

The possibility of war with Iraq clouded Christmas for the family and friends of the 280,000 American military personnel in the Persian Gulf. Yellow ribbons - symbolizing the troops abroad - were mingled with red and green ones in some households.

In the sands of eastern Saudo Arabia, American troops dug in against Iraq celebrated Christmas with quiet merriment, singing carols, feasting on turkey, lining up for the all-important phone calls home - and keeping their guns loaded.

Because of Saudi Arabia's sensitivity to public displays of worship by all other religions but Islam, military leaders ordered all Christmas lights, Bibles and even Santa kept inside mess tents and canvas chapels.

Comedian Bob Hope said nobody could stop him from showing up for Christmas after 41 years of entertaining the troops and show up he did.

Troops attended midnight mass inside tents and ate traditional Christmas meals which resembled, but did not exactly taste like back home.

''It's a nice try, but I sure miss my mom's cooking,'' said Pfc. Benjamin Lima 19, of Brooklyn, N.Y., working on a plate of turkey, potatoes, gravy, cranberry sauce, pecan pie and candy. And thoughts of war were never far away.

''You never know when Saddam Hussein is going to strike.'' said Lima. ''It could even happen on Christmas.''

It was Christmas as usual for President Bush, a spokesman said, ''He's spending it with his family.''

In New York City, where the holidays were overshadowed by a growing regional recession, more than 1,000 homless people turned out in a hotel in midtown Manhattan for free meals of turkey and stuffing.

Eating the same meal in a downtown jail cell was reputed mob boss John Gotti, who spent his 10th straight day in the Metropolitan Correctional Center awaiting trial on racketeering charges. Prison officials said he would receive the same traditonal Christmas fare as his fellow prisoners.

And Mafia buffs and filmgoers throughout the city packed movie matinee showings to see the premiere showing of ''The Godfather, Part III.'' Movie houses in midtown reported they were sold out for the first public showings of the long-awaited film.

At midnight, Cardinal John O'Connor celebrated his traditional mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, which was packed with worshippers and broadcast live to the city's faithful.

In Chicago, Department of Human Services crews canvassed in search of the homeless in 20 degree temperatures.

Hundreds of parishoners of Holy Angels Catholic Church in Chicago gathered early Christmas morning to celebrate the holiday and pray for U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

''I'd hate to see us go to war,'' said Kathy Gavin, 52, suburban Flossmoor. ''My heart goes out to those people whose family is over there. It makes me a little sad and a little worried.''

Greg Ervin, 25, who became homeless two weeks ago when his family split up and left their South Side apartment, has been sleeping on old carpeting outdoors.

''Even though I'm homeless, Christmas is still the same,'' Ervin said. ''I'm going to see my family.''

A mob of looters raided a Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services office in Miami on Christmas Eve and hauled off hundreds of toys intended for Dade County's needy.

''It was chaotic,'' HRS supervisor Jacob Bery said. ''People were just walking out with boxes of toys, bags of toys. There were loads of people, 25 to 30 of them. It was like a mob. From children to grownups - old, middle-aged, young, you name it.''

But Christmas came for the needy nonetheless when the 4th Marine Division, 8th Tank Battalion, loaded a van with goodies they had received from a car dealership and took them to HRS protection services supervisor Linda Griskin.

''I was looking around for another needy organization to donate them to and that's when Linda called,'' said Staff Sgt. John Ferguson.

In Washington, some 200 volunteers served up a traditional holiday meal for 3,000 homeless men and women on the U.S. Capitol grounds.

''We want to be a reminder that while the savings and loan crisis continues and we pay those folks off and while the Middle East crisis continues and we spend billions over there, there are people who are homeless and hungry and destitute in this country right now,'' said Carol Fennelly, a spokeswoman for the Community for Creative Non- Violence homeless shelter.

More than $20,000 was donated to the Dell'Orco family, which was devastated by a weekend fire at its home in the Detroit suburb of Canton Township.

''It's more than just caring,'' said Wayne Swanson, a neighbor. ''It's coming from so deep down in the heart, it's unbelievable.''

The fire, which apparently began in the family's Christmas tree, claimed the life of Martin Dell'Orco and six of his nine children late Saturday night.

Dell'Orco's widow Debbie has been overwhelmed by the response, said her brother-in-law. ''She said she never knew so much love existed.'

(DEC. 25) UPI - Members of the multi-national forces deployed in the Persian Gulf are discreetly celebrating the Christian holiday of Christmas in the Moslem region. The recognition of any religion other than Islam in Saudi Arabia is forbidden. But the country has been tolerant of such holiday manifestations as Christmas trees and Santa Claus for the foreign troops, celebrating the holiday far from home.

In Baghdad, Iraq continued its preparations for war by announcing it would set up training camps for civil defense. The official Iraqi news agency INA says Baghdad has decided to open further training centers on rescue, first aid and evacuation and to hold a symposium on the importance of civil defense exercises. Iraq has already staged air raid and blackout drills.

Pope John Paul today made an emotional plea for what he called the ''tormented nations of the Middle East.'' In his Christmas Day message from the Vatican's central balcony, the pontiff prayed for a peaceful solution to the dangerous crisis in the Persian Gulf. The pope spoke to a crowd of up to 100-thousand on a chilly, rainy morning in the Eternal City... and sent the world holiday greetings in 52 languages.

Christmas is a new holiday in some Soviet republics. For the first time in a half century of Soviet rule, the Baltic republics of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia are officially observing Christmas. But in addition to church services and family gatherings, the holiday is marked by increased tension and unverified rumors that Moscow is preparing a crackdown against the republics for trying to break from the Soviet Union.

At least five people were killed in a pre-dawn Christmas fire in their home in Columbus, Ohio. Authorities say the blaze gutted the single-family house. The cause of the fire is under investigation, but police say that at this point they have NO reason to believe it was anything other than accidental. The victims included two children and some are believed to be related.

ITHACA, N.Y. (DEC. 25) UPI - A burglar got a case of the old Christmas spirit and returned goods he had stolen from his landlady during a weekend break-in, it was reported Tuesday.

A remorseful Jose Rodriguez broke into his landlady's apartment a second time during the weekend to return a VCR he had stolen from her, the Syracuse Post Standard reported. He then phoned police and confessed.

''The Lord was talking to me. He was telling me, 'Knucklehead put the stuff back and turn yourself in','' Rodriguez told the newspaper.

When Ithaca Police responded to his call, they were initially skeptical. But Rodriguez allegedly produced a Timex watch and two rings to demonstrate his guilt.

Rodriguez was arraigned on a first-degree burglary charge Sunday and released in the custody of his minister, Michael Corriero of the Bible Agate Church in the city of Ithaca, some 50 miles south of Syracuse.

Corriero said ''this thing has gone far enough'' and would not otherwise comment.

Rodriguez, who lived upstairs from his landlady, said he broke in through the woman's back door. Police declined to identify the landlady.

Rodriguez also confessed to polishing off a pumpkin pie during the burglary.

He goes to court Jan. 2 when, he said, he plans to plead guilty and take his punishment.

(DEC. 25) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein called Tuesday for peaceful dialogue to resolve the Persian Gulf standoff, but blamed the crisis on American aggression and not his refusal to withdraw from Kuwait.

Many of the hundreds of thousands of multinational troops deployed in the gulf celebrated the Christian holiday in the Moslem region, but the festivities were overshadowed by increasing indications there will be a military confrontation if Iraq does not pull out of Kuwait by the Jan. 15 deadline, only 21 days away.

Leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council issued a joint communique at the conclusion of a summit in Qatar Tuesday calling for the Iraqi withdrawal, as well as a solution to the Palestinian problem, which they said remained the Arab world's number one concern.

Israel, meanwhile, played down reports that the country's military was on a state of high alert Tuesday, following reports that Saddam had said in an interview that the Israeli city of Tel Aviv would be his first target if war were to eruprt in the region.

In his message, distributed by the official Iraqi news agency INA, Saddam said he ''hoped all people of conscience in the world will remember that injustice leads to war and that peace is made through equitable dialogue aimed at acheiving justice.''

Iraq and the United States had planned to hold high-level talks before Jan. 15 but, with time running out, the two countries have not been able to agree on dates.

The United Nations has authorized the U.S.-led multinational troops in the region to use force if Iraq has not withdrawn by that date from Kuwait, which it occupied Aug. 2.

Saddam's message, to an unidentified international conference on peace, blamed the conflict on American and Jewish aggression and made no mention of his occupation of the emirate. He has said in recent interviews that he will not withdraw by the crucial date.

Troops from around the world celebrated Christmas with parties and thoughts of home Tuesday.

The expression of religions other than Islam in Saudi Arabia is forbidden, but the country has been tolerant of such holiday manifestations as Christmas trees and Santa Clauses for the foreign troops.

The bulk of the U.S.-led force, which includes close to 300,000 U.S. troops along with Arab and European soldiers, has been deployed to the desert kingdom.

President Bush, who has said the United States is ready to go to war if Iraq has not pulled out of occupied Kuwait by Jan. 15, sent a Christmas message to the troops that was broadcast Christmas Eve.

''The sacrifices you make will never be forgotten. America is behind you,'' Bush said.

In another Christmas message, Pope John Paul II, in an annual address to a crowd of 100,000 at the Vatican, made an emotional plea for the ''tormented nations of the Middle East'' and prayed for a peaceful solution to the crisis.

Iraq has stepped up civil defense programs in preparations for a possible war, saying Tuesday it would open civilian training centers.

''It has been decided to open more training centers on rescue, first aid and evacuation and to hold a symposium on the importance of civil defense exercises,'' INA said.

The leaders of the conservative six-member Gulf Cooperation Council, in their first meeting since the invasion of member-state Kuwait, called for the withdrawal of Iraq and the restoration of the emirate's former ruling Al Sabah family.

But at the same time the summit's final communique - issued by Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Oman, Bahrain, the United Arab Emriates and Kuwait - called for a solution to the Palestinian problem, saying that despite the occupation it remained the foremost of Arab concerns.

The gulf countries have rejected Saddam's claim his occupation of Kuwait is linked to the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza strip. But the communique seemed to make clear the Arab states are not ready to neglect the Palestinian cause in the wake of the gulf crisis.

The GCC communique also touched briefly on the creation of a permanent security network to protect the oil-rich region in the future.

Sources close to the talks said non-Arab Iran may be involved in the network, although the communique mentioned no details of the plan.

Israeli military officials played down reports in the Israeli press Tuesday that its army and airforce were on a high state of alert.

Saddam reiterated in a weekend interview with Spanish television that he would strike at Israel if a war to erupt over Kuwait, even if Israel is not part of the multinational force allied against him.

''The Israeli air force all year round is on a certain state of alert for potential enemies,'' an official military source in Jerusalem said. ''Since the beginning of the crisis, it has heightened its state of alert.''

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (DEC. 25) UPI - Cary Blanchard of Oklahoma State kicked a 24-yard field goal with 8:02 left to give the Blue a 17-14 victory over the Gray Christmas Day in the All-Star college football game.

Midway through the fourth quarter, with the score 14-14, the Blue put together an eight-play 75-yard drive to set up Blanchard's winning kick. The Gray had a chance to tie but John Kasay of Georgia missed a 40-yard field goal with 1:36 left.

The Blue broke head 14-0 after one period. The Blue capitalized on a fumble by Gray quarterback Scott Zolak of Maryland at his 36, leading to a 7-yard scoring run by Sheldon Canley of San Jose State.

Later in the quarter, Bob Christian of Northwestern ran 15 yards to make it 14-0.

The Blue defense answered the call at the end of the quarter. The Gray went for the touchdown on fourth-and-goal from the 1, but Chuck Weatherspoon of Houston was droped for a 1-yard loss.

In the second quarter, the Gray drew within 14-7 on Zolak's 39-yard scoring pass to Kentucky's Phil Logan. The Gray's Kasay missed a field goal from 50 yards just before halftime.

Midway through the third quarter, the Gray drove to the Blue's 1, but was stopped on third-and-one and fourth-and-one. After the Blue failed to convert on fourth-and-one from its 22, the Gray scored in two plays - a 21-yard pass from Zolack to Kirk Kirkpatrick of Florida and a 1-yard sneak by Zolak.

in the third quarter.

In the fourth quarter, Zolak hit Logan with an apparent 8-yard scoring pass, but the play was called back for offensive pass interference.

Scott Evans, a defensive lineman from Oklahoma, was named the Blue's Most Valuable Player. Larry Brown, a defensive back from Texas Christian, was the Gray MVP.

MONTGOMERY, AL (DEC. 25) UPI - Frank Blevins will be bringing home something extra this Christmas.

Blevins bolstered a defense that twice stopped the Gray on the 1-yard line to help the Blue post a 17-14 triumph in the Christmas Day All-Star college football game. The Oklahoma linebacker was named the Blue squad's defensive player of the game.

''I feel good about my play today,'' Blevins said. ''I thought about the possibilities of winning an award before the game and thought it might make a good Christmas present to take back home. I think that players on both side of the ball showed great pride, that is what makes this a good game.''

Cary Blanchard of Oklahoma State kicked a 24-yard field goal with 8:02 left to give the Blue the final margin. Midway through the fourth quarter, with the score 14-14, the Blue put together an eight-play 75- yard drive to set up Blanchard's winning kick.

''My receivers all ran great routes for me today,'' said Zolack, the Gray offensive player of the game. ''They were some of the finest players I've been with. I went out today just to have fun and be around a great bunch of guys.''

Midway through the third quarter, the Gray drove to the Blue's 1, but was stopped on third-and-one and fourth-and-one. SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 26) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Telesis Group (NYSE:PAC) Wednesday announced it is placing a 15 cents per share reserve of $60 million after tax dollars against its fourth-quarter earnings to offset anticipated losses connected with the divestment of its real estate holdings.

In March PacTel Corp., a Telesis subsidiary, announced its decision to no longer invest new capital in PacTel Properties, its real estate subsidiary.

Sam Ginn, chairman and chief executive officer of Pacific Telesis Group, said: ''Our decision to exit the real estate business is prompted by two factors. We want to be in a position to take advantage of international wireless and home entertainment investment opportunities, as well as to center our diversified businesses more closely around our key area of expertise -- telecommunications services.''

The corporation also recently announced a major reorganization to substantially reduce staff overhead in its domestic cellular operations and to enable it to respond more readily to wireless communication and home entertainment opportunities around the world.

The divestment of PacTel Properties' portfolio -- consisting of properties in California and Florida -- is part of this ongoing strategy and will be accomplished over the next few years.

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF (DEC. 26) BUSINESS WIRE - County Bank (NASDAQ:CNBA) announced a year-end corporate reorganization and the successful completion of its converson of $22.15 million of subordinated debt to new core capital, according to Roy G. Green, president.

Green stated that William J. Levy, the bank's largest shareholder, and his longtime business partner Roy Millender, also a major County shareholder, have stepped down from the board of directors and intend to return full time to their other business activities, including management of their significant local real estate holdings. Both men intend to keep their major ownership interests in the bank and plan to increase that stake by purchasing shares in the forthcoming preferred stock issue.

As part of the reorganization, Green was unanimously selected to be the new chairman by the board of directors and will continue to serve as president and chief executive officer.

Green also announced that County Bank just completed a conversion of long-term subordinated debt to core capital. ''We have succeeded in exchanging $22.15 million of debt for an equal amount of preferred stock,'' Green said, a move which significantly improved the bank's current core capital position to 2.3 percent. Additional capital is expected to be raised through a separate new issue of preferred stock which is expected to be completed by June 30, 1991.

Levy and Millender both cited recent changes in the financial industry brought about by 1989 federal legislation and the increasingly difficult financial environment. ''I have been an entrepreneur, investor and developer all my life,'' Levy said. ''While those skills were important in the bank's early years, the nature of the industry has changed dramatically since 1988.

County's reorganization comes during a period of widespread changes in the financial services industry brought about by the enactment of FIRREA in 1989. Many financial institutions, including County, are pursuing plans to raise the capital necessary to meet the new higher federal standards. The conversion of subordinated debt to core capital and the proposed new preferred stock issue have long been part of County's plan, Green said.

County has over $1.2 billion in assets and has 10 branches located throughout Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo counties.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 26) BUSINESS WIRE - Nycal Corp. (NASDAQ:NYCL) Wednesday announced its intention to honor Shephard Insurance Group Limited (VSE:SHR) common share purchase warrants as part of its upcoming share exchange offer for Shephard.

Nycal acquired a controlling interest (50.7 percent) in Shephard through a private exchange of Shephard shares for Nycal shares in August 1990. Nycal further announced at that time its intention to acquire the remaining outstanding shares of the common stock of Shephard in exchange for common stock of Nycal as soon as the necessary regulatory approvals were obtained.

Nycal is pursuing the filing of its Registration Statement and Prospectus for the exchange offer in accordance with U.S. security regulations and simultaneously seeking necessary Canadian regulatory approval to extend the same offer to Canadian shareholders.

Upon receipt of all regulatory approvals, Nycal will exchange its common stock for Shephard stock on the ratio of .64 of a Nycal share for each Shephard share.

Nycal announced Wednesday that its forthcoming exchange offer to U.S. shareholders of Shephard will honor the Shephard warrants to permit the purchase of Nycal common stock on the same general terms and conditions provided for in the original Shephard warrant indenture, subject only to adjustment for the exchange ratio and extension of the warrant expiration date from Dec. 31, 1990 to June 30, 1991.

Canadian regulators have to date denied Nycal's requests to extend the same warrant offer to Canadian shareholders.

It should be noted that warrant certificates originally issued to holders of Shephard common shares, whose recorded address on the books of the Shephard was the United States, were not delivered to U.S shareholders due to restrictions on distribution of the warrants in the United States. Subsequent to Dec. 31, warrant certificates held in escrow will be distributed to U.S shareholders.

NEW YORK (DEC. 26) BUSINESS WIRE - Tiffany & Co. Chairman William R. Chaney announced Wednesday that worldwide net sales for the eight-week holiday period from Nov. 1 to Dec. 25 increased 8 percent over the similar 1989 period.

Sales in the United States increased modestly but were below expectations, reflecting consumer concern about the economy. However, International Retail sales growth continued to be strong.

Sales results in Tiffany's three channels of distribution were as follows: International Retail sales rose 28 percent; United States Retail sales increased 2 percent; and Direct Marketing sales increased 1 percent. All results are based on preliminary unaudited sales.

Chaney noted that Tiffany's sales in the United States for the period were sufficiently below targeted increases to justify a downward revision in earnings estimates for the current quarter ending Jan. 31, 1991. He indicated however, that fourth quarter earnings could still reach approximately the level of last year when Tiffany earned $1.02 per share. The company expects to report its fourth quarter and full year 1990 in early-March.

''Tiffany will enjoy a record level of sales and earnings in 1990,'' Chaney said. ''Although we are disappointed with the results of the holiday period in the U.S., we recognize that widespread economic concerns have affected consumer spending at every level. We are encouraged, however, that the number of customer purchases in Tiffany's U.S. stores increased over the 1989 level, although the average customer purchase declined somewhat. It demonstrated continued strong customer loyalty.''

Chaney reemphasized his commitment to Tiffany's worldwide growth strategies, ''which have worked so successfully for us.'' He pointed out that, ''Tiffany's strong financial position will enable the company to aggressively pursue its expansion plans in 1991. While the current U.S. consumer spending slowdown is no doubt, affecting us, we believe our longer term opportunities are as bright as ever.''

''Tiffany enters 1991 with many new promising expansion opportunities,'' Chaney added. ''In the U.S., Tiffany's plans include opening new stores in Palm Beach and San Diego, expanding our Houston store and relocating and expanding our San Francisco store to Union Square. Internationally, our plans include opening a Tiffany store in Frankfurt on the Goethestrasse, entering

Canada with Tiffany's largest international store, on Toronto's Bloor Street West, and expanding our presence with new locations in the Far East.''

Tiffany and Co. is an internationally renowned retailer with locations in the United States, the Far East and Europe. The company's merchandise offerings include an extensive selection of fine jewelry, sterling silverware, china, crystal, watches, clocks, stationery, leather goods, scarves and fragrances.

In addition to its flagship New York store, Tiffany & Co. retail stores serve the markets of Atlanta, Beverly Hills, Boston, Chicago, Costa Mesa, Dallas, Houston, Philadelphia, San Francisco and the Washington D.C. area.

Exclusive Tiffany & Co. merchandise is also offered through a select group of prestigious jewelers and specialty retailers in other cities. Direct Marketing is carried out through the Corporate Division and the Selections catalog. International Retail sales are made in Japan through Tiffany & Co. boutiques in Mitsukoshi department stores and a wholesale distributor as well as through Tiffany & Co stores in London, Munich, Zurich, Hong Kong, and Taipei and Faraone stores in Milan and Florence.

SHREWSBURY, NJ (DEC. 26) BUSINESS WIRE - Wellman Inc. (NYSE: WLM) has recently renegotiated the bank credit facility with which it financed the acquisition of Fiber Industries Inc. (FI) on Nov. 1, 1989.

The new facility provides for more liberalized financial covenants and substantially lower borrowing rates (initially 1 percent lower). The company currently has approximately $320 million of borrowings outstanding under this facility. This favorable refinancing will result in interest savings for Wellman.

As reported during the past year, cash flow from operations has permitted Wellman to make substantial repayments of its bank debt. ''Continued debt repayment, especially with the lower interest rates, will further improve Wellman's balance sheet and capitalization,'' noted Clifford J. Christenson, vice president and chief financial officer. ''Achieving such improved financing terms during the current difficult banking and economic environment demonstrates the support Wellman's commercial bankers have for the company.''

MOSCOW (DEC. 26) - A Soviet university student has gone on trial on charges of slandering President Mikhail Gorbachev, Tass news agency has reported here.

Tamara Tselikova, from Tver (formely Kalinin) 150 kms north of Moscow, was arrested on September 29 for pasting leaflets which said that "Gorbachev has smeared his hands in blood in Baku and Tbilisi and is a fascist criminal, just like Lenin, Stalin or Krushchev".

About 100 people were killed last January when troops forced their way into Baku, Azerbaijan, to prevent the collapse of Soviet power and some 20 died in Tbilisi, Georgia, in the spring of 1989 when troops broke up a nationalist demonstration.

Ms. Tselikova, who is a member of the opposition Democratic Union, was freed after interrogation and appeared before a magistrate in Tver Tuesday.

The trial was expected to last until Thursday, Tass said.

NEW DELHI (DEC. 26) AFP - India's state radio and television, bowing to threats from Sikh separatists in Punjab have stopped calling them "terrorists" in line with a "press code" issued by the militants early this month, authorities said Wednesday.

All India Radio (AIR) and Doordarshan television have told their announcers to describe the separatists as "militants" as laid down by the code, AIR and television officials said.

The AIR officials said instructions to abide by the code were issued first to their station in the northern state of Punjab, and had now been extended to all broadcasts to reduce risks to journalists.

Doordarshan officials said they had "advised" executive programme makers in Punjab and New Delhi to avoid words like terrorist and extremist, and use their own safety as a guideline for reporting.

On December 2, the Panthic Committee, a shadowy Sikh organisation directing the Sikh separatist campaign in Punjab, banned the use of the words "extremists" and "terrorists" to describe militants, and warned that those defying the code would be killed.

On December 6, Sikh militants murdered Mr. Rajindra Kumar Talib, AIR station chief of Punjab state capital Chandigarh, for not complying with the code.

HONG KONG (DEC. 26) - The Roman Catholic church authorities in Hong Kong have invited Pope John Paul II to visit the British colony in October to mark the 150th year of the Church's establishment in the territory, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Other features of the 150th anniversary celebrations which commence Friday include a three-day conference with church officials from China, Taiwan, and the Portuguese enclave of Macau, starting on April 11, he said.

Catholic church officials in the state-sanctioned Chinese Patriotic Association, which has no official link with Rome, in eastern coastal China's Fuzhou have already agreed to attend the meeting, while others have not yet confirmed their acceptance, the spokesman said.

He said the invitation for the Pope's visit had been sent, but no official reply has yet come from the Vatican.

The Pope skipped the colony during his Asian visit which included South Korea, Malaysia and Indonesia in October last year.

At the press conference announcing the 150th anniversary celebrations here,

Father Louis Ha said the Catholic church would remain in Hong Kong to build a better future after 1997 when the territory reverts to Chinese rule.

He said that barring a possible change in China's current political situation before 1997 the Catholic diocese here would retain its link with the Vatican in accordance with the Basic Law, a mini-constitution that will govern the territory after 1997, which grants the territory's 260,000 Catholics the right to continue practising their religion.

MANILA (DEC. 26) - The Philippines and Iran have signed an agreement to cooperate more closely in various areas including the fight against drug trafficking, a Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) statement said here Wednesday.

The agreement was signed last week by the visiting deputy foreign minister of Iran, Alaeddin Boroujerdi, and Philippine foreign undersecretary Manuel Yan.

Copies of the memorandum of understanding, released here Wednesday, said that the two countires would "take appropriate measures to effect cooperation... and strengthen relations especially in the economic, commercial, industrial, technical, agricultural and scientific fields."

The two countries were also bound to "assist each other by the exchange of information on their respective anti-drug campaign efforts," the statement said.

Iranian officials earlier this week said they would provide oil on concessional terms to the Philippines.

KATHMANDU, Dec 26 (AFP) - In an apparent bid to bridge the country's trade gap the Nepalese government has set up a high level committee under Industry and Commerce Minister Sahan Pradhan on establishing an Export Processing Zone (EPZ) in Kathmandu, sources said Wednesday.

The proposed EPZ is expected to provide direct employment to 15,300 people and help export of industrial goods worth about 84 million dollars every year.

A joint feasibility study carried out by the United Nations Development Program and the Nepalese government has already stressed the need of an EPZ and urged that one should be set up.

An EPZ boosts exports and employment by giving fiscal and other advantages to export-oriented companies operating within it.

BEIJING (DEC. 26) - An ancient underground network of channels in far west China's forbidding Turpan depression is being renovated and put back into use, the New China News Agency (NCNA) reported Wednesday.

The irrigation network dates back to the Han dynasty (206 B.C.-220 A.D.) and was made up of 1,200 wells connected by more than 5,000 kilometers (3,100 miles) of tunnel. It carried water to the oases dotting the depression.

Along with the Great Wall and the Grand Canal, the channel network is considered one of China's ancient construction wonders.

People living in the depression began repairs in late 1989 because modern water conservancy facilities were unable to supply adequate amounts of water. They have so far reopened more than two-thirds of the wells, NCNA said.

Turpan, located in the largely Moslem region of Xinjiang, was once an important stage on the Silk Road.

The depression is 150 meters (495 feet) below sea level and contains large areas of desert where the summer temperature can reach a blistering 70-80 degrees centigrade (160-175 fahrenheit). It is the lowest and hottest landmass in China.

Rainfall is minimal and the underground water is generated mainly from vaporization of glaciers located in the northern Tianshan mountains, NCNA said.

BOGOTA (DEC. 26) - Three people were killed and six were kidnapped in attacks over Christmas by leftist insurgents in Colombia, officials here said.

Troops combed the provinces of Antioquia, Norte de Santander and Tolima Tuesday for about 500 rebels who carried out raids Monday that left one policeman and two rebels dead.

Members of the umbrella organization Simon Bolivar Guerrilla Coordinator, which includes the Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces (FARC) and the National Liberation Army (ELF), fought Monday with police in San Carlos, a town in northwestern Antioquia province.

The guerrillas killed one police officer and kidnapped five others, as well as a priest, before fleeing into nearby mountainous areas, authorities said. It was not known whether there were rebel casualties.

Meanwhile, in the eastern port of Elvira on the Guaviare River, a band of rebels intercepted and burned two navy ships. One of the vessels was carrying rural telephone equipment worth an estimated two million dollars, officials said.

Other guerrilla groups attempted to capture the towns of Fortul and Miraflores in the east, Nueva Granada and Guavata in the northeast, and a magistrate's office near Corinto, in the southwest.

Authorities said the clash in Miraflores left one rebel dead, while in Corinto one guerrilla was killed and three others arrested after they burned two collectively owned vehicles.

About 70 ELN rebels unsuccessfully tried to take the town of Santiago in Norte de Santander, on the Venezuelan border.

In the northern province of Cesar, insurgents bombed an asphalt processing plant and set fire to an intercity bus. Police found and deactivated explosives hidden in the supports of three bridges.

Authorities said the escalating rebel violence was in response to the army's December 9 bombing and occupation of FARC's main headquarters, Casa Verde, located in the eastern province of Meta. More than 50 rebels and about 20 soldiers were killed in that military operation.

MANILA (DEC. 26) - Philippine President Corazon Aquino said Wednesday she hoped a forecast recession next year would be of short duration, and said the government will set an example in austerity.

The government has forecast that growth will slow to about three per cent this year and to between 2.5 and 3.9 per cent next year, from an average of five per cent in the past three years, owing to high oil prices, natural calamities the budget deficit, and failure to secure new foreign loans.

"I am confident that given our economic reform measures, we will be able to reverse the decline in growth and start on higher growth rates towards the second half of 1991," Mrs. Aquino said in a statement.

She pledged to work for passage next month of several revenue-generating measures which the Senate failed to pass during a special session last week.

Mrs. Aquino said proposed budget cuts have left government agencies "really pruned to the bone, but we have endeavored throughout to spare basic services. There will have to be tightening of expenditures in all offices, and government must -- and will -- lead the way in austerity."

The Philippines, dependent on imported oil for 65 per cent of energy needs, earlier announced it would enforce rationing and other contingency measures in the event war broke out in the Gulf to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

"While we still hope that peace will hold through, we as a people must be prepared to face any Gulf scenario with fortitude, discipline, and unity," Mrs. Aquino said.

TOKYO (DEC. 26) - Japan's Nishho Iwai Corp. and Obayashi Corp. have joined forces with an Indonesian firm to build a 21-storey office tower in Jakarta for around 37 million dollars, a Nissho Iwai spokesman said Wednesday.

The joint venture, capitalised at some 10 million dollars, is 60 per cent owned by Ircobumi, a private investment company owned by the president of Indonesia's PT Bank Central Dagang, the spokesman said.

Nissho Iwai, an affiliate of Sanwa Bank Ltd. and Japan's sixth-biggest trading company, holds 30 per cent of the venture while Obayashi, one of Japan's five major contractors, holds the remaining 10 per cent.

The joint venture aims to complete the building in February, 1993.

NAIROBI (DEC. 26) - Ethiopian rebels claimed Wednesday that they had killed 118 government troops in a Christmas Eve attack on a military convoy in the western province of Wollega.

Another 36 government soldiers were wounded, according to the radio of the rebel Oromo Liberation Front (OLF), monitored here which gave no details of rebel losses.

The radio said OLF guerrillas had ambushed the convoy near the town of Bambesi more than 400 kilometres (250 miles) west of the capital, Addis Ababa.

Last week the OLF claimed to have killed 95 government troops in Wollega.

The OLF, founded in 1974, is fighting for an independent homeland for the Oromos, Ethiopia's biggest ethnic group, inhabiting a U-shaped band of western, southern and eastern Ethiopia. Its military operations have been sporadic.

TOKOZA, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 26) - Black activists in one of the worst troublespots in South Africa called an indefinite boycott of white businesses Wednesday, in spite of warnings that boycotts are a major cause of violence.

The boycott, effective immediately, means shoppers in Tokoza black township southeast of here, who can get next to nothing close to home, will be dissuaded from buying in the neighbouring white town of Alberton -- and dissuasion often becomes intimidation.

The pro-African National Congress (ANC) Tokoza Civic Association (TCA) has called the boycott to put pressure on Alberton town council to restore electricity cut off on November 30.

In the resulting darkness close to 150 people have been killed, as mainly Zulu migrant workers from single-sex hostels, generally aligned to Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party, have clashed with pro-ANC squatters in the nearby Phola Park camp.

TCA chairman Sam Ntuli said residents were happy to pay for electricity, but that they were in dispute with Alberton about how much was owing and about what had happened to payments made in September and October. There would be no more talk until the lights were restored, he said.

Asked if the boycott might fuel violence, his colleague Duma Nkosi said: "If you do something they'll kill you, if you don't do something they'll kill you all the same. So rather do something before they kill you."

BEIRUT (DEC. 26) - Right-wing Christian forces on Wednesday stepped up efforts to mobilize opposition to a newly named Lebanese cabinet, as parts of Christian Lebanon observed a strike.

Shops, banks and public institutions were closed in the Kesrouan and Jubal regions north of here, both strongholds of the Lebanese Forces (LF) militia.

The action was partially observed in the Ashrafiyeh district of Beirut and in the Metn region, which is under Lebanese and Syrian military control.

The strike was called by the LF's political ally, the Kataeb, or Phalangist, party, to protest attacks on its leaders and offices.

Two party officials have been assassinated in the Metn region in under a week and several Kataeb offices have been attacked.

Both the party and the LF have rejected a 30-man cabinet announced Monday by Prime Minister Omar Karami, charging that it has too many pro-Syrian ministers.

Syria is a major political force in Lebanon, where it has stationed some 30,000 troops and actively backs President Elias Hrawi.

The LF, which has opposed Syrian influence in Lebanon, accused a pro-Damascus Christian militia led by Elie Hobeika of the attacks in the Metn, while the Kataeb called on "the state to assume its responsibilities".

But Prime Minister Karami retorted Wednesday that "the security situation that some people complain of cannot be assured unless the state is able to extend its authority over the entire country."

He said his government wanted to include representatives of all political persuasions in Lebanon to ensure "national reconciliation".

Despite Mr. Karami's appeal, the leaders of the LF and the Kataeb, Samir Geagea and Georges Saade, met in Kesroun late Tuesday with other Christian figures opposed to the new government.

The group plans to call a larger inter-Christian congress.

MADRID (DEC. 26) - The Bank of Spain increased its money market intervention rate from 14.65 to 14.70 per cent on Monday, marking a slight hardening of its policy aimed at restricting demand to help combat inflation, operators said on Wednesday at the stock exchange here.

Analysts said the move was aimed at countering the effect of abolitions on loans imposed more than a year and a half ago to combat inflation. That abolition will become effective on January 1.

The money market rate intervention rate is watched as a general sign of the direction of the central bank's monetary policy.

The stock exchange sources expressed concern about the peseta appreciation that could result from higher Spanish interest rates. A rise in the currency's value could harm Spanish exports.

AVIGNON, FRANCE (DEC. 26) - French Communist Party leader Georges Marchais, 70, suffered a minor heart attack early Wednesday and was taken to hospital in the southern city of Avignon where his condition was satisfactory, hospital sources said.

Doctors said his life was not in danger, and given his earlier medical record, Wednesday's attack was "not unusual".

Mr. Marchais, who was celebrating Christmas in his country home in Robion near Avignon, was Saturday re-elected party general secretary at the end of the 27th party congress during which he had to deal with an unprecedented challenge from party reformers.

Mr. Marchais, who has headed his hardline party for 20 years, has a history of heart trouble. He was taken to hospital in early December last year with a similar complaint. He also had a serious heart attack in January 1975.

ISLAMABAD (DEC. 26) - Bank employees stopped work throughout Pakistan Wednesday for two hours to protest the new government's policy of disinvesting public sector concerns.

Their protest coincided with a reportedly enthusiastic response by private investors to the government's offer to sell 51 per cent shares of the Muslim Commercial Bank (Mcb), one of the five banks nationalised in 1974.

Bankers in Karachi, Pakistan's commercial centre, however fear the government would retain a hold over the management of the Mcb even after it is disinvested because it would reserve a certain proportion of the shares offered to the general public for the government-controlled National Investment Trust.

Mcb's disinvestment is to set pace for the government's plan of unloading other nationalised financial institutions and industries.

PARIS (DEC. 26) - Euro-Disneyland, the future amusement park outside Paris, is going to raise up to five billion francs (960 million dollars) on the market to refinance part of the first phase of the planned theme park or to finance other developments, Disney Group financial sources said on Wednesday.

Euro-Disneyland will submit several resolutions along this line to a stockholders' meeting to be held in early February, the sources said.

The park is to open in 1992, and the group wants to issue convertible bonds or other convertible securities whenever market conditions are favorable, up to maximum of five billion francs.

The funds raised will be used to refinance part of the first project phase, entailing investments of around 22 billion francs, or to help finance the second phase (hotels and a second theme park at the same site in Marne-la-Vallee, near Paris).

Some 10 billion francs of the initial 22 billion in investments have been financed by long-term borrowings, five billion from Caisse des depots et consignations, and the rest from equity capital.

The military toppled the elected government of President Ramsewak Shankar on Monday and his ministers submitted their resignations Tuesday at the behest of Army Chief Lieutenant Ivan Graanoogst, according to Dutch press reports.

PARIS (DEC. 26) - The Bank of France added 11 billion francs (2.1 billion dollars) in liquidity to the banking system on Wednesday, while maintaining its key interest rates unchanged, the central bank said.

The money market intervention rate remains at 9.25 per cent, and the rate on securities repurchase agreements at 10 per cent. Those two rates set the range within which the bank wants interest rates generally to be.

In a tender offer, the bank allocated 33.7 billion francs to banks, while only 22.7 billion francs were expiring.

ANKARA (DEC. 26) - Some 115,000 Turkish metal and automobile industry workers went on strike Wednesday to back wage rise demands exceeding 300 percent.

Chairman Mustafa Oezbek of the Turkish Metal Workers Union said most workers were getting the equivalent of about 101 U.S. dollars a month and they had refused the employers' offer of a 150-percent pay rise.

48,000 miners at state-operated coal mines at the Black Sea port of Zonguldak have already been on strike for nearly a month, demanding rises of over 500 percent.

The government, rejecting the miners' demands, is threatening to close down the mines on the grounds that they are uneconomical and constitute a heavy burden.

The government is bracing for bigger trouble, since the Turkish Trade Union Confederation (Turk-Is), the country's biggest labour organisation with over 1.5 million members, has scheduled a one-day general strike for January 3, threatening to bring industrial production to a standstill and paralyse the cities.

Turk-Is officials said they would defy a constitutional ban on general strikes to assert the workers' rights.

NAIROBI (DEC. 26) - Somali rebels on Wednesday rejected the government's call for multi-party elections next year, the radio of the rebel Somali National Movement (SNM), monitored here, said.

The government of President Mohamed Siad Barre on Tuesday urged the Somalis to form political parties and prepare for elections, the official Radio Mogadishu reported.

The SNM, which controls much of northern Somalia, said the government "was crumbling slowly", and urged Somalis "to shun Siad Barre's call for political parties".

The SNM dismissed the government proposal as "the kicks of a dying horse".

The government also faces insurrections in central and southern Somalia.

Rebels of the United Somali Congress fighting in the centre of the country are only 50 kilometres (30 miles) from the capital, Mogadishu, an Agence France-Presse correspondent who recently visited the area said.

In the south, another rebel group, the Somali Patriotic Movement, has recently claimed advances against government forces.

A spate of armed attacks has struck terror into residents of Mogadishu, where gunfire is reportedly heard every night.

Many foreigners, including non-essential United States diplomatic staff and United Nations personnel, have left this month.

Efforts to start peace talks in Cairo on Dec. 12 between the rebels and the government failed after the authorities arrested several leading opposition figures a few days before the proposed talks.

Egypt and Italy had sponsored the attempt to bring the warring factions to the negotiating table.

PARIS (DEC. 26) - Stockholders of Banque de l'Union Europeenne (BUE, CIC Group) and of Compagnie financiere de CIC have approved a merger of the two banks, BUE announced here Wednesday.

The merger, which was announced last April, is aimed at enabling the two banks to improve competitiveness in the light of the future unified European Community domestic market and to "rationalize group activities," BUE said.

The new firm will be headed by Francois Caries as president, Paul Alibert as vice-president and managing director, and Gilles Guitto as managing director, the announcement said.

LAGOS (DEC. 26) - Sudanese President Omar el-Beshir will on Thursday begin a two-day official visit to Nigeria, an official source stated here Wednesday.

General Beshir, who ousted a civilian government in a coup in June last year, will be received at the airport in Kano in northern Nigeria by President Ibrahim Babangida, the source added.

The two leaders are to discuss bilateral issues as well as international matters such as the Gulf crisis and developments in Chad.

An estimated five million Nigerians live in Sudan, where some of them run flourishing businesses.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 26) - Algerian President Chadli Bendjedid, soon to begin a new Gulf peace mission, will promote a compromise formula on an Iraqi demand that the Palestinian and Gulf crises be resolved simultaneously, Arab sources said here Wednesday.

The formula would require a pledge by the international community that the Palestinian issue will be considered according to the same criteria and with the same degree of urgency as the Gulf crisis.

Similar reports emerged this week in Jordanian and Israeli newspapers after Iraq called home several of its key ambassadors for consultations.

(In Israel the independent Maariv, indirectly citing U.S. diplomats, said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein will soon tell his parliament he wants "to link an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuweit to a commitment by the (United Nations) Security Council on a settlement to the Palestinian question."

(The paper said that as a result of secret U.S.-Iraqi contacts Secretary of State James Baker will arrive in Baghdad January 9 for talks with Mr. Hussein.)

The Jordan newspaper Sawt Al-Sha'ab quoted a senior Arab diplomatic source as saying Iraq itself would call on the Security Council "to approve a resolution pledging to solve the Palestinian crisis and other outstanding Middle East issues in return for Iraqi concessions in Kuwait."

President Hussein, 10 days after his August 2 seizure of the emirate, proposed that the Gulf crisis be addressed at the same time as other Middle East questions, notably the fate of Palestinians living under Israeli occupation.

The proposal has been repeatedly rejected by an anti-Iraqi coalition of Western and Arab nations seeking an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait.

Arab sources here said Mr. Chadli's compromise would require an international commitment that the Palestinian and Gulf issues would at least be discussed according to the same criteria, although not necessarily in the same forum.

Several Arab leaders have accused the West -- and the United States in particular -- of hypocrisy in the Middle East for opposing the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait while accepting Israel's occupation of Arab and Palestinian territory.

Palestinian sources here now beleive President Hussein could be satisfied with an international pledge to treat the Palestinian and Gulf crises on an equal basis.

MOSCOW (DEC. 26) - The Soviet Congress of People's Deputies gave overwhelming approval Wednesday to a wide-reaching package of constitutional amendments sealing the presidential form of government in the Soviet Union.

Approval came on a vote of 1,555 to 110, with 80 abstentions, according to Tass.

Prior to the vote, a number of proposed articles were deleted from the draft package, including one provision for creation of a supreme state inspectorate to monitor implementation of laws.

The constitutional amendments, which take effect immediately, eliminate the council of ministers, replacing it with a premier-led cabinet answerable to the president and congress. Provision is also made for election of a vice president, although the method of choosing the first vice president is not spelled out.

In a session overshadowed by news of Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov's heart attack, deputies also gave approval to plans for holding general elections in four years.

The day's deliberations opened with an announcement by President Mikhail Gorbachev that Ryzhkov had been stricken overnight and was now resting comfortable. He was later said to be out of danger.

TIRANA (DEC. 26) - Albania's first opposition party has called for a referendum on the postponement of elections scheduled for February 10 and told the communists that a rejection of the request would be an "outright provocation".

The challenge was thrown down by Democratic Party (ADP) chief Sali Berisha at a first meeting here late on Tuesday after a parliamentary leader said that there was no objective reason to justify a postponement.

Sihat Tozaj, secretary of the parliamentary presidium, said that putting the elections back would require a complicated legal procedure. Elections should be held as scheduled so that parliament could meet to adopt a new constitution "as soon as possible", he added.

But Mr. Berisha, a 46-year-old cardiologist, told AFP that a refusal to delay the election by three months "would be an obstruction of the democratic process and an outright provocation".

"The people must decide on a date", he added.

Due to a power failure Tuesday's meeting of 15 ADP militants took place by candlelight in an unheated centrally located three-storey villa -- its headquarters -- in an atmosphere reminiscent of a clandestine gathering under a dictatorship.

"It is like being underground but we are free now," Mr. Berisha beamed.

The Albanian Democratic Party was created on December 12 only hours after President Ramiz Alia gave in to public calls for a multi-party system in so far staunchly Stalinist Albania. No other parties have been founded as yet.

On Tuesday 20,000 people voiced support for the ADP in the eastern town of Kavaje. Party branches have reportedly also been set up in Shkoder, Durres, Elbasan, and Vlore.

"Our first priority is to get ourselves organised," said Mr. Berisha adding that "all peaceful means will be used to get the election postponed."

The ADP does not face an easy task. There have been incidents at several public meetings outside the capital when police and communist party militants have seized ADP leaflets and programs and threatened supporters, according to party aides.

"The Albanian bureaucracy is terrible and will go out of its way to attack the Democratic Party", Mr. Berisha said.

The police and the army have so far not tried to impede the democratization, process according to the ADP leader who said "Many soldiers would prefer the army to be neutral and non-political."

On Tuesday, the ADP named Fruc Shoupi as chief editor of Albania's first independent newspaper Rilindja Demokratika (Democratic Renewal) which was prevented from going to press this week by bureacratic red-tape, Mr. Berisha added.

The government granted a one-million lek (100,000-dollar) loan to the eight-page paper which aims to be independent but close to Democratic Party ideas. It will be published twice a week and is to become a daily at a later date.

Even communist party members have pledged support.

"We are are ready to help", said Briseda Nema, a communist party militant and editor of Brita, the official newspaper of the artists' union.

Before Christmas Mrs. Nema published the first article ever to hit Albanian newsstands criticizing Stalin.

"I could not write it earlier because I was afraid", she said, wishing the Democratic Party good luck.

ADP leaders are also confident that political prisoners will ultimately be amnestied despite a statement by Mr. Tozaj that no such step was planned. Still "measures of leniency will be taken from time to time," he was quoted as saying.

The ADP is still Albania's only opposition party, for several other parties rumoured to be emerging like the Green ecology party and Christian and Moslem confessional parties have so far failed to materialise.

But despite its pioneer role, some dissident intellectuals are reticent about supporting the ADP because of the communist past of some of its leaders.

"With some of its officials members of the communist party until recently, this party lacks legitimacy, and all the leaders are from the north", author Hysen Sinai said.

At this moment in the reform process anything was possible in Tirana, he said, adding: "You could even walk the streets with a portrait of Hitler."

Under pressure from dissidents the writers' union has already split into four sections with no remaining links to the communist party, according to Mr. Sinai.

Some 10,000 Albanian Catholics on Tuesday attended the first open celebration of midnight Christmas mass in their country in 45 years.

But a Democratic Party spokesman warned that Christians and Moslems who make up 40 and 60 per cent of the total population must not create separate parties and should instead join the new movement. "Otherwise this will be another Lebanon", he added.

PARIS (DEC. 26) - CMB Packaging said Wednesday that it expects a 10 percent decline in its net result this year by comparison with 1989, to around a billion francs (190 million dollars).

That would follow a 46 percent jump in the net result scored in 1989 by comparison with the 1988 level.

CMB said this year's anticipated drop is due to an increase in interest payments and in exceptional and extraordinary restructuring costs, particularly in the health and beauty sector.

CMB is the result of a merger last year of France's Carnaud packaging firm and Britain's Metal Box.

Since that merger, CMB has closed six loss-making factories in Britain and the United States. Restructuring costs amount to 900 million francs this year, some 150 million to 200 million of which will be taken from the extraordinary gain from sale of the CMB steel business to Sollac (a subsidiary of Usinor-Sacilor).

The higher interest costs are due to debt run up in connection with the merger restructuring costs, higher interest rates, and a slight increase in needs for operating capital.

The group estimates 1990 sales at about 24 billion francs, against 24.1 billion last year.

The operating result should be up this year by comparison with 1989 thanks to a higher operating margin in packaging, up by nine percent.

LEIPZIG, GERMANY (DEC. 26) - Every evening Liepzig station is invaded by a hitherto unknown breed: the homeless, who by the dozens fill waiting rooms and benches seeking a safe spot to spend the night.

In former East Germany, there was officially no homelessness. Cradle-to-grave benefits meant that few citizens were ever turned out onto the streets.

Following economic and political union with West Germany, however, many eastern Germans have sunk to the ranks of the down and out.

Spiralling inflation, and above all, an end to what was once a constitutional right to housing has hit this eastern German city particularly hard.

The cradle of the anti-communist revolution only a year ago, Liepzig is now winning notoriety for its homeless problem.

The Protestant Church here has already counted up to 400 cases, out of a population of half a million.

"This is just the start, and municipal authorities are already overwhelmed," said Klaus Hinze, a city official in charge of the homeless.

As rents here, heavily subsidized by the state until recently, reach levels prevailing in western Germany, many more inhabitants here are likely to lose the roof over their heads.

Humanitarian organizations have put the total number of homeless in Germany at one million. But in eastern Germany, there are nearly no facilities to cope with the phenomenon.

Mr. Hinze said that the handful of homeless under the former communist regime were taken care of by the churches.

Liepzig is planning to inaugurate the first homeless shelter in all of former East Germany early next year. The 48-bed shelter will be located in a decrepit building that was once an orphanage.

But plans for the center have roused the anger of people in the neighborhood who have petitioned the town hall in protest. The homeless are regarded by many as no-goods and even criminals.

Lasmo general manager Tony Bryan and Aslam Iqbal, Secretary of the Pakistani Petroleum and Natural Resources Ministry, signed the agreement.

ISLAMABAD (DEC. 26) - Pakistan's electricity authority said Wednesday it would enforce cuts in industrial power consumption throughout the country.

All industries will cut their load by 25 per cent daily in a specified six-hour period, the state-run Water and Power Development Authority (WAPDA) said in a statement.

The cuts are due to reduced hydroelectric power generation, and units defying the restrictions will have their power cut off, it said.

Shopping centres must also minimise lighting use and close by 7:00 p.m., WAPDA said.

Street lighting on major roads will be halved and neon signs are prohibited until power generation is back to normal, it said.

ANKARA (DEC. 26) - Experts from Germany and Belgium are expected to arrive here Thursday for ''technical talks'' on Turkey's recent request for North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (Nato) planes to deter an Iraqi attack, foreign ministry spokesman Murat Sungar said Wednesday.

He did not elaborate on the composition of the delegations and their programme but voiced Ankara's displeasure over the ''leak'' of the request to the press in Brussels before a decision was taken.

Ankara has requested 42 planes and 576 personnel attached to the Nato allied Mobile Force (Amf) based in Heidelberg, Germany.

The call brought the government under attack from the opposition which feared it would increase Turkey's involvement in a Gulf war.

Despite official denials, reports claimed Germany and Belgium, contributing planes to the Amf together with Italy, were themselves ''reticent'' about getting involved.

Sungar said there should be no ''political'' reasons to deny the request, since it was Nato which had pledged, on August 10, to rush to the assistance of Turkey if it was attacked, renewing its committment earlier this month.

Turkish officials said the Nato planes, to be based at Erhac air base near Malatya, eastern Turkey, were to be on display as ''concrete proof'' of Nato's resolve to defend Turkey.

Some 60 American F-111 tactical bombers, F-16 fighter-bombers and F-15 fighters are already ''exercising'' at another air base in southern Turkey under a bilateral defence agreement.

NEW DELHI (DEC 26) - Three Sikh political parties authorized one of their leaders Wednesday to hold talks with New Delhi on the situation in Punjab, as the northern state's separatist campaign claimed nine more lives.

The Press Trust of India (PTI) said Sikh gunmen shot dead six people, including a policeman killed during a bank robbery, while security forces killed three militants.

Leaders of three Sikh political parties at a joint meeting authorised Simranjit Singh Mann to hold talks with Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar's government over the eight-year-old militant campaign, PTI said.

Mr. Mann, a former police officer, heads the Akali Dal (Mann faction), one of the Sikh parties represented at the meeting at Punjab's Patiala town.

Their decision was in response to repeated offers by Mr. Shekhar's less than two-month-old government to open a dialogue with the Sikhs.

Mr. Shekhar said New Delhi was willing to work with the Sikhs to reach an accord within the Indian constitutional framework.

The two other parties took part in the Patiala deliberations were of moderate Sikhs' Akali Dal (Badal) and Akali Dal (Longowal) groups, PTI said.

Mr. Mann, who was fired from police service for alleged links with militants fighting for independence, was quoted as saying at the meeting that Sikhs would not be satisfied with anything less than the right of self-determination.

A half-dozen major Sikh militant groups continue to refuse dialogue with New Delhi.

Sikh militants shot dead Assistant Sub-inspector Gurjant Singh before robbing a branch of Indian government-owned Punjab and Sind Bank of more than 200,000 rupees (11,000 dollars) Wednesday in Faridkot district, PTI said.

The four gunmen stormed the bank after over-powering the security guard and shot dead the police officer when he happened to appear at the spot during a routine patrol, the agency said.

Sikh militants also shot dead five civilians in various parts of Punjab in the last 24 hours while three militants were killed in a gunfight with security forces in Gurdaspur district, PTI said.

More than 3,000 people have died so far in violence linked to the campaign for a Sikh homeland called Khalistan, or land of the pure, in Punjab so far this year.

ISLAMABAD (DEC. 26) - Extreme poverty, economic disparities and exploitation have led thousands of innocent girls and women from the poor South Asian nations of Bangladesh, India and Burma to believe brokers' promises of a ''bright future'' and ultimately end up either as prostitutes or as cheap bonded labour in Karachi and some other Pakistani cities.

According to estimates by human rights activists, 200 to 400 young women and children are smuggled every month, particularly from Bangladesh into Pakistan, and the numbers have been on the rise since the mid-1980s.

The network of traffickers and brokers, mostly Pakistanis and Indians with links in the other South Asian countries, extends from Bangladesh, one of the poorest countries in the world, through India into Pakistan where the corrosive practice of slave trade goes unchecked.

These traffickers recruit girls and women through their ''regional offices'' promising them highly paid jobs but handing them over to clients in Karachi who sell them on to interested individuals or groups running prostitution dens.

Several women also try to enter on their own and, if unable to bribe immigration officials at the borders, are either raped or sent to jails for illegal entry.

According to Zia Awan, president of the Lawyers for Human Rights Legal Aid Association (Lhrla), about 40 such women, some pregnant are or even with infants, are currently incarcerated in the Karachi Central Jail under the illegal entry and-or the Hudood Ordinance, an Islamic law for punishing those involved in rape and theft cases.

''I have seen young girls even of 11 and 12 years who conceived after being raped either by the brokers themselves or by the border police personnel,'' says another leading human rights activist, Ansar Burney, who heads a welfare trust named after him, the Ansar Burney Welfare Trust (Abwt).

Prices for the women, says Burney, range from 1,000 to 2,000 dllars, depending on the health and perceived desirability of the women.

The problem was also highlighted at an Inernational Seminar on Trafficking of Women and Children held last month in Karachi which drew delegates from the Philippines, Thailand, Malaysia, Nepal, Bangladesh, India, Sri Lanka and Pakistan.

Participants of the seminar, which had been organised by a local Ngo shirkat Gah, an organisation looking after destitute women and children, and the Asian Cultural Forum on Development, unanimously held that the criminal trafficking in poor and disadvantaged women across South-East Asia had increased so much over the last 25 years that only involvement of governments concerned could put an end to it.

But most conceded that, despite promises of justice and welfare, governments appeared indifferent to the problem since, as one participant said, ''They don't want to contradict their acclaimed achievements for the poor and helpless by acknowledging the existence of slave trade in this age.''

Only the government of former Pakistani Premier Benazir Bhutto set up a committee last July comprising the then-law minister, Ansar Burney, and another woman lawyer, Asma Jillani, to look into the smuggling of women and children from neighbouring countries. But the initiative was cut short after the fall of the Bhutto government a month later.

According to Ansar Burney, whose Organisation over the past 10 years secured release of over 52,000 prisoners including women and children some of whom were born in jails, the number of Bengali women smuggled so far into Pakistan is at least 500,000. Most of them are living in slums and shanty towns in Karachi and some other parts of Pakistan.

These illegal settlements, and the prostitution dens there are well-known to police, who receive a monthly ''Bhatta'' (protection money) from the den-owners who, if desired, also provide the officials with women.

But the plight of these women, always living in fear of being caught for illegal stay or arrested under the Islamic Hudood Ordinance for prostitution, also toil at factories in urban areas during the daytime for one-third of the normal wages.

Besides being employed as cheap labour force and forced into protstitution many of the Bangladeshi women are purchased by bachelors or aging persons who keep them either as wives or ''housemaids''.

Several dozen Bengali women have so far been sent back to Bangladesh after the Lhrla and Abwt obtained their release. But several hundred Bangladeshis, mostly women and children, are still sitting in lockups awaiting legal and monetary assistance for release and repatriation to their country.

The Bangladesh High Commission in Islamabad received a list in July last year of some 1,100 Bangladesh nationals detained in Pakistani jails, and more than 150 of were reportedly sent back to Dhaka.

''I must say the political will to stop the women trafficking isn't there,'' says Burney. ''You may have political differences with other countries, but this is a tragic human problem which calls for concerted efforts on the part of the governments to halt the smuggling of innocent souls.''

MOSCOW (DEC. 26) - The Soviet Union has received over 16,000 tons of emergency aid from 25 countries, Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said Wednesday.

The main bulk of aid has come from Germany, he added.

Three trucks loaded with 40 tons of donated Western medicines and baby-food arrived in the Soviet capital Wednesday.

Members of the French-based humanitarian organisation Medecins du Monde (Doctors of the World) who travelled with the supplies will distribute them to 11 children's hospitals in and around Moscow, Dr. Bernard Benedetti said.

BRASILIA (DEC. 26) - Some 200 armed prospectors invaded one of Brazil's few remaining indigenous peoples' reservations this weekend, the National Indian Foundation (FUNAI) announced Wednesday.

FUNAI President Cantidio Guimaraes reported to federal police officials the invasion by gold and gem prospecting "garimpeiros" of the reserve's territory in Rondonia state, in the country's Amazonian region.

The reserve is home to the Uru-Eu Wau-Wau tribe, one of the country's most primitive indigenous communities. The tribe in the past has been involved in conflicts with farmers who trespassed on their lands.

FUNAI officials said heavily armed prospectors tore down all of the tribal reserve's border markers in an apparent first step towards trying to mine in the zone.

Officials said they feared that the same problems which have faced Brazil's Yanomami tribe would be repeated with the Uru-Eu Wau-Wau.

The Yanomami tribe which dwells in the state of Roraima near Brazil's frontier with Venezuela is being "harshly punished by malaria and tuberculosis due to prolonged direct contact with prospectors invading their lands," they said.

Sidney Possuelo, head of the FUNAI's Remote Indigenous Peoples' Directorate, described the situation in the newly invaded reserve as serious.

Mr. Possuelo said FUNAI lacks the resources to protect the primitive tribe's reserve more effectively from both prospectors and woodcutters. He added that 11 subgroups of the tribe live on the reserve in total isolation, and that possibly fatal contact with the trespassers must be staved off immediately.

The same official noted that offenders' unauthorized presence on the tribe's land would "cause irrevocable damage to its native tropical forest, with the felling of valuable trees and the pollution of its rivers with mercury," which is used routinely in gold prospecting.

PARIS (DEC. 26) - The Paris Bourse reopened on Wednesday after a four-day

Christmas break, but investors were not interested and stocks fell by 1.73 per cent in very light trading.

The index opened 0.69 per cent down and managed to work its way into the plus column in early afternoon before weakening suddenly toward the end of the day.

Operators said it is normal for volume to be light during the end-of-the-year holidays, but business was even lower than usual because of the extreme caution forced by the continuing Gulf crisis.

Late-afternoon announcement of a 0.5 per cent rise in French unemployment in November from October tended to confirm a widespread view that France is suffering an economic slowdown, and it led to some stock selling that depressed prices.

Big losers included Erap-Elf, off 6.8 per cent, Bic and CSEE, 5.8 per cent, and Hutchinson, 4.2 per cent. Bail Equipement jumped by 11.2 per cent, and CDME by five per cent. Hachette and Scoa were both up by more than three per cent.

The four Italians, riding in two cars, were arrested after customs officials carrying out a routine check discovered the false bills wrapped in newspaper and plastic under the back seat of one of the two cars.

ISLAMABAD (DEC. 26) - Pakistani Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif has said he will not yield to any pressure aimed at obstructing his policy to privatize public sector industries.

Denationalization has been started beacause of the "huge losses" in public sector undertakings, the Associated Press of Pakistan (APP) quoted him Wednesday as saying in a speech at Lahore.

The opposition, led by former premier Benazir Bhutto, has criticized the government's plan while employees of the state-owned banks are protesting against their intended privatization.

As a first step, the government has decided to privatize the Moslem Commercial Bank (MCB) and has invited bids from private parties.

MCB was nationalized in 1973 by the late premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, along with Allied Bank, Habib Bank and United Bank.

"A few thousand people cannot be allowed to sabotage the process of denationalization which will bring rapid development, generate jobs and put the country on the path of progess and self-reliance," Mr. Sharif said.

Pakistan's public sector comprises nine corporations with manufacturing units in the spheres of steel, textile machinery, chemicals, fertlizer, cement, automobiles, engineering goods and petrochemicals.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 26) - A day after appealing for an ''equal dialogue'' with the United States, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein hosted a flurry of unexplained consultations with senior aides here Wednesday.

In another development, the United States announced a further beefing up of its Gulf naval forces with two aircraft carriers as the U.N. Security Council's January 15 deadline to quit Iraq approaches.

Western navies Wednesday stopped an Iraq-bound freighter carrying sugar and 250 mostly female peace activists.

The Kremlin meanwhile said it was rushing its evacuation of Soviet citizens from Iraq, and would have all the remaining 1,700 out by January 10 instead of January 15 as earlier planned. A plane carrying 400 arrived Tuesday night in Moscow.

A deputy Soviet prime minister, Igor Belousov, who chairs a Soviet task force on the evacuation, flew Wednesday to Baghdad to iron out lingering disputes with the Iraqis on the evacuation, foreign ministry spokesman Vitali Churkin said.

The Iraqis have insisted the Soviets declare all their unperformed contractual obligations before the evacuation is complete. Most of the Soviet citizens were in Iraq on contract.

Saddam chaired a joint meeting, the second in less than a week, of Iraq's two highest policy-making bodies, the Revolutionary Command Council and the Regional Command of the Arab Baath Socialist Party, Baghdad Radio said. It gave no details.

NEW DELHI (DEC. 26) - Sikh militants abducted a leading Indian industrialist in the northern state of Punjab Wednesday, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

It was the first incident of a prominent industrialist being kidnapped by Sikh militants fighting for an independent homeland in Punjab, the only Sikh-majority Indian state.

ISLAMABAD (DEC. 26) - Former Pakistani prime minister Benazir Bhutto said Wednesday the law and order situation in her home province Sindh had worsened to an alarming level.

"An atmosphere of fear and insecurity is prevailing in the province," Ms. Bhutto told reporters here.

The opposition leader said bandits were on the rampage in Sindh while the provincial government headed by Chief Minister Jam Sadiq Ali was "victimizing and jailing" her supporters.

Ms. Bhutto said the armed robberies and kidnappings in Sindh since her dismissal in August exceeded the total of such incidents during her entire 20-month rule.

She said "Sindh is on fire" due to the "vindictiveness" of Mr. Ali, and demanded his removal from the chief ministership.

In reply to a question, Ms. Bhutto said she had plans to undertake brief visits abroad but under no circumstances would she go into self-exile.

VIENNA (DEC. 26) - Austrian President Kurt Waldheim has no plans to visit Iraq or Saudi Arabia to try to mediate a settlement to the Gulf crisis, Austrian officials said Wednesday, denying an Iraqi newspaper report.

The Iraqi Army newspaper, Al-Qadissiah, said Tuesday that Mr. Waldheim may visit Iraq and Saudi Arabia in early January to try to prevent a war between Iraq and the multi-national force massed in the Gulf following the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

An Austrian presidential spokesman said here Wednesday that Mr. Waldheim planned to make an official three-day visit to Oman starting January 12 but that he had no plans to visit Saudi Arabia or Iraq.

The Iraqi Army newspaper, citing Austrian sources in an article headlined "Will Waldheim succeed where others have failed?" said that a visit to Iraq and Saudi Arabia by the former United Nations secretary general "at the request of the United States and the West" could not be ruled out.

Mr. Waldheim, following the December 24 announcement that he planned to visit Oman, did not specifically rule out stops in other countries in the region.

PARAMARIBO (DEC. 26) - The Surinamese army officials who seized power in a bloodless Christmas Eve coup pledged Wednesday to respect the country's constitution and to convene the National Assembly in the near future.

Paramaribo was quiet on Wednesday, a national holiday in this former Dutch colony on South America's northeastern coast, and there were no reports of public opposition to the military coup.

The military overthrew the elected government of President Ramsewak Shankar on Monday, and his ministers submitted their resignations Tuesday at the behest of the coup leader, Army Chief Lieutenant Ivan Graanoogst.

In a five-point declaration issued Wednesday the Military Authority, a supreme council headed by Lt. Graanoogst, suggested a convening of the 51-seat National Assembly -- which elected Mr. Shankar in November 1987 -- to recognize the president's resignation and possibly create a new government.

The official Suriname News Agency said Mr. Shankar and his vice-president, Henck Aaron, met Wednesday to prepare their formal resignations.

In its statement, the ruling Military Authority said that "the constitution and the resulting rights of the Surinamese people will be respected uncurtailed" and that the "democratic constitutional state ... will be a guideline for the Military Authority in its actions."

It also pledged to recognize the legislative role of the National Assembly and to convene the body "in the shortest possible time" so that it can carry out its mandate "as far as possible."

The military also said that the national media was free to operate normally, but added that "the Military Authority ... strongly urges the press to fulfil its tasks with national responsibility."

Wednesday's declaration made no mention of national elections, which Lt. Graanoogst pledged on Tuesday to hold within 100 days.

BRASILIA, Dec 26 (AFP) - Brazil announced Wednesday a 10-year, three-billion-dollar initiative to reforest a large part of the Amazon region and to protect much of the area from further damage by mining interests.

Minister for Infrastructure Ozires Silva said the government plan envisaged the reforestation of some one million hectares (2.5 million acres) and would also protect some 300,000 hectares (750,000 acres) in the Carajas region from further encroachment by mining.

Mr. Silva insisted the government program was two-pronged. "Not only will we cease deforestation," he promised, "but we will preserve what we have."

The minister said the project would be financed by private national and multinational companies.

He added that any company granted mining rights in the Carajas region, which still has nearly 10 million hectares (25 million acres) of virgin forest, will be obliged to replenish any damaged forestry.

FREETOWN (DEC. 26) - About 100 children have been abruptly discharged from the main children's hospital in the Sierra Leone capital due to a strike by utility workers, medical and labour union officials said Wednesday.

The children, some of them bandaged after surgery, were sent home on Monday because "the workers went on the offensive against nurses and doctors who refused to join them in the protest", one doctor said.

A spokesman for the strikers, Tamba Moriba, said they were protesting against short payment of their November wages. He said that instead of 2,500 leones a month (14 dollars), they were only paid 1,800 leones.

One nurse said the strikers were "violent and went from ward to ward, trying to get the nurses to walk out and join them in their protest."

At the main Cannaught Hospital in Freetown, the second to be affected by the strike, the utility workers manhandled doctors to prevent them from discharging their duties to the sick, an executive member of the Sierra Leone Medical and Dental association told Agence France-Presse on Wednesday.

He said his association had also had reports of "workers refusing to allow relatives of patients to attend to them or bring in food to the sick, some of them in critical condition."

No deaths have been reported, one medical source said.

BUCHAREST (DEC. 26) - Three opposition formations, including Romania's only monarchist party, protested on Wednesday against the Romanian government's expulsion of former King Michael.

The National Agrarian Party, in a statement published by the news agency Rompres, said: "After 43 years of exile imposed by the communist dictatorship, King Michael, who retained his Romanian citizenship with dignity, has the right to return to his homeland."

The Free Monarchist Party, Romania's only openly monarchist party, criticized the expulsion of the former king as an act of "blasphemy."

The non-parliamentary opposition Timisoara Association asked: "Why are authorities afraid of King Michael," and protested against "this latest arbitrary and flagrant violation of human rights."

The former king was flown to Switzerland on Wednesday aboard a Romanian government jet, less than 12 hours after he arrived back unannounced from exile.

TUNIS (DEC. 26) - A Tunisian diplomat with more than 30 years' service has been sentenced to death for "secret dealings with a foreign country," court sources and his family said here Wednesday.

They said Lamari Dali, 58, arrested in October, was sentenced here by the Court of Appeal late Tuesday after a closed-doors trial.

Mr. Dali's lawyer stated on Wednesday that the case would go to the Supreme Court. If the verdict was confirmed, the "last resort for clemency" lay with the head of state, defence counsel Mohamed Salah Ksouri added.

The embassy in Brussels said at the time of Mr. Dali's arrest here that he was being investigated for passing confidential information to foreign diplomats based in the Tunisian capital. Some of Mr. Dali's family live in Belgium.

Family members said that he had been picked up while at home entertaining a couple of American diplomats.

The foreign country concerned has not been named. A career diplomat for 32 years, Mr. Dali has served in Madrid, Berlin and Bonn.

While still legal in Tunisia, the death penalty has not been applied since President Zine el Abidine Ben Ali came to power in 1987, except in the case of the "monster of Nabeul", Nasser Damergi, who was executed on November 18 for the murder of 13 children.

PARIS (DEC. 26) - French people are worried about economic prospects and foresee rising joblessness, according to an opinion poll by the official national statistics institute INSEE published Wednesday.

More than 20 per cent of householders polled in October and November thought prices had risen quickly in the previous six months, as against 16 per cent of those asked in May.

An increased inflation rate was predicted by 25 per cent of those polled.

Unemployment was also on the increase, according to more than half of respondents, the highest percentage since late 1988.

Householders were generally less confident about their own financial future than they were six months ago, particularly self-employed workers and those without jobs.

Savings power was dropping off, said 38 per cent of those polled, but high rates of return notably in investment in real estate had contributed to a "slightly" higher trend to save than in the previous six months, INSEE said.

The number of people planning major purchases was down except where large household goods were concerned, with firm commitments to buy new automobiles down 6.7 per cent in a year.

INSEE attributed the latest trends to fears of inflation and "the impact of international political tensions on oil prices". The poll, carried out between October 15 and November 5, covered 6,908 households representative of people living in France.

RABAT (DEC. 26) - Moroccan courts on Wednesday handed down prison sentences ranging from three months to one year on 47 people arrested during rioting which broke out during a general strike on December 14.

A court in the northern city of Tangiers sentenced 40 people arrested in connection with the disturbances to prison terms ranging from three months to one year, and acquitted one person.

In Meknes, central Morocco, another court handed down jail terms on seven people arrested in nearby El-Hajab during the rioting, ranging from six months to one year.

Among the charges against the defendants were disturbing public order, rebellion and illegal gathering.

In Fez, the court of appeal decided to postpone until January 3 the trials of 85 people also arrested during rioting on December 14.

The prisoners are variously charged with crimes including arson, looting, theft and assault.

On Tuesday, another court in Fez sentenced 40 people to prison terms of between one and seven years.

Meanwhile, a consultative committee on human rights set up by Morocco's King Hassan II asked him on Wednesday to halve the time for which suspected criminals may be held without trial.

A committee report to the king recommended that the detention period be cut to two months, renewable five times at most before trial. Under the penal code, suspects can currently be held for indefinitely renewable four-month stretches.

There are some 32,000 prisoners in Morocco, two-thirds of whom are still awaiting trial, according to one member of the committee which drew up the recommendations.

The committee also recommended that close surveillance on people suspected of breaching state security should not be allowed without criminal proceedings for more than 48 hours, renewable by 24 hours.

Surveillance currently runs to six days.

If the king accepts the recommendations, they will be put to parliament as a bill. King Hassan set up the committee in May to advise him on all aspects of human rights in the north African nation.

RIYADH (DEC. 26) - Multinational naval forces implementing an economic embargo against Iraq had intercepted a total of 5,833 ships by late Wednesday, U.S. military officials said in a press briefing here.

The forces had intercepted 67 ships in the previous 24 hours and boarded three to inspect their cargo, Lieutenant Colonel Greg Pepin of the army said.

One was the Iraqi-flagged Ibn Khaldoon, which had civilians on a peace mission aboard, officials said.

A total of 713 ships have been boarded since the United Nations embargo was imposed against Iraq in August.

Most interceptions have taken place in the Northern Red Sea or the Arabian Sea Lt.-Col. Pepin added.

Thirty ships have been diverted and 10, including the Ibn Khaldoon, have received warning shots to allow multinational forces to come aboard, he said.

The interceptions are causing Iraq to lose an estimated 100 million dollars in revenue daily, or about three billion dollars a month.

TEHERAN (DEC. 26) - The Iranian foreign ministry on Wednesday reacted favorably to the final declaration Tuesday of a meeting of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC), which condemed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and called for special relations with Iran.

In a statement on official Teheran Radio, ministry spokesman Morteza Sarmadi said: "Iran greets favorable the postive points of the final declaration of the GCC and considers that they constitute a step towards the development of relations with member states."

The council's members are Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar and Bahrain.

"Iran believes firmly that regional relations must be developed on the principles of mutual respect and understanding," Mr. Sarmadi said.

"Iran hopes that this gesture of the council will be a beginning in the development of cooperation between the states of the Persian gulf region, to defend Moslem countries of this vital waterway and to put an end to the presence of foreign forces," he added.

He said Iraq "must better understand the danger to the region of the presence of foreign forces and get out of Kuwait as rapidly as possible to remove the pretext for these forces and to stymie their expansionist plans."

Mr. Sarmadi said Iran "is disposed to consult these neighboring countries and to collaborate with them towards building the foundations of cooperation and deepening multilateral relations and to maintain the security of the region free from any foreign interference."

NEW YORK (DEC. 26) - Hong Kong is violating international law by keeping Vietnamese refugees in detention camps for "prolongued" periods of time while they await screening for asylum, a U.S.-based human rights group charges.

The Lawyers Committee for Human Rights recently sent a letters to Hong Kong Governor Sir David Wilson calling for release of the Vietnamese asylum seekers in the camps.

"The woefully inadequate living conditions now prevalent in Hong Kong's detention centers reflect a conscious government policy to deprive Vietnamese asylum seekers of such basic dignity," said Arthur Helton, director of the committee's refugee project, in his letter to Mr. Wilson.

A copy of the letter was sent to U.S. Secretary of State James Baker with a request for U.S. intervention with the Hong Kong authorities.

Last year the group recommended that the detention policy -- which was implemented with the screening process in 1988 after 13 years of Vietnamese refugees fleeing to Hong Kong -- be ended.

The committee has again called for an end to the policy, underscoring long periods of detention.

"The duration itself is one important difference," said Mr. Helton Wednesday. "It was questionable before and now it is clearly a violation of international law due to the prolongued and arbitrary character of the detention."

JERUSALEM (DEC. 26) EFE - A Palestinian was shot dead Wednesday after stabbing three Israeli soldiers in the occupied Gaza strip, according to military sources.

Palestianian sources said another 28 Palestinians were wounded in demonstrations in the Israeli-occupied region during celebrations to mark the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Al Fatah guerrilla group.

The latest victim in the wave of violence that has followed the October 8 slaying of 17 Palestinians by police in Jerusalem, was named as Alah Abdul Latif, a 30-year-old carpenter.

Two of the soldiers he attacked in a Gaza street were said to be in a serious condition in a Tel Aviv hospital, according to state radio.

The Palestinian sources said 20 of the 28 Palestinians were wounded when Israeli security forces opened fire on a Palestinian march near the Rafah refugee camp on the Egyptian border.

The other eight were wounded in a separate demonstration in nearby Khan Yunis. All had been taken to local hospitals, they said.

Leaders of the Palestinian intifada, or uprising, against Israeli rule had declared Wednesday the start of celebrations to mark the founding of Al Fatah, which was formed on January 1, 1965.

Al Fatah is the main guerrilla group within the Palestine Liberation Organization and headed by PLO chairman Yasser Arafat.

Since the intifada began three years ago some 780 Palestinians have been killed by Israelis in the Gaza Strip and West Bank, both seized by Israeli during the Six Day War of 1967.

Another 322 Palestinians have been killed by their own people, accused of being Israeli collaborators, and 57 Israelis have been killed by Arabs.

HANOI (DEC. 26) KYODO - THE VIETNAMESE GOVERNMENT WILL OPEN PART OF HAIPHONG HARBOR TO CHINESE SHIPS IN JANUARY, INFORMED SOURCES IN HANOI SAID WEDNESDAY.

THIS WOULD BE THE FIRST TIME THAT CHINESE SHIPS ARE ALLOWED TO CALL FOR SUPPLIES AT A VIETNAMESE PORT SINCE THE FEBRUARY 1979 SINO-VIETNAM BATTLE THAT OCCURRED AFTER HANOI SENT ITS TROOPS TO CAMBODIA.

HAIPHONG, THE LARGEST PORT IN NORTHERN VIETNAM, EXTENDS OVER 1.7 KILOMETERS AND HAS 11 PIERS SERVING VESSELS WEIGHING UP TO 30,000 TONS.

THE HARBOR, ABOUT 100 KILOMETERS EAST OF HANOI, IS CLOSE ENOUGH TO SOUTHERN CHINA THAT IT MIGHT BE ABLE TO PLAY A ROLE IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF CHINA'S YUNNAN PROVINCE.

THE EXPECTED OPENING OF THE VIETNAMESE PORT TO CHINA SHOWS THAT NEGOTIATIONS ON NORMALIZING RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES, STRAINED SINCE 1979, HAVE BEEN MAKING PROGRESS.

IN SEPTEMBER, VIETNAM'S COMMUNIST PARTY GENERAL SECRETARY NGUYEN VAN LINH MADE A SECRET VISIT TO CHINA TO MEET HIS CHINESE COUNTERPART, JIANG ZEMIN. IN THE SAME MONTH, VIETNAMESE VICE PREMIER VO NGUYEN GIAP WAS INVITED BY THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT TO ATTEND THE ASIAN GAMES IN BEIJING, AND VIETNAMESE ATHLETES COMPETED IN THE EVENT.

CHINA HAS INSISTED THE CAMBODIAN PROBLEM MUST BE SOLVED BEFORE IT NORMALIZES RELATIONS WITH VIETNAM, BUT IT AGREED IN SEPTEMBER TO PROCEED QUICKLY WITH NORMALIZATION TALKS ONCE THE CAMBODIAN ISSUE IS RESOLVED.

HIROSHIMA (DEC. 27) KYODO - RESEARCHERS AT THE RADIATION EFFECTS RESEARCH FOUNDATION (RERF) IN HIROSHIMA SAY THEY HAVE DEVELOPED A QUICK METHOD TO DETECT CELL MUTATION IN PEOPLE EXPOSED TO EXCESSIVE RADIATION.

USING THE TECHNIQUE IT TAKES LESS THAN FIVE HOURS TO MEASURE MUTANT FREQUENCY, WHICH COMPARES WITH MORE THAN TWO WEEKS BY THE CONVENTIONAL PROCESS.

THE RESEARCHERS SAID THEY EXPECT THEIR TECHNIQUE TO BE WIDELY ADOPTED FOR CHECKING THE LEVELS OF RADIOACTIVITY PRESENT IN THE VICTIMS OF NUCLEAR ACCIDENTS.

A FURTHER BENEFIT IS THAT ONLY ONE C.C. OF BLOOD IS REQUIRED FOR THE ASSAYING PROCESS USED TO DETERMINE THE FREQUENCY OF MUTANT T LYMPHOCYTES, CAUSED BY RADIATION, INSTEAD OF THE 20 C.C. REQUIRED USING PRESENT METHODS.

MITOSHI AKIYAMA, 46, CHIEF OF RADIOBIOLOGY AT RERF, SAID THE RERF RESEARCH GROUP DISCOVERED THAT THE T-CELL RECEPTOR, WHICH PLAYS A CENTRAL ROLE IN ANTIGEN RECOGNITION AND CELL ACTIVATION, IS PRONE TO MUTATION IF EXPOSED TO RADIATION.

THE RESEARCHERS SUCCEEDED IN MEASURING THE FREQUENCY OF MUTANT T-LYMPHOCYTES DEFECTIVE IN T-CELL RECEPTORS USING THE TWO-COLOR FLOW CYTOMETRIC TECHNIQUE.

USING THIS METHOD, THE AKIYAMA GROUP CHECKED THE BLOOD OF 228 PEOPLE OVER A TWO-YEAR PERIOD FROM MAY 1988 TO THIS MONTH.

THE PEOPLE WHO UNDERTOOK THE BLOOD TEST INCLUDED 203 ATOMIC BOMB SURVIVORS FROM HIROSHIMA AND A SOVIET FIRE FIGHTER WHO WAS HEAVILY EXPOSED TO RADIATION DURING THE 1986 CHERNOBYL ACCIDENT.

THE EXPERIMENTS REVEALED THAT THE LYMPHOCYTES FROM THE SOVIET TEST SUBJECT

CONTAINED A LEVEL OF MUTANT FREQUENCY SIX TIMES HIGHER THAN THAT OF HIROSHIMA ATOMIC BOMB SURVIVORS WHO HAD BEEN WITHIN A RADIUS OF 2,000 METERS FROM THE HYPOCENTER.

AKIYAMA SAID THAT THE NEW METHOD IS EXPECTED TO PROVE VERY USEFUL WITHIN THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION (WHO) PROGRAM THAT AIMS TO MEASURE THE RADIATION LEVELS OF LOCAL RESIDENTS AFFECTED BY THE CHERNOBYL ACCIDENT.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 26) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

MARY INGRASSIA, customer dealer at BANK OF TOKYO in New York, says that since the U.S. currency broke and remained above 1.50 marks, participants in the currency market have been viewing 1.55 marks as the next objective. (WSJ, 12/26)

The SHEVARDNADZE resignation "tacked on a minimum of five pfennigs," or 0.05 mark, to the dollar's trading range, says JERRY EGAN, chief dealer at BANK OF BOSTON. The question now is whether that boost will serve as a catalyst for a larger dollar rally once the market returns to normal after the year-end holidays. (WSJ, 12/26)

Japanese interest rates are headed lower, says NICHOLAS REITENBACH, director of international investment at PINNACLE ASSOCIATES. "Interest rates in the long term sector have come down considerably from their peaks of a few months ago. It is just in the short term sector where rates are still up," says Reitenbach. "It's just a matter of time before short term rates also start coming down in Japan." (CNBC "World Business", 12/26)

KEVIN FLANAGAN, a money market economist at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS INC., says bond prices weakened Monday as investors sold bonds to try to capture profits. "It's the end of the year, so people have closed out their books," say Mr. Flanagan. "They want to cash in and take a portion of the profits" generated during the market's recent 13-week rally. (WSJ, 12/26)

THE ECONOMY:

"We're looking for [a recession] to be short and shallow," says RONALD SOLBERG economist at SECURITY PACIFIC NATIONAL BANK. ("USA Today", 12/26)

The final retail tallies for the Christmas season are expected to be the worst in many years. KURT BARNARD, a retail trade newsletter publisher who surveyed

60 executives of chains and independent retailers, says, "For most people, it was a struggle just to stay even with last year. ... In many cases, retailers have fallen below last year by as much as 10% or 12%." KENNETH MACKE, chairman and chief executive officer of DAYTON HUDSON CORP., says, "It's been difficult to get business. Consumer confidence is as low as I've ever seen it." (WSJ, 12/26)

"I think that just as the real estate market led the economy down, it will lead it up," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "We already have lower mortgage rates. ... They will fall some more. The real estate market will turn around. It might not be much of a turnaround, but there will be a turnaround. And I think the real estate market will be among the leading sectors on the way back up." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/24)

"Come the cold winds of January, the consumer will find the most extraordinary clearance sales since the end of World War II," says ALAN MILLSTEIN, editor of "Fashion Network Report." "There is no lack of merchandise in any store." ("USA Today", 12/26)

"There will be wide deflation this time, but the American economy is far more resilient than it was in the 1930s," says HARVARD economist JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH. "And if things get bad enough, there is an inescapable obligation on the part of the government that did not exist before to step in and reverse the trend." (NYT, 12/25)

today that it anticipates a nonrecurring charge to net income in the fourth quarter of approximately $10.3 million, or $1.16 per share. The majority of the charge relates to restructuring and plant close-down charges in connection with recently acquired businesses. As a result of these charges, NACCO expects to report only a modest profit for the fourth quarter of 1990.

Approximately $7.6 million of the charges reflect restructuring at NACCO's 97 percent-owned subsidiary, Hyster-Yale Materials Handling, Inc. Hyster-Yale, one of the world's leading manufacturers of forklift trucks, acquired Hyster Company in mid-1989 and is also the parent of Yale Materials Handling Corporation. A portion of the charge relates to Hyster-Yale's previously announced closing of its plant in Brunswick, Georgia, and the relocation of certain manufacturing operations to the Greenville, North Carolina, facility. Hyster-Yale anticipates that the restructuring will result in lower fixed costs and enhanced economies of scale in design, manufacturing and purchasing. The restructuring program, which results from a comprehensive review of the Hyster and Yale operations, is consistent with the plan developed by NACCO prior to the merger, and will be implemented during 1991 and 1992.

The remaining charges are attributable to NACCO's 80 percent-owned subsidiary, Hamilton Beach/Proctor- Silex, Inc. These charges include approximately $1.7 million of nonrecurring charges, consisting of the write- off of deferred financing costs stemming from NACCO's acquisition of Proctor-Silex in 1988, a reserve for environmental clean-up at a sold facility and other nonrecurring charges. In addition, Hamilton Beach/Proctor-Silex will recognize a charge of approximately $1.0 million for restructuring of operations. Proctor-Silex was merged with Hamilton Beach in October 1990. The restructuring plan is consistent with the plans and strategies developed by NACCO prior to the merger. Hamilton Beach/Proctor Silex is a leading manufacturer of small electric appliances.

The restructurings in both companies are anticipated to result in cost savings through the consolidation of various operating activities. Significant savings are expected to be achieved contemporaneously with the expenditure of funds to accomplish the restructuring programs.

NACCO Industries is a holding company that, in addition to owning Hyster-Yale and Hamilton Beach/Proctor-Silex, owns The North American Coal Corporation, which mines and markets lignite coal for use primarily as fuel in power generation by electric utilities.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 26) PR NEWSWIRE - An extensive annual assessment by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has given Philadelphia Electric Co.'s (NYSE: PE) Limerick Generating Station top marks in five of seven areas evaluated, and has upgraded the plant's mark for emergency preparedness.

The emergency preparedness rating advanced from a 3 a year ago, the lowest passing mark, to a 2 and Improving.

In its assessment of emergency preparedness at Limerick, the NRC said: "PECo has committed substantial resources to improving Emergency Preparedness and responded to significant weaknesses in their program by initiating a long term improvement plan. Improvements were noted throughout this period and showed on-going management involvement and commitment to quality."

The evaluation, a Systematic Assessment of Licensee Performance (SALP), covered 3,963 hours of NRC inspection at both Limerick units from Sept. 1, 1989, to Oct. 15, 1990.

The SALP found continued strong operating performance at the plant keyed by management involvement. PECo management, it said, continued to demonstrate a commitment to safe, quality operation at Limerick.

The report added that early in the assessment period the plant's operator requalification program was deemed to be unsatisfactory, but PECo took "prompt thorough and complete corrective action" that generated "significant improvements" by the end of the assessment period.

Limerick retained its rating of 1 in this category, Plant Operations. Dickinson M. Smith, PE senior vice president, nuclear, said the company was pleased with the plant's improving performance, particularly in the area of emergency preparedness.

"We obviously are pleased both with our five category one ratings and with our improved performance in the two other categories assessed," he said. "The staff at Limerick and the Nuclear Engineering and Support staff worked hard on improving performance in emergency preparedness and in engineering and technical support, and these ratings reflect their efforts."

TROY, MI (DEC. 26) PR NEWSWIRE - Troy-based United Satellite/America, Inc. (NASDAQ: SAMI) (US/A) announced that it has received a cable franchise to service the City of Key West, Fla. The Key West City Council passed an ordinance conditionally granting the franchise in a public hearing on Dec. 17. US/A, a publicly traded Delaware corporation which acquires, operates and syndicates cable television systems nationwide, becomes the second cable franchise operating in Key West and the first which will offer a state-of-the-art, 550 MHz cable system, with pay-per-view capability.

The franchise in Key West, the southernmost city in the contiguous 48 states, presents a number of unique opportunities, according to Gary Rasmussen, chairman of US/A. Rasmussen pointed out that the approximately 150 miles between Key West and the nearest broadcast television signal in Miami encourages a cable penetration in the city of approximately 90 percent, as compared to the industry average of slightly over 50 percent. Also, the population density of Key West offers the opportunity to construct the cable system less expensively than other cable systems of comparable size in terms of the number of homes passed (potential subscribers).

Rasmussen also announced that an agreement in principle to finance the construction of US/A's Key West franchise has been reached. The main backer in the financing of the estimated $3.2 million construction is noted treasure hunter and adventurer Mel Fisher. A south Florida native, Fisher is best known for his success in discovering treasure located in shipwrecks in the Caribbean. Fisher's best-known discovery was of the Spanish galleon Atocha, which contained materials rumored to be valued in excess of $100 million. The agreement presently foresees Fisher retaining a 20-percent interest in the to-be-formed subsidiary of US/A which will build and operate the system.

In a test, the No. 1-8 State Garfield well produced at a rate of about 9 million cubic feet of gas per day through an 18/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 4,145 pounds per square inch. Unocal calculated an absolute open flow (AOF) rate of 91 million cubic feet per day from test data. Production will begin when facilities have been installed and well-head connection permits have been issued by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

Unocal operates the well, in which it holds a 39.3 percent working interest. Shell Western Exploration and Production, Inc., a subsidiary of Shell Oil Company, holds the remaining 60.7 percent interest. Unocal holds a net 4,700 acres on the prospect.

LAPORTE, TX (DEC. 26) PR NEWSWIRE - Under terms of an agreement between ENAF of Bolivia and Laurel Industries, Inc., the first shipment of Bolivian crude antimony oxide was delivered to Laurel Industries' antimony trioxide plant in LaPorte, Texas, on Nov. 30, 1990.

A joint technology transfer agreement was signed by Gonzalo Martinez, president of ENAF, and G. Carlos Tejada, vice president- operations for Laurel Industries in February, 1990. The agreement committed Laurel and ENAF to bringing production capability to a plant that had been idle since 1985. After completing a variety of equipment modifications, crude antimony oxide production began on Aug. 13, 1990.

This is the first time that Bolivia has entered into an agreement of this type with a U.S. corporation, according to Martinez. "Laurel's ability to process Bolivian raw materials gives us the opportunity to put what was an idle investment to productive use," Martinez said.

ENAF operates two of the world's largest tin smelters in Vinto, Oruro, 120 miles south of La Paz. The antimony plant is in the same metallurgical complex in Oruro.

The ENAF antimony smelter was built in 1975 by Skoda Export of Czechoslovakia and KHD of West Germany, and ceased operations in 1985, largely as a result of China's pricing of antimony metal and reduced requirements for antimony lead alloys.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Mines, Bolivia is one of the world's largest antimony producers. Recent statistics indicate that the majority of antimony raw materials exported from Bolivia is in the form of antimony concentrates and antimony ores.

In addition to Bolivia, China and South Africa are the other major source countries for antimony. Laurel is one of the largest consumers of Chinese and South African raw materials. Because of potential political and social unrest in the major producing countries, Laurel's strategy has been to balance raw material risk by having a significant position with quality producers in each source country.

Laurel Industries, Inc. is one of the world's largest producers of antimony trioxide. Laurel focuses on the high performance end of the flame retardant market, where antimony trioxide is used as a synergist in halogen based systems. Laurel has also become the leading supplier to polyester fiber producers where special grades of antimony trioxide are used as polymerization catalysts.

HOUSTON, (DEC. 26) PR NEWSWIRE - Pennzoil Co. (NYSE: PZL) announced that its application for an extension of time had been granted by the Internal Revenue Service, thereby extending for five months until May 31, 1991, the period during which Pennzoil may invest proceeds from its 1988 Texaco litigation settlement in shares of common stock of Chevron Corp. Pennzoil has sought to qualify its Chevron investment as property "similar or related in service or use to" Pennzoil's contractural interest in Getty Oil Co., which was the subject of Pennzoil's litigation with Texaco.

During 1989, Pennzoil invested approximately $2.1 billion of net Texaco settlement proceeds to purchase 31,524,500 common shares (approximately nine percent) of Chevron Corp. In July 1990, Pennzoil filed a notification under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of its intent to increase its ownership level to slightly under 10 percent by purchasing additional Chevron shares. Because of delays in obtaining clearance from the Federal Trade Commission for such purchases, Pennzoil sought the extension of time from the IRS.

On its 1988 federal income tax return, Pennzoil reported the amount of the Texaco litigation settlement as proceeds received for the involuntary conversion of property. Such proceeds would be excludable from Pennzoil's taxable income to the extent that Pennzoil acquires property similar or related to Pennzoil's interest in Getty Oil Co.

The IRS action extends from Dec. 31, 1990, until May 31, 1991, the period of time within which Chevron stock may be purchased. Pennzoil's tax position will be subject to review by the IRS in due course, and the granting of the extension does not otherwise affect any issue related to Pennzoil's tax position.

"At a time like this, when there is a lot of uncertainty in the global economy a prudent developer is going to move carefully, and that's what we're doing," explained Martin J. Cleary, president of Jacobs, Visconsi & Jacobs Co. "We've approached Ameritrust, and they've agreed to give us some latitude on the completion date."

"We are very anxious to get into the new building, but we fully understand the Jacobs' position, and are willing to wait until 1996 to take occupancy," said Craig R. Smith, chairman and chief executive officer of Ameritrust Corporation.

"Given the current environment, we can appreciate the decision to delay," said Nicholas J. Pritzker, president of Hyatt Development Corporation. "We continue to look forward to our presence in Ameritrust Center and the downtown Cleveland market."

Cleary pointed out that the current pace of downtown development is quite healthy, citing the heavy volume of pre-leasing activity at the Jacobs brothers' 57-story Society Center, also on Public Square, as evidence of the local market's strength. Currently under construction, Society Center is already almost 60 percent leased. Major tenants are Society Corporation; Squire, Sanders & Dempsey; and Deloitte & Touche.

Upon completion, Ameritrust Center will provide more than one million square feet of office space, with Ameritrust Corporation as the major tenant. Almost 900 feet high, the skyscraper will be the tallest building in Ohio and one of the 25 tallest in the world.

Richard and David Jacobs are owners of Jacobs, Visconsi & Jacobs Co., a Cleveland-based national real estate development and management firm which owns and/or manages 42 enclosed shopping malls in 16 states, among other projects. In Cleveland, the Jacobs brothers own Society Center, The Galleria at Erieview, several downtown office buildings and the Cleveland Indians baseball team.

FLINT, MI (DEC. 26) PR NEWSWIRE - This morning, Citizens Banking Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: CBCF) received a copy of the notice from the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System that permits CenTra, Inc., Warren, Mich., to acquire up to 24.9 percent of the outstanding voting shares of Citizens Banking Corporation.

Charles R. Weeks, president and chief executive officer, stated, "This ruling permits a passive investment by CenTra and with the conditions assures that full control of the company and its business operations remains in the hands of the management and the board of directors of Citizens." In particular, CenTra has committed not to:

(1) exercise or attempt to exercise a controlling influence over the management or policies of Citizens or its bank subsidiaries;

(2) have or seek to have any employees or representative serve as an officer, agent or employee of Citizens or its bank subsidiaries;

(3) take any action causing Citizens or its bank subsidiaries to become a subsidiary of CenTra;

(4) acquire or retain shares that would cause the combined interest of CenTra and its officers, directors and affiliates to equal or exceed 25 percent of the outstanding voting shares of Citizens;

(5) propose a director or slate of directors in opposition to a nominee or slate of nominees proposed by the management or board of directors of Citizens;

(6) attempt to influence the dividend policies or practices of Citizens or its bank subsidiaries;

(7) solicit or participate in soliciting proxies with respect to any matter presented to the shareholders of Citizens;

(8) attempt to influence the loan and credit decisions or policies of Citizens and its bank subsidiaries, the pricing of services, any personnel decision, the location of any offices, branching, the hours of operation, or similar activities of Citizens and its bank subsidiaries;

(9) dispose or threaten to dispose of shares of Citizens in any manner as a condition of specific action or non-action by Citizens;

(10) enter into any other banking or non-banking transactions with Citizens, except that CenTra may establish and maintain deposit accounts with bank subsidiaries of Citizens, provided that the aggregate balances of all such accounts do not exceed $500,000 and that the accounts are maintained on substantially the same terms as those prevailing for comparable accounts of persons unaffiliated with Citizens; or

(11) seek or accept representation on the board of directors of Citizens.

This order clarifies the terms of CenTra's ownership and eliminates the usual concerns associated with significant ownership of a large block of stock outside the normal control group represented by a board of directors.

Last July, the board of directors approved a Shareholders Rights Plan as part of its overall corporate governance program which is designed to ensure that all shareholders receive fair and equal treatment in realizing the long-term value of their investment in Citizens Banking Corporation.

Citizens Banking Corporation is the eighth-largest bank holding company headquartered in Michigan. The corporation's stock is traded in the NASDAQ National Market System (symbol CBCF).

NEW YORK (DEC. 26) PR NEWSWIRE - Diversification does not by itself guarantee success in high yield bond investing, according to a new study by Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc. This study notes that individual security selection greatly affects performance even when a portfolio is spread out among many issuers and industries.

The findings are reported in an article entitled "The Limits of Diversification" in Merrill Lynch's monthly publication, "Extra Credit -- The Journal of High Yield Bond Research." Co-authors of the article are Martin S. Fridson, managing director in charge of high yield research, and Michael A. Cherry, an analyst in the high yield new product area.

Fridson and Cherry note that, "Over the past year, company-specific credit factors have produced wide variances among the returns on the bonds within each industry. Surveying 18 industries in the 12 months ending Sept. 30, 1990 we find that a majority display ranges of over 4,000 basis points in total return between the best-performing and worst-performing issue."

Fridson adds, "During the past year many portfolio managers have had a disappointing experience despite following the well-established formula of diversifying their portfolios. Because of the pronounced intra-industry dispersion of returns, it is possible to meet strict diversification requirements yet substantially underperform the high yield sector." As a demonstration, the authors construct a portfolio of 40 better-than-average quality issues in 23 industries that underperformed an index of the high yield market by more than 50 percent during 1990s first half. This result is at variance with conventional wisdom about the ability to eliminate so-called unsystematic risk through diversification.

While not disputing the necessity of spreading risk across industries, Fridson and Cherry conclude that diversification may prove ineffective unless accompanied by detailed credit analysis of individual issues.

IRVINE, CA. (DEC. 26) PR NEWSWIRE - Fashion retailer The Wet Seal Inc. (NASDAQ: WTSLA) announced that its plan to build 20 new stores during 1991 will continue as scheduled despite disappointing holiday sales, according to Ken Chilvers, president.

Chilvers said lackluster sales, particularly in Southern California, required the company to mark down merchandise earlier than originally planned in order to bring inventories to proper levels.

"We think that Wall Street's earning estimate of 80 cents per share may be overly optimistic by as much as 10 to 12 cents," said Chilvers. "We believe that our strong, debt-free financial position will be integral to our long-term growth and vitality."

Wet Seal's positive outlook for the long term allows the company to take advantage of the better deals being offered by landlords during the current real estate market. "Our stores are long-term investments, particularly with the 10- to 15-year leases we are looking for," said Chilvers.

The company's five Florida stores, which opened during 1990, have continued to exceed sales projections and have validated Wet Seal's plans to expand in that market, according to Chilvers. The majority of the new stores on Wet Seal's 1991 expansion schedule will be in Florida.

Wet Seal, which opened 20 new stores and remodeled three during 1990, is a specialty retailer of moderately priced fashionable apparel for women. It was founded in 1962 as a one-location beachwear store on Balboa Island.

When Chilvers and Executive Vice President Kathy Bronstein took over the helm in 1984, the company had just 18 stores in Southern California. The two partners have engineered Wet Seal's growth and expansion, which currently includes 93 stores in regional malls throughout California, Arizona, Nevada, Hawaii and Florida.

In July 1990, Wet Seal completed an initial public stock offering that raised $43 million. It is traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the "WTSLA" symbol.

MADRID (DECEMBER 26) TASS - UNESCO DIRECTOR-GENERAL FEDERICO MAYOR EXPRESSED CONFIDENCE THAT A PEACEFUL SOLUTION WOULD BE FOUND FOR THE GULF CONFLICT IN COMPLIANCE WITH U.N. RESOLUTIONS AND THERE WOULD BE NO NEED TO USE FORCE. "IT IS A LIE THAT WAR IS INEVITABLE," HE STRESSED.

IN AN INTERVIEW WITH THE SPANISH "INTERVIEW" WEEKLY PUBLISHED TODAY, MAYOR NOTED THAT A SETTLEMENT OF THE GULF CRISIS WOULD BE FOLLOWED BY A SEARCH FOR WAYS OF DEMILITARISING THE REGION AND SETTLING OTHER ISSUES: THE LEBANESE PROBLEM AND THE OCCUPIED ARAB TERRITORIES ISSUE.

THE REMOVAL OF THE SEAT OF TENSION IN THE MIDDLE EAST WILL ENABLE WORLD NATIONS TO TURN TO GIVING AID TO THE DEVELOPING NATIONS WHICH ARE IN A DISASTROUS STATE. MAYOR FAVORED "RESOLUTE MEASURES" AIMED AT CURBING INTERNATIONAL ARMS TRADE AND NARCOTICS TRAFFICKING.

HE PRAISED POSITIVE CHANGES IN THE WORLD IN THE OUTGOING YEAR 1990. AFTER REMOVING THE NUCLEAR THREAT, WE MUST RESOLVE THE ECOLOGICAL THREAT AND THE THREAT OF INTOLERENCE AND VIOLENCE, HE EMPHASISED.

THIS IS A SERIOUS PROBLEM IN THE WORLD WHERE WE MUST ENSURE AN INTERNATIONAL CULTURAL DIALOGUE AND A PEACEFUL COEXISTENCE OF NATIONS, MAYOR NOTED.

MAYOR REJECTED ALLEGATIONS ABOUT A THREAT OF IMMIGRANTS SWARMING INTO WESTERN EUROPE FROM EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES. "WE SHOULD NOT FEAR THAT WE ARE THREATENED WITH THEIR INVASION, SINCE EACH COUNTRY HAS ITS OWN MECHANISMS AND LAWS REGULATING THE ENTRY OF FOREIGNERS," HE SAID.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Thermometers reached 50 in only four states Christmas Day... California, Texas, Arizona and Florida. Elsewhere, the weather was typical for Christmastime. Most northern states had snow on the ground.. . and most were bitterly cold.

Oranges and lemons are almost sure to start costing more. California's record-shattering cold wave heavily damaged the citrus crop. Some growers say up to 100 percent of their crops were damaged... particularly oranges, lemons and tangerines.

Arizona's citrus crop may have escaped this week's cold snap with very little damage. Agricultural experts also say vegetable crops such as lettuce, broccoli and cauliflower escaped serious damage.

A cold spell in Florida last Christmas devastated its citrus crop. But the story is different this year. Florida is about the warmest state in the nation.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein made an appeal to what he termed ''people of conscience'' on Christmas Day. Saddam called for a peaceful dialogue to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis. In a message to a peace conference, Saddam blamed the crisis on American and Israeli aggression. .. and did NOT even mention Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. NOR did he say he is willing to negotiate before the January 15th deadline the United Nations gave him for withdrawing from Kuwait.

American Airlines reports some of its pilots called in sick during the busy Christmas holiday period as a protest. American officials say the pilot's union is trying to force the company to accept its terms in contract talks. The pilots' union denies any organized sickout. American and the union have been negotiating on a new contract for 14 months.

TOKYO (DEC. 26) UPI - The Tokyo stock market hitched its wagon to the bond market Wednesday to stage a mild recovery in light trading.

The key 225-share Nikkei average reversed course from a 352-point loss Tuesday and gained 119.68 points to end at 23,887.56.

The Tokyo Stock Price Index of all major shares, which plummeted 39. 65 points Tuesday, inched ahead by 4.64 points. TOPIX closed at 1,729. 81.

Trading remained extremely thin, with an estimated 220 million shares barely exceeding Tueday's 210 million.

The market finished the morning slightly down but was spurred on in the afternoon by a rally in the bond market, where yields fell by about 7 basis points, brokers said.

Bond buyers were making up for overselling the market after Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's resignation announcement Thursday, they said.

New investment trusts led the way in the stock market with selective buying. But their purchases prompted margin selling of almost equal force. ''It was rather quiet, choppy trading,'' said a broker with Nomura Securities, who spoke on condition of anonymity. ''There were 20 to 22 new investments trusts buying out there, but it was not very aggressive buying.''

Some index-linked arbitrage buying gave the Nikkei a lift, brokers said.

Institutional investors went after bank shares, despite the banks' continuing woes, on the belief that portfolios are now underweighted in the banking sector, the Nomura broker said.

Fuji Bank jumped 50 yen to end at 2,350, while Sumitomo Bank moved up 20 yen to close at 1,980.

Construction shares and some retailers such as Marui eased.

Honshu Paper, for months the target of speculators, lost 10 percent of its value as Toshiyuki Inamura, a prominent politician, resigned from the ruling Liberal Democratic Party after being implicated in a stock speculation and tax evasion scandal.

Overall, the market was virtually deadlocked, with rising and falling stocks almost evenly matched.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein blamed the confrontation in the Gulf on United States and Israeli aggression, calling for negotiations but ignoring the latest demand by his Arab neighbors to leave Kuwait.

Leaders of the six-nation Gulf Cooperation Council issued a joint communique at the conclusion of a summit in Qatar Tuesday calling for the Iraqi withdrawal, as well as a solution to the Palestinian problem, which they said remained the Arab world's number one concern.

They said Oman wanted to keep the door open for future contacts with Iraq while the remaining states, particularly Saudi Arabia, rejected any dialogue with Baghdad until Iraqi troops were withdrawn from the oil- rich emriate.

''But the six member states are trying to minimize the size of the differences through insisting on the necessity of the complete implementation of the Arab and international resolutions calling for the Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and restoration of its legitimate government,'' one source close to the negotiations said.

Israel, meanwhile, played down reports the country's military was on a state of high alert Tuesday, following statements by Saddam that the Israeli city of

Tel Aviv would be his first target if war were to eruprt in the region.

Many of the hundreds of thousands of multinational troops deployed in the gulf celebrated the Christian holiday in the Moslem region, but the festivities were overshadowed by increasing indications there will be a military confrontation if Iraq does not pull out of Kuwait by the Jan. 15 deadline, only 20 days away.

In his message, distributed by the official Iraqi news agency, Saddam said he ''hoped all people of conscience in the world will remember that injustice leads to war and that peace is made through equitable dialogue aimed at acheiving justice.''

Iraq and the United States had planned to hold high-level talks before Jan. 15 but, with time running out, the two countries have not been able to agree on dates.

Saddam's message, to an unidentified international conference on peace, blamed the conflict on American and Jewish aggression and made no mention of his occupation of the emirate. He has said in recent interviews that he will not withdraw by the crucial date.

Troops from around the world celebrated Christmas with parties and thoughts of home.

The expression of religions other than Islam in Saudi Arabia is forbidden, but the country has been tolerant of such holiday manifestations as Christmas trees and Santa Clauses for the foreign troops.

The bulk of the U.S.-led force, which includes close to 300,000 U.S. troops along with Arab and European soldiers, has been deployed to the desert kingdom.

Pope John Paul II, in his annual address at the Vatican, made an emotional plea for the ''tormented nations of the Middle East'' and prayed for a peaceful solution to the crisis.

Iraq has stepped up civil defense programs in preparation for a possible war, saying it would open civilian training centers.

''It has been decided to open more training centers on rescue, first aid and evacuation and to hold a symposium on the importance of civil defense exercises,'' INA said.

The Gulf Cooperation Council's final communique - issued by Saudi Arabia, Qatar, Oman, Bahrain, the United Arab Emriates and Kuwait - also called for a solution to the Palestinian problem, saying that despite the occupation it remained the foremost of Arab concerns.

The gulf countries have rejected Saddam's claim his occupation of Kuwait is linked to the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza strip. But the communique seemed to make clear the Arab states are not ready to neglect the Palestinian cause in the wake of the gulf crisis.

The GCC communique also touched briefly on the creation of a permanent security network to protect the oil-rich region in the future.

Sources close to the talks said non-Arab Iran may be involved in the network, although the communique mentioned no details of the plan.

Israeli military officials played down reports in the Israeli press Tuesday that its army and airforce were on a high state of alert.

Saddam reiterated in a weekend interview with Spanish television that he would strike at Israel if a war to erupt over Kuwait, even if Israel is not part of the multinational force allied against him.

''The Israeli air force all year round is on a certain state of alert for potential enemies,'' an official military source in Jerusalem said. ''Since the beginning of the crisis, it has heightened its state of alert.''

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 26) UPI - African National Congress President Oliver Tambo, recently returned to South Africa from exile, arrived in the nominally independent tribal territory of Transkei Wednesday to visit his birthplace for the first time in more than 30 years.

''He was naturally very excited to be leaving (Johannesburg), especially to see his home village again,'' ANC Deputy President Nelson Mandela said. An official in the office of Transkei military ruler Maj. Gen. Bantu Holomisa said Tambo had flown in before midday.

The ailing Tambo, who returned to South Africa Dec. 13 after fleeing in 1960 ahead of certain arrest for anti-apartheid activities, would visit the place of his birth, the tiny rural town of Bizana, on Thursday, Mandela said in a telephone interview.

Tambo, 73, ''still has plenty of family there ... it will be a big moment for them all, they last saw him just before he went abroad,'' said Mandela, himself originally from Transkei and born to be a chieftain of the roughly 3 million Xhosa people who live in the three- part territory on the east coast.

Mandela, 72, said he would join Tambo in Transkei Thursday and they would jointly address a rally in the capital of Umtata Sunday.

''We will talk about progress made by the ANC,'' Mandela said. Tambo returned from exile to attend the movement's first national conference in the country - held over three days to Dec. 16 - since the ANC was legalized after 30 years in February at the launch of President Frederik de Klerk's racial reforms.

But he is frail and partially paralyzed from a stroke suffered in August last year and ANC sources have said he has has been deferring on matters of policy to Mandela, who has run the ANC locally since being released from prison after more than 27 years on Feb. 11.

The ANC has said the dismantling of the four nominally independent tribal areas, home to more than 10 million of South Africa's 25 million blacks, should be part of de Klerk's plan to end the white minority rule imposed in 1948.

Transkei was in 1976 the first of the four territories to gain ''independence'' from Pretoria, but their status was designed as part of an apartheid strategy to segregate tribes as well as races and is not recognized outside South Africa.

(DEC. 26) UPI - The bitter cold that gripped the nation through Christmas began to ease in some regions Wednesday as clear skies gave way to clouds in the South and Northwest, while residents of the Midwest and Plains still felt the chill.

Rain fell on Washington and Oregon as Portland went above the freezing mark for the first time in a week, but snow fell on the Cascade and Olympic mountains in Washington and another cold blast was on the way for the region.

Residents of the northern Plains and Midwest woke up to another bitterly cold day, with record lows in Minnesota and North Dakota, snow reported in Michigan and wind chills as low as 30 below zero across the region.

It took just 15 minutes Wednesday for International Falls, Minn., to tie a record of minus 29 degrees, while in Duluth, a minus 22 degree reading broke a record and the minus 31 degree reading in Williston, N. D., broke a 54-year-old record by 1 degree.

Wind moving at 10 to 15 mph pushed wind chills to minus 30 degrees in Michigan where up to 4 inches of blowing snow fell across the state.

Authorities in Chicago and New York City responded to the cold weather by searching for homeless people spending the night on the street and bringing them inside to city shelters.

Ironically, Kodiak Island, off the southern coast of Alaska, recorded the warmest Christmas on record when temperatures soared to 47 degrees.

Along the East coast, cold weather continued while strong southwesterly winds brought clouds to the South as temperatures rose into the 40s.

Clear, cold weather stretched from the Middle Atlantic states into New England with temperatures in the 30s along the coast and in the teens inland, where snow flurries were reported.

Florida, stung by a severe Christmas freeze last year, boasted the balmiest temperatures Tuesday - 83 degrees in Naples and 75 degrees in Miami.

''We're nowhere close to record temperatures, but this is the only place in the continental United States where it's this warm,'' said forecaster Noel Risnychok of the National Weather Service.

The freeze danger was over in Southern California but temperatures remained cool, with lows in Los Angeles in the upper 30s under mostly clear skies and light winds.

The state was recovering from a freeze that may have damaged up to 50 percent of the state's citrus crop, according to preliminarly estimates by Sunkist Growers, Inc.

In northern California's Tulare County, where the bulk of the state's navel oranges are grown, officials estimated a $200 million loss.

About 20 percent of California's avocado crop also was lost, along with frost damage to artichokes, cauliflower, lettus, broccoli and collard greens.

The cold burst water pipes in numerous homes and businesses in California, including a Pacific Bell computer switching system in Point Reyes that left 1,500 customers without service.

Widespread fog along with light rain stretched along the Texas coast and visibility in Beeville was down to half a mile, while to the west, San Angelo, Texas had lows in the upper 20s and light winds.

VATICAN CITY (DEC. 26) UPI - Pope John Paul II greeted holiday pilgrims Wednesday from his Vatican balcony as Christmas celebrations continued on the feast day of St. Stephen, the church's first martyr.

''Brothers and sisters, while the spiritual echoes of the extraordinary event which we celebrated yesterday are still alive in all of us, I give an affectionate salute to everyone,'' the Polish-born pope told a crowd of several thousand gathered under partly cloudy skies in St. Peter's Square.

A day after addressing the world in his traditional ''Urbi et Orbi'' message (''To the City and the World''), John Paul delivered words of good cheer to visitors who have come from around the globe to celebrate the holiday in the Eternal City.

''I wish you all - Romans and pilgrims - a peaceful holiday and I hope that you can spend these days of rest in serenity with your families,'' the pope said.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... the latest news from U-P-I.

The hundreds of thousands of troops deployed in the Persian Gulf are back on routine duty after half-secret Christmas celebrations in the Moslem region. Christmas in both the gulf and elsehwere was overshadowed by increasing indications that a military confrontation will occur if Iraq does NOT withdraw its troops from Kuwait by the January 15th deadline.

It's another bitterly cold night for most of the nation. Cold arctic air hovers from the Rocky Mountains to the East Coast. The temperature was below zero all day yesterday from eastern Montana to Minnesota. Records were set from coast to coast. Most northern states have ground- covering snow, and the upper Great Lakes region is getting more snow during the night.

Construction of a garbage incinerator in Passaic, New Jersey, has a go-ahead. MANILA, PHILIPPINES (DEC. 26) UPI - Flames ignited by a firecracker explosion ripped through a public market in the northern Philippines on Christmas Day, killing seven people including three nuns, police said Wednesday.

The two-hour fire gutted a row of stores selling pyrotechnics for New Year's Eve in Binalonan, Pangasinan, 100 miles north of Manila, police said.

Seven people, including three Catholic nuns who had just finished shopping, were killed in the fire.

PEMBROKE, NH (DEC. 26) UPI - Pembroke's police chief is defending the arrest and handcuffing of Santa Claus on a traffic violation as he was on his way to deliver Christmas trees to the needy, a published report said Wednesday.

Santa Claus, who is known without his red suit and white beard as Paul Dubois of Manchester, was arrested on Dec. 20 because Pembroke police believed the 1,610 lights that decorated his truck constituted a traffic hazard.

''He did a good job on the truck; that truck looked beautiful,'' Chief Lucien Bouffard told the Union Leader of Manchester newspaper. ''But he's not coming down Route 3 at 35-40 miles an hour with a ball of lights - this guy could cause an accident.''

Dubois was arrested for improper lighting and operating after suspension. He was released on $300 personal recognizance pending a court hearing on Jan. 21.

When the story appeared in area newspapers, Bouffard said ''his phone began ringing off the hook'' with people complaining about the arrest of Santa Claus.

He said Dubois was arrested and handcuffed after an officer ran a motor vehicle check and determined that his license had been suspended for an outstanding $25 traffic fine.

Bouffard said handcuffing prisoners is standard procedure.

''When we transport in our vehicle, we have to cuff regardless of who it is. That's policy,'' Bouffard said.

Dubois and one of his elves, Skip Sullivan of Hooksett, were in custody for nearly two hours.

Bouffard said police will press that charge of driving under revocation, but ''we'll have to see what we'll do'' about the improper lighting charge.

The well-lighted truck was welcomed in Manchester, Hooksett and Milford before being stopped in Pembroke.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov suffered a heart attack last night. President Mikhail Gorbachev announced the news to the Congress of People's Deputies this morning. Ryzhkov was stricken shortly after the Congress of People's Deputies voted to make his job practically obsolete.

Gorbachev said that there is NO danger to Ryzhkov's life, adding ''We wish him a speedy recovery, we hope he gets well.'' Ryzhkov was appointed chairman of the Council of Ministers as part of Gorbachev's original perestroika team in 1985.

TOKYO (DEC. 26) UPI - Japan's top telecommunications companies said Wednesday they will speed up plans to modernize and expand their computerized digital networks and enhance service quality in a move designed to meet the growing and diversifying needs of customers at home and abroad.

KDD (Overseas Communications Japan), leader of Japan's international telecommunications service, said it will expand its store and forward facsimile service, known as ''the F-Port,'' to cover regions of Europe and the Pacific Rim starting Jan. 1.

The new areas to be covered will be South Korea, China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Malaysia, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Germany, Britain, Belgium, Italy, the Netherlands, Spain and Switzerland.

The service currently is available to the U.S. mainland, excluding Alaska andHawaii, and to the Philippines, France, Singapore, Thailand and Taiwan.

The F-Port service offers such features as automatic fax retransmission, multi-address transmission, non-delivery notice and time designation.

Communications charges are calculated by the number of sheets transmitted, and special discount rates are available for late night and early morning calls and for weekend and holiday calls, the company said.

The service will soon be available to the 21 countries and to ships in the Pacific and Indian oceans via telecommunications satellite, the company said.

The company recently launched a data-transmission service in the Pacific region via satellite, linking airliners flying over the Pacific region and the ground.

The service will be expanded to include telephone calls between aircraft flying over the Pacific region and the ground, starting next spring.

In addition, Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. said it will speed up digitalization of Japan's domestic telephone network in line with the company's medium- and long-term business consolidation program.

Among other things, NTT said the program also is aimed at constructing a reliable and stable telecommunications network.

According to the buildup plan, the giant domestic telecommunications company will complete construction of Japan's nationwide network using digital and electronic stored program control system technology by the end of fiscal 1994, a year ahead of schedule, the company said.

The company said all subscriber telephones will also be digitalized by fiscal 1997, two years earlier than scheduled.

NTT said it will expand its integrated services digital network service as well.

Masashi Kojima, president of the company, said NTT is taking these ambitious steps to boost the company's competitiveness on the domestic market against growing competition from its rivals.

Kojima said he will try to keep the company's annual profits above $3.1 billion through improving its services and rebalancing local and long-distance telephone rates.

On another front, Japan's finance ministry, which owns a majority stake in the company, will soon revise the governing law to allow foreign investors to acquire NTT shares on the market, he said.

Separately, Moody's Investors Service, a major U.S. credit-rating agency, said it has assigned an Aaa rating to NTT's $385 million bond offering due 2001.

The company said the rating is based on NTT's dominant market position and solid financial profile, noting the company has acted to become increasingly competitive through rate reductions, network modernization and cost control.

''During the intermediate term, NTT will maintain a strong balance sheet, generate improved earnings and increase its coverage of fixed charges,'' although profitability is expected to decline because of competition, Moody'ssaid.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Recent pressure to resign and the loss of most of his duties apparently have taken a heavy toll on Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov . The Soviet official suffered a heart attack and was hospitalized last night shortly after the Congress of People's Deputies approved a plan that strips him of his job. Soviet President Gorbachev said that Ryzhkov is NOT in danger of dying.

The Soviet Congress of People's Deputies today gave final approval to a complete package of significant new presidential powers requested by Mikhail Gorbachev. The government re-organization places a Cabinet and all government ministries under the president's direct control and establishes a new post of vice president. Gorbachev overcame opposition from liberal deputies and from Russian Federation leader Boris Yeltsin to win the broadened powers.

A teen was shot in the eye and another was seriously wounded in a Christmas night shooting in Valley Stream, New York. Police say the shootings occurred when two groups clashed over noise at a packed Long Island movie theater where ''Godfather III'' was showing. A shouting match interrupted the film's showing about 20 minutes after it began and sent a packed theater holding about 700 moviegoers scampering for safety in the cold outdoors.

A published report today says officials in New York City consistently award the most expensive school bus contracts in the nation without competitive bidding. The report said many of the contracts have been given to companies with alleged mob ties. OSAKA, JAPAN (DEC. 26) UPI - Hitachi Zosen Corp., a major Japanese shipbuilding company, has announced a restructuring program, including diversification and a gradual downscaling of shipbuilding operations.

The company, which faces financial difficulties, is being aided in the restructuring by major investors Sanwa Bank and Hitachi Ltd., a leading electronics firm.

The moves are designed to position Hitachi Zosen to better do business in the next century, the company said.

Specifically, the company said, the program is aimed at developing Hitachi Zosen into a company with annual sales of $6.15 billion by the year 2001.

Under the program, Hitachi Zosen will gradually reduce shipbuilding's share of its total sales from 30 percent in the 1993 business year to 25 percent in 1995 and to 20 percent in 2001, the company said.

TOKYO (DEC. 26) UPI - Japan's crude steel output in the first quarter of 1991 is expected to rise 2.6 percent over a year ago to 27.3 million tons, a record for the three-month period, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said Wednesday.

The ministry said total production for fiscal 1990 ending March 31, is projected at 110.99 million tons. This would be 2.6 percent higher than a year ago and the fourth-largest annual output on record.

Production for the 1990 calendar year is estimated at 110.31 million tons, up

2.2 percent over the preceding year, the ministry said.

Domestic steel consumption in fiscal 1990 was estimated at a record 80.34 million tons, buoyed by strong demand from the shipbuilding and industrial machinery markets. The previous record of 75.1 million tons was set in 1989, the ministry said.

The ministry said exports during the January-March period are estimated at 3.23 million tons, up 11.8 percent over a year ago.

CHICAGO (DEC. 26) UPI - A body exhumed from a pauper's grave earlier this month is not that of missing candy heiress Helen Vorhees Brach, Cook County Medical Examiner Robert Stein said Wednesday.

Federal officials who ordered the exhumation, however, said they still are awaiting results of tests before they make up their minds about the case.

Brach disappeared in February 1977 after a visit to Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. No trace of the wealthy Brach has been found and her estate was settled several years ago after she was declared legally dead.

The body exhumed Dec. 11 from the Mount Glenwood Cemetery was found in a forest preserve in early 1978. Stein said at the time the body was discovered that it was not Brach's remains, although it was mutilated, decomposed and never positively identified.

The Southtown Economist newspaper reported in its Wednesday editions Stein said his examinations and those of other experts, including another medical examiner and an anthropologist, support his original conclusions.

Family members earlier said the body appeared to be too short to have been Brach's.

''It's silly,'' Stein said. ''It's definitely not Helen Brach. As far as we're concerned, the case is closed.''

He did not elaborate on how the determination was made.

Federal officials said they do not yet accept Stein's findings and are waiting for the results of DNA tests comparing the exhumed body with samples of genetic material recovered from Brach's home after her death.

''It's still an open investigation,'' Jerry Singer, spokesman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, told the Economist. ''We have to refrain from commenting because all the tests have not been finished and there's no timetable as to when the examinations will be completed.''

ATF and state police investigators, pursuing leads indicating Brach may have been killed because she was about to expose a horse race swindle, developed information leading to the exhumation.

Brach was 65 when she disappeared.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (DEC. 26) UPI - An official of the Palestine Liberation Organization threatened Wednesday to stage suicide terrorist attacks against U.S. targets worldwide in the event of war against Iraq.

''American interests in the world will be targetted and suicidal attacks will be launched in and outside the gulf and Palestine,'' said Zeid Wehbeh, PLO representative in Lebanon.

Wehbeh made the threat in an interview with the Lebanese communist- run Voice of the People radio station at the Ein El Helweh refugee camp on the outskirts of the southern port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

The PLO official also called on Arabs to ''mobilize their forces to confront an American-Israeli agression (against Iraq) that will take place in the beginning of next year.''

PLO chief Yasser Arafat has advocated a pro-Iraqi stand since Baghdad invaded the neighboring oil-rich emirate of Kuwait Aug. 2, prompting the West and some Arab nations to deploy a large military force in Saudi Arabia.

NORFOLK, Va. (DEC. 26) UPI - The aircraft carriers USS America and USS Theodore Roosevelt and close to 16,000 Atlantic Fleet personnel will leave Friday for the Persian Gulf region as part of Operation Desert Shield, the Navy said.

The crewmen deployed with the second wave of the U.S. military buildup will come from ports all along the East Coast. About 10,500 of the sailors scheduled to leave are stationed in Norfolk.

The Navy has been in what is known as its pre-overseas movement period during the past month, working to give sailors military leave before they deploy, said Lt. Gordon Hume, a spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet in Norfolk.

''With Christmas they were trying to get as many people as they could (on leave) and at the same time keep enough people on board to keep the supplies coming on,'' Hume said.

The carrier battle groups are tentatively scheduled to leave after noon Friday he said.

The deployment will leave the piers at Norfolk Naval Station, the nation's largest naval installation, virtually empty. Shortly after Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2, a steady stream of ships began leaving for the Middle East, as the United States sought to bolster its Navy presence in the troubled region.

More than 35,000 military personnel from southeastern Virginia have been deployed with Operation Desert Shield. Their departure has hurt the region's economy, taking away a large segment of customers from area businesses.

Virginia's military installations and their personnel have played a major role in the U.S. military buildup. In addition to Navy ships, a large number of supply vessels have left the port of Hampton Roads, packed with logistical supplies.

Not since Vietnam has Norfolk Naval Station experienced such a mobilization, according to military officials.

''It's been busy,'' Hume said. ''A lot of loading, getting supplies ready. At the same time, trying to give the sailors time to spend with their families.''

Military personnel assigned to the carriers and their support ships will also be leaving from Jacksonville and Mayport, Fla., Charleston, S. C., Earle, N.J. the New York City area, and Whidbey Island, Wash.

(DEC. 26) UPI - U.S. and Australian naval forces raided an Iraqi cargo ship carrying a group of women on a self-declared relief mission Wednesday, and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein insisted he is willing to ''discuss all issues'' once the Palestinian question is settled.

An Israeli newspaper reported Wednesday Saddam would meet with Secretary of State James Baker on Jan. 9 for high-level talks that have been delayed while the two countries bicker over appropriate dates, but the State Department denied the report.

Although there has been ''almost daily contact with the Iraqi Foreign Ministry ... there has been no movement'' on the selection of a date for a meeting between Baker and Saddam, a State Department spokeswoman said in Washington.

Also Wednesday, an official of the Palestine Liberation Organization threatened to stage terrorist attacks against U.S. targets worldwide in the event of war against Iraq.

''American interests in the world will be targetted and suicidal attacks will be launched in and outside the gulf and Palestine,'' said Zeid Wehbeh, PLO representative in Lebanon.

Wehbeh made the threat in an interview with the Lebanese communist- run Voice of the People radio station at the Ein El Helweh refugee camp on the outskirts of the southern port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

In the Persian Gulf off the coast of Oman, a boarding party from American and Australian warships forcibly stopped and boarded an Iraqi cargo ship Wednesday according to a U.S. Navy spokesman in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

The vessel was intercepted after its captain had refused repeated orders to halt for an inspection, said the Navy spokesman, Lt. Cmdr. John Tull.

The ship, the Ibn Khaldoun, was carrying 153 Western and Arab women and children, who told reporters earlier they were carrying medicine to the children of Iraq suffering from a U.N.-imposed economic embargo.

The embargo, ordered by the United Nations in an attempt to pressure Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, allows the shipment of medicine but prohibits food except in emergencies.

Tull said the boarding party discovered the ship was carrying tons of sugar in violation of the embargo and it was diverted from its intended port of Basra, Iraq.

Saddam, facing a U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline to withdraw from Kuwait or be forced out by U.S.-led multinational troops in the region, was quoted Wednesday by the official Iraqi news agency INA as saying the Palestinian question would have to be on the agenda of any meeting he held on the gulf crisis.

''The Palestinian issue is our first priority,'' he said. ''We will liberate Palestine, after that we will be ready to discuss all issues. This is our policy and we will not retract it.''

The United States and Iraq had agreed to hold high-level talks before Jan. 15, but with the clock ticking toward the crucial date, the two countries have failed to agree when the meetings will take place.

The Israeli newspaper Maariv, in a report based on sources in Washington, said Baker was planning to go to Baghdad Jan. 9, about midway between the Jan. 3 date Washington had proposed and the Jan. 12 date Baghdad had favored.

Saddam, in a speech reported by INA Tuesday, blamed the gulf crisis on American aggression and called for negotiations, but ignored demands he withdraw from Kuwait.

The Iraqi president has said in television interviews that he will not withdraw his troops from Kuwait by Jan. 15, only 20 days away. He invaded the oil-rich emirate on Aug. 2 and declared it as an historic part of Iraq.

Saddam has repeatedly tried to link his occupation of Kuwait with the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and the Gaza strip, but the United States and other nations allied against him have rejected such a connection.

However, the conservative pro-Western Gulf Cooperation Council, which includes Saudi Arabia, Oman, Qatar, Bahrain, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, issued a joint call Tuesday for the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait and a solution to the Palestinian problem.

The leaders of the countries said in the joint communique issued at the end of a summit in Qatar that the Palestinian problem remained the number one issue in the Arab world, despite the Gulf crisis.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (DEC. 26) UPI - The former king of Romania returned to his homeland for the first time since he fled in 1945 but government officials forced him to leave after less than 12 hours.

The Romanian Ministry of Interior said King Michael, 69, his queen, and daughter Princess Sophie did not have the proper papers to visit and never should have been allowed across the border.

The king and his entourage were ordered to board a military plane back to Switzerland after being stopped by police on the road to their ancestral home.

The former monarch's surprise 24-hour private visit on Christmas Day was cut short because the Romanian Ministry of Interior said his entry was illegal. Michael's visit coincided with the first anniversary of the overthrow and execution of communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu on Christmas Day 1989.

Col. Vasile Tolontan, chief of Otopeni International Airport border police, said the king needed to obtain a visa at the Romanian Embassy in Geneva, and that border guards erred by allowing the royal entourage into the country.

The king had smiled and waved his passport with a visa stamp at reporters Tuesday night, apparently believing his entry papers were valid. But shortly afterward, state television broadcast an Interior Ministry statement saying Michael had entered the country illegally and could face criminal charges.

The royal party of six left Bucharest Wednesday, leaving their baggage behind. A seventh member of the entourage remained to accompany the baggage back in the private jet in which the former leader arrived.

Michael arrived in Bucharest about 6 a.m. on Christmas Day but was forced out before daylight. It was Michael's first visit to his native land since he fled in 1947 as communist forces seized the country.

The royal party, which was traveling in a Romanian jeep, was stopped on the road to the ancestral home and burial grounds at Curtea de Arges, more than 90 miles north of Bucharest. It was not clear how their vehicle was stopped, but there were signs the royal party may have been forcibly halted.

Michael also had tried to visit Romania in April but the government refused him permission, claiming his visa was not valid. Michael was turned away from the airport and Romanian authorities said his visit was untimely because of the impending elections in May.

Crowned at age 5, Michael was forced from the throne as a teenager and fled the country after the communist takeover in 1945.

Some Romanians believe the king never properly abdicated. There is widespread support for a return to a monarchy but the post-revolutionary government has so far refused to hold a referendum on the matter, called for by the six main opposition parties and student unions.

Defense Minister Gen. Victor Stanculescu reportedly visited the king in Geneva recently amid rumors the army could stage a coup to install Michael as head of state. Stanculescu has denied he met with the king, who said the talks were strictly about the Romanian army.

Most Romanians know little about the former monarchy, which fills only a few paragraphs in school textbooks. It is not commonly known, for example, that the monarchy was instrumental in uniting Transylvania with Romania in 1918. During recent celebrations of that day this year, no mention was made of the part played by Queen Marie in the negotiations between the two states.

The ruling party newspaper recently published an article titled, ''The Truth about the King,'' attacking the royal family as foreigners who cannot speak Romanian and who were never elected or wanted by the Romanian people.

BEIJING (DEC. 26) UPI - Senior leader Deng Xiaoping ended a five-month public absence Wednesday with an appearance to cast his ballot in local elections, quelling reports he had not recovered from a serious illness last fall.

The 86-year-old patriarch's televised appearance also came at a crucial moment in China, coinciding with a meeting of the ruling Communist Party central committee that is expected to extend Deng's economic reform polices through the end of the century.

Deng appeared at his local polling place inside the walled Zhongnanhai leadership compound in Beijing, according to the official Xinhua news agency and state-run Chinese Central Television, which broadcast videotape of the rare event.

Deng's eyes appeared sunken and red and his right hand trembled visibly as he marked his ballot, but he smiled confidently and shuffled unassisted to the ballot box to cast his vote.

Dozens of aides doted on the elderly leader as he paused to smile for Chinese television cameras and photographers, sporting a well-tailored blue tunic of the style favored by the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The ostensibly retired leader's appearance was the lead item on the CCTV national newscast. Western reporters were not invited to the highly restricted and unannounced event.

Until Wednesday, the architect of China's decade-old economic and political reforms had not appeared in public since mid-July.

Deng, who gave up his last official post early this year, has repeatedly expressed his wish to step back and let younger leaders take center stage, saying he would meet only with ''old friends.''

He appeared fit in mid-1989 after ordering the Beijing massacre that crushed China's massive pro-democracy movement, but his sight appeared to decline after that until he dropped from sight altogether.

Questions about Deng's health arose last fall when Deng failed to meet several visiting leaders from Singapore, Indonesia and Britain.

The true state of Deng's health is one of China's most closely guarded secrets.

Chinese sources in Beijing and Hong Kong said Deng suffered a major health setback in September, most likely a stroke, but has largely recovered since then. Wednesday's broadcast of a relatively vigorous Deng appeared to corroborate reports of a health comeback.

The Chinese press has sought in recent weeks to demonstrate Deng's vitality with reports that he had written two calligraphic inscriptions. There was no way to verify his penmanship.

Deng's symbolic re-emergence bolsters reports that the communist leadership this week will sanction a 10-year extension of his economic liberalization program.

Deng is believed to have prevailed in a top-level party struggle with more orthodox Marxists who had sought to roll back some of his highly successful reforms, which brought a decade of prosperity to China but which depart sharply from communist doctrine.

The central committee's unpublicized plenary session was expected to continue through Thursday, with its results published soon thereafter.

Deng is known to be hard of hearing and suffers from ailments associated with advanced age, and there have been persistent, unconfirmed reports he has been diagnosed as suffering from a form of cancer.

Four of Deng's five children, daughters Deng Lin and Deng Rong and sons Deng Pufang and Deng Zhifang, have traveled abroad in recent months, lending credence to reports their father was recovering and out of danger.

MOSCOW (DEC. 26) UPI - All Soviet citizens will be evacuated from Iraq by Jan. 10 if they want to leave, Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said Wednesday.

Churkin also said that two high-level Soviet officials have left for Baghdad to discuss the evacuation and ''a variety of meetings'' in the Iraqi capital.

Churkin said 1,700 Soviets remain in Iraq and that the necessary aircraft will be available to have them all out by Jan. 10, or five days before the U.N. deadline for Iraq to withdraw its forces from Kuwait without war.

''All Soviet citizens will have an opportunity to leave and will be able to return to the Soviet Union,'' Churkin said. He repeated his earlier explanations that ''we cannot force them to leave.''

Recent television shows have aired interviews with the Soviet contractors in which they expressed an unwillingness to depart, saying the Iraqis treat them well.

Churkin said Igor Belousov, deputy chairman of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers before Wednesday's government reorganization, and Vasily Kolotusha, head of the Middle East and North African division of the Foreign Ministry, had left for Baghdad.

''They will have a variety of meetings,'' Churkin said.

Churkin did not say whether they would be meeting with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, or what the two officials would talk about besides the evacuation of the Soviet workers.

''They will discuss a variety of other things,'' he said.

In October, Yevgeny Primakov, a close adviser to Gorbachev, met Hussein twice in an attempt to negotiate a way out of the crisis.

The presence of the Soviet workers in Iraq stems from the long friendship betwen the two countries in which Moscow was Iraq's main weapons supplier.

The Soviet Union has supported the United States at the United Nations in demanding that Iraq pull its forces out of Kuwait.

Moscow has supported all Security Council resolutions including economic sanctions against Baghdad and imposing the Jan. 15 deadline to pull out.

In his resignation speech as foreign minister, Eduard Shevardnadze lashed out at critics who said the minister was planning to send Soviet forces to the Persian Gulf.

Shevardnadze said that no plans had been made anywhere that he knew of to send even one Soviet soldier to the area in event of war.

But he also said a nation should never reconcile to a small state, like Kuwait being swallowed by a larger neighbor, Iraq.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 26) UPI - Sales of previously owned homes gained momentum during November as a steady decline in mortgage rates brought prospective buyers back to the market, the National Association of Realtors said Wednesday.

The association reported a seasonally adjusted annual sales rate of 3.14 million existing single-family homes last month, 3 percent above the October rate of 3.05 million units.

November's favorable rates had a stabilizing effect on most markets, the association said.

Many buyers ''scared off'' by disruptions caused in the financial markets in August and September by the Mideast crisis resumed their home search later in the fall as a pattern of declining mortgage rates became evident, said Harley E. Rouda, president of the trade group.

''Once mortgage rates settled down, consumers felt more at ease about buying a home,'' said Rouda.

Mortgage interest rates have continued to drift downward, following an initial hike that occurred immediately after Iraq invaded Kuwait.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported the national average commitment rate for conventional, fixed-rate mortgages running 30 years dropped from Ocotber's 10.13 percent to 9.90 percent during November.

The national median existing single-family home price was $91,300 in November, down by 1.9 percent from a year earlier and by 1.7 percent from October, the association said. Half the homes sell for more than the median price and half sell for less.

The decline in November's median price indicates that a greater number of homes are selling in a lower price range.

The year-to-year and month-to-month declines in the national price reflect lower prices and ''buyer's market'' conditions in many areas, particularly in the Northeast and on the West Coast, Rouda noted.

''Home buying conditions are the best we've seen in more than a decade. The savvy will make their move now. The doom-and-gloomers will miss out,'' he said.

Significantly, the decline in prices has opened homeownership to modest-income first-time buyers who previously were shut out by steep price increases, Rouda said.

''Greater access for entry-level buyers spurs sales in the trade-up markets as well. Periods of soaring prices are not conducive to a healthy housing market '' he said.

While prices in some markets, notably high-cost areas, have fallen in recent months, John Tuccillo, the association's chief economist, said he expected this movement to be temporary.

''Rates and prices generally don't move in the same direction for long,'' Tuccillo said, predicting that increased demand resulting from falling mortgage rates will boost prices in the months ahead.

Overall, home prices have risen significantly over the past few years. The national median price in November was 21.9 percent higher than that for the same month in 1985, the realtors said.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Hospital officials in Mount Vernon, Missouri, report the death of Nancy Cruzan, whose feeding tube was removed December 14th. The parents of the 33-year-old comatose woman were granted a court order to let her die. Cruzan has been in a persistant vegetative state since a car accident in 1983. She had been steadily deteriorating since she was removed from the tube that was bringing her food and water.

Mikhail Gorbachev is a more powerful man at home today. The Congress of People's Deputies gave final approval to a complete package of significant new presidential powers requested by Gorbachev. As the Congress opened today, Gorbachev announced that Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov suffered a heart attack last night and was hospitalized, but apparently is out of danger. His position was stripped of much of its power under the plan adopted by the Congress.

Georges Marchais, the French Communist Party Secretary General who was re-elected to his post just last week, suffered an apparent heart attack today. Sources say the 70-year-old Marchais was resting at his country home in southern France when he suffered the heart attack. He is being treated at a hospital in Avignon.

Senior Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping made a rare venture into public today to vote in local elections. Deng had NOT been seen in public for five-months, and there were reports that he had not recovered from serious illness last fall. The 86-year-old former leader's televised appearance also came at a crucial moment in China, coinciding with a meeting of the ruling Communist Party central committee. Deng's economic reform polices are expected to be extended through the century.

Members of the Texas Army National Guard's 217th Evacuation Hospital will report for active duty today in San Antonio. The 300 men and women were notified on Christmas Eve they were being called up because of the Persian Gulf crisis. Captain Henry Hamner said the troops were prepared and it was no surprise with the continuing activation of guard and reserve units around the country. As he says, ''Whether it's Christmas Eve or the middle of May, we have to deal with it.''

It's bitter cold in much of the nation today. There were record lows in Minnesota and North Dakota, snow reported in Michigan, and wind chills as low as 30 below zero across the region. In Duluth a minus 22 degree reading broke a record and the minus 31 degree reading in Williston, North Dakota, broke a 54- year-old record by one degree.

NEW YORK (DEC. 26) UPI - Trans World Airlines owner Carl Icahn says he is ''troubled and confused'' by the attitude of Pan Am Corp.'s management, raising doubts about the likelihood of a merger between the two carriers.

In a letter to Pan Am Chairman Thomas Plaskett released Tuesday, Icahn questioned whether Pan Am is serious about a possible merger.

''The conflicting attitudes and signals that we have received from you and other representatives cause us to wonder whether you are serious,'' Icahn said adding he was ''troubled and confused by the attitude'' of Pan Am.

Pan Am officials reportedly called off a meeting Monday with their counterparts at TWA. Icahn also expressed concern about reports that Pan Am may be poised to sell its lucrative Northeast shuttle operation.

Cash-strapped Pan Am has shed some assets in recent years to cover mounting losses.

''If you genuinely believe that a sale of the shuttle is the right answer for Pan Am, then why wouldn't you offer to TWA, as part of a merger, the right to compete for the shuttle on the same terms as another buyer?'' Icahn asked.

''At this stage in our discussions, for Pan Am to sell assets to third parties without discussing the same with TWA demonstrates your lack of a good-faith interest in negotiating the merger of our airlines.

''I urge you and your board to carefully consider your next step before you destroy the possibility of a Pan Am-TWA combination which might well be your airline's only hope of survival,'' Icahn wrote.

Pan Am did not immediately respond to the letter.

Icahn offered last week to acquire Pan Am for $1.50 a share cash and $1 in preferred stock or promissory notes, a deal that would be worth $375 million at the most.

Although airlines analysts at first expressed skepticism about the likelihood of such a deal, Pan Am's Plaskett opened the way for a merger Friday in a letter to Icahn saying ''the time is right'' to explore the possibility.

But Plaskett said Pan Am would need a bridge loan from TWA to meet its financial needs while seeking approval for any merger agreement.

Icahn said he would be willing to loan Pan Am money, but only as part of bankruptcy proceedings that would give TWA a priority lien on unsecured Pan Am assets. Plaskett is said to oppose that condition.

The Wall Street Journal reported Monday that Northwest Airlines had arranged financing with PacifiCorp of Portland, Ore., to buy the Pan Am Shuttle linking New York, Boston and Washington for $150 million.

Spokesmen for Northwest and Pan Am declined to comment on the report.

Such a sale would further ease the cash shortage at Pan Am. On Monday, Pan Am received $20 million from United Airlines for its San Francisco facilities, sold as part of a larger $400 million deal including Pan Am's five U.S.-London routes.

Pan Am needs cash to survive the slow winter travel season while awaitinggovernmental approval of the London route transfer.

BY MARK HUBAND - UPI

ABIDJAN, IVORY COAST (DEC. 26) UPI - Following a year of unrest and calls for political change, West Africa remains almost as far as ever from democracy despite promises from old leaders and a few tentative steps toward reform.

Inspired by the revolutions in eastern Europe, millions of Africans began to look at their own countries and to demand fundamental reforms. At first their leaders said no - no change, no democracy, no elections.

But massive demonstrations and strikes in some countries, such as the Ivory Coast, and widespread riots in others, such as Gabon, combined with pressure from France, the former colonial ruler, forced the region's leaders to bend to the prevailing winds.

Yet a year later the old leaders are still in power, and there has been little genuine change. The main difference is that many of the rulers, having adeptly exploited the system to give themselves democratic mandates, can now claim a certain legitimacy they previously lacked.

In Gabon, the ruling Gabonese Democratic Party of President Omar Bongo won a majority of the seats in the country's first multiparty national assembly elections since independence from France in 1960.

In the Ivory Coast, President Felix Houphouet-Boigny threw himself into the political fray by standing as a presidential candidate and winning with more than 60 percent of the vote. Few believe the victory was achieved without ballot-rigging and electoral fraud on a grand scale.

Cameroon's move toward political change has been equally ambiguous. In late December the government approved legislation for multiparty politics, but reserved for itself the power to ban political parties if it decided they were threatening the stability of the state. In addition, registering the parties was made a complicated affair.

In Benin, President Mathieu Kerekou gave up his hard-line Marxist ideology and his executive powers in order to remain head of state, but he is now busily undermining the reforms by dragging-out his new function - that of signing legislation once it has been passed.

And in neighboring Togo, the government announced this month that political pluralism would have to wait until the new constitution had been adopted in 1992.

The French government, which uses military and economic aid to keep its former colonies in line, began to insist on fundamenatal reforms about a year ago.

At a meeting in France last spring, President Francois Mitterrand, addressing the African leaders seated beside him much as a school master might address his unruly pupils, made it clear that future French aid would depend on their willingness to create mulitparty political systems in their respective countries.

Human rights abuses and the lack of democracy suddenly became the central concerns of French politicians who deal with Africa. Unless progress was made in these areas, it would be "difficult" for France to support unreconstructed regimes, warned French Minister of Cooperation Jacques Pelletier.

While it is generally acknowledged that France wishes to reduce the cost of its presence in Africa, Paris considered that maintaining stability in the region was essential.

But that stability could only be assured if the old leaders reformed rather than resigned.

And in fact stability has been assured by the surprising adeptness of many of France's longtime friends and allies among the leaders of West Africa at sidestepping the real motives behind the calls for democratic change.

Most of the democratic movements that have sprung up in the last year have been the result of popular dislike of the incumbent leaders themselves. But showing finely tuned political skills, many of the presidents were able to cling to power by associating themselves with the very political changes they had initially rejected.

Except for Nigerian President Ibrahim Babangida, the West African heads of state have not shown themselves truly committed to democratic rule. All the others have had democracy forced upon them to varying degrees.

The lack of experience among opposition movements across West Africa has proved a major stumbling block for reformers seeking change in countries where all but those selected by the one-party rulers have been deprived of political and administrative experience.

As with Mobutu Sese Seko, the president of Zaire, Bongo has skirted around the democratic process and safe-guarded his own position by ''rising above'' party politics. He now acts as head of state without apparent political allegiances of his own, and Gabon now has a prime minister who can take the political heat off the president.

Cameroon's independent media, censorship of which is overt and can be seen when articles are blacked out on the printed pages of the newspapers, is also subject to close scrutiny as a result of new legislation.

While it was initially pressure from France that forced consideration of how to best turn West African dictatorships into budding democracies, many of the leaders have proved to be more concerned about satisfying the former but still powerful colonial ruler rather than really meeting the demands of their own people.

CINCINNATI (DEC. 26) UPI - Ozzie Newsome, a standout 13-year veteran tight end for the Cleveland Browns, said Wednesday he probably will retire Sunday, but may stay with the Browns in the front office or as an assistant coach.

Asked in a conference call with Cincinnati reporters if Sunday's season finale against the Cincinnati Bengals would be his last game, Newsome said, ''It looks that way. I haven't made a firm decision because I don't like to approach a game in a negative frame of mind. But, it looks that way.''

Newsome, 34, was on the verge of retiring a year ago, but decided to play this season because he thought he might have a chance to be on the first Browns' team to go to a Super Bowl.

However, the 3-12 Browns have been a huge disappointment this season and Newsome said that's one reason he's leaning toward calling it quits now.

''Last year I came back because I thought we were real close to the Super Bowl '' he said. ''But after this year, I think the team is going to rebuild or start over.''

Asked what he would do if he retires, Newsome said the Browns' front office or an assistant coaching job were possibilities.

''I might move up to the front office,'' he said. ''There are two or three opportunities there, but there's been no assignment yet.

''I haven't ruled out becoming an assistant coach,'' added Newsome. ''But that would only come about if I'm compatible with the new Browns' head coach.''

Cleveland is searching for a new head coach after Bud Carson departed at mid-season and after interim head coach Jim Shofner recently said he won't continue next season.

''For me, I don't see any difference in working in the front office or being an assistant coach,'' said Newsome. ''The main duty of each job is to bring a Super Bowl to this organization.''

Newsome, who will play in his 198th game Sunday, needs just 26 receiving yards to become the 15th player in NFL history to reach the 8, 000-yard mark. He hasn't fumbled in a decade, catching 550 straight passes without fumbling.

DENVER (DEC. 26) UPI - Total beef production and the average price of beef in 1991 is expected to be equal to or better than 1990, the National Cattlemen's Association said Wednesday.

''After declining for several years, consumer demand for beef appears to have stabilized or strengthened,'' said John Lacey, president of the trade group.

Lacey said the industry's brighter prospects reflected increased exports of beef - from less than half a percent of U.S. output in 1980 to 5 percent in 1990 - and promotion programs that have helped overcome what the cattlemen call misconceptions about beef.

''The net result of all of this has been improved profitability for most beef cattle producers. That profitability, in turn, is beginning to trigger an expansion in the size of the nation's cattle herd for the first time since 1982,'' Lacey said.

''In 1991, total beef production will likely be equal to or greater than 1990 production, and average per capita supplies for domestic consumption will be about the same as in 1990. Average prices of cattle and beef in 1991 should be similar to 1990 price levels,'' he continued.

Lacey attributed the improvement in beef prices to the reduction in supply, to the increase in exports and to product improvements, such as closer trimming of fat by retailers.

The average retail price of choice beef was an estimated $2.79 per pound in 1990, up from $2.60 in 1989, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

''The situation and outlook are generally positive,'' said Tommy Beall, director of research for Cattle-Fax, a market information service. ''Domestic demand improvement should continue. Exports are expected to decline a little in 1991, but they still will be substantial.''

Poultry and pork output will increase again in 1991, Beall said, and that will tend to keep pressure on beef prices. However, cattle and retail beef prices are likely to average slightly higher.

The improvement in beef demand has come mostly in rib and loin cuts, which supply the more desirable steaks and roasts, the association said.

Chuck and round cuts, which are generally less tender and less convenient to prepare, have not shown the same improvements.

MOSCOW (DEC. 26) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev named a career Communist official who climbed through the party apparatus to join the Politburo as his surprise choice for the new post of vice president Wednesday.

Gennady Yanayev, 53, an ethnic Russian who previously headed the Young Communist League and the official trade union, was criticized by some deputies as an old-style conservative who would slow reform.

But Gorbachev defended his candidate as ''an active defender of and participant in perestroika'' and Yanayev said he supports Gorbachev's reforms although he called for caution in the move toward a market economy.

No other names were placed in nomination. Voting for vice president was to be by secret ballot Wednesday night with results to be announced Thursday. More than half the voting deputies would have to cast ballots against Yanayev to force another nomination.

Several deputies objected to the fact that there were no alternative candidates, but others said Gorbachev should have the right to choose his own Cabinet and vice president.

The nomination came shortly after the Congress gave final approval to a government reorganization that created the vice presidency and places the Cabinet and all government ministries under the president's direct control.

Embattled Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov, whose position was stripped of much of its power under the plan, suffered a heart attack Tuesday night and was hospitalized but apparently out of danger.

Yanayev, a historian by profession, is a longtime Communist Party official who earlier this year was made a full member of the party's ruling Politburo. He was formerly head of the party's youth organization, the Komsomol, and briefly served as head of the official trade union organization.

''I imagine that the vice president will be involved with a large range of questions tied to the realization of domestic and foreign affairs,'' Gorbachev said in his nomination speech.

Yanayev came under heavy criticism from liberal deputies who saw the nomination as another sign Gorbachev was returning to the old style of rule by Communist Party functionaries.

''It is a bad time for the republics,'' said Algimantas Chekuolis, a Lithuanian deputy and newspaper editor who was observing but not participating in the Congress because of his republic's independence declaration and boycott of the central legislature.

''We got another Gorbachev, a complete apparachik a la Gorbachev,'' Chekuolis said.

Deputy Alexei Kazannik went even further, saying Yanayev was ''far to the right of Gorbachev,'' but Gorbachev adviser Alexander Yakovlev disputed the assessment and described Yanayev as a ''moderate.''

Gorbachev, in his nominating speech, called Yanayev ''an appropriate person'' for the post. ''He is a man with firm principles, an active defender of and participant in perestroika,'' Gorbachev said.

The nomination of a Russian as vice president was a surprise partly because of the widespread belief that Gorbachev would choose an official from one of the other 14 republics to offset charges the central government was unsympathetic to ethnic minorities.

''Comrade Yanayev is an appropriate person to recommend for the position of vice president,'' Gorbachev said in his nomination speech. ''He is a man with firm principles, an active defender of and participant in perestroika.''

Yanayev said in his acceptance speech he ''supports the ideas of perestroika '' but he cautioned against a quick move to a market economy.

''We have no right to pursue an unpredictable, convulsive policy in a country with 300 million people," he said. ''If we accept a version of 'shock therapy' we could have tens of millions of unemployed already in the first year.''

Gorbachev, who said last week he was ready to nominate popular Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze for vice president before Shevardnadze resigned, was asked by Deputy Alexander Minzhurenko why he could now propose someone with ''diametrically opposite politics.''

Gorbachev countered that Yanayev, a member of the Supreme Soviet foreign affairs committee, had cooperated closely with Shevardnadze and added, ''their positions are practically, if not the same, then very close on the main issues of foreign and domestic policy.''

On Tuesday the Congress approved 19 of 36 constitutional amendments proposed by Gorbachev in his sweeping overhaul of the Soviet government structure.

The remaining amendments were approved Wednesday and the entire package was adopted as a whole on a 1,551-110 vote, with 83 abstentions, overcoming opposition from liberal deputies and Gorbachev's arch rival, Russian Federation leader Boris Yeltsin.

The change from the Council of Ministers to the Cabinet of Ministers leaves much less power for the prime minister, who had run the government's everyday affairs. Ryzhkov has faced widespread criticism for his cautious approach to economic reforms.

Ryzhkov, 61, sat through the first week and a half of the Congress looking tired and pale and did not speak.

Gorbachev told the conclave Wednesday that Ryzhkov had suffered the heart attack Tuesday night. He gave few details but said the prime minister's life was not in danger and wished him a speedy recovery.

PARAMARIBO, SURINAME (DEC. 26) UPI - The military government that seized power this week in a bloodless coup announced Wednesday it would name an interim Cabinet within the week and hold elections in 100 days.

A spokesman for the new military government said on national television that coup-leader Gen. Ivan Graanoogst, acting commander of the armed forces, would name a Cabinet within seven days.

The spokesman said the country's National Assembly had not been dissolved and that Graanoogst has every intention of working within the established parliamentary structure.

He also said the military government planned to hold elections in 100 days in the former Dutch colony.

On Monday, military forces led by Graanoogst took over the presidential house and claimed control of Suriname. The government apparently offered no resistance to Graanoogst's action and there was no bloodshed.

The coup overthrew the civilian government of President Rameswak Shankar, of the Hindu-backed Progressive Reform Party, who was elected by the National Assembly Jan. 12, 1988.

Graanoogst's spokesman said Shankar was sent home after the coup and told to remain calm and not create panic. He added that Shankar and his Cabinet were not under house arrest.

Activity in the capital continued as normal, with people crowding stores to take advantage of after-Christmas sales. All communication with Suriname was open and no curfews or limits on movement were imposed.

The Christmas eve ouster came one week after the head of the armed forces and former military ruler of Suriname, Desi Bouterse, resigned his post in protest over his temporary detention in Amsterdam.

Although Bouterse has not headed the government in 18 months, he has continued to exert a strong influence over developments in the country as chief of the armed forces.

Graanoogst's position remained unclear, but observers said he appeared to be acting in the interests of Bouterse.

Shankar's administration had replaced the military government led by the Bouterse, a Netherlands-trained lieutenant colonel who seized power Feb. 25, 1980, deposing the civilian regime of Prime Minister Henck Arron.

Bouterse's party lost an election for the National Assembly to an opposition coalition led by Shankar in November 1987.

Ongoing friction between the two men came to a head last week when Dutch police temporarily detained Bouterse in Amsterdam during an airline stop en route to Ghana, and Shankar, who was on the same plane, refused to intervene.

Bouterse subsequently resigned as chief of the armed forces in protest.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 26) UPI - By the year 2001, women will earn more doctorate degrees than men for the first time, there will be more high school graduates than the 1977 peak and the ranks of classroom teachers will swell, the Education Department projected Wednesday.

In a separate report, the American Council on Education said higher education enrollment increased during the 1980s, with the most growth found at community colleges.

The trends for the next 10 years are included in the Education Department's publication, ''Projections of Education Statistics to 2001. ''

''This should be very helpful for local school districts and colleges and universities for their planning purposes,'' said Assistant Education Secretary Christopher Cross.

For the federal government, ''The information will help us try and determine where the growth is and where our investment should be, for scholarships, student loans, etc.,'' Cross said.

A precedent expected to be set by 2001 is that women will earn more doctorate degrees than men, the department said.

In 1976, women earned 7,800 doctor's degrees, while men earned 26, 300, the department said. Trends now indicate the ratio will flip. By 2001, women are expected to earn 18,900 doctor's degrees, while men will earn just 17,300.

''There's more opportunity for them (women),'' Cross explained. ''Professions are opening up for them in math and science and there's a lot of encouragement for them to enter these fields.''

David Merkowitz, spokesman for the American Council on Education, which represents colleges and universities, added, ''There is more of an impetus for women to go on and get graduate education because of the way the credential will open up an increasing number of job opportunities for them.''

However, the Education Department said men will continue to earn more professional degrees than women in such fields as medicine and law.

Higher education enrollment is expected to increase by about 1 million students by 2001 - from 13.4 million in 1989 to 14.4 million, mostly at public institutions, the department said.

The American Council on Education's survey also anticipated an increase, mostly at community colleges, based on 1980s data.

Increases in enrollment at community colleges between fall 1989 and fall 1990 ranged between 2 percent and 6 percent, compared with increases of 1 percent to 3 percent at four-year colleges and universities.

Community colleges are less expensive and offer occupational training courses that can lead to immediate employment, the council said.

Highlights of the Education Department's report for elementary and secondary grades:

-Total enrollment, now at 46.2 million, will continue to increase during the 1990s. By 1998, it is expected to reach 50.1 million but will decline after 1998 to 49.8 million in 2001.

-Enrollment will vary during the 1990s, with sizeable increases expected in New Mexico (39 percent), Arizona and New Hampshire (33 percent), Colorado and Florida (24 percent) and Georgia and New Jersey (22 percent). Decreases are expected in West Virginia (13 percent) and Washington, D.C. (10 percent).

-In the early 1990s, the number of high school graduates will decline, as it has almost steadily since the peak year of 1977, when nearly 3.2 million students graduated. But by 2001, the number is expected to be more than 3.2 million. Cross said this reflects the ''echo of the baby boom'' - children of baby boomers.

As for the teaching profession:

-There will be more public and private classroom teachers during the 1990s, from about 2.7 million in 1989 to 3.2 million in 2001. Cross attributed this to better teacher salaries and more people entering the field after cutbacks in the defense industry and other areas.

-By 2001, the average public school teacher will earn 16.8 percent more than in the 1990-91 school year. The national average currently is $33,300 annually.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says he's willing to talk about the Persian Gulf crisis as long as the Palestinian question is also included in the discussions. An Israeli newspaper reports Saddam would meet with U-S Secretary of State Baker on January 9th for high-level talks. The report could NOT be immediately confirmed. The talks, proposed by President Bush, have been delayed while Iraq and the United States argue over appropriate dates.

Two more U-S aircraft carriers head for the Persian Gulf this week as part of Operation Desert Shield. The Navy says the U-S-S America and the U-S-S Theodore Roosevelt and close to 16-thousand Atlantic Fleet personnel will leave Friday for the Gulf region. The crewmen deployed with the second wave of the U-S military buildup will come from ports all along the East Coast.

The settlers were sentenced in 1985 to life in prison for taking part in a three-year campaign of terror against Arabs in the occupied West bank. They were freed after serving only seven years. The three were convicted for the murders of three Arab students... the attempted assasination of two Arab mayors... and plans to blow up the Dome of the Rock in Jerusalem, the third holiest site in Islam.

Nominations are possible from the floor today in Moscow as the Congress of People's Deputies work over a short list of candidates for the new post of vice president. The changes give Gorbachev more control of the government, Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov is reported out of danger after suffering a heart attack. Government officials say the ''psychological pressure'' of critics was a contributing factor to Ryzhkov being hospitalized. It dismantles the Council of Ministers headed by the premier, replacing it with a smaller Cabinet of Ministers that reoports directly to President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Doctors in Mount Vernon, Missouri, have planned a news conference, after the death early this morning of Nancy Cruzan. The 33- year-old woman had been in a persistant vegetative state since a car accident in 1983. A three-year court battle ended earlier this month when a county probate judge agreed to the family request and allowed doctors to remove the tubes that had provided her with nourishment. Activist groups unsuccessfully tried to mount a last minute legal challenge to that order.

(DEC. 26) UPI - U.S. and Australian navy boarding parties clashed Wednesday with the crew of an Iraqi cargo ship carrying a group of women on a self-declared relief mission, and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein insisted he is willing to ''discuss all issues'' once the Palestinian question is settled.

An Israeli newspaper reported Wednesday that Secretary of State James Baker would meet with Saddam in Baghdad on Jan. 9 for high-level talks that have been delayed while the two countries bicker over appropriate dates, but the State Department denied the report.

''There have been daily contacts with the Iraqis, but there has been no movement on their part for the choice of dates'' for a meeting between Baker and Saddam, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

Saddam himself appeared to rule out the reported compromise, saying in an interview on Mexican television that no date but the one he proposed - Jan. 12 - would be acceptable. The United States has said it wants the meeting held on Jan. 3.

President Bush first proposed the talks last month, saying he wanted to ''go the extra mile'' to avoid the use of military force threatened by the United States and its allies to reverse Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Bush originally said the talks should be held by the Jan. 15 deadline set by the United Nations for an Iraqi withdrawal, but later insisted the Baghdad meeting take place in early January.

The State Department Wednesday ordered all non-essential U.S. personnel to leave Jordan and Sudan ''well before Jan. 15,'' citing ''unstable conditions'' and the growing threat to Americans in the Persian Gulf.

U.S. citizens were warned in previous travel advisories to leave Yemen, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and the eastern province of Saudi Arabia.

In other developments Wednesday, the Kremlin said all of the remaining 1,700 Soviet citizens in Iraq who wish to leave will be evacuated by Jan. 10, and a Palestine Liberation Organization official threatened terrorist attacks against U.S. targets worldwide in the event of war against Iraq.

''American interests in the world will be targetted and suicidal attacks will be launched in and outside the gulf and Palestine,'' said Zeid Wehbeh, PLO representative in Lebanon.

Wehbeh made the threat in an interview with the Lebanese communist- run Voice of the People radio station at the Ein El Helweh refugee camp on the outskirts of the southern port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

In the Persian Gulf off the coast of Oman, boarding parties from American and Australian warships forcibly stopped and boarded an Iraqi cargo ship Wednesday according to a U.S. military officials in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

Warning shots were fired after the ship's captain refused repeated orders to halt for an inspection, and the boarding parties used smoke grenades in a scuffle with crew members who tried to resist the inspection, Army Lt. Col. Greg Pepin said.

The ship, the Ibn Khaldoun, was carrying 153 Western and Arab women and children, who told reporters earlier they were brining medicine to the children of Iraq suffering under a U.N.-imposed economic embargo.

The embargo, ordered by the United Nations in an attempt to pressure Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, allows the shipment of medicine but prohibits food except in emergencies.

U.S. military officials said the boarding party discovered the ship was carrying tons of sugar in violation of the embargo and it was diverted from its intended port of Basra, Iraq.

Saddam, facing the Jan. 15 deadline to withdraw from Kuwait or be forced out by U.S.-led multinational troops in the region, was quoted Wednesday by the official Iraqi news agency INA as saying the Palestinian question would have to be on the agenda of any meeting he held on the gulf crisis.

''The Palestinian issue is our first priority,'' he said. ''We will liberate Palestine, after that we will be ready to discuss all issues. This is our policy and we will not retract it.''

The United States and Iraq had agreed to hold high-level talks before Jan. 15, but with the clock ticking toward the crucial date, the two countries have failed to agree when the meetings will take place.

The Israeli newspaper Maariv, in a report based on sources in Washington, said Baker was planning to go to Baghdad Jan. 9, about midway between the Jan. 3 date Washington had proposed and the Jan. 12 date Baghdad had favored.

Saddam, in a speech reported by INA Tuesday, blamed the gulf crisis on American aggression and called for negotiations, but ignored demands he withdraw from Kuwait.

The Iraqi president has said in television interviews that he will not withdraw his troops from Kuwait by Jan. 15, only 20 days away. He invaded the oil-rich emirate on Aug. 2 and declared it as an historic part of Iraq.

Saddam has repeatedly tried to link his occupation of Kuwait with the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and the Gaza strip, but the United States and other nations allied against him have rejected such a connection.

However, the conservative pro-Western Gulf Cooperation Council, which includes Saudi Arabia, Oman, Qatar, Bahrain, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, issued a joint call Tuesday for the withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait and a solution to the Palestinian problem.

The leaders of the countries said in the joint communique issued at the end of a summit in Qatar that the Palestinian problem remained the number one issue in the Arab world, despite the Gulf crisis.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 26) UPI - Iraq's fuel-air explosives, sometimes known as ''a poor man's nuclear weapons,'' are based partly on technology sold to Iraqi agents by Honeywell Inc., a major U.S. defense contractor, it was reported Wednesday.

The deadly explosives spread fuel - usually propane or ethylene oxide - through the air and then ignite the mixture in a blast that can cause 10 times the damage of conventional weapons.

The Los Angeles Times quoted Pentagon sources as saying they do not know if Baghdad has developed a dependable fuel-air warhead for missiles, which would be a major threat because superior American air power is expected to keep most Iraqi aircraft on the ground in the event of war.

Missiles, it said, would be harder to defend against.

Along with design data for a missile warhead armed with fuel-air explosives, a 300-page Honeywell study obtained by Iraq describes ways to inflict the maximum damage and listed the most vulnerable targets - personnel, air bases, planes, naval ports, oil refineries and ships, the Los Angeles Times said.

A Honeywell physicist who wrote the report and retired five months ago, said company insiders objected when the report was to be sold to a Swiss company claiming to represent Egypt. Ultimately, it was determined IFAT Corp. was acting on behalf of Iraq rather than Egypt, the Times said.

''That it could be aimed at our soldiers is my worst nightmare come true,'' said physicist Louis Lavoie.

Honeywell hired an outside law firm to conduct its own inquiry into whether the technology was transferred improperly. The Minneapolis company's chairman, James Renier, said information that Honeywell's technology was provided to Iraq, first reported by NBC news, was ''very disturbing.''

A preliminary Pentagon review determined that no laws were violated because the Honeywell material was not classified or restricted under export laws.

The Times said the report was sold to the Swiss firm for about $200, 000.

The study given to Iraq says the weapons are capable of ''100 percent fatalities across a wide area, with injuries decreasing to lung and eardrum damage in outlying areas.

Major structural damage to refineries, aircraft and ships was predicted for a large area, and a map of an airfield lists the potential damage to its various components.

The Times article centered on Honeywell and the fuel bombs, but the company's actions were apparently legal. It also cited a study by the Simon Wisenthal Center in Los Angeles that names 86 German firms and 18 American companies that have sold equipment to Iraq that could be used to develop nuclear, chemical and biological weapons.

Critics say the role played by Honeywell in Iraq's development of the fuel-air weapons illustrates a laxity in U.S. export controls.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 26) UPI - Israel released Wednesday the last three members of a Jewish underground sentenced in 1985 to life in prison for participating in a three-year campaign of terror against Arabs in the occupied West Bank.

Menachem Livni, Shaul Nir and Uzi Sharbaf, were freed after nearly seven years of incarceration, including time spent in jail after their 1984 arrests and during their yearlong trial.

The three originally were sentenced to life terms for the murders of three Arab students at the Islamic College in Hebron, the attempted assasination of the Arab mayors of the West bank cities of Nablus and Ramallah and plans to blow up the Dome of the Rock in Jerusalem, the third holiest site in Islam.

The settlers' life sentences had been reduced three times in five years by President Chaim Herzog to 10 years of imprisonment. Two weeks ago, a judicial committee decided to further reduce their prison terms by one third and allow their release despite opposition from government prosecutors.

Menachem Livni, who reportedly led the 27-member Jewish terrorism underground, showed no signs of remorse upon his release from Ayalon prison, where he was greeted by jubilant Jewish settlers who threw candy at him.

''I am an innocent citizen who has fulfilled his obligations under extreme circumstances and worst of all was arrested and made a victim in prison,'' Livni said.

Israeli parliamentarian Yossi Sarid, member of the Citizens Rights Movement, condemned the release of the three settlers.

''This is a dark day for Israeli democracy,'' Sarid said. ''I have realized that in order to commit murder and get off free after only a short period, you ... have to wear a skull-cap, to become religious, to have an open door at the president's, to have friends in Parliament.''

MADISON, WI (DEC. 26) UPI - Newly elected state Rep. Steve Nass was sworn into office Wednesday, three days before he leaves for duty in Saudi Arabia.

Naas, Republican of Whitewater, began his first term as state representative more than a week before his colleagues because he has been ordered to leave Friday to join his Wisconsin Air National Guard unit, the 128th Air Refueling Group, in Operation Desert Shield.

Naas was flanked by members of his family as he took the oath of office from County Circuit Judge James Carlson. The rest of the legislature will be sworn in Jan. 7.

A former payroll and benefits analyst with the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services, Naas is a staff sergeant with the Air Guard and will be part of the ground crew maintaining hydraulics on tanker planes. He expects to be in the Middle East for three to six months.

Officials at the National Guard Bureau in Washington said they know of only two other elected state officials in the United States called for active duty in Operation Desert Shield.

Naas said he believes he can perform both jobs, as legislator and as National Guardsman. ''I will meet my obligation to my constituents while also meeting my obligation to my country,'' he said.

''I'll be in contact with my Madison office at least once a week, and will have access to a fax machine,'' he said.

(DEC. 26) UPI - The State Department denies reports that January 9th has been set as the date for meetings between Secretary of State Baker and Iraq's Saddam Hussein. #90360u0863 12/26/1990 ~United Press International BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (DEC. 26) UPI - Slovenia Wednesday declared itself an ''autonomous state'' in formalizing results of a weekend independence plebiscite a day before a crucial meeting between all of Yugoslavia's political leaders on resolving the fate of the crisis-ridden multi-ethic federation.

Slovenian Assembly President France Bucar presented to a joint session of the three-chamber legislature the results of Sunday's plebiscite in which 88.5 percent of the republic's 1.46 million registered voters cast ballots empowering the nationalist government to declare independence.

''In the plebiscite a decision was taken that the Republic of Slovenia should become an autonomous state. In accordance with the law, on behalf of the delegates of all chambers of the Republic of Slovenia's Assembly, in front of the Slovenian, Yugoslav and world public, I solemnly declare that the Republic of Slovenia has become an autonomous state,'' Bucar said.

The immediate implications of his declaration were hazy, however, because Slovenian leaders have been emphasizing that they would opt for secession only if they fail in the next six months to obtain a new political arrangement under which the six-republic Yugoslav federation would become a loose confederation of independent states linked by a common market.

Slovenian President Milan Kucan reiterated the point, telling lawmakers in the capital of Ljubljana, 350 miles west of Belgrade, that they have six months in which to draft a new constitution and new guidelines on economic and political relations with the rest of the country.

Slovenia and Croatia are demanding confederation because of renewed historic fears of political and economic domination by the largest republic, Serbia, whose Communist government won re-election this month largely by fanning Serbian nationalism through its control of the media.

Croatia and Slovenia elected nationalist parties in April, ousting Communists in the first free elections held in Yugoslavia since the end of World War II in 1945.

Slovenia and Croatia, the most financially secure republics, also object to having to provide development funds to Serbia, which has resisted reforms and is believed to be close to bankruptcy.

Serbia's Marxist president, Slobodan Milosevic, wants to preserve the federal system and has refused invitations to negotiate a settlement to the dispute, which has fueled fears of a violent dissolution of the nation of 23 million or intervention by the Serbian-dominated, Communist-led military.

Milosevic has said he would only agree to confederation if Serbia's borders are enlarged to encompass Serbian-habitated areas now in other republics.

The leaders of all six republics and the Cabinet of federal Prime Minister Ante Markovic were summoned to a meeting in Belgrade Thursday by the country's eight-man collective head of state to discuss the federation-confederation dispute.

Also to be reviewed was Markovic's year-old program of Western-style political and economic reforms, which the republic leaderships have been trying to undermine because it threatens to end the financial patronage system from which they derive much of their power.

Among other actions, the republics have violated provisions of the federal constitution, enacted measures that contradict federal statutes and flaunted economic directives of the central government that have accelerated inflation.

An official statement said that Markovic met Wednesday with the prime ministers of the republics, who were told that their governments must agree to observe federal government decisions until a new political arrangement for the country is worked out.

BOSTON (DEC. 26) UPI - Asthma sufferers who find themselves wheezing and coughing might look to their toothpaste as a possible cause of their problems, two doctors said Wednesday.

An artificial mint flavoring found in a brand of toothpaste made from an opaque paste instead of a gel apparently triggered breathing problems in a 21-year-old woman with a history of asthma.

Even though the woman's chest X-rays were normal and she took various drugs for six weeks, the woman had persistent asthma symptoms, including a dry cough according to a letter published in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Then, she switched toothpastes. She had been using Crest Tartar Control toothpaste, ''but when she switched to a gel-based toothpaste her wheezing resolved dramatically,'' wrote Drs. Bruce Spurlock and Thomas Dailey of Kaiser Permanente Medical Center in Santa Clara, Calif.

When the woman subsequently used any paste-based toothpaste, she started wheezing again within 10 minutes, they said.

After the Procter and Gamble Co. of Cincinatti, which makes Crest, provided Spurlock and Dailey with a list of ingredients in the paste and gel toothpastes, the doctors found the only ''absolute difference'' between the products was the type of artificial flavoring used.

The gel included a ''spice-blend flavoring'' while the paste had spice-mint or wintergreen flavoring, the doctors found.

The doctors also discovered that the woman began wheezing when she chewed gum containing wintergreen or peppermint flavoring.

Terry Glover, a spokeswoman for Procter and Gamble, said she was unaware of any other cases in which toothpaste apparently induced asthma symptoms.

But Spurlock and Dailey said doctors who treat patients with such symptoms, especially if they do not respond to drugs, should consider toothpaste exposure as a possible cause.

CHICAGO (DEC. 26) UPI - Grain and soybean futures were higher at the close Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The volume was relatively light following the Christmas break, and the activity was expected to remain quiet the rest of the week.

Weather conditions over much of the central United States were supportive. There was concern that sub-zero temperatures could damage the winter wheat crop where there is little snow cover.

Soybean meal was firm on the probability that farmers will have to supplement the rations of their livestock because of the cold weather.

Soybeans rallied on short-covering in the wake of contract lows Monday. Additional support came on news that U.S. and Soviet officials will meet again Jan. 4 to discuss terms of the credit package to the USSR.

Grain futures were higher on spillover from the firm tone in the soybean complex and hopes of near-term export business.

Taiwan was in the market for a small amount of corn and Morocco and Algeria were expected to bid for wheat in the next few days.

Country movement was light and interior and Gulf basis levels were steady.

At the close, corn was up 1 to 2, soybeans up 1 1/2 to 4 3/4, wheat up 1/4 to 2 1/2 and oats up 2 1/4 cents across the board.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein reportedly says he'll NEVER allow members of Kuwait's former ruling Al Sabah family to control the oil-rich emirate again. Cairo radio quotes Saddam as saying in an interview with Mexican television that the ruling family will only be allowed back into Kuwait when they have died and are ready to be buried.

Saddam also reportedly says in the interview that the January 12th date he had picked for a meeting in Baghdad with U-S Secretary of State Baker can NOT be changed. The United States has rejected the date as falling too close to the January 15th deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait or be forced out by military action. Another report has Saddam saying he'll meet with Baker on January 9th. But the State Department in Washington denies the report.

In another development, U-S and Australian naval personnel raided an Iraqi ship loaded with sugar off the coast of Oman. The Navy says the vessel was intercepted after its captain refused orders to halt for an inspection. The ship carrying a group of women and children on a self- declared relief mission was supposed to have been taking medicine to the needy children of Iraq.

Mikhail Gorbachev continues winning approval of his efforts to consolidate more power within the Soviet Union. The Congress of People's Deputies yesterday accepted 19 of the 36 constitutional amendments he wants. One sets up the new post of vice president. Another takes more power away from the office of prime minister. The current holder of that job, Nikolai Ryzhkov, suffered a heart attack yesterday but his life is NOT said to be in danger. Ryzhkov had been criticized recently for a cautious approach on the economic reforms that Gorbachev wants.

Senior Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping ended his five-month public absence today... quelling reports he had NOT recovered from a serious illness last fall. The 86-year-old patriarch reportedly appeared at his local polling place inside the walled leadership compound in Beijing to cast his ballot in local elections. Deng gave up his last official post early this year and has repeatedly expressed his wish to step back and let younger leaders take center stage.

The former king of Romania spent less than 12 hours yesterday in the homeland he has NOT visited since 1947. Than he was expelled by the new government, along with his queen and his daughter. All three were put aboard a military flight to Switzerland after the Romanian government decided they shouldN'T have been allowed back into the country in the first place.

The family of 33-year-old Nancy Cruzan issued a statement this morning just hours after her death in Missouri. They thanked all of those who supported them in what became a lengthy court battle during the almost eight years she remained in a vegetative state following a 1983 automobile accident. A Missouri court finally agreed earlier this month with her parents and gave doctors the right to disconnect feeding tubes. But opponents to that court ruling expressed disappointment at her death and bitterness toward her family.

New Year's revelers who have more than they need to drink this year are going to wake up with more than a hangover. They will face the prospects of paying higher federal taxes when they replace whatever it was they drank to usher the new year in. Excise taxes on a six-pack of beer double to 32 cents and they go up 16 cents on a fifth of 80 proof liquor to two dollars 16 cents. Wine lovers will pay an even higher percentage increase as the current three cent tax on a bottle of wine jumps to 21 cents.

Folks in the Midwest shivered today under temperatures as cold as 29 below zero. It took just 15 minutes for International Falls, Minnesota, to tie a record of minus 29 degrees. Along the East coast, the Christmas cold front continued while strong southwesterly winds brought clouds to the South as temperatures rose into the 40s. The freeze danger is over in Southern California but temperatures remain cool. And Florida is boasting the balmiest temperatures.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (DEC. 26) UPI - Two Marine reservists who refused active duty in Operation Desert Shield due to moral and ethical objections surrendered to military authorities Wednesday to face possible charges of desertion.

A federal warrant was issued for James E. Summers, 20, and Demetrio R. Perez, 21, after they refused to report Nov. 29 with the rest of their unit, Company B of the 4th Assault Division, when it left for Camp LeJeune, N.C., for training pre-deployment to the Persian Gulf.

''We see going to Saudi Arabia as supporting a war machine,'' the two said in a statement. ''We oppose war in any form. This action would conflict with our religious, moral and ethical beliefs. We cannot participate in the exchange of body bags for cheaper oil prices.''

They surrendered at the Mayport Naval Air Station about 1:30 p.m. and were transferred to Camp LeJeune. Their applications for conscientious objector status were accepted and they were expected to be given a hearing within the next few weeks.

They said they decided to surrender after Marine officials told them they could not be considered for conscientious objector status until they reported for duty. Each faces a maximum jail term of five years.

Marines seeking to be classified as conscientious objectors are interviewed by a member of the clergy, a psychiatrist and an investigating officer.

The Marine Corps then decides whether they should receive a dishonorable discharge or assigned non-combatant duties, or be punished for being AWOL and then sent to Saudi Arabia. Lawyer Ellis Rubin, who is representing the two longtime best friends, said they would refuse a transfer to the Middle East.

''They will not go under any circumstances, and then they would be jailed for desertion and there would be a trial,'' he said.

Perez and and Summers are roommates and students at Santa Fe Community College in Gainesville.

They went to high school together in Homestead and were recruited after graduation.

Summers' conscientious objector application said he was promised 30 hours of credit for his reserve training, but only received four hours.

It said that when he went to Parris Island, S.C., for boot camp, he was offended by the constant use of derogatory terms such as ''commie'' and ''raghead.''

''That's when I realized that the Marines did not value human life like I did '' he wrote. ''I was looking at people as individuals and the Marine Corps was looking at us as 'bodies' and 'war machines.'''

Perez' application says he was prevented from joining an Amish- Mennonite church in Sarasota because he is a Marine. He called warfare ''the most greivous sin against God.''

''Basic warrior training exposed me to darkness, death, killing and the reality of war,'' he wrote. ''This is when I realized that my conscience would not allow me to participate or be in any war.''

The fact that both men enlisted in the Marine reserves should have no bearing on their applications, Rubin said.

''There is a sentence in the enlistment papers you sign that says you don't have any objection to war, but case law shows there are some recruits who become acquainted with the Marine Corps after they get in and then learn what war and life is about and they don't want it from a moral or ethical standpoint,'' Rubin said.

UPI - Two wild cards and some jokers played important roles in shaping the NFL's 71st season.

Paul Tagliabue, in his first full year as commissioner, established his presence quickly in 1990 by approving an expanded playoff format and adding a week to the regular season, eliminating the traditional two- week gap between the conference title games and silver anniversary Super Bowl scheduled for Tampa Stadium Jan. 27, 1991.

Beginning in 1992, the regular season will be stretched over 18 weeks, with each of the 28 clubs receiving two weeks off.

One additional wild card playoff team was added in each conference, ensuring 12 clubs in postseason play. One division winner in each conference will be forced to meet a wild card qualifier in an opening- round game, eliminating a bye week for the AFC and NFC division champions with the worst record.

''We expect the two new first-round playoff games to create added competition and excitement around the league,'' said Tagliabue. ''This new schedule format allows us to expand our share of the annual sports calendar. Television revenue was an obvious factor, but we also are sensitive to possible overexposure of our sport.''

The networks and cable television obviously don't share Tagliabue's concern, forking over an estimated $3.6 billion to bring the NFL into our living rooms for the next four years. Each NFL franchise opened the 1990 season with $26 million already in the register, thanks to the largesse of ABC, CBS, NBC, TBS and ESPN.

The Super Bowl hype may be reduced next month without the two-week buildup, but the game will assuredly be more competitive than the debacle in New Orleans 11 months ago. The San Francisco 49ers built a 27-3 halftime bulge and cruised past Denver 55-10 for their fourth NFL title in nine years. Joe Montana threw for 297 yards and five touchdowns to earn his third Super Bowl MVP trophy as Coach George Seifert led the 49ers to a repeat championship in his first season succeeding Bill Walsh.

Tagliabue reacted forcefully after Arizona voters rejected a proposal to make a holiday of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, recommending the 1993 Super Bowl be pulled from Phoenix. Approximately 60 percent of the NFL's players are black, but there are no black owners or general managers and only one black coach, Art Shell of the Raiders.

''I can't imagine that people won't go along with the commissioner,'' said Norman Braman, owner of the Philadelphia Eagles and head of the Super Bowl site selection committee. ''I think it would be an affront to our public and our players if the game is played in Phoenix.''

New England owner Victor Kiam suffered through a regrettable campaign as the Patriots saved their offensiveness for the locker room. In an incident that may prompt changes in locker room policies, Boston Herald reporter Lisa Olson alleged several Patriot players sexually harassed her Sept. 17 while she was attempting to interview cornerback Maurice Hurst.

Ten weeks later, a 60-page report prepared by Harvard Law School professor Philip Heymann concluded Olson was, ''degraded and humiliated, '' in a tawdry locker room episode that led Tagliabue to fine tight end Zeke Mowatt $12,500 and two other players $5,000 apiece. The Patriots were fined $50,000 for not handling the incident properly and Kiam's image took a beating despite hiring a public relations firm to minimize the public damage.

Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche soon added a clown's touch to the circus atmosphere by barring a female reporter from his club's locker room, claiming he was protecting the privacy interests of his players and their wives. Wyche was fined almost $28,000 for his antics and Bengals quarterback Boomer Esiason moaned about injustice ... NFL style.

''It was kind of like Sam is being charged with murder when all he's committed is a misdemeanor,'' said Esiason.

Wyche atypically refrained from public criticism.

''I'm not going to say anything,'' he said. ''I'm waiting for the book to come out.''

Despite a dismal ground game, San Francisco has remained the league's dominant franchise during the 1990 regular season. The 49ers won their first 10 games and edged the New York Giants 7-3 in a Dec. 3 matchup of 10-1 clubs. Chicago resumed its traditional spot atop the NFC Central Division behind versatile running back Neal Anderson and a revived defense sparked by rookie safety Mark Carrier.

In the AFC, Buffalo answered its September skeptics by developing into an Eastern Division juggernaut. Quarterback Jim Kelly and running back Thurman Thomas triggered the league's highest-scoring attack and defensive end Bruce Smith threatened the NFL sack record of 22 set by Mark Gastineau in 1984. Second-year linebacker Derrick Thomas sparked Kansas City's surge in the West while the Central Division featured a three-way scramble between Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Houston.

The Dolphins and Raiders enjoyed surprising AFC success while the Patriots, Browns and Broncos faded. The NFC's most startling comeback story was written in Dallas, where the Cowboys hardly resembled last year's 1-15 disaster. NFC disappointments included Minnesota, the Rams and the Falcons.

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 26) UPI - U.S. military leaders now believe Iraqi troops are too deeply dug into Kuwait to withdraw before Jan. 15 and will most likely have to be removed by force, an intelligence officer with the U.S. Central Command said Wednesday.

Lt. Col. Tom Coury also told reporters at a briefing that if Iraqi President Saddam Hussein feels completely cornered, odds are he will launch a ''provocation'' against Israel in an attempt to peel Arab countries from the 28-nation coalition aligned against him.

''We presently assess that Saddam Hussein intends to remain in Kuwait for the long haul,'' said Coury, an intelligence officer on the staff of Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of all U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf. ''He continues to pour both men and materiel into the country.''

Asked if that means Iraq will have to be forced out of Kuwait, Coury responded ''Well, it's looking in that direction.''

Coury, speaking at the first of a series of weekly military briefings by the U.S. Central Command in Riyadh, said Iraq has strongly fortified its position in Kuwait and has pulled troops from the Iranian border to reinforce its western flank.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said Iraqi forces launched another surface-to-surface ballistic missile Wednesday. He said it took off from Iraq and landed within Iraq and ''appeared to be part of additional testing or training'' for Iraqi forces.

About two weeks ago published reports said the Pentagon's network of spy satellites failed to spot preparations for the launch of several short range Scud missiles until the liquid-fueled motors were ignited, giving forces within Saudi Arabia just minutes of warning that rockets were being launched. Those missiles were not fired toward Saudi Arabia and also landed within Iraq.

Coury said at the Riyadh briefing the Kuwait border with Saudi Arabia has been seeded with minefields, barbed wire, trenches, mortars and anti-aircraft artillery, including Scud-B surface-to-air missiles.

He said the Iraqi Air Force's Russian-made MiG-29 Fulcrum fighter jets with ''look-down, shoot-down, all aspects capability'' present the greatest threat to U.S. and allied forces, but can still be defended against. French-made Mirage F-1 jet armed with Exocet missiles can perform strikes on shipping and gulf oil facilities, he added.

''While Iraq has a large and relatively capable air force, they are no match for the combined strength of coalition air power,'' Coury said.

The briefing on intelligence data came in the wake of mixed signals from Washington and commanders in Saudi Arabia on whether U.S. forces will be ready to fight a war in mid-January, when the United Nations has said force may be used to oust Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

During a five-day trip to meet Schwarzkopf and review the troops in Saudi Arabia, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney sought to convey the impression that the United States is ready to launch a massive attack against Iraq if Saddam does not withdraw.

But Schwarzkopf's deputy, Lt. Gen. Calvin Waller, said that many of the troops that arrive in Saudi Arabia by Jan. 15 will not be ready to fight for at least another month. The briefing Wednesday night included Maj. Gen. J. Dane Starling, the logistical chief for Operation Desert Shield, who said the 430,000 U.S. troops expected by mid-January will have all the supplies, food and ammunition they need, but he would not say whether they would all be ready for combat. About 300,000 U.S. troops are already in the gulf region.

Coury said Saddam's continued threats to attack Tel Aviv, Israel's most populous city, should be taken seriously.

''As a last resort if he feels war is inevitable, he could initiate open conflict, which may include a provocation with Israel in an attempt to decouple coalition forces,'' Coury said. The intelligence officer said there had been ''discussions'' about how that would affect Saudi Arabia's resolve and whether it would leave U.S. troops marooned in the desert kingdom, but would not elaborate.

Coury said Saddam ''miscalculated'' in invading Kuwait, and did not expect a strong U.S. response. ''For the immediate future we believe he will attempt to avoid conflicts and attempt to erode both U.S. public support and allied cooperation,'' he said.

NEW YORK (DEC. 26) UPI - The dollar slipped almost across the board in thin post-holiday currency trading Wednesday, as Persian Gulf developments lent it no fresh support and fears of a Soviet political crisis diminished.

Currency traders in New York said holiday quiet calmed investors who scrambled to buy the U.S. unit last week after Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze gave his boss, President Mikhail Gorbachev, notice he was quitting.

The dollar's price slipped down from the heights it reached Monday, when such political doubts combined with a thin market to lift it. Soviet instability is seen as casting a shadow over Germany's economy and currency.

Harris Bank currency adviser Terri Reid reported ''a slightly more favorable attitude that things could stabilize for the U.S.S.R.'' after the Soviet Congress's decision to grant Gorbachev wider executive powers.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.5360 German marks, down from 1.5450 marks Monday, and at 136.20 Japanese yen, up from 136.10.

Chemical Bank trader Radhika Rajan said it was very possible the dollar would lose its current premium when full market liquidity returned. ''All this might be just a lot of year-end (position) covering,'' she said.

The British pound rose to $1.8815 from $1.8675.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3125 Swiss francs, down from 1.3150; 5.2125 French francs, down from 5.2470; and 1,155 Italian lire, down from 1,161.

The main European exchanges closed for post-Christmas observations ranging from Britain's Boxing Day to Italy's Feast of St. Stephen.

In Frankfurt, the last price at which the dollar was traded Friday was 1.5205 German marks. In Zurich, the dollar stood at Monday's 1.3185 Swiss francs.

In London, the dollar was at its Monday close of $1.8740.

In Paris, Brussels and Milan, the dollar was left at 5.1620 French francs, 31.90 Belgian francs and 1,159.40 Italian lire, respectively.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar rose on continued jitters about the Soviet Union and about Mideast war risks, closing at 136.25 yen vs. 135. 95 Monday.

''The dollar kept its strength on the Shevardnadze resignation shock and the upcoming Jan. 15 deadline for the Middle East problem,'' said Katsunobu Motohashi, currency manager at Yasuda Trust & Banking Co.

Dollar purchases by importers contributed to the U.S. unit's rise. But volume was extremely light because of the holidays overseas.

In Zurich, gold stood at $383.50 an ounce. London gold held at $383. 50 an ounce when trading halted before the holidays.

The price of silver in both Zurich and London was $4.06 an ounce.

On U.S. commodities markets, Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold Wednesday at $384.50 an ounce, up from $381.50 Friday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled gold at $385.60 an ounce, up from $382.50.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.12 an ounce, up from $4.035 Friday. The Comex closed silver at $4.095 an ounce, up from $4.025.

LYON, FRANCE (DEC. 26) UPI - Garry Kasparov retained his world chess championship title Wednesday by playing to a draw with challenger Anatoly Karpov in the 22nd match of the 24-game series.

The draw gave the 27-year-old Kasparov the 12 points needed against 10 for Karpov in the series.

In recapturing the title, Kasparov wins $1.7 million of the $3 million in total prize money.

Kasparov, 27, began play at Lyon's Palais des Congres convention center with the advantage of the white pieces and the first move. He had never lost in the series playing whites.

Karpov's hopes were dashed when, playing whites in the 20th match, he was forced to accept a draw after 86 moves last Thursday. The half-point from the draw gave Kasparov 11.5 points, just a half-point short of the 12 points needed to retain the championship.

Karpov needed an improbable three consecutive victories to win the crown.

The battle between the two Soviet grandmasters was one of the classics in the game in the last decade.

The two Ks have been at the pinnacle of chess since they first met for the title in 1984. Under previous rules, requiring a victor to win six matches outright, the pair played 48 times before chess authorities called off the series, leaving defending titleholder Karpov with his crown.

The pair met again in 1985 under new rules, and Kasparov won 13-11. In 1986 Kasparov repeated the feat, and he fought back from the brink of defeat in 1987 to defend the title against Karpov one more time.

The first 12 matches in the current series in New York resulted in a score of 6-6, and the series then moved to Lyon. The turning point appeared to have come in the 16th match, after eight straight draws, in which Kasparov prevailed after 102 moves. The 12-hour game played over three days was the fourth longest in chess championship history.

A controversy erupted after the match when critics claimed that Kasparov used his rest time to analyze possibilities with a computer. The champion denied the charge.

Karpov came back to win the next game. But Kasparov, despite needing only a 12-12 score to retain his title, came back in spectacular fashion. He won the 18th match after 57 moves and the 20th after 41 moves to build his current margin.

Karpov, 39, fought desperately in the 21st match for a victory, refusing to accept an apparent draw after 51 moves. But by the 86th move, Kasparov's manuvers forced the challenger to accept the draw.

Karpov took his final ''time out'' on Saturday to gain additional time to work on his strategy. The series was to have resumed Monday, but chess federation officials postponed the match because of Christmas.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 26) UPI - Iraqi forces launched another surface-to-surface ballistic missile Wednesday, Pentagon officials said, and sources said the flight path did not threaten coalition forces.

Lt. Col. Stu Wagner, a Pentagon spokesman, said the missile took off from Iraq and landed within Iraq and ''appeared to be part of additional testing or training'' for Iraqi forces.

He declined to say whether the launch and preparations for the launch were spotted ahead of the actual missile ignition and would not discuss whether U.S. forces were placed on a higher alert status as a result of the launch from an unspecified location within Iraq.

Wagner declined to discuss where the missile was launched from. Defense sources said, however, its trajectory was from east to west.

About two weeks ago, published reports said the Pentagon's network of spy satellites failed to spot preparations for the launch of several short-range SCUD missiles until the liquid-fueled motors were ignited, giving forces within Saudi Arabia just minutes of warning that rockets were being launched. Those missiles were not fired toward Saudi Arabia and also landed within Iraq.

At a briefing in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, headquarters of the U.S. Central Command, which is running operation Desert Shield, Air Force Lt. Col. Tom Courey, a senior official on the command's intelligence staff, gave a rundown of Iraqi missile strengths.

''Iraq ... has a potent short-range ballistic missile capability. Currently, Iraq has three short-range ballistic missile variants: the SCUD-B and the indigenously produced Al-Hussein and Al-Abbas. All of Iraq's fixed SRBM launchers are west of Baghdad, but they also have a number of mobile transporter erector launchers that can be dispersed throughout Iraq and the Kuwaiti theatre,'' said Coury.

The missiles have the ability to hurl conventional and chemical warheads several hundred kilometers, meaning some major Saudi civilian population centers and concentrations of U.S. and allied troops are within range of missiles launched from southern Iraq or Kuwait.

Wagner said he could not discuss how the missile launch was spotted: it could have been seen by satellite or by radar surviellance planes flying near a border area or even detected by electronic eavesdropping. And he could not discuss what variety of Iraqi missile was launched.

(DEC. 26) UPI - A self-declared Iraqi ''mercy'' ship is under armed escort after being boarded by U-S and Australian sailors earlier in the day. They were transported to the cargo vessel by helicopter after the ship refused to let an inspection party go aboard. The sailors found 253 women and children on the vessel, along with tons of sugar banned under the U-N's economic embargo of Iraq. The ship will be allowed to sail to any neutral port the captain requests.

Israel today released the last three members of the Jewish underground who were sentenced to life prison terms in 1985 for a three- year campaign of terror against Arabs in the occupied West Bank. The three served nearly seven years. Israeli parliamentarian Yossi Sarid condemned the release of the three settlers, calling the move ''a dark day for Israeli democracy.''

Also today, Israeli soldiers shot to death a 25-year-old Palestinian after he stabbed and wounded three soldiers on patrol in the occupied Gaza Strip. Two of the soldiers are in serious condition and the third received light wounds. Today's attack is the latest in a series of stabbings against Israelis following the Temple Mount slayings in October, when Israeli police shot and killed at least 17 Palestinians.

African National Congress President Oliver Tambo will visit the place where he was born 73 years ago, the first time he's been allowed to do that since 1960. That was the year Tambo fled South Africa just one step ahead of authorities who wanted to arrest him for his anti-apartheid activities. Tambo ended 30 years of exile on December 13th.

Last night's opening of the movie ''Godfather III'' proved to be more realistic than anyone in a suburban New York City theater wanted. Four movie goers were injured when they were caught in a shooting match between two groups of men arguing over loud talking in the theater. Two teenagers are in ''critical'' condition with head wounds. A married couple is listed in ''stable'' condition.

(DEC. 26) UPI - All NON-essential U-S personnel in Jordan and Sudan are being ordered out of the two countries by the State Department. The action comes ahead of the U-N's January 15th deadline for Iraq to get out of Kuwait. The State Department says its orders do NOT come because of any specific event.

U-S forces in the Persian Gulf are about to be increased by two aircraft carriers and the 16-thousand personnel attached to the carrier groups. The carriers America and Theodore Roosevelt leave Norfolk, Virginia, on Friday to join Operation Desert Shield forces already drawn up against Iraq.

A career Communist who came up through the party ranks is Soviet President Gorbachev's surprise pick as the Soviet Union's first vice president. The name of Gennady Yanayev is the only one placed for nomination. Critics say Yanayev, who once headed the Young Communist League, is far to the right of Gorbachev.

The new military government in control of Suriname promises elections within 100 days for the South American nation. And it will name an interim Cabinet within the week. There were NO deaths reported in Monday's coup that ousted Suriname's 18-month-old civilian government.

In Chicago, the Cook County Medical Examiner says the body exhumed from a pauper's grave earlier this month is ''definitely NOT'' that of missing candy heiress Helen Vorhees Brach, who disappeared in February 1977. And Robert Stein says as far as he's concerned the case is closed.

But federal officials who ordered the exhumation say they don't yet accept Stein's findings and are waiting for the results of D-N-A tests comparing the exhumed body with samples of genetic material recovered from Brach's home.Family members earlier said the body appeared to be too short to have been Brach's.

NEW YORK (DEC. 26) UPI - The stock market closed higher Wednesday in moribund post-Christmas trading, bolstered by strong Treasury bonds and some minor portfolio adjustments.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 12.37 Monday, closed up 15.84 at 2637.13.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.59 to 180.60 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 0. 95 to 330.85. The price of an average share added 10 cents.

Advances led declines 780-622 among the 1,952 NYSE issues traded. Big Board volume totaled 78,730,000 shares, compared with the 57,200,000 traded Monday in a shortened session.

Stocks drifted higher in the second lightest full session of the year, as very few players apparently went back to Wall Street the day after the Christmas holiday. The thinnest full trading day came on the day after Thanksgiving, when only 63 million shares changed hands.

Analysts said higher Treasury bond prices boosted stocks at the opening, with the market unable to take cues from overseas trading since many other markets were closed for national holidays.

Bonds were up about 3/4 point in late trading after an Israeli newspaper reported Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein would meet with Secretary of State James Baker Jan. 9 for critical high-level talks that have been delayed while the two countries have bickered over appropriate dates, analysts said.

The Bush administration denied the report. ''There have been daily contacts with the Iraqis, but there has been no movement on their part for the choice of dates'' for a meeting between Baker and Saddam, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

Saddam himself appeared to rule out the reported compromise, saying in an interview on Mexican television that no date but the one he proposed - Jan. 12 - would be acceptable. The United States has said it wants the meeting held on Jan. 3.

Analysts also said seasonal factors may have played a part in the rise.

''There may have been some seasonality factor,'' said Sid Dorr, vice president of institutional trading at Charles Schwab & Co. in San Francisco.

''New money may be coming in to start the new year (in terms of trading). But other than that, I don't see any reason for the market's gains other than people just looking at their portfolios and seeing if they can find a little value out there.''

The thin trading was expected to continue for the rest of the week. ''Very few of the desks are fully manned this week,'' said Dorr. ''Most portfolio managers have skeleton crews this week.''

On the trading floor, Philip Morris was the most active issue, up 1/2 to 51 3/8.

Toys 'R' Us followed, down 5/8 to 22 1/2. Exxon was third, up 3/4 to 52.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T was down 1/8 to 30 1/8, Texaco was up 2 to 60 3/4, American Express was up 1/4 to 21 3/8 and General Electric was down 1/4 to 57 3/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 99,928,970 shares, compared with the 72,298,660 traded in the previous session.

Prices were mixed in dull trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index gained 0.40 to close at 304.99. Declines led advances 282-241 among the 841 issues traded. The price of an average share rose 2 cents. Composite volume totaled 9,831,400 shares vs. 6,191,360 traded Monday.

Energy Service led the Amex issues, up 1/8 to 2 1/2.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index lost 0.01 to close at 372.40.

(DEC. 26) - Iraqi forces launched another surface-to-surface ballistic missile Wednesday, the Pentagon said, and U.S. military leaders in Saudi Arabia now believe Iraqi troops will have to be removed from Kuwait by force.

U.S. and Australian navy boarding parties clashed Wednesday with the crew of an Iraqi cargo ship carrying a group of women on a self-declared relief mission.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein insisted Wednesday that the Palestinian question would have to be on the agenda of any meeting he held on the gulf crisis.

''The Palestinian issue is our first priority,'' he was quoted by the Iraqi news agency INA as saying. ''We will liberate Palestine, after that we will be ready to discuss all issues. This is our policy and we will not retract it.''

And in a television interview, taped last Saturday and broadcast Wednesday night on Spain's independent television network Telecinco, Saddam said if war broke out Iraq would attack Tel Aviv. He also defended Iraq's possession and possible use of chemical weapons.

''Those who accuse us should also take into consideration that nuclear weapons are more dangerous than chemical ones. The United States used nuclear weapons in Japan. Israel, as all the world knows has nuclear weapons,'' Saddam said.

''Therefore Iraq has a right to possess the same weapons that its enemy has or those which can neutralize the arms of its enemy. This question is not for discussion by us,'' he added.

''Chemical weapons have been used in Vietnam and Afghanistan by the United States and the Soviet Union. We think the discussion of this issue is hypocrisy and we do not respect hypocrites,'' Saddam continued.

Saddam denied he feared for his life.

''To speak of my personal liquidation seems ridiculous to me. A leader never feels fear. It would be embarrassing if he did. The man on the street in Iraq does not feel afraid, so how am I going to feel it?'' Saddam said.

In Washington, the State Department denied a report published in an Israeli newspaper that Secretary of State James Baker would meet Saddam in Baghdad Jan. 9 for talks on the Persian Gulf standoff.

Saddam himself appeared to rule out the reported compromise, saying in an interview on Mexican television that no date but the one he proposed - Jan. 12 - would be acceptable. The United States has said it wants the meeting held on Jan. 3.

President Bush first proposed the talks last month, saying he wanted to ''go the extra mile'' to avoid the use of military force threatened by the United States and its allies to reverse Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The State Department Wednesday ordered all non-essential U.S. personnel to leave Jordan and Sudan ''well before Jan. 15,'' citing ''unstable conditions'' and the growing threat to Americans in the Persian Gulf.

U.S. citizens were warned in previous travel advisories to leave Yemen, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and the eastern province of Saudi Arabia.

In another development Wednesday, a Palestine Liberation Organization official threatened terrorist attacks against U.S. targets worldwide in the event of war against Iraq.

''American interests in the world will be targetted and suicidal attacks will be launched in and outside the gulf and Palestine,'' said Zeid Wehbeh, PLO representative in Lebanon.

Wehbeh made the threat in an interview with the Lebanese communist- run Voice of the People radio station.

In Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, Lt. Col. Tom Coury, a U.S. Army intelligence officer, told reporters at a briefing that military experts feel the Iraqis are too deeply dug into Kuwait to withdraw before Jan. 15 and most likely will have to be removed by force.

VATICAN CITY (DEC. 26) UPI - Police said Wednesday an American military club was not the target of a Christmas Day bomb blast that damaged the club as well as nearby offices of Vatican Radio.

Officials said they are taking seriously an anonymous telephone claim made Tuesday night to an Italian news agency in Rome in which a man aged said, ''We are the anarchists who planted the bomb against Vatican Radio.

''We celebrated the Holy Christmas in our own way, dynamiting Vatican Radio, an organization which pushes ideological drugs.''

The blast, which occurred early Tuesday within sight of St. Peter's Basilica, came just hours before Pope John Paul II delivered his Christmas Day message from the central balcony of the largest church in the Christian world, located just 1,500 feet away from blast scene.

The explosion, believed by experts to have been caused by black powder and not dynamite, caused minor damage to an American military social club, the United Services Organization, Vatican Radio headquarters and a music hall, police said.

No injuries were reported.

The blast site was located on the Mussolini-designed boulevard, the Via di Conciliazione, which runs from the Tiber river to St. Peter's.

According to the news agency ANSA, the anonymous caller told them that the bomb was made up of nine feet of fuse and nine sticks of explosives, all wrapped in a plastic shopping bag.

(DEC. 26) - Prices of world crude oil, home heating oil and gasoline all jumped Wednesday in quiet post-Christmas trading driven by snippets of war rhetoric in the Middle East and sharply dropping temperatures in much of the United States.

Futures contracts for February delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the key U.S. crude, climbed $1.30 from Friday, the last previous day of trading, to $27.22 a barrel on subdued New York Mercantile Exchange trading.

Home heating oil gained 2.32 cents a gallon from Friday's Merc trading to settle at 81.26 cents a gallon. Unleaded gasoline was up 1.9 cents to 68.14 cents a gallon.

''Crude oil prices were a little bit led by the product complex'' of heating oil and gasoline, which in turn responded to the cold weather sweeping across the United States, said Albert Helmig of Energex, a floor brokerage.

Another broker at the Merc, Rodeny Dow of Dow International Energy, said ''This cold weather coming in has everyone excited. The initial reaction (to cold weather) is always for prices to go up.''

While there was little news from the Middle East, crude oil futures traders said bellicose declarations from Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein over the long Christmas holiday pushed crude prices up sharply at the opening Wednesday morning.

''Then prices just stayed there all day long,'' Helmig said. ''Basically, it settled within five or ten points of the opening, a very lackluster day,'' he added.

Another broker, Stephen Piasio of the internatioanl energy trading department at Lehman Brothers in New York, said, ''What helped push (crude futures) overnight was the story that Hussein would send missiles to Israel in case of war.''

''Crude waited for the next news and it never came,'' Piasio said.

Prices for oil in the sport market for immediate delivery also were up worldwide. On the U.S. Gulf Coast, West Texas Intermediate rose $1.30 to $27.20 a barrel. United Arab Emirates' Dubai light, the main OPEC crude from the Persian Gulf, climbed 85 cents in trading there. In European trading, Britain's North Sea Brent, the world's most widely- traded crude, closed the day at $27.80 a barrel, up 90 cents from the previous trading day.

The volume of trades, particularly in crude futures, was depressed by the hangover from the Christmas holiday and the Boxing Day holiday in London. Only about 31,000 contracts changed hands or about half the normal volume.

Dow of Dow International Energy, said crude prices rose too sharply on Friday. After the early-morning jump, he said, ''I think they corrected it'' by leaving prices fairly stable.

''I expect crude to trade in the $26- to $29-a-barrel level between now and Jan. 15, until something happens and we resolve something on the Persian Gulf (military standoff) in which case it will be either look- out-below time and this market crashes and burns or there is an outbreak of war and prices go way up.''

Marathon Petroleum Co. of Findlay, Ohio; Conoco Inc., the Du Pont subsidy in Wilmington, Del., and Sun Co., of Radnor, Pa., all said they raised the posted price they will pay for WTI. Conoco and Marathon said they raised their posted prices they will pay to $1.25 to $26 a barrel, and Sun said it raised the price it will pay 75 cents to $25.75.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (DEC. 26) UPI - Senior League Baseball officials suspended play for the rest of the season Wednesday after their Fort Myers Sun-Socks defaulted and withdrew from the league.

League officials considered several options for the five remaining teams and decided to shut down operations and begin preparing for next season.

Four of the league's teams, including the Sun-Socks, were headquartered in Florida. California and Arizona each housed a team.

League officials in Daytona Beach, which is home to the Explorers, said efforts were underway to reorganize so some form of senior league baseball action can take place next year. They said emphasis would be placed on drafting policies to ensure each team's financial commitment for the next season.

To be eligible to play in the two-year-old league, players must be at least 34 years old. Catchers can be 32. This year's season was scheduled to end in the spring.

(DEC. 26) UPI - Retailers Wednesday confirmed what many industry analysts had projected months ago: the Christmas season was not very merry - at least not at the cash registers of major department stores.

Many retailers said preliminary sales figures for the Christmas season, which traditionally runs from the day after Thanksgiving through Christmas Eve, were about what they expected.

But expectations were rather bleak to begin with as a result of the deteriorating economy and uncertainty spawned by the crisis in the Mideast.

Sears Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retailer, said sales for the holiday season were below expectations, but that sales in the weekend before Christmas were ''much better than expected.''

Sears spokesman Perry Chlan attributed the late surge to the Chicago- based retailer's decision to begin its traditional post-Christmas sale several weeks early, slashing prices 20 percent to 40 percent on winter apparel and other merchandise.

Dayton Hudson Corp. said it expects Christmas sales will equal last year's results, if not improve on them by one or two percentage points.

The Minnealpolis-based retailer said the strongest results were posted by its Target division, a chain of 400 ''upscale discount'' stores, which is expected to finish the season up a percentage point or two.

Dayton Hudson's Mervyn's division, a moderate-priced department-store chain, is expected to post flat results for the season, while the department store division - which includes Dayton's, Husdon's and Marshall Field's - is expected to end the season down one or two percentage points from last season.

Most retailers agreed that Christmas shoppers focused on practical products, rather than luxury goods, this season.

Several retailers reported better-than anticipated sales of Christmas -related items, such as tree trimmings and other holiday decorations.

K Mart, the nation's second-largest retailer, said it expects to post slightly higher sales this Christmas season, largely because of a last- minute surge in holiday shopping.

Knauer said one reason K Mart fared better than higher-bracket retailers is that in periods of economic contraction, ''customers find their dollars go further'' at discount stores.

(DEC. 26) UPI - 33-year-old comatose patient Nancy Cruzan died today after surviving nearly eight years in a vegetative state.

Cruzan's death comes 12 days after doctors removed her feeding tube, ending a legal right-to-die battle that reached the U-S Supreme Court.

The feeding tube was removed after a county probate judge said there was clear evidence Cruzan would have asked that the tube be removed.

About 20 people protesting the removal of the feeding tube remained outside the hospital in Mount Vernon, Missouri, where Cruzan died. Her family was at her bedside.

The family released a statement saying Cruzan showed no sign of discomfort or distress in any way when she died.

Opponents of the court ruling that allowed the Cruzan family to withhold food and water from the woman expressed disappointment at her death and bitterness toward her family.

David O'Steen, executive director of the National Right to Life Committee of Washington, D-C, said the decision to allow Cruzan to die by starvation and dehydration ''diminishes hope for thousands of medically dependent people nationwide.''

However, Father Kevin O'Rourke of St. Louis University, an expert on medical ethics, said the family did the right thing.

Cruzan was 25 on the night of January 11th, 1983, when she was thrown from her car in a crash near her home in Cartersville, Missouri. The accident left her severely brain damaged.

(DEC. 26) UPI - New York authorities say two groups of youths opened fire on each other in a packed Long Island movie theater during the premier of ''Godfather III.''

Nassau County Detective Sergeant William Cocks says one moviegoer was killed and three wounded as the panicked audience fled for their lives.

According to Cocks- ''There was bedlam inside the theater ... a stampede in which people left their coats and shoes behind in their rush to get out.''

He says ''12 to 25 shots'' were fired during the Christmas melee.

The shooting broke out in the Sunrise Cinema just before midnight, fatally wounding a 15-year-old boy. Another 17-year-old youth and a young married couple were wounded, two of them critically.

The violence-plagued suburban theater near the New York City border was the scene of another shooting in 1988.

Cocks said yesterday's shooting was triggered by an argument between two groups of young men, possibly over who was talking the loudest.

The movie had been playing to an audience of about 600 for about 20 minutes when the shooting erupted.

WASHINGTON (UPI)- U.S. officials are studying a detailed analysis of the Soviet Union which confirms what any Moscow shopper or visitor suspected: the Soviet economy is a basket-case and President Gorbachev's perestroika reforms have so far succeeded only in making the problem worse.

The report suggests that outside help may not be possible or effective.

The summary of a six-month study by the International Monetary Fund, which will be released in full in early January, will be an important element in decisions now being made within the U.S. government and the other six leading industrial nations.

Those decisions revolve around how - and if - the West can help the Soviet government survive long enough to incorporate far-reaching economic reforms.

Given the description of the disastrous state of the Soviet economy, the IMF report to the seven nations attending the annual economic summits is not encouraging.

The exhaustive report says that the Soviet Union was saved from earlier collapse only because of the dramatic increase in world oil prices in the 1970s. The Soviet Union is the world's second largest oil exporter, following Saudi Arabia.

But, the report says, in the current situation, with oil prices again going through the roof, Soviet oil and gas production and exports are actually falling because of a breakdown in the production facilities, pipelines and transportation system.

Thus, the Soviet Union cannot take advantage of the current price bubble.

The report says the Gorbachev reforms sometimes had a negative effect because they were introduced in piecemeal fashion, thus introducing the factors of confusion and inconsistency.

As a result of the partial reforms, according to the report, inflation and unemployment began to creep into the Soviet economy. The report puts the current annual rate of inflation at about 12 percent and unemployment at about 1.5 percent.

One result is that the Soviet economy is now partly a primitive barter system where consumers trade potatoes for shoes. Also, black- market U.S. dollars and packs of cigarettes have become important units of currency.

Should consumer goods become more easily available, the report says, that would probably increase inflation since there is now a huge amount of personal savings - estimated at 250 billion rubles - which remain unspent because there is nothing in the stores to buy.

The IMF report confirms an earlier analysis by the CIA which said that the Soviet national railroad system is close to a complete breakdown and that the agricultural industry, despite a good harvest year, was a serious drag on the economy because of storage and distribution problems.

Despite Gorbachev's intention of cutting back on defense spending and the size of the army, the IMF report says that the military burden on the economy remains significant, possibly as high as 18 percent of the GNP. The equivalent figure for the United States would be about 7 percent.

The IMF report says that, ''The traditional centrally planned system has largely collapsed but has not been replaced by a functioning market system.''

In its recommendations for how the outside world can help the Gorbachev experiement, the IMF report urges caution.

Until there is a firm legal underpinning for private property and a basis for a market economy, the report says, there is no assurance that economic reform would even get started. But those legal reforms can't be put into place until the political turmoil, involving rival ethnic and national interests, are settled, and there has been so sign that those difficulties will disappear.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 26) UPI - There are 249.6 million people living in the United States, census officials said Wednesday in releasing the 1990 count that showed a 10.2 percent increase in population during the last decade.

The Census Bureau said the West and South experienced big population increases and will gain extra congressional seats in two years. Officials said the final total ''came surprisingly'' close to the projection of 250 million.

The decennial census is required by the Constitution and is used to determine the size of each state's congressional delegation as well as the makeup of state legislatures. In addition, census figures are used to allocate money from federal agencies for education, health and welfare programs.

''The dramatic part of this decade is the change by region that the West is the big population gainer,'' said Census Bureau Director Barbara Bryant.

All four geographic regions of the country experienced growth, according to the 1990 count, which cost roughly $2.6 billion to conduct. The exact population figure reported by the Census Bureau is 249,632, 692.

Figures showed that the West grew by 22.3 percent and the South by 13.5 percent. The Northeast grew by 3.4 percent and the Midwest by 1.3 percent.

The bureau did not release demographic statistics in its count, which included the population of all 50 states as well as overseas military and federal personnel and their dependents.

The reapportionment of congressional seats will affect 21 states as eight will gain seats on Capitol Hill and 13 will lose them. There are 435 seats in the House of Representatives and the average size of a congressional district under the new census figures will be 572,466 people.

California will gain seven seats; Florida, four; Texas, three; Arizona, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, and Washington will gain one seat.

New York will lose three seats; Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania will lose two and Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Lousiana, Massachusetts, Montana, New Jersey and West Virginia will lose one.

The bureau makes annual population estimates for states, towns and counties using previous census data and factoring in births, deaths and migration.

The population has grown by roughly 10 percent each decade this century except between 1930-1940 when growth was 7.2 percent, census figures showed.

Census officials said they had no information on the federal money programs that might be affected by the new count, saying the complete data will be sent to state officials within three months.

Some cities have complained that the 1990 census, touted as the most comprehensive in history, would result in an undercount as the bureau would miss hard-to-reach populations like the poor and illegal immigrants.

There was an estimated total population undercount of 1 percent in 1980, but census officials and other experts have said that the count was off by as much as 6 percent for minorities and the poor.

Several state and city governments filed suit last spring alleging the census historically undercounted minorities and the poor. But the coalition agreed not to proceed until the final figures were issued and a decision was made on whether there was an undercount and, if so, whether corrections are warranted.

The Commerce Department, which oversees the Census Bureau, has promised a decision on those questions by July 15.

Two Northeast mayors delivered scathing assessments of the census results.

''At the Commerce Department, statistical grand larceny has become a way of life. And, the inevitable undercounting, underfunding and underrepresentation have become as certain as death and taxes,'' said New York Mayor David Dinkins.

Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn said that the federal government has underfunded cities for a decade. ''Today, Washington has undercounted us as well.''

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo assessed the impact of the new census.

''The potential loss of three congressional seats would have a significant impact on New York and the undercount would result in the loss of billions in federal fund allocations,'' Cuomo said.

Last spring, the Census Bureau mailed 90 million forms to roughly 100 million housing units. Following that effort, 250,000 census takers canvased the main streets and back roads of America in attempt to find those who did not respond to the mailing and confirm and recheck data. The 1990 census also included the first official count of the homeless.

The most populous state was California with 29 million people, while the least populous was Wyoming with 455,975 residents, the census figures showed.

The geographic regions broke down this way:

South - Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and the District of Columbia.

Northeast - Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

West - Alaska, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Oregon Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and Hawaii.

Midwest - North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Iowa Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

VALLEY STREAM, NY (DEC. 26) UPI - Two groups of youths opened fire on each other in a packed Long Island movie theater premiering ''Godfather III,'' killing one innocent patron and wounding three others as the panicked audience fled for their lives.

''There was bedlam inside the theater - a stampede in which people left their coats and shoes behind in their rush to get out,'' said Nassau County Detective Sgt. William Cocks.

He said ''12 to 25 shots'' were fired during the Christmas melee.

The shooting broke out in the Sunrise Cinema just before midnight Tuesday, fatally wounding a 15-year-old boy. Another 17-year-old youth and a young married couple were wounded, two of them critically.

The violence-plagued suburban theater near the New York City border was the scene of another shooting in 1988.

Cocks said the Tuesday's shooting was triggered by an argument between two groups of young black men, possibly over who was talking the loudest.

The movie had been playing to an audience of about 600 for about 20 minutes when the shooting erupted, and ''it never went off the screen until the theater was almost empty,'' the detective said. All the youths involved fled in the ensuing panic.

One of the two groups, consisting of about 10 young men, were seated in the first row of seats between the two aisles.

The other group, made up of about five young men, was seated in the sixth row of seats on the left side of the theater, he said.

''We haven't been able to locate anyone who could give us the specific words that were exchanged before the shooting, so we don't know the exact nature of the argument,'' Cocks said.

''After the argument, about half of the young men in the front row approached the other group on the left side of the theater, and the other half walked to the rear of the theater and approached the second group from the rear,'' Cocks said.

''The altercation escalated into almost a physical battle before the shooting began,'' he said. ''During the ensuing shootout, each of the groups used at least two guns.''

The victims were all seated in the first four rows on the left side of the theater, and were lying on the floor when police arrived.

Tremaine Hall, 15, of New York City, was shot in the head, and died after surgery at Mercy Hospital in nearby Rockville Centre.

Turaine Baines, 17, of New York City was shot in the left eye and was listed in critical condition at Mary Immaculate Hospital in Queens.

Patrice Candelaria, 23, of Island Park, was hit by a bullet in the right shoulder and was listed in critical but stable condition at South Nassau Communities Hospital in Oceanside.

Her Husband, Marco, 23, was wounded in the upper arm and was listed in stable condition at Franklin General Hospital in North Valley Stream.

In 1988, two persons were shot and wounded following a dispute which began in the theater's lobby.

PHOENIX (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - In honor of its 20th anniversary, Southwest Airlines (NYSE:LUV) Thursday announced it is offering unprecedented $20 unrestricted airfares between Phoenix and Las Vegas and eight cities.

For $20, a traveler can fly between Phoenix and Los Angeles; San Diego; Las Vegas; El Paso; Albuquerque; Ontario, Calif.; and Oakland. The airline is also offering a $20 airfare between Las Vegas and Reno, Phoenix or San Diego.

''In the Phoenix promotion, travelers can combine flights for longer distances. For instance, a customer could fly between Albuquerque or El Paso and Oakland or Ontario, Calif., via Phoenix for $40,'' said Don Valentine, Southwest's vice president of marketing. ''All flight combinations must include a Phoenix stop/connection,'' Valentine said.

''In the Las Vegas promotion, a $40 combination is available on flights including a Las Vegas stop/connection. That means a person can fly between Reno and Phoenix via Las Vegas for $40,'' Valentine said.

Tickets can be purchased through Jan. 20, 1991, for travel between Jan. 3 and April 5, 1991, and are available at travel agencies, Southwest ticket counters by mail, or by phoning Southwest Airlines.

''In typical Southwest Airlines fashion, this special fare is easy to buy and easy to use,'' Valentine said. ''There are no restrictions and no need to wait in long lines.

''There are no blackout dates, no limit to the number of tickets a customer can purchase, and advance reservations are not required. Our customers can receive full refunds and make flight changes.''

Valentine added that travel on the $20 fare announced Thursday is ''eligible for Southwest's recently announced 'Double Company Club Credits' on trips taken before March 25, 1991.''

Southwest Airlines provides air service to 33 airports in 31 cities. As the nation's eighth-largest independent airline, the carrier operates a fleet of 106 Boeing 737s with an average age of six years -- the youngest pure jet fleet in the airline industry.

PHOENIX (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Southwest Airlines (NYSE:LUV) Thursday announced it is offering unprecedented $20 unrestricted airfares between Phoenix and seven cities in honor of its 20th anniversary.

For $20 each way, a traveler can fly between Phoenix and Los Angeles; San Diego; Las Vegas; El Paso; Albuquerque; Ontario, Calif.; and Oakland.

The $20 unrestricted one-way fare is the market's lowest and, in constant dollars, the lowest unrestricted fare in the Valley's history.

Tickets can be purchased through Jan. 20, 1991, for travel between Jan. 3 and April 5, 1991, according to Don Valentine, Southwest's vice president of marketing.

Valentine said that by using a combination of flights, a traveler could fly from Albuquerque or El Paso, stop in Phoenix and travel on to Oakland or several points in Southern California, for $40. ''The only requirement is that flight combinations must stop in or connect through Phoenix,'' Valentine said.

Tickets may be purchased at travel agencies, Southwest ticket counters, by mail, or by calling Southwest Airlines.

''In typical Southwest Airlines fashion, this special fare is easy to buy and easy to use,'' Valentine said. ''There are no restrictions and no need to wait in long lines.

''There are no blackout dates, no limit to the number of tickets a customer can purchase, and advance reservations are not required. Our customers can receive full refunds and make flight changes.''

Southwest also announced a similar 20th Anniversary/$20 promotion for its Las Vegas market. The airline is offering $20 one-way airfares between Las Vegas and Reno, Phoenix or San Diego.

''A combination is also available for a $40 one-way fare that stops in or connects through Las Vegas. That means a person could fly between Reno and Phoenix via Las Vegas for just $40,'' Valentine said.

Valentine added that travel on the $20 fare announced Thursday is ''eligible for Southwest's recently announced 'Double Company Club Credits' on trips taken before March 25, 1991.''

''Because of Southwest Airlines' financial strength, we are able to say 'thanks' to our customers in such a big way through this special fare. During the last two decades, we've provided millions of travelers affordable airfares. We look forward to continuing this tradition for the next 20 years.''

Southwest Airlines provides air service to 33 airports in 31 cities. As the nation's eighth-largest independent airline, the carrier operates a fleet of 106 Boeing 737s with an average age of six years -- the youngest pure jet fleet in the airline industry.

(CPC) of Taiwan today confirmed that they have signed a letter of intent to explore building a joint venture refinery at a site to be determined in the Asia-Pacific region.

The refinery is projected to run approximately 150,000 barrels per day and would focus on producing light transportation fuels and products as an export refinery whose target market would be the growing Asia-Pacific region.

Initial feasibility cost estimates for building the refinery are being prepared by the companies. The project is subject to BHP and CPC board and various government approvals and a mutually acceptable definitive agreement.

Interests in the joint venture will be determined in the future. PRI and CPC have had a long time business relationship over the years, including CPC purchasing crude oil and refined products from PRI.

BAKERSFIELD, CALIF. (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Cal Rep Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ:CRBI) Thursday announced that it will provide an additional provision to the allowance for possible loan losses of $2 million.

This additional provision, when added to the regular provision, will result in a total provision of $5 million for 1990. This compares with a 1989 provision of $3,237,000. The addition will increase the allowance for possible loan losses to approximately 2.30 percent of loans outstanding compared with 1.26 percent at the end of 1989.

Thomas H. Shaffer, chief executive officer of California Republic Bank, the holding company's subsidiary, stated, ''The economic downturn being experienced in some of our market areas has resulted in increased delinquencies, particularly on loans in the Antelope Valley of northern Los Angeles County.

''Our decision to add to our reserves in 1990 will place California Republic Bank in a strong position going forward into the recessionary environment anticipated in 1991,'' Shaffer continued. ''1990 will be a profitable year, albeit reduced from the record 1989 level.''

The additional provision will result in net income for the fourth- quarter 1990 of approximately one-third of the fourth-quarter 1989.

Net income for the full year will also be reduced. Net income for the first three quarters of 1990 totaled $4,911,115 which represented a decrease of 6.7 percent over the comparable period in 1989. It is anticipated the reduced fourth-quarter earnings will result in a decrease approximating 22 percent in 1990 net income from the 1989 level.

Non-performing assets, which at Dec. 31, 1989 were 0.73 percent of total assets will approximate 1.65 percent of total assets at Dec. 31, 1990. The increase in non-performing assets warrants a conservative approach and thus justifies the increased provision and additional reserves. The allowance for possible loan losses will approximate 115 percent of the non-performing loans at year end.

Cal Rep Bancorp Inc. is the one bank holding company of California Republic Bank. The Bank operates 16 branches, 12 in the Bakersfield metropolitan area and in the communities of Frazier Park and Tehachapi, and four in northern Los Angeles County in the communities of Lancaster, Palmdale and Quartz Hill.

TOLEDO, OH (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Dana Corporation announced today that it will seek to sell its Diamond Savings and Loan subsidiary, and has retained Goldman, Sachs & Co. to act as its advisor in connection with the proposed transaction.

Southwood J. With 27 branch locations concentrated in northern and central Ohio, Diamond is a leader in most of the markets in which it operates.''

Morcott continued, ''Diamond has been a good investment for Dana and has grown stronger since we acquired it in 1980. Its people are skilled financial managers, and have played an important role in the growth of Dana's Financial Services group during the past ten years. However, given Dana's emphasis on growing our distribution and international activities each to 50 percent of total sales during the next decade while continuing to expand in our other markets, we feel that the interests of Diamond's customers, depositors, and employees would best be served by affiliation with a strong parent which is committed to growth and expansion in the thrift or banking industries. COLUMBUS, OH (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Expenditures in calendar year 1991 for research and development (R&D) in the United States are expected to reach $155.2 billion, according to the annual Battelle forecast.

This represents an increase of $5.2 billion (3.5 percent) over the $150 billion the National Science Foundation estimates actually was to be spent for R&D in 1990.

While part of the increase will be absorbed by continued inflation as it affects the R&D industry (estimated to be 2.4 percent for 1991), Battelle forecasts a real increase in R&D expenditures of approximately 1 percent. This is considerably smaller than the 10-year average rate of 4 percent in real R&D effort experienced since 1980.

Commenting on the forecast, Battelle President and Chief Executive Officer Dr. Douglas E. Olesen said, ''The slowdown in the rate of growth of R&D expenditures is not surprising, given the situation with the federal budget and the general slowdown in business activity. We have been anticipating this for the past few years. However, we do not expect this to be a long-term trend.

''Both government and industry recognize major needs that must be addressed if we are to maintain the vitality of our economy and prepare to meet the challenges of both the near and long-term future.'' He added, ''It is up to all of us to assure that the basic strength of U.S. science and technology serves us well as global changes occur.'' Sources of Funds

Industrial funding for R&D will account for 48.9 percent of the total. Industrial support is forecast to be $75.9 billion, up 2.2 percent from 1990.

Battelle sees an increase of 4.3 percent in federal support for R&D, with funding expected to be $72.2 billion. This is 46.5 percent of total expenditures for 1991.

Funding by academic institutions is expected to be $4.7 billion (3 percent of the total), and other non-profit organizations will provide nearly $2.5 billion (1.6 percent).

Over the past few years, industry and government have switched roles as the primary source of R&D support. Government was the principal funder before 1980; since then, industrial support has been dominant, and that trend is expected to continue in 1991. Performers of Research

According to the Battelle report industry will remain the dominant performer of R&D, as it has been since detailed records have been kept. In 1991, performance by industry is expected to rise to $111 billion, or 71.5 percent of all research performed. This compares with $17.5 billion (11.3 percent) by federal government laboratories, nearly $22.4 billion (14.4 percent) by academic institutions, and $4.3 billion (2.8 percent) by other non-profit organizations.

Federal funding supports research performance in all four sectors. Currently, almost one-fourth goes to support R&D conducted by the government itself; slightly more than half goes to industry; one-fifth goes to colleges and universities; and the rest, about one twenty-fifth, goes to other non-profits.

Industry absorbs almost all of its own funds, either performing the R&D itself or contracting with other industrial performers. Contracts and grants to non-profit organizations are a little more than half as large as those to colleges and universities, although this figure does not include the support of long-range ''endowed research'' programs in academia. The non-profit organizations finance both themselves and the academic institutions about equally, and colleges and universities consume all of the funds they originate.

DFW AIRPORT, TEXAS (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - American Airlines (NYSE:AMR) announced Thursday it has obtained a temporary restraining order against an illegal job action being waged against the company by the Allied Pilots Association and company pilots engaging in illegal job action.

The airline also announced that it would reduce its schedules by about four percent as a means of assuring its passengers reliable service.

American obtained the court order late Wednesday.

''An illegal pilot slowdown which has been underway for some months intensified during the Christmas and New Year's holiday period, thus inconveniencing many of our customers and damaging our company's reputation,'' said Robert W. Baker, American's executive vice president for operations.

''We have therefore taken both legal and management actions to protect the interests of our customers, employees and stockholders.''

More than 500 pilots -- about 65 percent above normal -- called in sick during the holidays. Additionally, the airline has continued to be the victim of other pilot actions including unnecessary maintenance write ups, slow taxiing and deliberate efforts to consume extra fuel.

''All of this is completely unnecessary,'' said Baker, ''because we have been trying to negotiate in good faith since October 1989, and have a very generous offer on the table.'' American has offered its pilots a five-year contract which will increase the airline's costs by at least $840 million and, if Variable Compensation provisions linked to the company's profits are activated as much as $1.4 billion.

''Our proposal will provide every pilot with substantially better pay and benefits and, in conjunction with promotional increases, will increase some pilots' compensation by as much as 200 percent,'' said Baker.

''American's contract proposal compares favorable with the best in the industry, with the single exception of Delta, which recently signed a contract more generous than Americn believes affordable at current levels of profitability. In profitable years, the Variable Compensation portion of our proposal will, in fact, allow

''American's Captains to be compensated at rates higher than Delta's. Our offer will increase average pilot pay at American to over $100,000, exclusive of Variable Compensation, and will increase American's maximum pay for Captains to $166,000, again exclusive of Variable Compensation. Including Variable Compensation, the average will rise to over $111,000 and the maximum to over $185,000.

''The proposal will also provide our pilots with a retirement income equal to approximately 80 percent of their pay during the five highest paying years of their career -- a benefit which often translates into a lump sum payment of over $1 million. Altogether, our offer will increase American's cockpit costs per flying hour, relative to the present contract, by more than 21 percent without Variable Compensation and by nearly 35 percent including Variable Compensation.

''Overall, the compensation and working conditions we offer our pilots represent an outstanding opportunity by any standard.

''Unfortunately, the APA's negotiators are seeking pay, benefit and work rule changes that will make the airline perpetually unprofitable,'' Baker said.

''The union's work rules alone would require American to hire more than 1,000 new pilots just to fly today's schedule and would increase costs by approximately $900 million during the term of the contract; the APA's proposals, in total, would increase the company's costs by more than $3 billion.

''American cannot and will not accept the APA's proposals and is unwilling to allow an illegal slowdown to inconvenience our customers. Thus, despite the fact that reducing our schedules will force us to lay off employees, we feel we must take the actions necessary to give our customers the reliable service they deserve.

''It is deplorable that because America will not agree to the Union's proposals, some of our pilots are engaging in an illegal job action which penalizes both our customers and our other employees. These actions are wholly inconsistent with the professional stature and responsibilties of airline pilots," Baker said.

''The only word that describes our feelings is 'outraged,''' said Baker. ''We have and will continue to treat our pilots with the respect to which their professional skills and responsibilities entitle them. In return, we expect each pilot--and the union which represents them -- to behave in the same professional and respectful way towards the company, our customers and our other employees.''

WEST BEND, WI (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - Gehl Co., a leading manufacturer of agricultural and light industrial/construction equipment, announced Thursday that it has acquired the forklift product line and inventories of Champ Corp. for approximately $3 million.

The acquisition is part of Gehl Co.'s ongoing strategy to broaden its product lines and enhance distribution in key geographic areas.

Champ Corp. is a 40-year-old manufacturer of rough-terrain straight-mast forklifts based in Los Angeles. The Champ forklifts will expand the product offering of Gehl Co.'s Industrial/Construction Division which includes rough-terrain telescoping-boom forklifts, skid steer loaders and attachments, a special purpose road grader and mini-excavators. By providing both straight-mast and telescoping-boom forklifts, Gehl will give its dealers and customers one of the broadest offerings in the industry for both rental and sale.

''Our purchase of Champ Corp.'s product line strengthens Gehl's position in the $260 million rough-terrain forklift market in North America, one of the fastest growing segments in the light industrial/construction equipment market and one with worldwide significance,'' said Bernard L. Nielsen, president and chief executive officer of the 131-year-old niche capital goods manufacturer.

Straight-mast forklifts represent the larger, more traditional segment of the rough-terrain forklift market and offer dealers a lower cost option to complement the more versatile telescoping-boom machines. Quick and compact straight-mast machines are used in industrial and construction applications to move and lift materials vertically up to two stories.

In contrast, telescoping-boom equipment can place loads both horizontally and vertically at the three and four story levels using a wide variety of attachments to move lumber, steel, concrete, shingles, and other materials.

''Champ forklifts have enjoyed strong sales success, especially on the West Coast and in Hawaii,'' said Robert L. Hartsock, vice president and general manager of Gehl's Industrial/Construction Division. ''We will build on that reputation to increase the products' use in the construction and equipment rental markets throughout North America. The machines will be sold through our Industrial/Construction dealers in North America and will be manufactured by our people in Yankton, S.D.

The acquisition is being financed through Gehl Co.'s new three-year revolving loan agreement completed on Dec. 20 with Bank One-Milwaukee, Norwest Bank and Rabobank-Nederlands as participating banks.

Gehl Co. (NASDAQ:GEHL) produces a broad line of niche capital goods equipment used worldwide in the light industrial/construction and agricultural markets. Founded in 1859, the company is headquartered in West Bend, with manufacturing facilities in West Bend; Yankton and Madison, S.D.; and Myerstown, Pa.

WASHINGTON, DC (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C. has reached an agreement in principle to ''outsource'' to IBM operational responsibility for Riggs' data center, data communications and voice communications under a long-term systems operations agreement, the two companies announced Thursday.

Riggs is the largest bank based in the District of Columbia. Riggs and IBM said they expect a definitive agreement to be signed in January.

Riggs officials said the agreement would improve service to their customers, provide the benefits of technological changes as they occur and allow the bank to accurately forecast future technology costs. The bank said it also expects to reduce expenses as a result of the relationship.

Riggs officials said the bank has been examining outsourcing certain operations and communications functions for the past eighteen months as part of an ongoing effort to improve efficiency and reduce costs. The agreement with IBM calls for transferring operational responsibility for computer and telecommunication systems to IBM while Riggs would retain its programming staff, which supports retail and cash management products and services.

Some 75 employees at Riggs will be affected by the agreement, the majority of whom will have the opportunity to be part of the new operation. All affected employees will remain with the bank during a transition period estimated to be approximately 90 days.

EL PASO, TX (DEC. 27) BUSINESS WIRE - El Paso Electric Co. (EPE) announced Thursday that it will file Friday for its fourth increase under the terms of the Rate Moderation Plan ordered by the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT) in 1988 (Docket No. 7460), and for the recovery -- through a similar rate moderation plan involving three annual cash increases -- of the Texas portion of the company's investment in Palo Verde Unit 3.

Both plans provide for the phase-in of the costs associated with the company's investment in the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station by restricting cash increases in early years and deferring revenue requirements over those cash increases for future recovery.

The total amount of the company's requested cash increase in this filing, net of fuel, is approximately $34.2 million (a 12.1 percent increase). The cash increase includes approximately $7.6 million for the fourth step of the Rate Moderation Plan for Units 1 and 2, and approximately $30.4 million for the first step for inclusion of Unit 3 in base rates.

The requested $34.2 million cash increase reflects fuel savings of approximately $3.8 million. El Paso Electric is requesting that its current fixed fuel factor be decreased from $0.01746 to $0.01560 per kilowatt-hour, which will keep EPE's fuel rate among the lowest in the state of Texas. New rates resulting from PUCT action on the filing are expected by mid- to late-1991.

The Unit 3 part of the filing requests additional cash increases of two 11.5 percent increases in 1992 and 1993, respectively. The Rate Moderation Plan for Units 1 and 2 runs through 1997. The Unit 3 plan is expected to last until 1999. The company anticipates a consolidation of the two plans into a single set of rates in this case and subsequent Commission proceedings.

The company is engaged in negotiations with the city of El Paso concerning the proposed rate increase and inclusion of Unit 3 in base rates. EPE President and Chairman of the Board Davis H. Wiggs Jr. reiterated the company's commitment to pursuing a settlement at the local level, and stressed this filing does not indicate an end to these negotiations.

As allowed under the terms of the Units 1 and 2 Rate Moderation Plan (Docket No. 7460), the company's filing includes the 3.5 percent increase ($7.6 million) in cash base rates, excluding fuel costs.

Docket No. 7460 also provided EPE with the opportunity to file for reasonable expenses and a fair return on Palo Verde Unit 3, which has previously not been included in the company's Texas rate base structure. This filing is in conformance with that provision.

Based on EPE's filing, including fuel costs, EPE's average residential bill of 500 kilowatt-hours of electricity would increase to $51.14. Currently, the average residential bill of 500 kilowatt-hours is $45.92. In comparison, the average residential bill in 1983 was $52.01 for 500 kilowatt-hours.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) - Japan's current account surplus shrank 57.4 per cent from a year earlier to 1.75 billion dollars in November as trade in services swung from a rare surplus to a deficit, the Finance Ministry said Thursday.

The surplus in the current account -- which measures trade in both goods and services plus certain financial transactions such as gifts and grants -- was also down sharply from 2.7 billion dollars in October.

But the trade surplus alone grew 9.2 per cent from a year earlier to 4.5 billion dollars, the ministry said. Exports rose 16.8 per cent to reach 25 billion dollars, the sharpest increase in two years, while imports advanced 18.6 per cent to 20.5 billion dollars, the steepest rise since February.

Exports were fuelled by strong sales of motor vehicles and audio-visual equipment, a ministry official said, adding that the growth in imports maninly reflected increased purchases of foreign cars and aircraft.

But the biggest factor behind the smaller current account surplus was the balance in invisible trade comprising services such as shipping and tourism.

The balance swung from a rare surplus of 261 million dollars in November last year, mainly influenced by an unusually large surplus of investment and dividend income, to a deficit of 2.5 billion dollars this November.

Japan's trade balance in services is usually one to three billion dollars in in the red every month due to the country's big deficits in transport and travel transactions.

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, ITALY (DEC. 27) - The Italian minister of nationalised industries and state share-holding, Franco Piga, died of a heart attack late Wednesday while on Christmas holiday at home in this northern Italian city, informed sources said Thursday.

The minister, 63, an attorney and former judge known for his expertise in economy and state administration, was appointed to the ministerial post only six months ago, after several years as president of the stock exchange control commission.

He held several other key economic and administrative posts, including that as the chief of staff of the Italian cabinet from 1969 to 1974.

BANGKOK (DEC. 27) - Thailand and Burma have agreed to reopen a border crossing point closed last month following a spate of bomb attacks, a Thai military official said Thursday.

He said the Thai checkpoint at Mae Sot, 500 kilometers (300 miles) northwest of here, would reopen Friday.

The Burmese crossing point at Myawaddy, opposite Mae Sot across the Moei river was closed to traffic late last month after a bomb exploded at the customs checkpoint, seriously wounding eight Burmese traders.

It was the fourth successive bombing incident since November last year.

Myawaddy is the gateway to Burma's Karen State, homeland of the Karen National Union (KNU), an insurgent group which has been fighting Rangoon for autonomy since Burma gained independence from Britain in 1948.

MANILA (DEC. 27) - Rice production fell by 11 per cent in the first nine months of 1990 due to natural calamities such as typhoons and a killer earthquake in July, the official Philippine News Agency (PNA) said Thursday.

PNA, quoting the Agriculture Department, said production of unmilled rice fell to 4.7 million tonnes from 5.3 million in the same period last year.

Although average yield per hectare remained constant at about 2.7 tonnes, the area planted with rice fell to about 1.8 million hectares (4.45 million acres) from about two million hectares (4.9 million acres) last year due to various natural calamities.

Rice is the staple food for the largely agricultural Philippines.

MANILA (DEC. 27) - The Philippine government on Thursday defended plans to impose a nine per cent levy on all imports, saying it was preferable to domestic borrowing as congress failed to pass new tax measures to trim the budget deficit.

Manila imposed a seven per cent levy on all imports early this month along with steep domestic oil price hikes in a bid to trim the ballooning budget deficit -- currently running at 1.07 billion dollars compared with an original target of 643 million dollars.

Finance Secretary Jesus Estanislao said Thursday he had proposed to President Corazon Aquino that the import levy be raised to nine per cent after congress failed to pass several new tax measures suggested by the government last week.

He said the import levies will be temporary, under an agreement with congress that "after congress passes those (new revenue) measures, then maybe we can go back to seven and eventually to five" per cent.

The measures proposed included new taxes and oil price deregulation. Congress reconvenes next month.

"I am against these import levies but we have no choice now," Mr. Estanislao said, conceding that the levy "will affect all Filipinos."

"If we implement the measures that we have proposed, inflation will be 15 per cent. But if we do not do anything, our inflation rate will hit 25 per cent," he added.

Mr. Estanislao said that while tax collections were forecast to reach 104 billion pesos (3.7 billion dollars) this year or 27 per cent more than last year, customs collections will be six per cent or two billion pesos (71.4 million dollars) below target.

The less attractive alternative would be to increase domestic borrowing, but the resulting increase in the money supply would push up inflation, he added.

BEIJING (DEC. 27) - China's foreign ministry ordered Vietnam on Thursday to withdraw its forces from the disputed Spratly islands in the South China Sea although it not say what the consequences would be if Vietnam ignored the warning.

"Vietnam must withdraw from the islands and reefs of China's Nansha islands it has illegally occupied," ministry spokesman Li Zhaoxing told reporters.

Mr. Li said the Vietnamese presence on the islands, also called the Spratlys, was "blatant encroachment" upon China's sovereignty, adding: "The Vietnam position is totally unacceptable to us."

The warning was in response to a claim made by Vietnam's foreign ministry last week that the Spratlys and the neighboring Paracel islands belonged to Hanoi.

Chinese naval forces seized several of the Spratly islands from Vietnam in a brief clash in 1988 and have since expanded their military occupation to include several small atolls.

The Spratlys are strategically important because they straddle vital sea lanes from the Indian Ocean and the area is said to have promising oil and natural gas reserves.

The Spratlys are claimed, in whole or in part, by China, Vietnam, the Philippines, Taiwan and Malaysia.

The Paracels were seized from Vietnam by China in 1974.

It is unlikely that China will resort to force to take the Spratlys. Chinese Premier Li Peng said on a recent tour of southeast Asia that an "appropriate solution" to the problem could be found at an "appropriate time."

"I think we can set this issue aside and not let it interfere in bilateral relations between China and other parties concerned," the premier said.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) - Japanese companies spent some 5,000 billion yen (37 billion dollars) -- more than the country's defence budget -- on business lunches, golf and gifts last year, tax authorities said here Thursday.

Between February 1989 and January 1990, Japanese executives' and salaried workers' total business expenses rose 10 per cent, the biggest increase since 1979, they said.

Each day of the year, they charged an average 100 million dollars to their firms in bars, restaurants and clubs in Japan or overseas.

The most extravagant spenders were in the distribution sector with 6.6 billion dollars in expenses, followed by construction with 6.4 billion dollars and service industries with 3.7 billion, the authorities said.

They also valued Japanese firms' financial reserves -- profits after tax, dividends and bonuses -- at 134 billion dollars at the end of January 1990.

Japanese companies also made donations worth 3.1 billion dollars, most of which came under a category including gifts to political parties.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) - Japan's industrial output in November fell one per cent from October but grew 6.6 per cent from a year earlier, the International Trade and Industry Ministry said Thursday.

The ministry said in a preliminary report that its index of mining and manufacturing stood at 128.7 points in November compared with 100 for the base year of 1985. Production was sluggish in the transport, machinery and precision instrument sectors, it said.

Shipments by producers fell 1.7 per cent from the preceding month but rose six per cent from November last year.

A ministry official predicted that the Japanese economy would remain strong for at least another two months, with industrial output in January and February expected to post increases from the previous months.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 27) - The Belgian government on Thursday advised Belgians in the Gulf region to leave in the run-up to a United Nations January 15 deadline for the possible use of force against Iraq.

The Belgian Foreign Affairs Ministry advised tourists to keep away because of the "persistent tension" in the area, adding that businessmen and other Belgians should also leave unless their presence was strictly necessary.

The ministry said all Belgian nationals in Gulf countries should notify their nearest diplomatic representatives of their whereabouts.

The U.N. Security Council has set January 15 as the deadline after which force can be used to expel Iraq from Kuwait. Nearly half a million troops, mainly American, are currently based in Saudi Arabia ready to attack.

The Belgian statement said the ministry's warning was a precautionary common-sense measure, since "it would be fair to say that being in countries in an area of potential conflict is not without risk".

TOKYO (DEC. 27) - Japanese computer giant NEC Corp. has reached a licensing agreement to use semiconductor technology developed by Dutch electronics group NV Philips, a newspaper reported Thursday.

The Yomiuri Shimbun said the agreement would enable NEC to produce semiconductors using the Dutch company's bus system, parallel conductors in a computer system forming a main transmission path.

NEC plans to start selling 11 kinds of semiconductors produced with the technology in Europe next month, company officials were quoted as saying.

Neither company was immediately available to comment on the report.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) - Japanese investors resumed buying foreign securities in November after two months of record selling, largely prompted by more attractive interest rates in Japan, the Finance Ministry said Thursday.

Net purchases of foreign securities came to 2.15 billion dollars in November compared with record net sales of 2.74 billion dollars in October. The turnaround reflected renewed buying of bonds issued by foreign borrowers.

"This was due to the prospects for lower interest rates in the United States," a ministry official said, referring to market expectations last month towards increased prices for U.S. Treasury bonds.

Japanese buying of foreign bonds amounted to 1.76 billion dollars, reversing sales of 1.94 billion dollars the previous month. Purchases of yen-denominated bonds issued in Japan by foreign borrowers -- such as samurai and daimyo bonds -- meanwhile jumped from 370 million dollars to 599 million dollars.

Investors remained net sellers of foreign stocks, although the amount sold fell from 1.17 billion dollars in October to 212 million dollars in November.

Foreign purchases of Japanese securities meanwhile continued but fell sharply from 5.39 billion dollars to 1.91 billion, reflecting increased selling of Japanese stocks and renewed selling of bonds, the ministry said.

Net sales of Japanese stocks jumped from 54 million dollars to 223 million dollars while transactions in Japanese bonds swung from purchases of 1.89 billion dollars in October to sales of 794 million dollars in November.

But foreign buying of Japanese bonds issued abroad continued, albeit at a slower pace with net purchases falling from 3.56 billion dollars the previous month to 2.92 billion, the ministry said.

Japan's overall outflow of long-term capital -- which includes direct investment, certain trade credits and loans in addition to securities transactions -- came to 8.67 billion dollars. That compared with inflows of 5.82 billion dollars and left an overall deficit of 2.85 billion dollars.

TAIPEI (DEC. 27) - Taiwan approved on Thursday opening the volatile local stock market to direct investment by foreign insititutions, sending share prices up nearly six per cent on the last trading day of a very bearish year.

Under the long-awaited measure, a maximum 2.5 billion U.S. dollars from no more than 25 foreign institutions including banks, insurance firms and mutual fund managers, will be allowed into the local bourse.

Taiwan has permitted indirect foreign holdings since 1983 through four mutual funds with investments worth 156 million U.S. dollars, Deputy Government spokesman Liao Chen-hao said.

He said the authorities hoped the latest move, effective from January, would improve the capital structure and operations of the local stock market through direct participation of professional institutional investors, he said.

To ensure stability and protect domestic enterprises from foreign manipulation a foreign institution will be allowed to take a maximum five per cent stake in a listed firm while no more than 10 per cent of its shares can be owned by foreigners, Mr. Liao said.

The stock exchange's benchmark 216-issue weighted price index closed the trading year Thursday at 4,530.16 points, 250.83 points up on Wednesday -- and 53 per cent down from the last trading day of 1989.

The volatile bourse soared to 12,495.34 points on February 10 before nosediving to 2,560.47 points on October 1 for a loss of 80 per cent amid an economic slowdown on the island made worse by the Gulf crisis.

Analyst Tseng Ping-ou at Pacific Securities Co. Ltd. said the bourse looked to have the worst behind it and should trade at between 6,000 and 7,000 points next year, buoyed by projected economic growth of 6.14 per cent next year and the injection of foreign capital.

The finance ministry in September appropriated 8.6 billion Taiwan dollars (318.5 million U.S.) from the labor pension fund to help revive the sagging stock market, once a gold-mine for speculators.

The government then agreed in October to allow qualified private brokerages to finance stock purchases, breaking the monopoly on margin lending by Fu Hwa Securities Finance Co. which is controlled by the ruling Kuomintang.

LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND (DEC. 27) - Some 500 million dollars salted away in Switzerland by former Philippines president Ferdinand Marcos will be available to the Manila government once it goes through appropriate formalities, Switzerland's highest court announced Thursday.

The ruling by the Federal Tribunal put an end to five years of wrangling over the Swiss bank accounts set up by the late Mr. Marcos, who died in exile in the United States after popular unrest forced him from power.

The tribunal said a Philippines court would have to award the money to claimants or confiscate it on behalf of the state before it could be handed over.

Mr. Marcos's widow Imelda was among those who laid unsuccessful claim to the funds here.

The government of President Corazon Aquino charges that Mr. Marcos and his family and friends diverted billions of dollars from the Philippines Treasury during the late president's 20-year tenure.

TAIPEI (DEC. 27) - The Council for Economic Planning and Development (CEPD) proposed Thursday an 8.58 trillion dollar (316.5 billion U.S. dollars) plan to make Taiwan a developed country in six years, CEPD Chairmwoman Shirley Kuo said.

"In the short term, substantial investment by the government called for in the development plan will keep our economy humming and in the long run, various projects are expected to improve the domestic living environment and consolidate the base of local manufacturers," Mrs. Kuo said.

The 1991-96 economic construction package, targetting seven per cent annual economic growth, is intended to increase personal income, accelerate industrial development, balance regional expansion on the island and improve the quality of life, she said.

The 779 projects outlined include highway and subway systems, petrochemical plants, industrial zones for heavy industries, the country's fourth nuclear power plant and sophisticated pollution control facilities.

According to the development plan, Taiwan's gross national product should reach 298.5 billion U.S. dollars by 1996, up from 161.5 billion this year.

Per capita income should rise from 7,990 U.S. dollars to 13,975 U.S. dollars by 1996, it added.

Some 32.3 per cent of the total budget of 8.58 trillion Taiwan dollars will be spent on transportation and communications, Mrs. Kuo said, adding that housing would take 14 per cent and energy exploration 11.6 per cent.

The authorities planned to issue government bonds to raise 46.1 per cent of the capital for the plan while the rest would come from the annual budget, she said.

The planned investment, which is in turn expected to encourage private capital spending, should add about two percentage points to annual economic growth rates during the six years, analysts said.

The plan has yet to be approved by the cabinet.

HANOI (DEC. 27) - The Soviet Union was able to supply Vietnam with only 80 to 85 per cent of targets set under bilateral accords, Soviet Ambassador Rashid Khamidouline said on Thursday.

Mr. Khamidouline also said Vietnam had supplied the Soviet Union with only about half the amount of rice agreed under the 1990 plan -- 150,000 tonnes against 300,000.

He said Soviet targets for petrol and other primary materials to Vietnam had been met but there had been shortfalls in cotton and fertilisers.

He did not give precise figures but noted that the volume of economic cooperation between the two countries in 1990 represented 40 per cent of Vietnam's external economic relations.

There also had been shortfalls in supplies from Vietnam of other agricultural food products.

But he added that exchanges between the two countries during the past year were "acceptable."

Boris Melnik, economic counsellor at the Soviet Embassy here, said projects in Vietnam for next year had not been decided and Soviet investment was being examined, adding that concrete figures were not available.

The economic relationship between Moscow and Hanoi is expected to change immensely with the end of the current five-year pact up to December 31, with future payments to be made in foreign exchange.

He said talks were necessary to resolve problems in all areas and Vietnamese and Soviet suppliers and receivers should seek to establish greater mutual understanding to ensure no drop in cooperation volume.

The two sides are expected to hold talks on cooperation during the transitory stage and were due to sign major documents including a new accord on the new trade and economic mechanism between the two countries.

Accords on commerce and banking cooperation are also to be signed in the future.

The Soviet Union has long been Vietnam's top trade partner, but the picture could change with Moscow trying to redress its massive economic problems.

BANGKOK (DEC. 27) - Thailand and Iran have agreed to boost economic cooperation, with Teheran to supply 20,000 barrels of crude oil a day throughout 1991, a Thai Foreign Ministry official said Thursday.

The crude oil supply agreement was reached in a meeting between Thai Foreign Minister Arthit Urairat and visiting Iranian counterpart Alaeddin Broujardi at the Thai Foreign Ministry on Wednesday, the official said.

Iran offered barter deals including crude oil for rice, marble for raw rubber and apples for bananas and pineapples, he said, adding that details on trade and economic cooperation were to be worked out at the first meeting of the Thai-Iranian Joint Commission May 1-10 in Teheran.

"They also proposed cooperation in fishing in the Persian Gulf as well as in civil aviation," the official said.

Mr. Broujardi, commenting on the Gulf crisis, told Thai authorities that his government thinks a peaceful solution is still possible, even after the January 15 deadline set by the United Nations for Iraqi forces to withdraw from occupied Kuwait.

Mr. Arthit is to leave here early Saturday for an official visit to Saudi Arabia, where he will meet with Saudi leaders to map out a contingency plan for evacuating some 6,000 Thai workers there in the event war breaks out in the region. He is expected to return home Wednesday.

RABAT (DEC. 27) - Courts in the Moroccan cities of Tangier, Meknes and Kenitra have sentenced a total of 107 people to jail terms of between three months and two years for their part in demonstrations during a general strike earlier this month.

The defendants were accused of public order offences including armed riotous assembly and civil disobedience in connection with bloody clashes between rioters and police during a general strike on December 14. Four people were cleared of the charges.

Fines of up to 600 dirham (100 dollars) were also imposed in some cases.

In Fez, where the worst violence was reported, 40 people were given jail terms of up to seven years in a trial Tuesday. Further proceedings are pending against trade unionists, journalists and other demonstrators at Fez, Rabat, Tangier and Meknes.

The government, trade union organisations and employees' representatives have resumed talks in Rabat on union wage demands and calls for increased state help for the socially worse off.

A government commission is to study the causes of the strike clashes during which, according to official reports, five people died. Unofficial reports said more than 50 people had been killed.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) - Wako Koeki Co., a Tokyo-based firm specializing in trade with communist countries, has virtually gone bankrupt, a private credit research institute said Thursday.

The medium-sized Japanese trading house sought court protection Wednesday after incurring debts of an estimated 15 billion yen (110 million dollars), Teikoku Data Bank Ltd. said.

It said that Wako, with capital of 160 million yen (1.2 million dollars), had suffered heavily from a sharp drop in trade with China.

Japan and other countries imposed economic and other sanctions against China following its bloody military crackdown on pro-democracy protesters in Beijing in June last year.

The sanctions have now been largely lifted.

BELGRADE (DEC. 27) - Yugoslavia could slide into anarchy and chaos, Prime Minister Ante Markovic warned after Slovenia declared itself an independent state.

The prime minister's comments came as he prepared to meet with members of Yugoslavia's collegial presidency -- representing each republic -- to discuss what he called the serious erosion of the country's legal and economic system.

Deep differences have long opposed the country's patchwork of six republics and have troubled the search for a political model to succeed the single-party regime imposed by the late Josip Broz Tito after World War II.

But the Slovenian declaration of independence Wednesday was the most daring of the breaches of the constitution and federal laws that have become commonplace in all the republics since Yugoslavia renounced the primacy of communism.

Friday, Mr. Markovic is to present a report of Thursday's talks to parliament. His report is expected to contain an outline -- based on his political and economic reform program -- for some sort of political consensus to hold the country together.

But a recent round of free elections in each republic only enhanced discrepancies. While four republics opted for a non-communist leadership, Serbia, the largest republic, where Belgrade is located, and tiny Montenegro confirmed the ascendancy of the communists.

The Serbian Socialist Party won by a landslide victory in parliamentary elections, according to final results Tuesday.

At the other end of the political spectrum, Slovenia gave an overwhelming 88.2 per cent vote in favor of independence in a referendum Sunday. Three days later, it declared itself an independent state. Under electoral law, it has six months to put the result of the referendum into effect.

In the middle, the republic of Croatia, also non-communist, has adopted a new constitution giving it the right of self-determination and eventually secession if talks on redrawing relations with the other republics break down.

Slovenian Prime Miniter Lojze Peterle said that the republic would not secede from the Yugoslav federation, but would rather seek "gradual detachment."

Slovenian President Milan Kucan, meanwhile, insisted that the result was "not a matter of a final break with Yugoslavia." But he said the show of Slovene determination could relaunch negotiations on transforming Yugoslavia into a confederation of sovereign states.

Whatever the outcome, Slovenia's parliamentary speaker France Bucar said the republic's proclamation showed that "Yugoslavia, as a unified state, is a creation now incapable of continuing."

Mr. Markovic, however, insisted that the people of Yugoslavia "must and can" agree on some minimal common legal structue to allow the state to continue functioning before tackling the final question of "whether they want to live together and how."

Though the differences appeared irreconcilable, analysts said that the mere fact that Mr. Markovic managed to convene the meeting Thursday of the representatives from the different republics was a key achievement.

MADRID (DEC. 27) - King Juan Carlos of Spain veered off an ice-covered mountainous road while on his way to his home in the Pyrenees for a skiing holiday and ploughed his Porsche into a crash-barrier, palace sources said Thursday.

The monarch, who turns 53 on January 5, was on his way to Baqueira Beret in the Catalan Pyrenees where Spanish royals traditionally pass their winter skiing holidays.

Juan Carlos, a passionate sportsman who pilots his owns aircraft, rides a motorbike and likes sailing and skiing, decided to go by car rather than by helicopter.

BAGHDAD (DEC. 27) - Soviet Deputy Prime Minister Igor Belussov met here Thursday with President Saddam Hussein to discuss bilateral relations and the situation in the Gulf, the Iraqi News Agency reported.

It said the talks took place "within the framework of friendly relations between the two countries."

Mr. Belussov arrived here Wednesday and hailed a recent decision by Baghdad to allow all Soviet experts working in Iraq to leave the country.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry has said some 1,700 Soviet citizens are still in Iraq and that Mr. Belussov would try to negotiate their repatriation.

Iraqi authorities are reportedly demanding compensation from Moscow for broken contracts.

But a spokesman for the ministry said all Soviet nationals who wanted to leave should be out of Iraq by January 10.

Once close political allies, Iraq and the Soviet Union have been sharply at odds over the Gulf crisis.

Moscow has backed international condemnation of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, including a U.N. Security Council resolution that authorizes the use of force to remove Iraqi troops from the emirate.

TEHERAN (DEC. 27) - The Iranian Foreign Ministry reaffirmed Thursday its intention not to re-establish diplomatic relations with the United States, adding that Iran's policy toward Washington was unchanged.

Ministry spokesman Morteza Sarmadi dismissed a statement by a former Japanese ambassador to Washington, Nobuo Matsunaga, who said Iranian officials would welcome resumption of normal ties with the United States.

Mr. Sarmadi, cited by the official IRNA news agency, said "such matters were never raised on the part of Iran during Matsunaga's meetings with the president and foreign minister."

The former Japanese envoy met President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati in October but recently commented on a possible resumption of relations in a U.S. press interview.

Mr. Sarmadi meanwhile said Iranian policy toward the United States "will stay unchanged so long as that country continues to block Iranian assets, supports the Zionist regime and refuses to apply pressure to secure the release of Palestinian and Lebanese Moslem prisoners held in Israeli jails."

The United States, following the seziure of U.S. diplomats in Teheran in 1979, imposed economic sanctions on Iran, notably by seizing Iranian bank assets and confiscating military hardware that Iran had ordered and paid for.

On Monday, a senior Iranian Oil Ministry official said his country was prepared to resume oil sales to U.S. companies after a three-year suspension.

Mehdi Hosseini, the ministry's international affairs expert, was responding to an announcement by the U.S. State Department on Saturday that U.S. companies had been authorized to import limited quantities of Iranian oil.

But the department said the firms would have to deposit earnings from such imports in an escrow account to finance U.S. claims against Iran now being adjudicated by a special tribunal in the The Hague.

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (DEC. 27) - Pakistani police said here Thursday they would start prosecuting the alleged killers of Iranian diplomat Sadiq Ganji in a special anti-terrorist court within three days.

The investigation into the December 19 murder of Mr. Ganji, head of the Iranian Cultural Centre in Lahore, was almost complete, Punjab Police Chief Chaudhry Manzoor Hussain told a news conference.

Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif had ordered authorities to start legal proceedings in the case within a week, he said.

Some of the eight suspects in police custody belonged to the Anjuman-e-Sipah-Sahaba (ASS), a Pakistani religious group which Iran blamed for the assassination, the police official said. But it was not yet established whether any organization was behind the killing, he said.

Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister Ali Muhammad Basharati said Monday in Lahore that Pakistan-Iranian relations would be adversely affected if Islamabad failed to ban the organization.

The Pakistani premier is scheduled to pay an official visit to Iran from January 19.

The suspects, aged between 22 and 28, planned the murder for a month and two of them met Mr. Ganji at the cultural centre on the day of the killing to obtain details of his engagements, Mr. Hussain charged.

In statements recorded during interrogation, the suspects said they plotted to kill Mr. Ganji to "avenge" the murder of ASS leader Haq Nawaz Jhangvi early this year at Jhang, the ASS base in Punjab, Mr. Hussain said.

The police chief quoted them as saying the Iranian diplomat and an unnamed leader of the Pakistani minority Shiite community were "involved" in the slaying of Mr. Jhangvi. The case has remained unsolved to date.

"We regard the killing of Sadiq Ganji as a pious act," Mr. Hussain quoted the suspects as saying.

Investigators had not yet recorded the statement of the main suspect, Haq Nawaz, who was seriously wounded when he tried to commit suicide by shooting himself when he was surrounded by the police soon after the murder, he said.

Doctors expect him to be able to speak in a couple of days, Mr. Hussain said.

Haq Nawaz allegedly fired bursts from a Kalashnikov rifle at the diplomat as he got out of his car outside the International hotel and then fled on a motorbike.

ASS chief, Maulana Ziaur Rehman Farooqi, in a statement published Thursday, said his organization had no link with the murder and demanded a probe into the killing by a high court judge.

He accused Iran of interfering in the internal affairs and said Iran, a Shia Moslem majority state, wanted to bring about an "Iran-type revolution" in Pakistan.

Mr. Basharati described ASS Monday as an "agent" of Wahabism, a Sunni Moslem religious sect of Saudi origin.

ASS, which literally means soldiers of companions of the Prophet Mohammad, and the Shiite community have been at loggerheads over religious issues.

Shiites constitute about 20 per cent of Pakistan's 110 million people, most of whom are Sunni Moslems.

LISBON (DEC. 27) - Rebels in Mozambique killed two civilians on Christmas Day in an attack on Marera in the Beira corridor, where a ceasefire is supposed to be in force, the state news agency AIM said in a report received here Thursday.

The rebels set fire to 25 houses in the village, which lies between Chimoio, the capital of Manica province, and the Rovue hydroelectric dam.

At the beginning of the month, the government and the Mozambique National Resistance (RENAMO) rebels agreed at talks in Italy to observe a partial ceasefire in their 15-year war. The ceasefire was to apply to the Beira corridor which provides landlocked Zimbabwe with road and rail outlets to the Indian Ocean.

Under the agreement, Zimbabwe's troops stationed in Mozambique are being redeployed from combat areas in the centre to the corridor to join other troops guarding the vital links, which include an oil pipeline.

ROME (DEC. 27) - Most Italians want a strong, elected presidency in place of the current parliamentary regime but are less certain as to who should get the job, a poll published here Thursday disclosed.

More than two-thirds of those polled by the daily Corriere della Serra (67.1 percent) said they favoured a president elected by universal suffrage, leading the paper to comment that "Italians are ready for the second republic".

But an almost equally large majority of 65.1 percent said they did not know whom they would put in the post.

Of those who could make up their minds, 7.1 percent voted for the Christian Democrat (DC) Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, 7.1 percent for incumbent head of state Francesco Cossiga (also DC), 5.6 percent for Socialist Party leader Bettino Craxi, 0.3 percent for DC secretary-general Arnaldo Forlani.

One percent apiece voted for Fiat auto company boss Gianni Agnelli, television baron Silvio Berlusconi, and Italian Communist Party chief Achille Occhetto.

Under the current constitution, which buried Mussolini's Fascism in 1946, the president is elected by parliament and is largely responsible only for the designation of prime ministers after consultation with parliamentary political parties.

HANKO, FINLAND (DEC. 27) - A tug pushing a barge to the Finnish port of Koverhar capsized Thursday in high seas off this southern coast town, leaving the pilot and nine crew feared drowned, the FNB-STT news agency said.

Coastguard vessels and rescue tugs were at 3 p.m. (1300 GMT) on the spot searching for the missing crew and awaiting helicopter support, but the operation was hampered by strong winds and a snowstorm.

BEIJING (DEC. 27) - Fears of an overheating economy and resurgent inflation have prompted Chinese economists to warn that the rise in industrial output should not pass six percent in 1991, the China Daily said Thursday.

"Some indicators clearly point to a speeding up of the economy," the official English-language newspaper said.

China's industrial production surged by 15 percent in November compared to the same month in 1989. The State Statistics Bureau (SSB) had forecast the figure might approach 13 percent in December "in contrast to the five percent to seven percent favoured by economists," China Daily said.

The target for 1990 was fixed at six percent.

An overheating economy in 1988 caused the worst inflation in almost 40 years, the newspaper said. The official inflation figure for the year was 18.5 percent.

"Growth has become too rapid," it quoted economist Lu Chunheng as saying.

"The country can't continue like this for three more months without sacrificing the health of its economy," said Mr. Lu, a senior SSB economist.

NEW DELHI (DEC. 27) - Finance Minister Yashwant Sinha said on Thursday that India's staggering economy could be put back on the rails despite rising inflation and announced tax changes to bring in some 450 million dollars.

Mr. Sinha told the Lok Sabha, the lower house of parliament, that the cash-strapped economy was facing a grave crisis, but with better management and revenue collection it could bounce back.

"The task before us is indeed difficult but it is manageable," he said, adding: "What we need is firm resolve on the part of the government, combined with the support of the parliament and the people."

Mr. Sinha also said in a statement that "much needed fiscal consolidation would enable us to ease the inflationary pressure on the economy and manage the difficult balance-of-payments situation."

At the same time, the minister announced tax changes to generate an additional 450 million dollars to offset severe financial problems caused by the Gulf crisis.

An income tax surcharge on non-corporate tax payers earning over 75,000 rupees (4,160 dollars) per year will be increased from eight to 12 percent, he said, while tax allowances for depreciation costs will be cut back.

The Gulf crisis, triggered by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait, is estimated to have cost India about 2.9 billion dollars due to higher oil bills and reduced remittances from workers in the Middle East.

Inflation has risen above 10 percent a year, against eight percent last year, and is expected to increase further.

The government has asked the International Monetary Fund (IMF) for some 1.68 billion dollars to shore up India's foreign exchange reserves, which have plunged to an all-time low of 1.5 billion dollars.

Mr. Sinha said the Indian economy had the resilience and strength for sustained growth in both the agricultural and industrial sectors, "supported by our physical infrastructure and human resources.

"The basic strength is there to overcome the crisis," he added.

MOSCOW (DEC. 27) - Soviet deputies have elected 194 new members to the Supreme Soviet in the first annual vote to renew the standing legislature's membership, the president of the electoral commission, Yuri Osipian, said Thursday.

The 542-member body, set up under a reorganization of parliament last year, is divided into two chambers, the Soviet of Nationalities and the Soviet of the Union.

One-fifth of its overall membership is to be voted on each year, though more were actually involved in Thursday's ballot after several deputies left the Supreme Soviet on their own accord, according to Mr. Osipian.

He said 13 candidates, mostly reformers including Ukrainian economist Vladimir Cherniak, failed to win election to the Supreme Soviet.

The 2,250 members of the enlarged parliament, the Congress of People's Deputies, can attend Supreme Soviet debates but do not have the right to vote there.

The next session of the Supreme Soviet will start on January 8, according to the legislature's chairman, Anatoli Lukyanov.

PESHAWAR, Pakistan (DEC. 27) - An Afghan mujahedin leader condemned Saudi Arabia Thursday for providing Moscow with financial assistance, saying some of the money would go to help prop up the Soviet-backed government in Kabul.

Prime Minister Abdul Rab Rasool Sayaf, of the Pakistan-based Afghan Interim Government (Aig), said four billion dollars provided by Saudi Arabia ''to sustain'' Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev would partly help President Najibullah in Afghanistan against ''the mujahedin starved of food and arms''.

Sayaf's comments were made at a rally at his headquarters at Pabbi on the 11th anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, apparently unaware that his cabinet colleagues had received Wednesday about 1.5 million dollars from the Saudi ambassador in Islamabad.

Sayaf also accused the exiled Kuwaiti government and other Arab governments of aligning themselves with ''the conspiracy of U.S., Ussr and the U.N. to block the establishment of an Islamic government by the mujahedin in Afghanistan''.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 27) - Police Thursday banned a march to the Temple Mount by Jewish zealots on the grounds that it could have raised tensions among Jerusalem's large Moslem population.

The Temple Mount Faithful had planned the provocative demonstration for Thursday morning but were stopped in the Western Wall piazza by police before they could enter the disputed holy site.

Earlier, Palestinian youths congregated around the Dome of the Rock and Al Aqsa mosque on the Temple Mount and pelted border police with stones, causing the temporary closure of the area.

A march planned by the Temple Mount Faithful for October 8 helped sparked a clash in which police shot dead at least 17 Palestnians.

Police also banned a different march planned for Saturday by the left wing Women for Peace movement along the road which divides Jewish west Jerusalem from the Arab eastern sector.

Police said they could not vouch for the safety of the demonstrators. The march was planned two days prior to the January 1 annniversary of the establishment of the Fatah faction of the Palestine Liberation Organisation when disruptions are expected.

In the West Bank and Gaza Strip, security forces continued with their crackdown of Palestinian activists, arresting some 20 alleged members of the Islamic fundamntalist Hammas movement near Tulkarm.

More than 130,000 Palestinians wer confined to their homes in Nablus where a curfew was imposed after demonstaations.

CAMPO GRANDE, Brazil (DEC. 27) - Brazilian authorities are gathering a team of psychologists, sociologists and anthropologists to probe a rash of suicides that has taken the lives of more than 20 young Indians living on a reservation near here, officials said Thursday.

Manuel Alves de Paula, an official of the state National Indian Foundation (FUNAI) in Mato Grosso do Sur state, said 23 Kaiowa Indians between the ages of 14 and 18 had hanged themselves this year from trees on a reservation created for the Guarani Indian community, to which the Kaiowas belong.

Twenty other Kaiowa youths unsuccessfully attempted suicide but have so far refused to explain their actions, he said.

Mr. Alves de Paula said the investigators would begin next week examining several possible explanations for the suicides, including desperation fostered by the extreme poverty of the Kaiowas.

"The Indians are prey to alcoholism, are becoming beggars and can see in the city's markets a world which is not theirs and which is unattainable," he told reporters.

Some observers, Mr. Alves de Paula added, viewed the suicides as "an heroic act by Guaranies faced with the difficulties of living in the world of white people."

The official said police were also investigating the possibility that the supposed suicides were actually killings designed to eliminate the Indians from "valuable lands" that are coveted by ranchers and lumber concerns. But he said the police had uncovered no evidence to back up such speculation.

RIO DE JANEIRO (DEC. 27) - The Brazilian Government has launched an attack on alleged abuses of economic power by quasi monopolies in the private sector.

Targeted for the first government probes are the Autolatina car firm, a jointly operated subsidiary of Germany's Volkswagen and the U.S. Ford Motor Co., and the country's pharmaceutical sector.

Autolatina, which controls 60 per cent of the protected Brazilian automobile market, incurred government wrath by increasing its retail prices 50 per cent last month.

A government hearing into the price hikes began Wednesday.

But the company said it was not prepared to back down.

The vice chairman of Autolatina, Miguel Jorge, rejected any notion of coming to a deal with regulators.

But representatives of the pharmaceutical sector said, after a separate hearing Wednesday into allegations of abusive use of monopolistic powers, they were freezing prices on prescriptions for 45 days and would then adjust them only once a month.

The apparent backdown by the pharmaceuticals industry followed a government threat to postpone indefinitely the recognition of pharmaceutical patents which the major companies -- supported by the United States -- have been demanding for a decade.

The government had accused the pharmaceutical firms of increasing their prescription prices by more than 1,000 per cent since March.

Meanwhile, the battle with the automobile sector appears to be hotting up.

The government approved a new law Wednesday that would dismantle an automobile retail cartel which allowed manufacturers to fine retail outlets that sold vehicles at lower than the manufacturers' recommended prices. The cartel also restricted retailers to specific geographical operations.

The new law will, the government says, make it easier for newcomers to set up shop in the automobile retail sector.

KARACHI (DEC. 27) - The chief minister of Pakistan's southern Sindh province, Jam Sadiq Ali, accused the opposition Thursday led by former prime minister Benazir Bhutto of financing terrorist activities in the province.

Mr. Jam told a news conference here, "I have proof that ... (2.5 million dollars) was given to terrorists at Bilalwal house (Ms. Bhutto's seaside villa here) recently and the matter was being investigated."

The accusations came after Ms. Bhutto charged in Islamabad on Tuesday that top leaders of the Sindh government were involved in drug trafficking and were adopting a vindictive attitude towards political opponents.

While denying these charges as "baseless," Mr. Jam said: "We respect law, but the opposition respects terrorists and supplies arms to them."

Ms. Bhutto in her statement had alleged that drug abuse and drug trafficking had increased during the past few months and kidnapping was also on the rise.

The Sindh chief minister noted a successful operation Thursday by Sindh police against bandits in the interior of the province, long in the grip of ethnic and political violence.

He said 70 bandits had been killed in operations and 229 had been arrested since August 6.

Mr. Jam said there were no political prisoners in Sindh and that such allegations were baseless and malicious. He said the arrest of Manzoor Wassan, a deputy of Ms. Bhutto's party in the Sindh assembly, was not politically motivated.

He said the Sindh government under Ms. Bhutto had arrested 54,190 people under preventive laws.

RABAT (DEC. 27) - At least 670 people face trial in Morocco following a banned general strike this month which led to widespread violence and the number is likely to rise, informed sources said here Thursday.

In the northern town of Fez, where five people were killed and 127 hurt in the clashes, according to official figures, at least 401 people have been charged in connection with the violence, according to a provisional count by Agence France-Presse.

A court in Fez had up to Thursday handed down the most severe sentences in a series of jailings across the country, with 12 people being put behind bars for seven years for "rebellion, armed gathering in a public place and breach of the peace," among other charges.

The December 14 strike was called by two trade union federations - the CGTM and the CDT - which were on Thursday engaged in the country's first ever three-way talks with the government and industrial management.

The unions called the strike because they argued that the government was not making progress in meeting their wage demands, but the authorities declared it "a non-conformist act inadmissible by custom and tradition in democratic countries".

Trials on breach of the peace charges and others including "voluntary arson, theft and the formation of gangs of lawbreakers" have also been under way notably in Rabat, Tangiers, Kenitra, Sidi Kacem, Beni Mellal and Meknes.

Records of court proceedings indicate that lawyers have been disallowed bail requests on behalf of defendants as well as on grounds of wrongful prosecution procedures.

Opposition newspapers on Thursday again spoke out against the pursuit of the court action, while a promised official commission to look into the riots had yet to be formed.

The unions have rejected the membership of the commission proposed by Prime Minister Azeddine Laraki. Its task would be to establish a definitive toll from the violence across the country.

BAGHAD (DEC. 27) - Iraq on Thursday asked Oman to help secure the release of an Iraqi-flagged cargo ship carrying provisions and some 250 Arab and foreign women that was seized by multinational naval forces in the Gulf.

A communique from the decision-making Revolutionary Command Council and the ruling Baath party also appealed to Arabs and Moslems to denounce the "ignoble crime" committed by U.S., British and Australian naval units who intercepted and boarded the Ibn Khaldoun.

The vessel, described here as a "peace ship," was stopped in Omani waters of the Arabian Sea as it was travelling from the Yemeni port of Aden to southern Iraq.

A warning shot was fired when it initially refused to stop and a scuffle broke out with some the crew as the ship was boarded, according to U.S. military officials.

The vessel was later directed to the United Arab Emirate port of Fujeirah, escorted by nine warships and an aircraft carrier.

The Iraqi communique appealed for help from authorities in Muscat because "the ship was intercepted in Omani territorial waters."

It called on "all Arabs and Moslems, at both official and popular levels, to denounce loudly and clearly ... this odious crime."

Iraqi authorities also urged passengers aboard the Ibn Khaldoun "not to give in to the invaders and to carry on, so that the ship and its cargo can continue on its journey to the port of Oum Qasr (southeastern Iraq)."

Passengers insisted the vessel was carrying medicine and powdered milk for infants as part of a mission organized by the General Union of Arab Women, representing 21 governmental and non-governmental groups.

But U.S. military officials said the cargo included food and supplies of sugar that are banned from reaching Iraq by terms of a United Nations Security Council trade embargo.

The restrictions were imposed to protest Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

ALGIERS (DEC. 27) - Half a million people, according to reliable estimates, marched Thursday through the centre of Algiers to protest against religious and political intolerance, the rising cost of living and the Arabisation of the country "on the cheap."

The march came less than 24 hours after parliament passed a new law which will make Arabic Algeria's official language by 1997.

Demonstrators were responding to a call from Hocine Ait-Ahmed's Socialist Forces' Front (FFS) whose leaders erected a tent outside President Chadli Bendjedid's residence as its "social headquarters".

The FFS claimed that the authorities have so far refused the front its own headquarters in Algiers, unlike other political parties.

Demonstrators chanted slogans like "Stop the massacre of the economy", "FFS in power" and "Hands off our language" and "Tamazight (Berber) in schools."

The marchers wound their way from the centre of the city to the presidential residence. They waved national flags and carried portraits of Mr. Ait-Ahmed.

Crowds outside the president's residence reserved their biggest cheers for Mr. Ait-Ahmed and louldy booed Prime Minister Mouloud Hamrouche and members of the country's former unique party, the National Liberation Front.

The march was initially planned, according to Mr. Ait-Ahmed, to show that there were democratic forces in Algeria and that there was an alternative policy to that of the more fundamentalist Islamic Salvation Front.

Mr. Ait-Ahmed criticised the Arabisation law and said it was a threat to civic harmony and threatened to stifle free expression.

The Arabisation law, approved by parliament Wednesday, calls for all official documents and correspondence in Algeria, including those produced by private companies, shops and political parties, to be henceforth produced in Arabic on pain of heavy fines.

The law stipulates that documents produced in languages other than Arabic -- the main ones used are French and Berber -- could bring fines of up to 5,000 dinars (just over 500 dollars).

The fines are much steeper in the case of political parties producing literature in other languages -- up to 100,000 dinars (over 10,000 dollars).

Although specialist publications and those aimed specifically at foreign readers are exempted, as are the country's existing French-language newspapers, the law stipulates that general interest print media, and all films or scientific and cultural programmes shown on television, have to be in Arabic.

The new law was adopted by 173 votes for and eight against, with 13 abstentions.

Some five million of Algeria's 22 million inhabitants are Berber. French is the language of the former colonial power.

RIO DE JANEIRO (DEC. 27) - City police Thursday said they suspected federal police agents of murdering a Greek shipping magnate found slain near the Rio de Janeiro airport December 21.

His death came just a day after he arrived in the country carrying 80,000 dollars in cash.

A police spokesman said the superintendant of Federal Police in Rio de Janeiro Fabio Calheiros, had been ordered to turn over the names of all federal agents stationed at the airport when Konstadinos Petichakis arrived Thursday evening.

Mr. Petichakis, 47, was seen by a local policeman getting into a Federal Police car outside the airport with three federal agents, according to Police Commissioner Jorge da Crus Barros, who is leading the investigation.

The shipowner was found shot to death the following day near the airport.

Mr. Petichakis had flown in from Montevideo with 80,000 dollars in cash to pay the crew of a ship that his company, Tsakos Shipping and Trading, charters to Petrobas, the Brazilian state oil company.

He made the payroll trip once each month, said a business associate, Nicolaos Farnavos.

The Federal Police have made no public statements concerning the affair.

LONDON (DEC. 27) - Lawmakers and other ranking officials in Equatorial Guinea have been jailed for advocating the introduction of a multi-party system in the west African nation, Amnesty International (AI) reported Thursday.

Antonio Ebang Mbele, vice-president of the Chamber of People's Representatives was put under house arrest in his home town of Micomeseng after "proposing a debate about introducing a multi-party political system", the human rights organization said.

He was reportedly stripped of his parliamentary privileges late last month.

Some 30 other people, including Francisco Boddien Ngalo, president of the Chamber of People's Representatives, Julio Ela Mangue, president of the Supreme Court, and Commander Melanio Ebendeng Nsomo, minister delegate for defence, were arrested on December 6, according to an AI communique.

They were being detained in the capital Malabo or in Bata, capital of the Rio Muni province, "either on suspicion that they had been in contact with political opposition groups outside the country or because they were thought to favour a multi-party political system".

Amnesty International said it was "concerned they may be imprisoned solely for expressing their political opinions", and relayed reports that they were being ill-treated.

MOSCOW (DEC. 27) - Four bombs exploded in Riga, capital of the Soviet republic of Latvia, overnight Wednesday but nobody was injured, the Baltic News Service agency reported Thursday.

Explosive devices went off near a kindergarten, a hospital, an apartment building and a school for Russian-speaking students, the agency said.

Since December 5 a total 14 blasts have rocked the Latvian capital, some targeting communist party, army and KGB police buildings.

No one has claimed responsibility and no arrests have been made.

Alexander Mirlin, spokesman for the Latvian parliament, said the attacks were aimed at destabilizing the Baltic republic which is seeking independence from Kremlin rule.

A Congress of People's Deputies committee created Wednesday to examine the situation in the Baltic republics of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, which all wish to be sovereign units, could lead to direct rule by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in Latvia, Mr. Mirlin added.

President Mikhail Gorbachev's sweeping powers allow for direct rule of any of the country's 15 republics by Moscow and a suspension of their legal authorities if necessary.

OSLO (DEC. 27) - Norsk Hydro (oil, petrochemicals and fertilizers) announced on Thursday that it has concluded an agreement to buy a fertilizer plant in Rostock, Germany (formerly in East Germany).

The agreement was signed with the Treuhandanstalt, the holding company responsible for managing government-owned property of the former East Germnay.

The Rostock plant has a production capacity of 1.5 million tonnes of fertilizer a year, and will be Norsk Hydro's third most important plant in the fertilizer sector, after the Sluiskil installation in The Netherlands and the Porsgrunn facility in Norway.

The Rostock factory will be attached to the Hydro Agri Europe subsidiary, and Norsk Hydro says it has a good technological level.

Norsk Hydro also says that the acquisition will enable it to enhance its penetration of the German fertilizer market, the second-biggest in Europe.

The deal is subject to approval by German authorities.

BRASILIA (DEC. 27) - Attorney General Carlos Eduardo Vasconcelos said Thursday he was suspending use of DDT against malaria-carrying mosquitoes in the Amazon region pending a probe into whether the government's use of the toxic insecticide was legal.

Under orders from President Fernando Collor de Mello, the Health Ministry has already begun reducing use of DDT (dichloro diphenyl trichloro-ethane) in the Amazon basin, Mr. Vasconcelos said.

"It is very difficult to change old habits, but we know that DDT is very dangerous to health and our aim is to reduce its use," said Health Minister Alceni Guerra.

DDT is known to have toxic effects on humans and other vertebrate animals and tends to accumulate in ecosystems.

The ministry's anti-malaria program took delivery last November of 3,000 tonnes of DDT from Indonesia. This delivery was supposed to have been used in a four-year program to rid some six million Amazonian residences of mosquitoes.

ANKARA (DEC. 27) - A belgian military delegation arrived here Thursday in connection with Turkey's request for North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (Nato) planes to deter a possible Iraqi attack.

Turkey requested 42 planes and 576 personnel from Nato's Allied Mobile Force (Amf) as ''concrete proof'' of the support announced for Turkey at the start of the Gulf crisis in August.

The request was reportedly met with reservations in Germany and Belgium, which provide planes for the Amf together with Italy. A german mission is due to arrive Friday to survey an air base at the southeastern Turkish town of Diyarbakir.

The arrival of the Belgians was accompanied by press reports of increased activity on both sides of the 331-kilometre Turkish-Iraqi border where Turkey and Iraq each have 100,000 troops.

Reports said Turkey moved new commando and paratrooper units to the area as well as large numbers of guns, armoured vehicles and tanks.

Turkish government officials have dismissed speculation of a ''second front'' against Iraq. But about 60 American F-111 tactical bombers, F-16 fighter-bombers and F-15 fighters are ''exercising'' at a Turkish air base an hour's flight from Iraq.

BEIJING (DEC. 27) - Kuwait's exiled deputy premier and foreign minister said Thursday it was ''too late'' for a peaceful resolution of the Gulf conflict, while his Chinese hosts supported moves to achieve a diplomatic solution.

Deputy Premier Sabah al-Ahmed al-Jaber said new diplomatic initiatives would now be of ''no use''.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Li Zhaoxing said efforts to resolve the crisis should continue ''as long as there is a glimmer of hope''. Such a course of action ''might require some time'' and no deadline should be imposed he said.

China, one of the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council, abstained recently from voting on a resolution authorizing the use of force against Iraq if it did not pull its army out of Kuwait by January 15.

Chinese leader Yang Shangkun reiterated Beijing's call for increased international pressure on Iraq to withdraw its forces from Kuwait immediately and unconditionally.

Yang earlier met with Kuwait's exiled emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, who arrived in China with his deputy premier on Wednesday for a three-day visit.

TEHERAN (DEC. 27) - Iran has lost 30 to 60 billion dollars in the Gulf crisis and should be compensated by the West and the Gulf sheikhdoms, a senior foreign ministry official said here.

"Most investment contracts in Iran have been put off until after the crisis," Mohammad Javad Larijani contended in an article published Thursday in the newspaper Ettelaat.

"The Gulf has been transformed into a region in crisis, where the future appears somber and uncertain," wrote Mr. Larijani, a political advisor at the foreign ministry.

As a result, he said, "the crisis in the Persian Gulf has cost Iran between 30 and 60 billion dollars."

"The Islamic Republic condemned the Iraqi aggression in Kuwait, supported and applied sanctions against Iraq and has done nothing that could exacerbate the crisis," he stressed.

Mr. Larijani said "the United States and the sheikhs of the region have profited the most from Iran's principled position.

"The West and the sheikhs in the region should now do something to compensate the damages suffered by Iran," he added.

COPENHAGEN (DEC. 27) - Denmark's conservative minority government was set for a first parliamentary defeat since general elections earlier this month after submitting a largely unchanged eight-billion kroner (1.4 billion dollar) tax cut program Thursday, parliament sources said.

Centre-left parties have already rejected the cuts leaving Prime Minister Poul Schlueter without a majority.

Mr. Schlueter's coalition government of conservative and liberal parties has only 59 seats in the 179-seat parliament.

Mr. Schlueter called early elections last month after the opposition Social Democrats rejected his tax cut projects. The new tax bill retains a six-per-cent tax for annual salaries of more than 200,000 kroner (34,500 dollars).

The Social Democratic Party, which gained 10 more seats in the general election further consolidating its role as biggest party in parliament, said Mr. Schlueter's proposed tax cuts needed financing.

Parliament will discuss the plan on January 8.

Striking a conciliatory note, Mr. Schlueter pledged Thursday to "listen to suggestions wherever they come from" to adopt a responsible economic policy before the end of wage negotiations due early next year.

AMMAN (DEC. 27) - Jordan has deployed more troops along its ceasefire line with Israel as a protective measure against a possible Israeli incursion against Iraq over Jordanian territories, official sources confirmed Thursday.

One official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Jordan was ''preparing for the worst-case scenario, including a possible Israeli land attack against Iraq over Jordanian territories''.

He said that beefing up troops on the ceasefire line with the Israeli-occupied West Bank ''comes as part of preparing for the worst and the fact that Israel has also put its forces on alert''.

Another official said that Amman ''cannot guarantee that a possible Israeli involvement will be limited to air strikes''.

''We have to guard against the possibility of the Israelis trying to engage Iraqi forces through the eastern part of the country (Jordan).''

Jordan has Israel to its west, Iraq to its east, and Saudi Arabia to its south.

King Hussein said recently that his army ''will not allow anybody to use Jordan as a passage for military aggression''.

Eyewitnesses said they saw a buildup of mechanised forces and troops in the Jordan Valley area, 30 kilometres west of Amman and along the 350-kilometre ceasefire line with Israel.

A jordanian military analyst ruled out an Israeli attack against Jordan through the Jordan Valley and the kingdom's population centres. He explained: ''If the Israelis attacked by land, they would want to cross through the southern part of Jordan.''

''My interpretation of why Jordan is massing troops near the Jordan Valley rather than the south is that it (Jordan) wants to send a signal to Israel that, if it attacked Iraq through Jordan, the Jordanian army would attack the West Bank and Israel.''

Senior Israeli legislator Eliahu Ben-Elissar declared Wednesday that Israel had sent a warning to Jordan because it is ''in such a close alliance with Iraq''.

He said Iraq's missiles and combat jets ''cannot do much against Israel without Jordan''.

Parliamentary sources said that Jordan's Prime Minister Mudar Badran, during a visit to Damascus last week, discussed coordinating defences with Syria in the event of an Israeli attack.

Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, faced with a countdown towards the January 15 deadline to withdraw from Kuwait or face a possible attack from U.S.-led forces in the Gulf, has said Israel would be his first target if war broke out.

HELSINKI (DEC. 27) - Finland and the Soviet Union on Thursday signed an agreement to end barter trade at the end of this year and to switch to convertible currencies.

The agreement was signed here by Finnish Minister of Trade and Industry Ilkka Suominen, who only last month said the two sides agreed that there would be a 12-month transition period.

The Soviet Union, however, later announced that this was not feasible. Moscow has long been an important trade partner for Finland but its share of Finland's total trade has fallen over past decade.

Trade has been bilateral via a rouble-based clearing system, which means that in the long run imports and exports have to be balanced.

During last year's state visit here by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, Finland and the Soviet Union signed a new five-year agreement on the exchange of goods and payments during 1991-1995, but due to the economic turmoil in the Soviet Union Moscow never ratified the deal.

Now the two sides have signed a similar five-year agreement but noted that it is only "course-giving".

Some 90 percent of Finnish imports from the Soviet Union have been in energy and raw materials, while Finland has exported higly industrialized products as well as textiles and foodstuffs.

The Soviet Union's share of Finnish foreign trade has dropped to about 10 percent during the past few years. In 1983 it was about 26 percent.

According to the most pessimistic forecasts here, Finnish exports to the Soviet Union next year will drop to about half of this year's, or to 6 billion Finnish marks (about 1.7 billion dollars) from 12 billion marks.

Finnish state-run oil company Neste has already announced that its oil imports from the Soviet Union will fall at least 30 percent this year due to Soviet difficulties.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) - President George Bush received a message from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev Thursday during a meeting at the White House with Soviet Ambassador Alexander Bessmertnykh.

The meeting, which had not been previously announced, took place after Mr. Bush interrupted a holiday vacation at the Camp David presidential retreat outside Washington to return to the White House.

In a brief appearance before the White House press corps, Mr. Bush refused to answer questions about the message from Mr. Gorbachev. "I assume this is confidential," he said. "Otherwise I would share it.

He said he was visiting the press briefing room "only to wish a happy new year" to the journalists.

White House spokesman Doug Davidson also declined to provide details of Mr. Bush's half-hour meeting with Mr. Bessmertnykh.

Their talks and Mr. Gorbachev's message came at a time of great political uncertainty within the Soviet Union as the Soviet president struggles to maintain his program of political and economic change amid growing criticism from both reactionaries and radical reformers.

Washington has also expressed grave concern with last week's surprise resignation by Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, a key architect of improved U.S.-Soviet relations whose successor has not yet been named.

At Thursday's White House meeting, Mr. Bush and Mr. Bessmertnykh were joined by Mr. Bush's National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft.

The president was due to return to Camp David later Thursday to continue a vacation originally scheduled to last until January 1.

PRAGUE (DEC. 27) - Czechoslovakia's currency, the koruna or Czechoslovak crown, is to become freely convertible in practice as of Friday, the government here announced.

The opening rate will be 28 crowns to the dollar, said the government Thursday. Previously Czechoslovakia had an artificial system of separate rates for trade, services and cash for tourists.

For trade purposes, the unified rate amounts to a 15 percent devaluation. For visitors, the crown will be 15 percent dearer.

For Czechoslovak citizens, the final step to full convertibility has yet to be taken. Though their rate of exchange will be the same as for anyone else, they will be limited to an annual foreign-currency allocation per person equivalent to 5,000 crowns.

NAIROBI (DEC. 27) - Thirty-two of more than 1,500 suspected Rwandan rebels and sympathisers including some Ugandans are to stand trial Friday, Rwandan state radio said Thursday.

The radio, monitored here, said those to stand trial included an unspecified number of Ugandan nationals who had entered Rwanda illegally when the rebel Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF) invaded Rwanda from neighbouring Uganda on October 1 in a bid to topple the government of President Juvenal Habyarimana.

The charges against them were not specified.

Many of the RPF fighters were Rwandan exiles who deserted from the Ugandan army to join the rebel invasion.

Rwandan Justice Minister Theoneste Mujyanama said last week that 1,566 suspects were in custody. He promised them a public trial.

Earlier, the radio said Rwandan troops had killed 540 rebels in the north-eastern district of Byumba, on the Ugandan border.

It accused the rebels of atrocities against civilians, saying they had "brutally castrated old men and cut off women's breasts."

(The International Commission of Jurists (ICJ) in Geneva expressed "serious concern" Thursday at Mr. Mujyanama's trial announcement and called on Major-General Habyarimana to postpone the court proceedings to allow the alleged rebels and sympathisers to prepare their cases.

(ICJ secretary-general Adama Dieng said in a statement that it was apparent the defendants "could not call upon the lawyers of their choice" and charged that the authorities were acting in "blatant violation" of international conventions and Rwandan law itself.

(In Brussels, meanwhile, Rwandan Ambassador Francois Ngarukiyintwali charged Ugandan soldiers on the frontier with "connivance" in cross-border operations by the rebels and expressed his government's concern.

(The ambassador told Agence France-Presse he hoped an "intervention force" would be formed as soon as possible, but was not more specific.

(He also denied RPF claims that the Rwandan government had received arms from France, Egypt and South Africa to put down the rebellion.)

NEW YORK, (DEC 27) - The hectic days of leveraged buyouts financed by junk bonds which dominated Wall Street in the 1980's came to an abrupt halt in 1990 according to a report released Thursday.

The U.S. research firm, Securities Data, said company mergers and takeovers fell by nearly one third throughout the world and by nearly a half in the United States.

Worldwide, the value of company mergers and acquisitions tumbled by 31 per cent to 441.6 billion dollars, from the 1989 level of 643.6 billion dollars.

In the United States, the value of these transactions plummeted 47 per cent to 199.9 billion dollars from the 1989 level of 377.9 billion dollars.

The biggest mergers and acquisitions in the United States in the past year included the takeover of U.S. entertainment giant MCA by Japan's Matsushita for 6.6 billion dollars, the merger of GTE and Contel in a 6.2 billion dollar deal, and the takeover of Great Northern Nekoosa for 3.6 billion dollars by Georgia-Pacific.

HERZOGENAURACH, GERMANY (DEC. 27) - German sportswear giant Adidas Thursday announced that it sold all rights to its brand names Le Coq Sportif and Arena in Japan and southeast Asia to the Japanese Descente Ltd. group as of December 23.

Le Cq Sportif and Arena are brands of the Swiss-based Sarragan SA company, an Adidas subsidiary.

"Thanks to a sale that is limited to one region considerable funds will be transferred to Adidas and boost the group's assets", chairman Rene Jaeggi said in a statement.

Last year Le Coq Sportif contributed about six per cent and Arena three per cent to Adidas's consolidated turnover of 3.2 billion Deutsche mark (2.1 billion dollars).

The sale was announced as Adidas is trying to replenish company coffers in a restructuring bid.

The French Bernard Tapie Finance group bought an 80-percent share of Adidas last August.

LAGOS (DEC. 27) - A man carrying a freshly-severed human head meant for ritual sacrifice has been arrested at Iyi-Owe Odakpe in Nigeria's eastern Anambra state, official News Agency of Nigeria (NAN) reported here Thursday.

The police arrested the 19-year-old labourer carrying the head in a polythene bag, Nan said.

The man told the police that a herbalist (withcraft doctor), based in neighbouring Bendel state engaged him to provide the head for ritual purpose.

The suspect entered the police net when he was looking for a market for the human head after he failed to locate the withcraft doctor, a police source said.

Plainsclothe policemen, acting on a tip-off, arranged to pay him 88,000 naira (8,800 dollars) for the human head. He was subsequently arrested while trying to collect the money from these detectives, the source added.

Three persons were arrested recently in Bendel state for allegedly being in possession of fresh human fingers, ostensibly for ritual purposes, a source recalled.

WARSAW (DEC. 27) - Polish President Lech Walesa named Jan Krzysztof Bielecki, 39, a leader of the Liberals in Gdansk, as candidate for the post of prime minister, radio reports said here Thursday quoting well-informed sources.

Mr. Walesa's spokesman Andrzej Drzycimski would not comment on the report.

"The name of the new prime minister will be officially known by the end of the year", Mr. Drzycimski said.

Candidates for the post of prime minister must be confirmed by parliament.

On Thursday Mr. Walesa met with Mr. Bielecki and outgoing Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki in political consultations aimed at forming a new government, the news agency PAP reported.

Mr. Walesa has been in a political impasse since his first choice to replace Mr. Mazowiecki as premier, Jan Olszewski, withdrew from the post due to "major differences" over policy with the president.

With legislative elections due to be held next spring, few politicians have shown interest in joining what would essentially be a lame-duck government.

HANKO, Finland (DEC. 27) - Eight people are feared to have died when a Finnish pushtug capsized in a snow storm near this southern seaport on Thursday.

The boat Finn-Baltic, which had a crew of nine and a sea pilot, was pushing a huge barge from Luleaa, Sweden, to the Finnish port of Koverhar when it capsized.

Some nine hours after the accident the rescue crews found two men alive and managed to get them through a hole they made in the bottom of the ship.

In another shipwreck German roll-on, roll-off ship Transgermania ran aground near the island of Utoe, some 100 kms (62 miles) west of Hanko.

The ship with six passangers and a crew of 16 managed to get loose but it took in more water than its pumps could get out and was sinking.

Ten people were taken to Utoe.

Later Thursday evening it was reported that the pumps taken to the ship in the last minute by Finnish rescue crews are working well and there is no immediate danger any more.

ATHENS (DEC. 27) - Greece said Thursday 241 refugees had fled to its side of the border with Albania in recent days despite the fact that Albanian guards were still shooting escapers on sight.

Greek police said that in one incident on Tuesday, two Albanians were shot dead while trying to flee but three others made it to safety on the Greek side of the frontier.

On the Ionian Sea island of Corfu, the Greek coastguard said a 22-year-old Albanian had swum across the strait from the Albanian mainland. He said he had started out with four friends and swum for ten hours. The others had drowned, he said late Wednesday.

The refugee identified a body found floating three miles offshore Thursday afternoon as that of one of his 22-year-old friends.

The foreign ministry said in Athens that 152 of the 241 who had arrived safely were ethnic Greeks. Greek diplomats said there was a real risk that many of the estimated 150,000 Greek-speaking community in Albania would head across the border if it were opened.

Caring for so many would strain Greece's budget. Athens Foreign Minister Antonis Samaras appealed Thursday to Albanians to stay home, saying Greece would come to their aid with investment instead.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec 27 (AFP) - When two men boarded a bus here the day after Christmas and ordered the driver to pull over, the passengers, accustomed to highway robberies, readied their wallets and valuables.

But they were mistaken.

"We robbed a gringo and now we're loaded," said one of the robbers.

They passed out cash -- the equivalent of about three dollars to each passenger -- and wished each a Happy New Year.

To the bus guard they gave six dollars, explaining: "Because you are struggling like us."

BELFAST (DEC. 27) - An Ulster policeman was slightly injured in a bomb attack at a Belfast police station Thursday -- the first terrorist casualty in northern Ireland since the ending of the IRA (Irish Republican Army) Christmas ceasefire at midnight on Wednesday.

The policeman was on duty at the police station at Mountpottinger, close to the republican area of the city, when an explosive device was thrown at the station front gate.

The bomb attack happened as police revealed details of a gun attack on troops earlier in the day.

The IRA later claimed responsibility for the gun attack in which it said 500 rounds of ammunition were fired by seven gunmen at troops at a border crossing checkpoint near the village of Rosslea, County Fermanagh.

None of the troops was injured but police said that two of five civilian cars at the checkpoint were hit by the gunfire.

Political violence in northern Ireland has killed 75 people since the start of the year, 44 of them slain by the IRA.

CINCINNATI, OH (DEC. 27) - A 35-year-old Italian-American Thursday pleaded guilty here to sexually assaulting two women after sedating them with drug-laced spaghetti, court officials said.

Nicola Iannone was held without bail pending January 24 sentencing. He could receive up to 10 years in prison and a 2,500 dollar fine on each of two counts of gross sexual imposition.

The charges resulted from a plea bargain between the prosecution and Mr. Iannone's lawyer and not opposed by the victims.

The two women who pressed charges said they passed out after Mr. Iannone fed them a pasta dinner at their Cincinnati apartment, adding that they awoke the following morning with no clothes on, court sources said.

Police said laboratory analysis found traces of codeine and two other sedatives in the leftover spaghetti.

OTTAWA (DEC. 27) - Canada has sold a 700-megawatt, one billion dollar (US) nuclear reactor to South Korea, the second Seoul has purchased from Canada, Canadian Minister for Energy, Mines and Resources Jake Epp announced Thursday.

The deal between the Korea Electric Power Corporation (KEPCO) and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL), two publicly-held companies was to be signed in Seoul shortly after the announcement here.

The heavy water Wolsong 2 reactor will be the ninth nuclear reactor for South Korea, the world's sixth largest importer of energy. It's consumption of electricity increased by 15 per cent in 1990.

Unlike the Wolsong 1, delivered in 1983 assembled and ready to go on line, Canada will supply the parts and technology for Wolsong 2 and the South Koreans will handle the assembly.

Wolsong 2 will be built next to Wolsong 1 on a site suitable for four reactors. Canada is hoping to supply the other two, AECL officials said.

STOCKHOLM (DEC. 28) - The Swedish state arms manufacturer FFV and Nobel Industries on Thursday announced plans to form a joint firm, to be called Swedish Ordnance - FFVBofors AB.

In a joint communique, the two firms said cooperation had become necessary because of a reduction in orders from the Swedish army and the weakening of export markets.

Both companies will have a 50 percent stake in the new firm which is to employ 6,000 people for an expected turnover of five billion kronor (890 million dollars). Start up is planned for January.

FFVBofors AB will combine Nobel's and its subsidiary Bofors' manufacture of artillery pieces, ammunition, missiles and explosives with the production of light arms, torpedoes and ammunition by FFV.

Bofors' factories in Karlskoda and Lindesberg are to be included in the new firm but Bofors Electronics and FFV Ordnance GF Komponenter, a maker of electronic components, will be unaffected.

The board will be headed by Nobel Industries chief executive Anders Carlberg.

TOKYO (DEC. 28) - Consumer prices in Japan jumped 4.2 percent in November from a year earlier, the largest increase since December 1981, the Management and Coordination Agency said Friday.

The price index, with the 1985 base figure of 100, fell 0.4 percent from the previous month to 108.9, the agency said.

Agency officials attributed the sharp year-on-year rise to an increase in prices of fresh vegetables reflecting bad weather.

"Prices are heading towards stabilization," they said. "Yearly rises will be the highest in November."

The agency also said the Tokyo consumer price index surged 3.6 percent from a year earlier to 109.9 in December against the 1985 base figure.

The index, an indicator of nationwide trends, fell 0.1 percent from the previous month, the agency said in a preliminary report.

For the full year, the Tokyo index advanced three percent from 1989 to 108.3 in the highest rise since 1982, spurred by domestic economic expansion and higher crude oil prices.

Higher vegetable prices boosted food prices by 4.3 percent in Tokyo this year, while education prices soared 4.3 percent and entertainment prices jumped 4.1 percent.

Clothing and shoes rose 3.8 percent and houses advanced three percent.

NICOSIA (DEC. 27) EFE - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein Thursday met Soviet Deputy Premier Igor Belousov in Baghdad for talks on bilateral relations and the Gulf crisis, the Iraqi official news agency INA reported.

Belousov, who arrived Wednesday in Baghdad, said the Soviet Union supported peaceful initiatives to solve the Gulf crisis.

INA, monitored in Cyprus, said Deputy Premier Saadoun Hammadi, Information Minister Latif Nassif al-Jassem and Oil Minister Hussein Kamel Hassan were also at the meeting.

Belousov thanked Saddam for freeing thousands of Soviet technicians contracted for work in Baghdad before Saddam's August invasion of Kuwait.

The Iraqi leader had previously said the technicians could not leave the country until the terms of their contracts had expired.

SAN SEBASTIAN, SPAIN (DEC. 27) EFE - Police Thursday defused a parcel bomb addressed to a security firm guarding a motorway under construction in Spain's northern Basque region.

The device was hidden in a book and detected by a scanner at San Sebastian post office.

Police believed the package was sent by the armed Basque separatist group ETA which has threatened to kill anyone working on the 45-km road linking San Sebastian with the city of Pamplona in the province of Navarre.

ETA claims that construction of the motorway is harming the environment and has staged more than 30 attacks on firms connected with the project since January.

A Spanish woman was seriously injured December 18 when she opened a letter bomb stolen by her mailman husband. The letter was addressed to the Madrid office of the same security firm.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) EFE - U.S. President George Bush avoided direct answers to questions on the readiness of U.S. forces in the Gulf at a news conference at the White House on Thursday.

Journalists repeatedly asked Bush to comment on reports that top military advisers, including Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman Colin Powell, had told the president that all U.S. forces would not be prepared for war against Iraq until mid-February.

"I am very comfortable .. The briefing I had is very different from the stories ... the situation is exactly as we had foreseen it would be at this moment," Bush said.

The president was speaking on the lawn of the White House shortly before departing for his Camp David retreat where he is spending the New Year holiday.

U.S. Defense Secretary Richard Cheney and Powell visited the U.S.-led multinational forces confronting Iraq in the Gulf earlier this month.

Cheney said during his five-day tour of the area that the force would be ready to attack Iraq by January 15, the deadline set by the United Nations Security Council for Baghdad's withdrawal for Kuwait which it occupied in August.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) KYODO - SHISEIDO CO. SAID THURSDAY IT IS RECALLING SIX TYPES OF ITS PRODUCTS FOR SKIN CARE SOLD IN AUSTRALIA AND SINGAPORE FOLLOWING A REPORT SUGGESTING A LINK BETWEEN AMINO ACID USED IN THE COSMETICS AND SKIN CANCER.

THE MOVE CAME AT THE REQUEST OF THE AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT, WHICH EARLIER RELEASED DATA SUGGESTING UROCANIC ACID, A KIND OF AMINO ACID WIDELY USED IN COSMETICS, HELPED TO CAUSE SKIN CANCER.

KENZO MORISHIMA, MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THE TOP JAPANESE COSMETIC MANUFACTURER, SAID HIS COMPANY HAS NO PLANS TO TAKE SIMILAR ACTION IN JAPAN, HOWEVER.

''UROCANIC ACID IS A MATERIAL APPROVED AS SAFE BY THE JAPANESE HEALTH AND WELFARE MINISTRY AND THE U.S. FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS ELSEWHERE. IT'S BEEN WIDELY USED IN COSMETICS IN AND OUTSIDE JAPAN FOR SOME TIME,'' HE SAID.

ACCORDING TO THE JAPAN COSMETIC INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION (JCIA), UROCANIC ACID IS A NATURAL MATERIAL FOUND IN THE SKIN AND HUMAN PERSPIRATION, AND ABSORBS ULTRAVIOLET RAYS.

KANEBO CO., ANOTHER MAJOR JAPANESE COSMETIC MAKER, IS ALSO PRODUCING COSMETICS USING UROCANIC ACID AND SELLING THEM IN JAPAN AND ABROAD. KANEBO IS REPORTEDLY CONSIDERING WHAT MEASURES SHOULD BE TAKEN ON THE ISSUE.

JCIA MANAGING DIRECTOR KAORU MIYAZAWA SAID HIS ASSOCIATION IS PLANNING TO GATHER INFORMATION FROM AUSTRALIA TO CONDUCT TESTS ON THE MATERIAL.

''AUSTRALIA APPEARS TOO NERVOUS BECAUSE THERE ARE MANY CASES OF SKIN CANCER IN CERTAIN AREAS. SO FAR I'M SURE THAT THERE IS NO RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN UROCANIC ACID AND SKIN CANCER,'' HE SAID.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) KYODO - JAPAN'S OVERALL FOOD SELF-SUFFICIENCY RATE IN FISCAL 1989, ENDED IN MARCH, FELL TO 48 PERCENT, THE GOVERNMENT SAID THURSDAY.

THE FISCAL 1989 RATE, COMPUTED IN TERMS OF CALORIC CONTENT, WAS DOWN 1 PERCENTAGE POINT FROM THE PREVIOUS YEAR, REFLECTING CONTINUING LIBERALIZATION OF FARM PRODUCT IMPORTS AND A FURTHER DECLINE IN CONSUMPTION OF RICE, THE MINISTRY OF AGRICULTURE, FORESTRY, AND FISHERIES SAID.

THIS WAS THE THIRD CONSECUTIVE YEAR THE RATE WAS BELOW 50 PERCENT. THE SELF-SUFFICIENCY RATE, OR THE RATIO OF FOOD PRODUCED DOMESTICALLY TO THE TOTAL CONSUMED, WAS 30 PERCENT IN FISCAL 1989 FOR GRAIN, INCLUDING BOTH THAT USED FOR HUMAN FOOD AND FOR ANIMAL FEED, THE SAME AS THE PREVIOUS YEAR.

THE SELF-SUFFICIENCY RATE FOR RICE REMAINED UNCHANGED AT 100 PERCENT, NOT SURPRISING CONSIDERING JAPAN'S IMPORT BAN.

THE RATES FOR BEANS, VEGETABLES, AND FRESH MILK AND DAIRY PRODUCTS WERE UP BY FROM 1 TO 5 PERCENTAGE POINTS. BY CONTRAST, THE SELF-SUFFICIENCY RATES FOR WHEAT AND MEAT WERE DOWN SLIGHTLY.

PER-CAPITA RICE CONSUMPTION DROPPED ANOTHER 1.3 PERCENT FROM THE PREVIOUS YEAR TO 70.1 KILOGRAMS IN FISCAL 1989. THE AVERAGE JAPANESE ATE 118.3 KILOGRAMS OF TOKYO (DEC. 27) KYODO - CONSERVATIVE POLITICIAN SHINTARO ISHIHARA SAID THURSDAY THAT U.S. INVOLVEMENT IN JAPAN'S TERRITORIAL DISPUTES WITH THE SOVIET UNION AND CHINA HAS MADE IT DIFFICULT FOR JAPAN TO RESOLVE THESE ISSUES.

ISHIHARA, KNOWN FOR HIS CONTROVERSIAL BOOK ''THE JAPAN THAT CAN SAY NO'' AND FOR HIS RECENT CLAIM THAT THE 1937 NANJING MASSACRE BY THE JAPANESE IMPERIAL ARMY NEVER TOOK PLACE, MADE THE REMARK AT A MEETING OF THE RULING LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY FACTION TO WHICH HE BELONGS, WHICH WAS ALSO ATTENDED BY THE PRESS.

ISHIHARA, A HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES MEMBER AND FORMER TRANSPORT MINISTER, MENTIONED THE PROCESS OF NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE 1956 JAPAN-SOVIET JOINT DECLARATION AND SAID THE THEN U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE JOHN FOSTER DULLES TOOK JAPAN'S FOREIGN MINISTER MAMORU SHIGEMITSU, WHO WAS IN CHARGE OF NEGOTIATIONS WITH MOSCOW, OFF TO LONDON FOR A MEETING.

ISHIHARA SAID JAPAN AND THE SOVIET UNION HAD ALMOST REACHED AN AGREEMENT WHEREBY MOSCOW WOULD RETURN TWO OF THE FOUR NORTHERN ISLANDS IT STILL OCCUPIES -- THE HABOMAI GROUP AND SHIKOTAN -- BUT THE NEWS WAS LEAKED IN TOKYO AND CAUSED GREAT CONSTERNATION.

JAPAN RETURNED TO ITS PREVIOUS CLAIM TO ALL FOUR ISLANDS AFTER DULLES THREATENED THE JAPANESE DELEGATION AT THE U.S. EMBASSY IN LONDON THAT IF JAPAN AGREED ON THE RETURN OF THE TWO ISLANDS, THE U.S. WOULD NEVER RETURN OKINAWA, WHICH IT WAS THEN ADMINISTERING, ISHIHARA SAID.

THE SOVIET UNION ENTERED INTO A STATE OF WAR WITH JAPAN SHORTLY BEFORE THE END OF WORLD WAR II AND OCCUPIED THE FOUR ISLANDS -- KUNASHIRI, ETOROFU, SHIKOTAN AND THE HABOMAI GROUP -- OFF HOKKAIDO.

THE JOINT DECLARATION STIPULATED THAT THE SOVIETS WOULD RETURN SHIKOTAN AND THE HABOMAI GROUP AFTER THE CONCLUSION OF A PEACE TREATY.

IN 1960 THE SOVIET UNION REACTED TO THE REVISION OF THE U.S.-JAPAN SECURITY TREATY AND DECLARED THAT THE TWO ISLANDS WOULD NOT BE TRANSFERRED TO JAPAN.

ISHIHARA ALSO DISCUSSED THE DISPUTE BETWEEN JAPAN, CHINA AND TAIWAN OVER THE

SENKAKU ISLANDS IN THE EAST CHINA SEA AND SAID JAPAN HAD URGED THE U.S. TO EXPLAIN TO CHINA AND TAIWAN THAT WASHINGTON RECOGNIZES JAPANESE SOVEREIGNTY OVER THE ISLANDS, BUT THAT THE U.S. HAD FAILED TO DO SO BECAUSE IT WISHED TO IMPROVE ITS RELATIONS WITH BEIJING.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 27) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

November durable goods orders are down a steep 10.5%. This is far worse than analysts expectations of a 2.2% decline.

Opening of the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange has been delayed indefinitely due to an explosion on Water Street in New York. ... There is light volume in the overseas markets: ... The Nikkei is marginally higher, adding 53 points ... In London, the FTSE is up 9 points in early afternoon trading. ... The dollar is mixed. ... The long bond is priced to yield 8.27% in overnight trading. ... After yesterday's gains, Brent crude is little changed at $26.75, up 5 cents. ... The NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS says existing home sales rose 3% in November, the first monthly increase since August. ... Merger activity fell 47% from 1989 to 1990, according to a report by SECURITIES DATA CO. ... A bankruptcy judge has barred the NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE from seeking a record $50 million fine from DREXEL BURNHAM LAMBERT. ... AMERICAN AIRLINES had to cancel flights yesterday because more than 500 pilots called in sick to protest stalled contract talks.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

MOBIL says it might eventually form an oil exploration and production venture with the SOVIET UNION and VIETNAM when the 15-year U.S. trade embargo against Vietnam is ended. ... U.S. beer sales are expected to rise 2.3% to a record 190 million barrels when 1990 figures are tallied.

FROM THE BULLS:

Intermediate and long term indicators continue to signal buy for DON WOLANCHUK of the "Wolanchuk Hotline." "The Middle East has got investors sitting on their hands while stocks climb higher," says Wolanchuk who sees the market eventually discounting news events and "going to 3000 and much higher" in the weeks ahead. While the large degree of skepticism and fear is a big plus, he warns of possible sharp declines at any time -- "they should be used for buying." (CNBC "World Business", 12/27)

FROM THE BEARS:

"We don't think [the rally will] last very long," says ERICH HEINEMANN at LADENBURG, THALMANN & CO. "We're pretty cautious and we see it as a bear-market rally." ("USA Today", 12/27)

STOCK MARKET:

"It's a holiday market," says KENNETH GERBINO, who manages a $40 million fund from Beverly Hills, Calif. "It's tough to have any faith in anything that's happening. ... My feeling right now is that the market is probably going to trend a little higher. But I have a feeling that the poor fundamentals for companies and the anticipated slow-growth economy over the next few years are going to keep the buying enthusiasm at a low rate." Gerbino expects the Dow to trade in a range of 2000 and 2750 for the next two years. ("Investor's Daily", 12/27)

Some analysts say stocks have already discounted a war and will be little affected if fighting breaks out. "I tend to doubt that. I suspect the initial emotional reaction would probably be down 50-100 Dow points," says ARNOLD MOSKOWITZ of MOSKOWITZ CAPITAL CONSULTING. "For the most part, I don't think [the effect] will be long lasting." Moskowitz says portfolios should not be structured on whether we will or will not have war. "One should pick value in the market and buy around those value levels." (CNBC "World Business", 12/27)

"My guess is that 1991 is what we call an 'inside year'," says OPPENHEIMER's MICHAEL METZ. "The market will trade within the boundaries of 1990 ... between 2400 and 3000." Going against the market will be the lack of earnings momentum caused by a recession Metz sees lasting almost all of next year. The positives are interest rates which Metz sees headed lower, inflation which is "going much lower," and a stimulative monetary policy. The bottom line: "A slight upward bias, but no great thrills in 1991." (CNBC "Business View", 12/26)

"I think we've seen the [bear market's] low," says WILLIAM LeFEVRE, market strategist at ADVEST INC. He notes that the market is close to having retraced half the drop from its July highs to its October lows. He says stocks may pull back once they have reached that level, but he doubts that the Dow Jones Industrial Average will fall further than the low 2500s. He adds that many money managers missed the rally from the October lows and now are waiting for share prices to drop so they can get back into the market. Eager money will cushion any market declines and keep sell-offs shallow. (WSJ, 12/27)

"We think stocks and bonds are relatively equal, but the risk is that earnings could be revised" lower still, says MICHAEL LEAVY, investment analyst at QUANTILOGIC ASSET MANAGEMENT CO. (WSJ, 12/27)

Lacking positive underpinnings, the market's technical background is rated neutral to negative by BOB NUROCK of "Bob Nurock's Advisory." However, Nurock says, There are "some signs of improvement that point to a better environment in the future." Fed easing should somewhat buoy investor optimism in the short term which, along with normal year-end influences, should give the market a positive bias. But Nurock warns, "We remain cautious and concerned that the bear market has not ended." (CNBC "World Business", 12/27)

"The main support of the day [yesterday] was bonds and the main feature was strong oil stocks," says JON GROVEMAN at LADENBURG, THALMANN. "But the light volume means a lot of people didn't come in ... It means that they didn't really care about the market." ("The Washington Post", 12/27)

"A lot of people are clinging to the sidelines and taking a wait-and- see attitude" toward the stock market, says A. MARSHALL ACUFF, strategist at SMITH BARNEY. "Most people are anticipating a number of poor" fourth-quarter earnings reports in January. (WSJ, 12/27)

STOCK TIPS:

ARNOLD MOSKOWITZ, head of MOSKOWITZ CAPITAL CONSULTANTS, says the industrial and technology sectors look like the best moves in the current environment of a "short, but severe recession lasting until midyear." He also likes export-related stocks because of the weak dollar, and some banks stocks as interest rates fall. Specific stocks he likes include INTERNATIONAL PAPER, DOW, MONSANTO, AMEX, ALCOA and, among banks, NCNB, FIRST WACHOVIA, WELLS FARGO and BANKAMERICA. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/26)

GEORGE GASPAR of ROBERT W. BAIRD says higher earnings will allow oil companies to focus more on drilling, which should help them increase reserves. He recommends stock in WESTERN COMPANY OF NORTH AMERICA and BAROID CORP. ("USA Today", 12/27)

1991 will be a year for stock pickers, according to OPPENHEIMER's chief market strategist MICHAEL METZ. Growth stocks will benefit from favorable trends in interest rates and inflation, and Metz likes PHILIP MORRIS in the group. Now near its low of the past two years is XEROX which Metz picks as a "phoenix stock." Metz hopes the company will move out of it's disastrous financial services foray which is depressing the value of its strong copier business. DIGITAL is a "quasi-speculative," very cheap, "value stock" with lots of excess cash. Rounding out his 1991 top five are REYNOLDS METALS and INTERNATIONAL PAPER. (CNBC "Business View", 12/26)

NOMURA RESEARCH INSTITUTE, the research arm of NOMURA SECURITIES suggests that the Japanese are once again bullish on corporate America. "After we finished our research, we found potential in the U.S.," says MAKOTO HIRANUMA, manager at NRI's U.S. affiliate, NOMURA RESEARCH INSTITUTE AMERICA, INC. ISAO YAMAMOTO, a securities analyst with NRI says, "We see a turning around in U.S. industry competitiveness since the mid-1980s." Through the first half of the decade, the research firm projects that the net earnings of 265 non- financial U.S. companies will grow an average of 13%, outpacing the 7% rate projected for 400 companies in Japan. Among NRI's top picks: COMPAQ COMPUTER CORP., CADENCE DESIGN SYSTEMS INC., ELI LILLY & CO., BRISTOL-MYERS SQUIBB CO., WAL-MART STORES INC., DOW CHEMICAL CO., TOYS R US INC., MERCK & CO. INC. and BLOCKBUSTER ENTERTAINMENT CORP. ("Investor's Daily", 12/27)

DAVID BOSTIAN, chief economist and market strategist at JESUP, JOSEPHTHAL, has reduced cash from 40% in July to 10% now. He's got 40% in Treasury bonds, 10% in gold, 10% in utilities and 30% in multinational growth stocks such as IBM, MERCK, MOTOROLA, BRISTOL- MYERS and GENERAL ELECTRIC. ("USA Today", 12/27)

Oil shares advanced strongly yesterday after GEORGE FRIESEN, oil analyst for the DEUTSCHE BANK CAPITAL GROUP in New York, was quoted as forecasting that fourth-quarter profits at CHEVRON, BRITISH PETROLEUM, PHILLIPS PETROLEUM, TEXACO and UNOCAL would "more than double." Texaco jumped 2 1/4 at one point during the day and CONSTANTINE FLIAKOS, oil analyst at MERRILL LYNCH, said he thought the profit forecast for Texaco was "very conservative." (NYT, 12/27)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 27) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"Tensions in the Soviet Union and the Middle East continue to provide support for the dollar," says EARL JOHNSON, vice president and trader at HARRIS TRUST & CO. in Chicago. (NYT, 12/27)

"I think we will see that it's going to take larger declines in interest rates in this particular cycle to restart the economy than might have been the case under more favorable circumstances" in the domestic banking industry, says CHARLES LIEBERMAN at MANUFACTURERS HANOVER SECURITIES. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up" 12/26)

"Despite the precipitous declines in both the economy and interest rates recently, we believe rates are about to level off because the recession should be bottoming out by early spring," says EUGENE SHERMAN, senior vice president and chief economist at the FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK of New York. "Nor do we think the yield on the long bond will break below 8 percent, except perhaps briefly during intraday trading in the next few weeks." Mr. Sherman expects the economy to begin its recovery in early spring, but says that it will be "a painfully slow recovery, but a recovery nevertheless." (NYT, 12/27)

"Recession gives the bond market a positive tone," says CAROL STONE, senior economist at NOMURA SECURITIES INTERNATIONAL INC. She says the bond market also reacted positively to "one rumor after another" out of the Middle East. ("Investor's Daily", 12/27)

"The possibility of war now seems a little less likely because it seems we may be a little closer to negotiating with Iraq, and that is what lifted bond prices," says STUART HOFFMAN, a vice president at PNC FINANCIAL CORP. in Pittsburgh. (WSJ, 12/27)

THE ECONOMY:

"I think this recession is going to be fairly deep, and the normal response [in the economy] to interest-rate cuts may be more muted this time. That means it will take longer to get things moving again and thus deeper rate cuts than you might expect," says BRIAN FABBRI, chief economist at MIDLAND MONTAGUE in New York. He says the fed funds rate could drop to 6% by July from the current 7%. But the Fed will reduce rates further because of surprising weakness in the economy. (WSJ, 12/27)

"It appears likely that the committee will identify a month between June and September 1990 as the peak of activity in the economy and the onset of a recession," reports a panel of private economists used by the government to decide whether the economy is officially in a recession. "However, because many data are still preliminary, the committee has not made a definite determination of the turning point," adds the panel. ("Investor's Daily", 12/27)

"The first quarter is likely to be very weak just on the basis of momentum," says CHARLES LIEBERMAN at MANUFACTURERS HANOVER SECURITIES. "We're likely to get more losses in jobs. A lot of people don't like to lay off workers at the end of the year around the holidays. That implies that a lot of layoffs are probably coming in January. I suspect that is true, certainly, in the securities industry and I suspect it's true in retailing. ... We're clearly still heading lower." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/26)

"There's still a possibility the recession will be very mild -- unless, of course, you're in real estate, which is somewhere between deep recession and mild depression," says DAVID BOSTIAN, chief economist and market strategist at JESUP, JOSEPHTHAL. "My economic indicators have not signaled a new expansion. But they suggest the economy is reaching a trough." ("USA Today", 12/27)

"A majority of U.S. manufacturers believe the nation's economy is in a recession, but 75% say their companies' 1991 profits will equal or exceed current levels, according to the GRANT THORNTON SURVEY OF AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS. In the random survey of 250 U.S. manufacturers with annual sales between $10 million and $500 million, more than one-fifth of those surveyed said the country is not in a recession, but will enter one in 1991. Only 8% believe a recession will not occur in the next 12 months. As for inflation, four out of ten say inflation will increase, and nearly half believe the rate will remain flat over the next year. Only 13% believe lower inflation is in the works. ("Investor's Daily", 12/27)

"Even if we come out of recession, home prices are still likely to be flat," says LAWRENCE BACOW, director of the MIT CENTER FOR REAL ESTATE DEVELOPMENT. "They can't keep rising -- otherwise, people won't qualify for mortgages." BILL DUNKELBERG, dean of the TEMPLE UNIVERSITY business school, lists another reason he thinks the home real estate market won't snap back quickly: "We had eight years to overbuild. Usually we have only four years. The industry will be weak for a while." ("USA Today", 12/27)

"Although the worst is probably over for the housing sector, it's going to be a long bottom," says DAVID WYSS at DRI-McGRAW HILL. "Mortgage rates have not come down that much and with home prices still declining, people are afraid to buy." ("USA Today", 12/27)

The suit was filed by Deputy Attorney General Caren L. Mariani, attorney-in-charge of the Pittsburgh office of Preate's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

"We allege that consumers' repeated demands for refunds have been ignored by the defendants," Preate said.

DALTON, GA (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - CrownAmerica, Inc. (NASDAQ: CRNA), a major processor of filament yarn for U.S. and international carpet manufacturers, today reported operating results for the first quarter of its 1991 fiscal year.

Lane Hamilton, president of the Dalton-based firm, said revenues for the quarter ended Dec. 1, 1990, reached $18,768,000, up from $18,341,000 posted in the first quarter a year ago. Net income for the most recent quarter was $1,158,000, or $1.10 per share, an increase over the $403,000, or $.38 per share, recorded in the comparable quarter of the previous year.

First quarter net income for fiscal 1991 included an after tax profit of $900,000, or $.85 per share, from the sale of a plant in Valdosta, Ga., and also an exchange loss of $35,000, or $.03 per share. First quarter net income for fiscal 1990 included approximately $89,000, or $.08 per share, in foreign exchange gains and proceeds from the disposal of surplus equipment.

"Our results for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 were in line with our expectations," Hamilton said. "Income generated from operations at both our U.S. and overseas plants was satisfactory, particularly in light of a sluggish enconomic environment."

Hamilton said the Company's expansion program at its Dalton, Ga. plant is continuing on schedule, with full production slated for March 1991. The expansion will virtually double the size and capacity of the facility.

"This expanded plant will enable us to be more efficient in our processing of filament yarn," he continued. "We will be in a strong position to capitalize on new business opportunities once economic conditions improve," he added.

CrownAmerica, Inc. is engaged chiefly in the processing of heat-set filament yarn for the carpet industry through its Texture-Tex subsidiaries, which operate plants in Dalton, Ga., and near Heerlen in The Netherlands.

#90361p6224 12/27/1990 ~PR Newswire

WILMINGTON, DE (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Du Pont Merck today reported that the Food and Drug Administration has cleared for use the first non-surgical cardiac imaging agent that pinpoints heart attack damage, evaluates perfusion (blood flow) and determines pumping efficiency in a single study. Known as "Cardiolite" (technetium Tc-99m Sestamibi), the imaging agent will help physicians determine treatment possibilities.

The agent allows imaging of the heart up to four hours after injection, enabling doctors to first stabilize heart attack patients in hospital emergency rooms, and then to acquire images that show the heart as it appeared during the heart attack. Following treatment with clot-dissolving drugs, "Cardiolite" can be injected again. Comparison of the original and follow-up images identifies heart tissue saved by the initial therapy.

"Cardiolite" was discovered and developed by researchers at Du Pont, Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It has been studied worldwide in clinical trials involving more than 2,100 patients to determine safety and efficacy.

"Cardiolite" is a non-radioactive preparation that can be stocked in hospitals to make it convenient for emergency and routine examinations. It is transformed into a tracer when combined with technetium, a widely used radioisotope available in hospitals around the clock.

Injected into the bloodstream, "Cardiolite" travels to the heart muscle, where it becomes fixed in cell tissue. Using imaging cameras available in most hospitals, physicians can see heart-pumping action and detect scar tissue. "Cardiolite" is suitable for two-dimensional (planar) and three-dimensional (SPECT) imaging camera systems.

"Cardiolite" offers distinct advantages over thallium, the widely used cardiac imaging radioisotope introduced by Du Pont in 1977. While "Cardiolite" can be stocked, thallium doses are radioactive when shipped and must be ordered for each study, thus requiring advanced scheduling of patients. "Cardiolite" also allows imaging of the heart up to four hours after injection -- more than 15 times longer than thallium -- allowing more time for imaging.

Besides imaging, physicians sometimes require an in-hospital test called cardiac catheterization. Doctors insert a small tube into the groin or arm and "snake" it through the blood vessels and into the heart. Through this procedure they can examine the arteries for blockage. Advancements in cardiac imaging may reduce the number of invasive cardiac catheterizations performed.

"Cardiolite" has been evaluated extensively in worldwide clinical trials. It is approved in the United States as a myocardial perfusion agent, useful in distinguishing normal from abnormal myocardium (heart tissue) and in localizing the abnormality in patients with suspected myocardial infarction (heart attack). It is also useful in the assessment of ventricular function (cardiac pumping action). This agent also is being studied for other applications. Already completed are studies to determine the efficacy of "Cardiolite" in detecting areas at risk of permanent damage. Worldwide clinical trials are under way to monitor its use in assessing the effectiveness of blood clot-dissolving therapies in coronary artery disease.

The company manufactures products for healthcare and life sciences research. Worldwide sales for medical products were $1.6 billion in 1989.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Philadelphia Electric Co. (NYSE: PE) said today that contract awards through its Minority Business Development Program increased by 50 percent to $30 million in 1990.

According to Earl K. Parker, program director, PE's program to develop and use minority vendors within its service territory has become the most successful such utility program in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, increasing 30-fold over the past decade.

When the program began in 1981, he said, PE awarded 47 contracts, valued at $1.2 million, to firms controlled by minorities and women.

After one year, that number jumped to 106 contracts valued at $5.5 million, and by 1989 the company awarded 1,212 minority contracts valued at $20.6 million.

In 1990, there have been 1,050 contracts valued at about $30 million. "We are very pleased with the growth of our minority business development effort and Earl Parker has played a key role in that growth," said Joseph F. Paquette Jr. PE chairman and chief executive officer.

"Philadelphia Electric is committed to expanding the program further," he said "to make sure we continue to provide growth opportunities for minority vendors. It represents good business for PE and for the region."

Parker, who is retiring from PE this month after a 30-year career with the company, recalled that at the beginning of the program "there weren't many minority suppliers approaching our company. They thought it would be impossible to do business with us."

Parker noted the awards PE has received for its work with the minority business community, including the Minority Business Development Award, presented to PE in 1988 by the Edison Electric Institute; the Corporation of the Year Award, presented to the company by the New Penn Del Regional Minority Purchasing Council, and the Business Award of the Coalition of Minority Contractors, presented in 1982.

Parker also has received many individual awards for his work, including the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce Small Business Council Minority Advocate of the Year Award in 1985; the Edison Electric Institute's Minority Business Development Task Force Chairman's Award in 1987, and the U.S. Small Business Administration Small Business Advocate of the Year Award in 1986.

GOLDEN, CO (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Canyon Resources Corp. (NASDAQ: CYNR), a Colorado-based mining company, announced today that Kennecott Exploration Co. has entered into farm-in and stock purchase agreements with Canyon and its wholly owned subsidiary, CR Briggs, whereby Kennecott will fund $25 million of expenditures on the Briggs property in the Panamint Range, Calif., and purchase 4 million shares of Canyon stock for $10 million (at $2.50 per share) in order to earn a 51 percent interest in the property. Kennecott has the right to withdraw from the farm-in joint venture at any time.

Kennecott has paid Canyon $5 million for 2 million shares of Canyon stock and has committed to expend $1 million on the property during a six month period from Dec. 1, 1990. Kennecott may withdraw from the farm-in agreement by May 31, 1991 and require Canyon to repurchase 1 million shares of its stock by April 1, 1994. The repurchase price is $2.50 per share if completed by June 1 1993, or $3 per share if after June 1, 1993.

In order to continue with the project, Kennecott must expend an additional $1 million on the property prior to Dec. 1, 1991. If Kennecott elects to take over operatorship from Canyon and proceed into the second year, Kennecott will pay Canyon $5 million for an additional 2 million shares of Canyon common stock by Dec. 15, 1991. Upon purchase of the second 2 million shares and so long as Kennecott owns 10 percent or more of Canyon's common stock, Kennecott will have the right to nominate a director for Canyon's board of directors.

Kennecott must expend an additional $3 million on the project (a total of $5 million) by June 1, 1993. If Kennecott drops out of the joint venture without having expended the full $5 million on the property, it will have no retained ownership interest in the project.

Kennecott obtains its full 51 percent ownership through the expenditure of an additional $20 million on the property. At that point, Kennecott will have the optional right to acquire an additional 9 percent ownership in the Briggs property by payment of $10 million or the return of the 4 million shares of Canyon common stock to Canyon.

Canyon Resources acquired the 24,000 acre Briggs property in January 1990 when it purchased Addwest Gold Inc. The Briggs property contains one drill-defined gold mineralized occurrence of 17.2 million tons of rock with an average grade of 0.035 ounce of gold per ton. "This joint venture agreement and purchase of Canyon stock by Kennecott conveys Kennecott's enthusiasm for the potential of the Briggs property to contain several such gold deposits," stated Richard H. De Voto, president of Canyon Resources.

Kennecott Exploration is a wholly owned subsidiary of Kennecott Corp., a large U.S. copper and precious metal mining company. Kennecott Corp. is itself a wholly owned subsidiary of London-based RTZ Corp. PLC., the world's largest international mining company.

Canyon Resources currently produces gold and silver from the Kendall Mine in Montana and also produces and sells industrial mineral products from a Nevada plant.

TRENTON, NJ (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Myles M. Kranzler, president and chairman of Base Ten Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: BASEA), announced today that fiscal 1990 produced a net profit of $1.76 million on revenues of $47.6 million, or $0.50 per share, and predicted that after a slow start, 1991 will be profitable but with revenues in the $30 to $35 million range. "Our forecasts show 1992 sales of over $40 million with better than $.80 per share net earnings and a continuation of growth in both sales and profits in 1993.

"The forecast financial performance over the next three years depends on our ability to book available sales in the weapons control business and the contract manufacturing market while trying to expand new business opportunities in the secure communications (privacy of information) and environmental control fields.

"Our long-term purpose is to make the defense business subordinate to other areas where our electronic design and development skills can generate growth. The short-term objective is to maintain present revenues while we define the growth business in which we can be successful. We are exploring environmental control markets because we believe they are very long term and will grow in size and importance over the next decade. Our historical successes in the data acquisition market gives us a good place to start since all environmental controls begin with data acquisition.

"Base Ten has already achieved measurable success in secure communications applications and we expect expansion. To accelerate growth in this business, we have hired an experienced manager, Mr. Frank Newdeck, who comes to us from Unisys where he achieved an outstanding record of performance.

"Of course, the biggest challenge we have to overcome is our long dependence on the Tornado program which has accounted for a large portion of our revenues over the past 14 years. In 1990, we derived $28 million from our Tornado products. In 1991, we are forecasting about $14 million in Tornado revenues with several million more in 1992. We have found new customers and products to begin to replace Tornado revenues and we are looking for others.

"The reduction of Tornado business prompted us to reexamine our basic strengths and adopt a business course of broader scope and longevity.

"Acquiring new business takes longer now than in prior years. We have many real bidding opportunities but the government is slower to respond because of increased scrutiny and intense competition. By and large, however, our skills and creativity will continue to bring us success as we adjust to a market driven economy.

"We have completed half of the restructuring of our U.K. subsidiary, Base Ten Systems, Ltd., and intend to finish by the spring at which time we will have reduced our costs to a minimum and our staff to a small engineering and service group. This action, along with the 'right sizing' of our Trenton facility in August, has cut our operating costs by almost $3 million annually and improved our competitiveness while retaining a very strong technical and management team.

"By cost control and increased productivity we have generated cash to begin the meaningful payback of outstanding loans. In 1991 we will produce additional cash to continue this process. Our banking relationships remain sound and we have an adequate revolving credit line. Our current ratio improved from 2.18 to 2.64. In addition, our net worth increased from $10.7 million to $13 million or from $3.05 per share to $3.70 per share and our retained earnings have risen from a ($908,000) deficit to a surplus of $850,000. The last year has helped us focus on cash accumulation and debt reduction and it is from this base that we plan to increase shareholder values.

"Our annual report covering new opportunities in secure communications and environmental controls will contain a copy of our 10-K and be mailed to all shareholders in early February."

RANCHO CUCAMONGA, CA (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Kaiser Steel Resources Inc. (NASDAQ: KSRI) announced today that Browning-Ferris Industries (NYSE: BFI) has purchased a 50 percent interest in Mine Reclamation Corp., the company developing a state-of-the-art rail-haul municipal landfill at Eagle Mountain, Kaiser's closed iron ore pits east of Los Angeles.

BFI, the second largest waste disposal firm in the nation, paid $10 million for the equity position. The money will be used to continue the permitting and marketing activities for the Eagle Mountain rail-haul project. BFI also committed back stop financing for the eventual development and operation of the landfill.

Richard E. Stoddard, Kaiser's chairman and chief executive officer, said, "We are very pleased with the finalization of the BFI/MRC contract and the involvement of BFI in the Eagle Mountain project. BFI's expertise in landfill permitting, development and operations will be of great benefit to the overall completion and success of the Eagle Mountain project."

Stoddard said that Kaiser's lease with MRC was modified as part of the BFI deal. Kaiser will receive a royalty payment calculated for each ton of trash deposited at the landfill rather than at the transfer stations. As volume increases, the percentage royalty will increase significantly. At the startup of the landfill operation, assuming one train per day of 3,500 tons, Kaiser expects to receive approximately $2 million per year, at current rates. At the expected permitted capacity of 20,000 tons per day, the Eagle Mountain project will have capacity well in excess of 100 years.

Kaiser, under the original lease, receives a minimum of $1.2 million annually beginning in December 1991, increasing to $2.4 million in December 1993. As part of the BFI transaction, this minimum payment will be further increased to $3.6 million annually in December 1995.

Kaiser has also formed a joint venture with EDCO Disposal to permit and develop a municipal solid waste transfer station and materials recycling facility on its redevelopment site in Fontana, Calif. Kaiser Steel Resources is developing businesses that address vital environmental issues in Southern California, including waste management, land remediation and development, and water resources.

COLUMBUS, OH (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Clinton Gas Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS: CGAS) ("CGAS"), a natural gas producer and marketer, announced today that it has purchased a 42-mile natural gas pipeline system in Ashtabula County, Ohio, which will be connected to a 16-mile system already owned by CGAS in the area.

The system will allow CGAS to serve a new industrial gas customer in conjunction with a public utility already serving the area. CGAS also announced the signing of a five-year industrial gas sales agreement with the industry.

Jerry D. Jordan, chairman of CGAS, stated, "CGAS is pleased to be able to expand its system in northeastern Ohio, to provide reliable local gas supplies to area industries. We will be able to provide expanded gas volumes to our existing customer as well as serving our new customer."

CGAS also reported that the company will implement a stock repurchase program to purchase in the open market up to 5 percent (308,000 shares) of the company's currently outstanding common shares. The program was authorized by the board of directors in October, with the timing to be set by management. Jordan said that the board considered the improving economic climate for natural gas companies, and the current price range of CGAS stock in relation to book value, in making its decision. Jordan added that natural gas producers should benefit from recent public attention focused on reducing United States reliance on foreign oil, and the enactment of the new Federal Clean Air Act.

The company also reported that it was negotiating along with other gas producers in an attempt to settle the class action lawsuit against Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. presently pending in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio. Don Nay, chief financial officer of CGAS stated that some progress toward settlement has been made, but it is too early to tell whether a full settlement can be reached.

Clinton Gas Systems, Inc., an Ohio corporation, is engaged in the business of natural gas and oil exploration, development, production, marketing and industrial energy management. All business is conducted through CGAS subsidiaries. The company's principal offices are located at 4770 Indianola Ave., Columbus, Ohio 43214, and its shares are traded on NASDAQ's National Market System under the symbol "CGAS."

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Best Buy Co., Inc. (NYSE: BBY) today reported financial results for the third quarter and nine months ended Dec. 1, 1990.

According to Richard M. Schulze, president and chairman, third quarter net income increased 47 percent to $1,307,000, or 16 cents per share, from $888,000, or 11 cents per share, for the comparable three month period in 1989. Revenues increased 29 percent to 171 million from $133 million a year ago. Four new stores were opened during the third quarter, three in the Dallas/Ft. Worth area and one in Madison, Wis.

Net income for the nine month period was $928,000, or 11 cents per share, as compared to a net loss of $246,000, or 3 cents per share, for the comparable period last year. Revenues for the nine month period increased 26 percent to $449 million, from $355 million for the comparable period last year.

The improvement in operating results for both reporting periods was mainly due to sales from eight new stores opened this year, a full period of operations from eight new stores opened in the third quarter last year, and a lower SG&A expense percentage due to increased productivity and lower operating expenses in the new concept stores. Sales from comparable stores declined by 1 percent in the third quarter and increased by 3 percent for the nine month period. Gross profit margin declined in both periods mainly due to competitive conditions in the third quarter, a higher mix of new concept stores which generate a lower gross margin percentage, and a company-wide focus on reducing discontinued inventory levels during the first six months of this year.

On Dec. 17, 1990, the Financial Accounting Standards Board issued Technical Bulletin No. 90-I requiring all companies to defer the initial recognition of revenue from the sale of extended service plans. Revenue will be recognized in income on a straight-line basis over the contract period unless another systematic method is justified based on the timing of when service costs are incurred. Expenses directly related to the sale of the contract are also deferred and charged to expense in proportion to the revenue recognized. All other costs, mainly servicing, are charged to expense as incurred. This Bulletin is effective for service plans sold in fiscal years beginning after Dec. 15, 1990, with earlier application permitted.

CORTLAND, NY (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Marietta Corporation (NASDAQ: MRTA) announced today financial results for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Net sales for fiscal 1990 increased by approximately 33 percent to $61,410,062 compared to $46,247,977 in fiscal 1989. Net income for the year was $2,562,859 vs. $2,946,506 in 1989. Earnings per share for the period were $.71 in 1990 based on 3,595,091 weighted average shares compared to $1.29 in 1989 based on 2,283,231 weighted average shares.

For the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 net sales were $15,976,326 compared to $16,733,239 in the fourth quarter of 1989. The net loss for the period amounted to $575,421 vs. net income of $904,302 in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989. The loss per share was $.15 based on 3,730,001 weighted average shares compared to earnings per share of $.36 based on 2,528,571 weighted average shares in fiscal 1989.

Marietta president John Nadolski commented on the financial results. "Sales and earnings for the fourth quarter did not meet our growth expectations due to a slowdown in the travel and lodging industry and changes made in the last six months of the fiscal year at Marietta to enhance our long term growth. These changes included the transition to a new sales force and a computer conversion to upgrade our inventory control system. These changes temporarily impacted the company's production scheduling abilities, resulting in shorter, more costly production runs, effecting gross margins. Selling, general and administrative costs were greater as a percentage of sales for the quarter and the year due to lower than anticipated sales in the guest amenities area."

Nadolski continued, "Marietta has been working on new markets and areas into which to leverage our expertise. We have in-house capabilities for a new product to package retail size products in a flexible stand-up pouch for consumer goods companies. This type of packaging is more environmentally friendly than a rigid plastic container. The stand-up pouch allows consumer goods products companies a source reduction in their packaging and the packaging materials may be recycled. We have seen positive interest from many of our customers, have scheduled test runs, and have booked our first order on our new equipment."

"Additionally, our capital expenditures in upgrading our quality assurance department at our soap manufacturing facility are being rewarded. We recently received a large order from one of our custom packaging customers to produce retail soap as an extension of a cosmetic line. We will continue to pursue custom packaging of soap as a growth opportunity for Marietta."

Nadolski concluded, "Although the investments we have made in refining our sales strategy and in upgrading our inventory control system were initiated during the third fiscal quarter, and we feel the benefits will be apparent during 1991. We feel these changes and the growth opportunities we are pursuing will have long term benefits for our company."

Marietta Corporation specializes in the design, manufacture, packaging, marketing and distribution of guest amenity programs to the travel and lodging industry in the United States and abroad, and provides customized "sample-size" and "unit-of-use" packaging products and services to major consumer products companies in the toiletries, cosmetics and pharmaceutical industries.

The company also has begun planning for a profit pool of up to $25 million to be allocated to core business unit team members over a three-year period. The allocations will be based on value added to Sunbeam-Oster. Kazarian stated that he is actively seeking to augment his senior operating management team and that new managers would be eligible to participate in the profit pool.

HOUSTON, (DEC. 27) PRNEWSWIRE - LL&E Royalty Trust (NYSE: LRT) announced today that its monthly distribution to unit holders will be made on Jan. 17, 1991, to unit holders of record on Jan. 7, 1991. This distribution represents amounts payable to the trust with respect to production for the month of October 1990.

The total amount of the January distribution will be $1,858,636 or approximately $.09786 per unit. Due to the nature and timing of other operating and capital projects along with fluctuation in monthly production as well as the price of crude oil, this distribution is not necessarily indicative of future monthly distributions.

As previously announced, the working interest owner has begun to escrow amounts for the Fort Worth Basin property in connection with the issue of recapture of intangible drilling and development costs under Section 1254 of the Internal Revenue Code. The trust's interest in the amount escrowed from the current month's distribution and the cumulative balance of such are $8,920 and $541,031 respectively. As stated last month, pending the possible appeal by the IRS of the previously announced favorable ruling rendered by the United States Tax Court on the Section 1254 issue, the working interest owner has made no decision on whether and when these amounts will be released from escrow.

The working interest owner has determined under the terms of the trust documents that it is eligible to escrow funds from all trust properties for the 1254 recapture issue. However, it has advised the trustee that it does not intend to exercise its rights to escrow funds, other than for the Fort Worth Basin, for this issue for the January 1991 distribution. However, the working interest owner intends to continue to monitor its estimates of relevant factors in order to evaluate the necessity of escrowing funds for this issue on an ongoing basis. The working interest owner is under no obligation to give any advance notice to the trustee or the unit holders in the event it determines that funds should be escrowed. If the working interest owner does begin to escrow such funds with respect to the productive properties, other than Fort Worth Basin, the effect on royalties paid to the trust would be significant, and in certain circumstances could eliminate distributions for a period of time.

#90361p6361 12/27/1990 ~PR Newswire

ATLANTA, (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Subsidiaries of The Southern Company (NYSE: SO) have finalized an agreement with Gulf States Utilities Company to settle a four-year dispute over major power sales contracts between the utility systems.

The settlement -- which is subject to several contingencies, including approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission -- will terminate the contracts and end litigation between the parties.

Terms of the settlement call for Gulf States to provide the Southern subsidiaries with a financial package -- including cash, common stock, and deferred payments -- that has a net present value of up to $300 million, before taxes.

Specifically, Southern will receive: -- $75 million in cash, including approximately $68 million that Gulf States accrued in escrow in lieu of payment for capacity and energy under the contracts. The money will be paid after regulatory and court approval of the settlement.

-- Six million new shares of Gulf States common stock. In accepting these previously unissued shares, Southern has agreed to remain a passive holder for the entire period that it owns the stock -- exercising the voting rights that accompany these shares only in very limited circumstances.

-- If the highest price of Gulf States common stock does not average $18.25 a share for five consecutive days between the settlement date and Jan. 1, 1993, Gulf States will pay Southern an amount equal to the difference between the average highest price during that period and $18.25 a share. Yesterday, the closing price of Gulf States common stock was $10.25 a share.

-- Promissory notes for $160 million.

-- All cash amounts that Gulf States will owe Southern -- with the exception of the initial $75 million -- must be paid by Jan. 1, 1999. However, beginning Jan. 1, 1993, Gulf States is required to make payments to the extent that Gulf States has adequate cash available. Interest at the prime rate plus 1 percent will begin accruing on all unpaid amounts after Jan. 1, 1993.

As collateral for all future payments, Gulf States has pledged the Lewis Creek Generating Plant -- a 520-megawatt gas-fired facility near the city of Willis in eastern Texas.

In announcing today's development, Southern Company President Ed Addison said, "This final agreement carries essentially the same terms and value as the tentative settlement between the parties that was announced in June of this year. We're pleased that this contract dispute has been resolved in a manner that protects the long-term interests of our companies."

In 1982, Southern Company subsidiaries agreed to provide Gulf States with electricity from specific coal-fired generating units. Deliveries were scheduled to begin with 500,000 kilowatts of capacity in June 1984, rising to 600,000 kilowatts in 1987, and 700,000 kilowatts annually from 1988 through May 1992. In addition, the contracts called for Southern to provide various amounts of interruptible power over this period. Total value of the contracts was estimated at approximately $1 billion.

In 1985, Gulf States asked the Southern electric system to consider eliminating or suspending sales because the energy needs of its customers had fallen below forecasted levels. In late 1986, Gulf States discontinued most of the payments owed under the contracts. The Southern electric system -- with FERC approval -- suspended all transactions called for by the contracts in July 1988.

The disupte has been the subject of legal action before the FERC, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, and the U.S. Supreme Court. A separate suit still pending in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Texas will also be terminated with this settlement.

The Southern Company is the parent firm of five electric utilties: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, Mississippi Power, and Savannah Electric. (At the time the contracts with Gulf States were signed, Savannah Electric was not a member of the Southern electric system.) The Southern Company's common stock is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

CALGARY, Alberta (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - TransCanada Pipelines has set a new daily record for natural gas shipments, reflecting the fact that all pipeline constructed in 1990 is now in service, Chief Operating Officer George Hugh announced today.

"Total volumes of 5.15 billion cubic feet (Bcf) of natural gas entered the system on Dec. 24. Prior to this month, the record had been 4.9 Bcf," Hugh said.

Demand levels triggered by the current cold winter weather all across North America have been an important factor in gas transportation volumes. The key to the new record, however, is the additional capacity created by the construction of 423 kilometres of pipeline loop and unit additions to three compressor stations during 1990, Hugh explained. Work has now begun on 1991 facilities expansion, so the record is expected to be short-lived.

In the past two years, TransCanada has invested more than one billion dollars to increase its capacity by about 575 million cubic feet (Mmcf) per day, mostly for the domestic market.

Major facilities expansion during 1991/1992 will see the company increase capacity by 830 Mmcf per day to service further increases in Canadian demand plus the United States northeast.

Competitive prices, secure supplies of gas and the environmental advantages of natural gas are all factors in the growth in gas demand in North America. TransCanada will continue to play a key role in expansion of markets, for the benefit of all Canadians.

LOS ANGELES, (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Veronex Resources Ltd.'s (AMEX: VX; VSE: VEO) wholly owned subsidiary, Nordell International Resources Ltd., filed a motion on Dec. 26, 1990 to vacate the arbitration award issued on Dec. 13, 1990. The motion was filed in the United States District Court of the Central District of California in Los Angeles.

The arbitration award resulted from an arbitration initiated against Triton in January 1990, to resolve disagreements regarding certain cash obligations, accounting procedures and other matters. Subsequently, Triton made certain counterclaims in the arbitration.

The American Arbitration Association Panel's award purports to reduce the interest of Nordell to a 5 percent net profits interest in the Enim Oil Project in Indonesia and to award damages of approximately $1,000,000 to Triton Indonesia, Inc.

As reported earlier the panel's award appears to be inconsistent with the facts and evidence as presented in the testimony during the arbitration hearing. Further, the panel's award, in certain aspects, is unclear and it appears that the arbitration panel acted beyond the scope of its authority as well as outside the terms of the issues presented.

SEATTLE (DEC. 27) PR NEWSWIRE - Westmark International Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: WMRK) announced today the approval of the Arbitrator's binding Award and Judgment in litigation by Westmark subsidiary Advanced Technology Laboratories Inc. (ATL) against Acuson Corp. ATL alleged in its lawsuit that Acuson had engaged in systematic false and deceptive advertising in connection with sales of medical diagnostic ultrasound systems.

In documents prepared by the Arbitrator and approved by the United States District Court in Seattle, judgment was awarded in favor of ATL and against Acuson for $6.3 million. The Arbitrator further held that ATL is the prevailing party in the lawsuit and is entitled to an award of attorney's fees and costs against Acuson in an amount to be determined. The Arbitrator also found that Acuson is not entitled to any monetary relief against ATL and is not entitled to any award of attorneys' fees or costs.

The papers issued by the Arbitrator also include findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law with respect to an injunction in relation to conduct in the sale or promotion of ultrasound products.

Westmark and ATL are extremely pleased with the result of this litigation and believe that the Arbitrator's award and judgment strongly support ATL's position that it has been subjected to extensive false and deceptive sales tactics by Acuson. Westmark and ATL also expressed the hope and desire that the results in this case will promote ethical and truthful conduct and representations between suppliers of diagnostic ultrasound instruments and the medical community they serve.

Allen Guisinger, president of ATL, stated that "both parties entered this arbitration with the agreements that its results would be binding. We can now put this dispute behind us and concentrate on representing the merits of our respective products in the marketplace."

(DEC. 27) UPI - The New York Times says President Bush is NOT likely to listen to warnings from some U-S Army leaders that American troops WON't be ready for war by January 15th- if Bush decides military action in the Persian Gulf is necessary on that date. The Times cites two UNnamed senior members of the Bush administration as its sources. The sources say military leaders are always comfortable with more time.

South Korean President Roh Tae-woo has appointed 11 new cabinet members. Included in the reorganization is the prime minister. The new P-M has been Roh's chief of staff for nearly one year and is a former college professor. A presidential spokesman says the cabinet overhaul is aimed at actively coping with what he termed ''the internal and external situations and pushing government policies efficiently and vigorously.''

South Korea's main opposition says the cabinet shuffle is NOT likely to help democracy because many of the new appointees have a ''Cold War'' philosopy. The opposition party also said the economic team of the cabinet should have been replaced.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has given operators of the Seabrook plant mostly ''good'' marks for their management. The highest marks were for emergency preparedness and plant security at the controversial reactor in New Hampshire. New Hampshire Yankee has been sharply criticized by anti-nuclear groups and state officials in neighboring Massachusetts for its emergency evacuation plans.

Philadelphia Electric's Limerick nuclear plant has received top marks in five of seven areas in the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's annual evaluation of the facility.

In Singapore, a police department advertisement shows a corpse on a stretcher in a pool of blood to discourage drunken driving during the holiday season. The full-page newspaper ad carries the headline... ''Is this how you'll be going home?'' An ad depicting an emergency ward in a hospital will appear in newspapers New Year's Eve.

A house that caught fire in Los Angeles Wednesday had security bars on the windows... and people trapped inside. But the ending was a happy one. Sheriff's deputies and neighbors managed to pry open the security bars. They rescued eight people from the house. Six occupants of the house and three deputies were injured. Officials believe the blaze began from defective lights on the Christmas tree.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - The New York Mets reached agreement Wednesday on a contract extension with Kevin McReynolds that would pay the outfielder some $10 million over the next three years.

McReynolds, who batted .269 with 24 home runs and 84 RBI in 147 games last season, had one year remaining on his former contract that paid him some $1.26 million in 1990.

Mets officials have called a news conference for Thursday afternoon, but would not disclose the reason.

McReynolds, 31, is a career .270 hitter in seven full major-league seasons with 167 homers and 621 RBI. He has hit at least 20 homers in each of his last four years, all with the Mets.

McReynolds was acquired by the Mets prior to the 1987 season from San Diego along with pitcher Gene Walter and infielder Adam Ging for outfielders Kevin Mitchell, Shawn Abner and Stanley Jefferson and pitcher Kevin Brown.

He has been a left fielder in his career with the Mets, but may move back to his former position in center after New York acquired both Hubie Brooks and Vince Coleman during the off-season.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) UPI - Share prices posted a slight gain Thursday in Tokyo as a seesaw battle between new money coming into the market and old money trying to get out ended in the black.

The Nikkei average of 225 selected stocks rose 53.14 points to close at 23,940.70. The Nikkei, the market's main barometer, had gained 120 points the day before.

The broader Tokyo Stock Price Index of all major shares advanced 10. 74 points as broad buying carried most sectors higher. TOPIX ended the day at 1,740.55.

Trading quickened from Wednesday's negligible pace of 220 million shares, but remained low at an estimated 330 million shares.

New investment trusts with a cache of funds estimated at 500 billion yen (U.S dlrs 3.7 billion) started to enter the market this week, brokers said.

Institutional purchases drove the Nikkei up 375 points by midafternoon. But then profit-taking and margin-selling combined to batter the Nikkei back down to finish with only a very modest gain, they said.

Most of the funds are earmarked for entry into the market in the new year, said broker Brian Tobin of S.G. Warburg (Securities).

But a considerable amount of margin-selling remains in the offing, brokers said.

Despite Thursday's advance, brokers viewed the low volume as evidence that the market's energy has fizzled for the year.

With only a half-day session Friday to go in the trading year, prospects for a real rally were considered slim.

''I expect the year to end with a thud,'' Tobin remarked.

The bond market continued to advance on expectations of easier money in the new year. That gave a lift to banking stocks, brokers said.

Fuji Bank gained 50 yen to 2,400, while the Industrial Bank of Japan shot up 90 yen to close at 3,270.

Marine transport and oil stocks were weaker.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - Prospects for a merger between Pan Am Corp. and Trans World Airlines appeared to dim as representatives for each airline raised questions about the other's intentions.

''We still remain optimistic, but Pan Am doesn't seem to be interested in talking with us,'' said Mark Buckstein, general counsel at TWA. ''We have not had any conversations with them.''

Pan Am spokesman Jeffrey Kriendler said Wednesday TWA failed to supply a more detailed merger proposal, as requested by Pan Am on Friday. ''We are still awaiting their response, still waiting to hear from them,'' he said.

Merger talks between the two airlines stalled Monday after Pan Am officials cancelled an 11 a.m. meeting with their counterparts at TWA, Buckstein said.

Buckstein said Pan Am officials informed him early Monday that they would not come to the meeting and asked instead that TWA send over a copy of its buyout proposal. As of midday Wednesday, TWA had not done so, Buckstein said.

But Kriendler said no meeting had been scheduled, because Pan Am officials were prepared to meet only after seeing TWA's more detailed proposal.

''They have not come back and responded to our letter of Dec. 21, therein requesting that they provide us with a detailed term sheet of the proposal - in other words, the financial aspects of their offer,'' Kriendler said.

TWA owner Carl Icahn offered last week to acquire Pan Am for $1.50 a share cash and $1 in preferred stock or promissory notes, in a deal that would be worth $375 million at the most.

The price of Pan Am stock closed up $0.125 to $1.375 a share on the New York Stock Exchange.

Asked if TWA's offer was still on the table, Buckstein said: ''I guess you could say that, yes.'' He said TWA officials were awaiting Pan Am's next move.

In a letter to Pan Am Chairman Thomas Plaskett released Tuesday, Icahn questioned whether Pan Am was serious about a possible merger.

''The conflicting attitudes and signals that we have received from you and other representatives cause us to wonder whether you are serious,'' Icahn said.

Icahn also expressed concern about reports that Pan Am may be poised to sell its lucrative Northeast shuttle operation. Cash-strapped Pan Am has shed some assets in recent years to cover mounting losses.

''If you genuinely believe that a sale of the shuttle is the right answer for Pan Am, then why wouldn't you offer to TWA, as part of a merger, the right to compete for the shuttle on the same terms as another buyer?'' Icahn asked.

''At this stage in our discussions, for Pan Am to sell assets to third parties without discussing the same with TWA demonstrates your lack of a good-faith interest in negotiating the merger of our airlines.

''I urge you and your board to carefully consider your next step before you destroy the possibility of a Pan Am-TWA combination which might well be your airline's only hope of survival,'' Icahn wrote.

Pan Am did not immediately respond to the letter.

Plaskett opened the way for a merger Friday in a letter to Icahn saying ''the time is right'' to explore the possibility. But Plaskett also said Pan Am would need a loan from TWA while awaiting approval of any merger agreement.

Icahn said he would be willing to loan Pan Am money, but only as part of bankruptcy proceedings that would give TWA a priority lien on unsecured Pan Am assets. Plaskett is said to oppose that condition.

The Wall Street Journal reported Monday that Northwest Airlines had arranged financing with PacifiCorp of Portland, Ore., to buy the Pan Am Shuttle linking New York, Boston and Washington for $150 million.

Spokesmen for Northwest and Pan Am declined to comment on the report.

Such a sale would further ease the cash shortage at Pan Am.

On Monday, Pan Am received $20 million from United Airlines for its San Francisco facilities, sold as part of a larger $400 million deal including Pan Am's five U.S.-London routes.

Pan Am needs cash to survive the slow winter travel season while awaiting governmental approval of the London route transfer.

(DEC. 27) UPI - U.S. military leaders believe Iraqi troops are so deeply dug into Kuwait they most likely will have to be removed by force and President Bush reportedly will not be deterred from attacking Iraq by military preparedness.

Japan's prime minister Thursday sent a letter to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein urging him to withdraw his forces from Kuwait.

Recalling Japan's bitter experience of war and its long, hard recovery, Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu urged Saddam to avoid conflict, according to a summary of the contents released by the Foreign Ministry.

The New York Times reported Thursday that President Bush knew when the United Nations voted for the deadline to authorize the use of force against Iraq that American troops might not be ready to attack by Jan. 15.

Two unnamed senior administration sources quoted by the newspaper said the official position is that Jan. 15 is not the date on which the United States is committed to begin military activity, but merely an ''authorization date,'' after which Bush will enjoy a United Nations sanction should he decide to go to war.

''The military are always more comfortable with more time, but I would not take that to mean that we are expanding our timetable,'' the newspaper quoted one official as saying.

Saddam insisted Wednesday that the Palestinian question would have to be on the agenda of any meeting he held on the Gulf crisis.

''The Palestinian issue is our first priority,'' he was quoted by the Iraqi News Agency as saying. ''We will liberate Palestine, after that we will be ready to discuss all issues. This is our policy and we will not retract it.''

And in a television interview, taped last Saturday and broadcast Wednesday night on Spain's independent television network Telecinco, Saddam said if war broke out Iraq would attack Tel Aviv. He also defended Iraq's possession and possible use of chemical weapons.

''Those who accuse us should also take into consideration that nuclear weapons are more dangerous than chemical ones. The United States used nuclear weapons in Japan. Israel, as all the world knows has nuclear weapons,'' Saddam said.

''Therefore Iraq has a right to possess the same weapons that its enemy has or those which can neutralize the arms of its enemy. This question is not for discussion by us,'' he added.

''Chemical weapons have been used in Vietnam and Afghanistan by the United States and the Soviet Union. We think the discussion of this issue is hypocrisy and we do not respect hypocrites,'' Saddam continued.

Two high-level Soviet officials left Moscow for Baghdad to discuss the evacuation of 1,700 Soviets remaining in Iraq and for ''a variety of meetings'' in the Iraqi capital, a Soviet Foreign Ministry official said.

In Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, Lt. Col. Tom Coury, a U.S. Army intelligence officer, told reporters at a briefing that military experts feel the Iraqis are too deeply dug into Kuwait to withdraw before Jan. 15 and most likely will have to be removed by force.

''We presently assess that Saddam Hussein intends to remain in Kuwait for the long haul,'' said Coury. ''He continues to pour both men and materiel into the country.''

Asked if that means Iraq will have to be forced out of Kuwait, Coury responded ''Well, it's looking in that direction.''

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said an Iraqi missile took off from Iraq and landed within Iraq and ''appeared to be part of additional testing or training'' for Iraqi forces. The missile was not aimed at the multinational forces arrayed against Iraq.

In Washington, the State Department denied a report published in an Israeli newspaper that Secretary of State James Baker would meet Saddam in Baghdad Jan. 9 for talks on the Persian Gulf standoff.

Saddam himself appeared to rule out the reported compromise, saying in an interview on Mexican television that no date but the one he proposed - Jan. 12 - would be acceptable. The United States has said it wants the meeting held on Jan. 3.

The State Department Wednesday ordered all non-essential U.S. personnel to leave Jordan and Sudan ''well before Jan. 15,'' citing ''unstable conditions'' and the growing threat to Americans in the Persian Gulf.

U.S. citizens were warned in previous travel advisories to leave Yemen, Bahrain, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and the eastern province of Saudi Arabia.

In another development Wednesday, a Palestine Liberation Organization official threatened terrorist attacks against U.S. targets worldwide in the event of war against Iraq.

''American interests in the world will be targeted and suicidal attacks will be launched in and outside the gulf and Palestine,'' said Zeid Wehbeh, PLO representative in Lebanon.

Wehbeh made the threat in an interview with the Lebanese communist- run Voice of the People radio station.

(DEC. 27) UPI - St. Louis ran its unbeaten string to nine games with a late goal Wednesday night against Chicago, but it was the Blues who were disappointed and the Blackhawks who came away encouraged.

Jeff Brown scored an unassisted goal at 15:17 of the third period and assisted on three others to thwart a Chicago rally, giving the Blues a 6-6 tie.

Chicago had overcome a 3-0 deficit, taking a 6-5 lead on third-period goals by Steve Larmer, Adam Creighton and Wayne Presley, the latter two scoring just 13 seconds apart.

''We were able to pick up a huge point (in the standings) considering the hole we were in,'' Chicago Coach Mike Keenan said.

The Blackhawks missed on four shots in the overtime period, while the Blues did not have an attempt against goaltender Ed Belfour.

With the tie, St. Louis remained unbeaten in its last nine games at 6-0-3. That was not good enough for Blues Coach Brian Sutter.

''All I can say is I'm disappointed,'' Sutter said. ''You have a 5-3 lead in the third period, you should win the hockey game.''

Trailing 5-3 after two periods, Chicago started its rally with Larmer's 25th goal of the season. He flipped the puck over goaltender Vincent Riendeau's stick from close range at 6:08 of the third to pull the Blackhawks within 5-4.

Creighton then notched his second goal of the game and 12th of the season, hitting Steve Thomas's pass in the air into the net at 11:27. Just 13 seconds later, Presley jabbed a rebound into the net for his seventh goal and a 6-5 Chicago lead.

The Blackhawks, who have the NHL's best record at 25-12-3, now have outscored opponents 54-36 in the third period.

Despite the comeback, Keenan wasn't completely happy with his team's slow start. He benched forwards Dirk Graham, Mike Hudson, Presley and Jeremy Roenick for about nine minutes in the second period.

''It's simply a matter of preparation and remembering how we got to be a first-place club,'' Keenan said. ''It's that consistency that made us a first-place club. You don't get 53 points by playing half a game.''

The Blues opened a 3-0 first period lead, outshooting Chicago 10-3. Ron Wilson notched his sixth goal of the season off a rebound at 3:01 and just 1:07 later Oates made the score 2-0 with an unassisted goal. Oates, who had two goals and an assist in St. Louis' 5-0 win Saturday, connected on a screened shot from the slot for his sixth of the season.

St. Louis capitalized on a 4-on-3 situation when Cliff Ronning scored a power-play goal at 6:21 off a rebound of Oates' missed attempt to open a 3-0 lead.

''I think we came out flat and it's been like that all year,'' Creighton said. ''We showed we could battle back. We were lucky we got it going.''

-- AROUND THE NHL --

In other NHL games Wednesday night, Buffalo tied Boston 3-3, Hartford thumped Quebec 4-1, Pittsburgh ripped Washington 7-3 and Winnipeg beat Minnesota 6-4.

SABRES 3, BRUINS 3

At Buffalo, N.Y., Benoit Hogue scored a power-play goal at 18:40 of the third period to lift the Sabres into the tie. Hogue's 15-foot wrist shot from the slot deflected in off Don Sweeney. Vladimir Ruzicka scored two goals to lead the Bruins.

WHALERS 4, NORDIQUES 1

At Quebec, linemates Ron Francis, Pat Verbeek and Rob Brown scored one goal each to lead the Whalers. Hartford's Peter Sidorkiewicz registered 32 saves as the Whalers recorded their first victory over the Nordiques this season.

PENGUINS 7, CAPITALS 3

At Landover, Md., Paul Coffey scored twice in a span of 39 seconds and Bryan Trottier and Barry Pederson followed with first-period goals less than two minutes later for the Penguins. The five goals came on the Penguins' first seven shots.

JETS 6, NORTH STARS 4

At Bloomington, Minn., Paul MacDermid scored a goal and assisted on three others, including a pair by Ed Olcyzk, to help the Jets snap a four-game losing streak. Winnipeg's victory was only its second in its last 11 games.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (DEC. 27) UPI - President Roh Tae-woo named a new prime minister and a new presidential chief of staff in a major overhaul of his government Thursday.

Roh retained his defense and home affairs ministers as well as most cabinet members in charge of economic affairs in the shakeup, which his spokesman said was aimed at more efficient implementation of government policies.

Named to head the 26-member cabinet was Ro Jai-bong, 54, who had been the presidential chief of staff since March. A former college professor, Ro first joined government service in 1988 as a special assistant to the president for political affairs.

Ro, the presidential chief of staff, replaced Kang Young-hoon who asked the leave the prime minister's post, which he has held since December 1988.

''I respect President Roh for placing trust in me despite my lack of experience,'' Ro said. ''Personally this is a great honor. It is significant, I think, that a presidential chief of staff became the prime minister for the first time in our history.''

Presidential spokesman Lee Soo-jung said ''the cabinet overhaul aims at actively coping with the internal and external situations and pushing government policies efficiently and vigorously.''

Park Hee-tae, spokesman for the ruling Democratic Liberal Party, welcomed the changes. ''We think this is a best cabinet lineup to implement President Roh's ruling philosophy as he enters the second half of his (five-year) term of office,'' Park said.

The opposition Party for Peace and Democracy led by Kim Dae Jung said through a spokesman the reshuffling was disappointing. ''It is not likely to help democracy because many of the new appointees are personalities with a cold war philosopy.''

Deputy Premier for Economic Planning Minister Lee Seung-yoon was retained in the shakeup along with Defense Minister Lee Jong-koo and Home Minister Ahn Eung-mo.

Choi Ho-joong was promoted from the foreign minister's post to be the deputy premier, unification minister. Lee Sang-ock, ambassador to Switzerland, was ordered to head the foreign ministry succedding Choi.

Appointed presidential chief of staff succeeding Ro Jai-bong was Chung Hae-chang, 53, a former justice minister.

Political analysts said the new prime minister fully understands President Roh and therefore the cabinet will follow Roh's wishes more closely. They, however said Ro Jai-bong's capabilities as the head of the cabinet have yet to be tested.

JAKARTA, INDONESIA (DEC. 27) UPI - Two elephant trainers from Thailand were called in to drive away rampaging elephants angry with people encroaching on their habitat in northern Suamtra, the Kompas newspaper said Thursday.

The operation by a team of 15 people - including two Thai elephant trainers - is underway in North Aceh district, where a herd of 16 elephants destroyed more than 49 acres of palm oil trees this month, an official said told Kompas.

Andi Basrul, head of an elephant school in the province, said that ''should efforts to push away (the elephants) become fruitless, the elephants would be rounded up and sent into an elephant training center in Lhokseumawe.''

Sumatra, 140 miles west of Jakarta, is home to an estimated 3,000 to 4,800 wild elephants, but due to their limited habitat, the elephants go into plantations and resettlement centers, causing widespread crop damage.

An official said Sumatra's jungle only has the potential to provide for some 1,500 wild elephants.

Elephant stampedes occur regularly in Sumatra because the animals have been left with less and less space and food as land is developed, the official said.

Indonesia's policy of moving millions of people from crowded parts of Java to Sumatra to relieve population pressures has encroached on traditional elephant habitats.

At least four people have been killed by rampaging elephants in Sumatra this year.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) UPI - Politician Toshiyuki Inamura was charged Thursday with massive tax evasion, a day after he resigned from the ruling Liberal Democratic party amid allegations of financial improprieties, news reports said.

The Tokyo Regional Tax Bureau reportedly charged Inamura, a former Cabinet member, with failing to pay $12.5 million in taxes on profits of nearly $21 million he made from secret stock and property transactions.

Officials of the bureau refused to confirm or comment on the case.

Inamura faces tax penalties of up to $23.5 million, the news reports said.

The tax office passed along its charges to the public prosecutor's office, which is reportedly considering a criminal indictment.

Prosecutors questioned Inamura last week and searched his property.

Inamura allegedly made a fortune through his dealings with Mitsuhiro Kotani, a wealthy speculator now facing charges of stock manipulation.

A former chief of Japan's Environment Agency, Inamura became the first major politician to become embroiled in scandal this year.

The Liberal Democratic Party has been struggling to clean up its image since the Recruit stock scandal tarnished virtually the entire party leadership and forced the resignation of Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita in June 1989.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (DEC. 27) UPI - Police said Thursday 53 students including nine who are serving military duty have been arrested for leftist activity and 30 others are being sought.

A police spokesman said the youths were members of an underground organization called the National Students Alliance for Democracy formed on Nov. 3. Police did not say when the students were arrested.

The group staged more than 30 violent demonstrations and set fire to public offices on 10 occasions, according to the spokesman. The students were charged with forming a pro-communist organization in violation of the National Security Law, the spokesman said.

Police have seized nearly 4,000 pieces of evidence including communist booklets, gas guns, pagers, word processors, computer diskettes and placards, the spokesman said.

More than 900 students are believed to be affiliated with the organization and an investigation continues into the case, the spokesman added.

RANGOON, BURMA (DEC. 27) UPI - The election commission said Wednesday it has struck off the names of eight deputies from the list of elected parliamentary representatives because they set up a parallel government at a jungle hideout and established links with rebel groups.

The deputies have violated the elections law and thereby forfeited their right to continue as parliamentary representatives, the commission said in its announcement.

Of the eight, six belong to the National League for Democracy - the main opposition party, which captured 392 of 485 seats contested in the May 27 multiparty elections.

Of the remaining two, one is chairman of the Party For National Democracy and the other is an independent.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - U.S. officials are studying a detailed analysis of the Soviet Union that confirms what any Moscow shopper or visitor suspected: The Soviet economy is a basket-case and President Mikhail Gorbachev's perestroika reforms have so far succeeded only in making the problem worse.

The report suggests that outside help may not be possible or effective.

The summary of a six-month study by the International Monetary Fund, which will be released in full in early January, will be an important element in decisions now being made within the U.S. government and the other six leading industrial nations.

Those decisions revolve around how - and if - the West can help the Soviet government survive long enough to incorporate far-reaching economic reforms.

Given the description of the disastrous state of the Soviet economy, the IMF report to the seven nations attending the annual economic summits is not encouraging.

The exhaustive report says that the Soviet Union was saved from earlier collapse only because of the dramatic increase in world oil prices in the 1970s. The Soviet Union is the world's second largest oil exporter, following Saudi Arabia.

But, the report says, in the current situation, with oil prices again going through the roof, Soviet oil and gas production and exports are actually falling because of a breakdown in the production facilities, pipelines and transportation system.

Thus, the Soviet Union cannot take advantage of the current price bubble.

The report says the Gorbachev reforms sometimes had a negative effect because they were introduced in piecemeal fashion, thus introducing the factors of confusion and inconsistency.

As a result of the partial reforms, according to the report, inflation and unemployment began to creep into the Soviet economy. The report puts the current annual rate of inflation at about 12 percent and unemployment at about 1.5 percent.

One result is that the Soviet economy is now partly a primitive barter system where consumers trade potatoes for shoes. Also, black- market U.S. dollars and packs of cigarettes have become important units of currency.

Should consumer goods become more easily available, the report says, that would probably increase inflation since there is now a huge amount of personal savings - estimated at 250 billion rubles - which remain unspent because there is nothing in the stores to buy.

The IMF report confirms an earlier analysis by the CIA that said the Soviet national railroad system is close to a complete breakdown and that the agricultural industry, despite a good harvest year, was a serious drag on the economy because of storage and distribution problems.

Despite Gorbachev's intention of cutting back on defense spending and the size of the army, the IMF report says that the military burden on the economy remains significant, possibly as high as 18 percent of the GNP. The equivalent figure for the United States would be about 7 percent.

The IMF report says, ''The traditional centrally planned system has largely collapsed but has not been replaced by a functioning market system.''

In its recommendations for how the outside world can help the Gorbachev experiment, the IMF report urges caution.

Until there is a firm legal underpinning for private property and a basis for a market economy, the report says, there is no assurance that economic reform would even get started. But those legal reforms can't be put into place until the political turmoil, involving rival ethnic and national interests, are settled, and there has been so sign that those difficulties will disappear.

The IMF recommends a new system of taxation, in the short run, a sharp reduction of price subsidies and cutting expenditures on excess state enterprises and the military budget.

But those reforms, if instituted, would probably put Gorbachev in conflict with some of his conservative allies in the Soviet political system. That was one reason, according to U.S. officials, for the dramatic resignation last week of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who warned of an approaching dictatorship.

Shevardnadze, who had been outspoken in his support for liberalization of the economy, had been under heavy attack from those conservatives, including those in the military services.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (DEC. 27) UPI - Parliament opened its winter session Thursday with debate over whether the Congress (I) Party of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi could lead the opposition while propping up the current government.

Gandhi's party supported Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar during a vote of confidence last month, allowing him to form a new government and avoid a mid-term election that Congress (I) feared it would lose.

Debate on the opposition issue came during a stormy opening session of the lower house, with supporters of recently toppled Prime Minister V.P. Singh staging a shouting match and sit-down strike challenging the legitimacy of Shekhar's government.

Both Singh and Shekhar belonged to the Janata Dal Party, which split following the collapse of the Singh government in November. The formation of the Shekhar government with the aid of the Congress (I) drove a bitter wedge between the two Janata factions.

Dinesh Singh, a senior Congress (I) leader in the Lok Sabha, or lower house, insisted that while his party would continue to support the Shekhar administration on some issues, ''we are not an appendage of the government.''

Members of Gandhi's Congress (I) also contend they deserve to lead the opposition because they comprise largest opposition party in Parliament. Congress (I) has so far overcome challenges to remain leader of the opposition in the Raj Sabha, or upper house.

But L.K. Advani, whose Hindu-backed Bharatiya Janata Party brought down the Singh government, said his organization never claimed to be in opposition while propping up the previous administration.

''The Congress (I) wants to have the cake and eat it too,'' said Advani, who assumed the mantle of opposition leader in the lower house.

The strike in the well of the Lok Sabha was joined by Communist lawmakers noisily protesting on another issue and prompted house Speaker Rabi Ray to adjourn the session for 15 minutes so order could be restored.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - Durable goods orders dropped 10.5 percent, or $13.5 billion, in November, matching a 32-year record decline set earlier this year in January, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

Orders for durable goods, those big-ticket items designed to last three or more years, totaled $115.9 billion last month, the lowest level since $115.3 billion in May 1988.

Durable goods orders totaled $129.5 billion in October, the high for the year.

The government said declines in orders were widespread throughout most major industry sectors. The largest decrease was in transportation equipment, which fell 27.4 percent - or $10.3 billion - to $27.4 billion.

Orders for aircraft and parts dropped 38.8 percent and more than offset a 20.4 percent increase in October.

The remainder of the decline was concentrated in the volatile motor vehicles and parts industries.

Orders for primary metals dropped 9.8 percent, or $1.2 billion, to $10.8 billion, the largest one-month decline since a 14.1 percent drop in January 1988.

Electrical machinery orders declined 7.6 percent, or $1.5 billion, to $18.4 billion, the lowest level since March 1989.

Shipments of durable goods declined 3.6 percent, or $4.5 billion, to $121.7 billion, the lowest monthly volume since last January.

Most of the decline was concentrated in transportation equipment, which dropped 10.6 percent, or $3.5 billion, to $29.6 billion. Nearly all of this decline was in shipments of motor vehicles and parts.

Shipments of primary metals slipped 4.1 percent - or $500 million - to $11.2 billion. Small increases were posted in shipments of electrical and non-electrical shipments.

Unfilled orders for durable goods dropped 1.1 percent, or $5.7 billion, to $497.5 billion, the largest monthly decline in more than five years. Transportation and electrical machinery accounted for more than 75 percent of the decline.

Orders for non-defense related capital goods fell 16.4 percent - or $6.8 billion - to $34.8 billion. Most of this decrease came from commercial aircraft and parts orders. Excluding aircraft, the decline was 6 percent.

Shipments of non-defense goods slipped 1.3 percent - or $500 million - to $36.1 billion.

New orders for defense-related goods dropped 24.5 percent - or $1.8 billion - to $5.4 billion. Shipments of defense goods increased 4.6 percent - or $400 million - to $9.2 billion.

(DEC. 27) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange posted slight gains Thursday on a seesaw battle between institutional buying and a combination of profit taking and margin selling.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected stocks, which gained 119.68 points Wednesday, rose 53.14 points to 23,940.70.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major shares gained 10.74 points to 1,740.55 as broad buying carried most sectors higher.

Advances outpaced declines 599 to 345, while 153 issues remained unchanged.

Trading quickened from Wednesday's negligible pace of 220 million shares, but remained low at an estimated 330 million shares.

Analysts said new investment trusts with a cache of funds estimated at $3.7 billion started to enter the market this week.

Institutional purchases drove the Nikkei up 375 points by midday. But profit taking and margin selling battered the index down to only a very modest gain, market watchers said.

Most of the funds are earmarked for entry into the market in the new year, said Brian Tobin of S.G. Warburg Securities.

But a considerable amount of margin selling remains in the offing, the analyst said.

Despite Thursday's advance, market watchers viewed the low volume as evidence the market's energy has fizzled for the year.

With only a half-day session Friday left in the trading year, prospects for a real rally are considered slim.

''I expect the year to end with a thud,'' Tobin said.

The bond market continued to advance on expectations of easier money in the new year, boosting banking stocks as well.

Fuji Bank and Industrial Bank of Japan both ended higher.

Marine transport and oil stocks weakened.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices closed higher in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as many investors waited for the new year.

The benchmark Hang Seng Index inched up 5.76 points to close at 3, 066.71. The gain follows Monday's 18-point loss.

Markets in Hong Kong were closed Wednesday and Thursday for the holidays.

Among the narrower indexes, financials eased 14.63 points, utilities gained 35.75, properties climbed 34.11 and industrials shed 7.95 points.

Turnover was an extremely thin 341 million shares.

Analysts said they expected the market to continue crawling as investors wait for fresh news from the Persian Gulf.

Veit Schuhen of Hypobank said, ''It's pretty quiet, now, but if something substantial happens in the Middle East, the action will pick up very quickly.''

In Singapore, stock prices firmed in light trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange on reports U.S. Secretary of State James Baker is due in Baghdad Jan. 9 for talks aimed at averting war in the Gulf.

The Straits Times Industrial Index rose 5.65 points to 1,160.54. The broader-based All Singapore Index rose 2.61 points to 321.60.

Turnover amounted to 17.5 million shares, compared with 17.6 million Wednesday.

Analysts said the market was expected to drift sideways for the rest of the holiday shortened week.

Prices rose on an account in a Jerusalem newspaper that Baker will meet with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein for last-ditch talks Jan. 9 although the U.S. State Department has denied the report.

Gains in Tokyo's and Hong Kong also bolstered prices, analysts said.

On the trading floor, Hotel Malaysia paced the advancing issues followed by Central Properties and Hong Leong Credit.

Uniphone led the declining stocks followed by Metro Holdings and Shell.

Elsewhere around the region, in Bangkok, stock prices closed slightly higher in thin trading on the Thailand Stock Exchange.

The Securities Exchange of Thailand Index rose 2.93 points to 603.81.

Volume remained light at an estimated 60 million Thai shares, almost unchanged from Wednesday.

''Investors are still waiting for the development in the Middle East crisis,'' a broker from Phatra Thanakit Co., Ltd. said.

In Australia, stock prices closed higher in light trading on the Sydney Sharemarket as bargain hunters and small investors helped push prices higher.

The All Ordinaries Index gained 10.0 points to 1,280.7 while the All Industrial index rose 16.4 points to 1,931.3 and the All Resources Index gained 4.6 points to 763.4.

Turnover amounted to 60.6 million shares but analysts noted the total was distorted by heavy options related to Westpac Bank.

Analysts said trading was dominated by ''mums-and-dads bargain hunting'' in high yielding banks and selected blue chips.

Institutions were absent because most had taken an extended Christmas-New Years Eve break.

In the banking sector, ANZ Bank rose 8 cents to $3.40, NAB Bank added 4 cents to $5.12.

Westpac Bank, whose December option contract expired after going ex- dividend last Monday, rose 2 cents to $3.37 on turnover, option holders taking up their shares, of 25 million shares.

Elsewhere, News Corp. rose 13 cents to $5.08.

LONDON (DEC. 27) UPI - Stock prices were slightly higher in thin trading at midday Thursday on the London International Stock Exchange.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which eased 8.1 points Monday in holiday-shortened trading, was up 8.5 points to 2,164.8. The narrower top 30 industrial average was up 6.8 points to 1,685.7.

Volume amounted to around 88 million shares.

Analysts said stocks drifted slightly higher in thin trading, reflecting an absence of news and market participants.

Market watchers said local investors took their initial lead from the Wall Street, where the Dow Jones Average gained 15.84 points Wednesday.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Glaxo Holdings gained 18 cents to $16.30, British Aerospace eased 5 cents to $9.95.

Among some international issues, Imperial Chemical Industries slipped 2 cents to $16.68, Barclays Bank added 3 cents to $6.85 and British Petroleum slipped 1 cent to $10.22.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices closed lower in thin holiday trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 5.62 points last Friday, slipped 4.01 points to 1,410.87.

Traders said many participants remained on holiday as most institutional investors have already closed their books for the year.

The exchange, which was closed Monday through Wednesday for the Christmas holidays, will also be closed Monday and Tuesday next week.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 27) UPI - Police, alarmed by a holiday wave of violence that left at least 22 dead and hundreds injured, announced plans Thursday to launch South Africa's most sweeping anti-crime campaign in years.

''We've just reached the end of our tether, a senior police official ''

Officers declined to detail their anti-crime effort, saying the crackdown was still under discussion by Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok and his generals.

''It will address the whole spectrum of crime, every angle, every possibility, every facet,'' Law and Order Ministry spokesman Capt. Craig Kotze said. ''This will be the biggest anti-crime drive in years.''

Police were particularly concerned over the proliferation of assault rifles among criminals, Kotze said. Security analysts said they believe the weapons are smuggled into the country, most of them purchased from rebel forces in neighboring Mozambique.

The senior police official also expressed fears that law enforcement officers were increasingly becoming targets of violence. At least seven policemen were attacked and wounded with guns or knives since the beginning of the holiday season on Monday.

''Everyone's become a target. ... It's got to end,'' he said.

Police said violent crime tends to peak every December, but this year's surge coincides with increased factional fighting in black townships that has claimed 3,000 lives this year.

Military and police forces already are thinly stretched in the townships, and authorities fear the recent crime wave could exacerbate political tensions.

''The last thing the forces on the ground need is a fresh outburst of common crime to top that all,'' security consultant Mark McGregor said.

Since Monday, hospitals reported treating more than 430 assault victims in the Cape Province, some 200 in Natal and more than 150 in the Orange Free State and Transvaal provinces.

At least 22 murders were reported in the same period, including 16 people in various black townships, four inner-city residents, and a couple slain at their home in a posh suburb of Pretoria Wednesday, police spokesman said.

The death of the couple, personal friends of Vlok, prompted him to express his ''shock'' at the nationwide violence.

''We will examine this violence in depth and possible solutions,'' he said Wednesday.

Independent crime monitors have calculated that every person in South Africa is assaulted or robbed at least once in the nation's major cities.

Many psychologists have said they believe the country's 42-year-old system of white-minority rule, racial segregation and the resulting racial conflict have bred unnatural aggression, leading to heightened crime.

But the country's ailing economy and a flood of rural residents to urban areas also has been associated with increased crime.

MILWAUKEE (DEC. 27) UPI - Two elderly brothers have again proven that they will go to great lengths to protect their jewelry store.

Police said two 20-year-old men tried to rob George and Roy Becker's jewelry store Wednesday and hit Roy, 64, on the head with a tire iron and tried to steal items from a display case. That's when George, 70, opened fire with a double-barreled shotgun, wounding one of the bandits in the face, chest and neck. Both suspects were later arrested.

''I think they just wanted the easy money and don't want to work for it,'' said Roy, who is a World War II veteran like his brother. ''We'll give them right back what they give everybody else.'' They hit him (Roy) ''

Roy Becker had to have 12 stitches in his head.

''We always protect ourselves,'' Roy said. ''The law says you can protect yourself and your property. That's what we fought for in World War II.''

The Beckers have run the jewelry store since 1947 when they returned from the war and it is the second shooting incident they have been involved in. The first was in 1968 when two suspects hit Roy in the head and both brothers retaliated with guns, wounding one of the suspects.

''That one was a shootout,'' George said. ''It's worse when somebody's shooting at you.''

The Milwaukee County District Attorney's Office Thursday will review the latest shooting and the case against the two robbery suspects, who were arrested in an apartment building after an ambulance was called there.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - Although Christmas is over, there are only four shopping days left for connoisseurs of expensive cars and luxury furs, as well as for devotees of booze and beer.

On Tuesday, Jan. 1, a set of new excise taxes, enacted as part of the budget agreement last fall, go into effect with a sting that will be felt by Joe Sixpack as well as the jet set.

And many merchants, using newspapers, radio and television, are letting the public know that prices are going up, up and up.

Signs on liquor store windows scream out ''Prices Go Up Jan. 1, Buy Now'' and a Cadillac ad blares ''Beat the Luxury Tax - you have until Dec. 31, 1990, to save thousands.''

The fancier liquor store owners report the well-to-do stocking up on some of the high-priced items, such as expensive wines and liquers, but few report a run on everyday beer.

High-priced car dealers report a jump in sales in the last couple of months but aren't that sure it can be attributed to the new tax.

''There is some of this tax thing but not as much as you might think, '' Mike Krichiro, a sales representative at Jim Coleman Cadillac in suburban Maryland said. He attributed more to a Cadillac program under which a person trading in a 1985-86-87 model gets a $4,000 rebate.

Stephen Smythe, executive vice president of Euro Motors in Bethesda, Md., which sells Mercedes-Benz that range in price from $28,000 to $90, 000, said that initially there was no response to the prospect of an increased tax.

But Smythe said, ''Since November, we've enjoyed a little bit of an increase '' adding that sales are running about 20 percent above the comparable period in 1989.

Two of the taxes, the gasoline tax and the aviation tax, went into effect Dec. 1.

The fuels tax is 5 cents a gallon, raising the federal gasoline tax to 14 cents a gallon and the diesel fuel to 20 cents a gallon. The aviation tax increases the tax on a ticket from 8 percent to 10 percent.

The taxes that go into effect Jan. 1 are on alcoholic beverages, tobacco, gas guzzlers, telephones and luxury items.

The luxury tax imposes a 10 percent surtax on the portion of the retail price above $30,000 for cars, $100,000 for boats and yachts, $250,000 for private planes and $10,000 for jewelry and furs.

As an example, on a car that retails for $50,000, the surtax is 10 percent of $20,000 or $2,000.

Boats and cars used exclusively in business are generally exempt and planes used at least 80 percent of the time in trade or business are not covered by the surtax.

The tax on alcoholic beverages covers beer, table wine and hard liquors.

The tax on a six-pack of beer will increase from 16 cents to 32 cents and the tax on wines and liquors will climb with the alcoholic content.

On wine, the increase ranges from 17 cents a gallon, up to $1.07, for a wine with an alcoholic content of 14 percent to an increase of 90 cents a gallon, up to $3.15, for wines with 24 percent alcoholic content.

The tax on liquor is increased from $12.50 per proof gallon to $13.50 per proof gallon. For example, a 1.7 liter bottle of 80 proof liquor will have an added tax of 37 cents.

The tobacco tax will go up by 25 percent this Jan. 1 and by the same dollar amount Jan. 1, 1993. The tax on a pack of small cigarettes will go from 16 to 20 cents in January and to 24 cents in 1993.

As of Jan. 1, the tax on gas guzzlers doubles. The tax begins at $1, 000 for cars that do not meet the 22.5 miles-per-gallon standard set in law and rises to $7,700 for vehicles that get less than 12.5 miles per gallon.

The 3 percent tax, due to expire, was permanently extended.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - Opening of trading at the New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange was delayed Thursday due to a transformer fire outside the building containing key computer systems for both exchanges, officials said.

A transformer exploded about 12:44 a.m. EST beneath the sidewalk outside 55 Water St. in the financial district, shooting flames about eight stories into the air, breaking windows and possibly spewing dangerous PCBs around the area, Fire Department officials said.

Officials said a possible 40 people were exposed to PCBs.

The start of trading at the NYSE was expected to be delayed at least a few hours after Securities Industry Automation Corp. personnel were allowed back into the building, a NYSE statement said.

American Stock Exchange spokesman Bob Shabazian said, ''We're subject to an opening delay, but don't know for how long.''

Both the NYSE and the Amex usually open trading at 9:30 a.m. EST.

The National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System, or NASDAQ, was expected to begin trading at 9:30 a.m. as usual, a NASD spokeman said.

However, the Securities and Exchange Commission asked all outside stock exchanges to delay opening until SIAC computers are back in service.

An SEC spokesman said the agency asked for the delay to assure that all ''market participants have access to the same information.''

A NYSE spokeswoman said she expected the Big Board to ''begin trading by noon

EST or sooner, if possible.''

Michael Metz, an analyst at Oppenheimer & Co., said the indefinite delay would not have any significant effect on the market other than that ''intraday trading is eliminated, the people who were just trying to scalp eighths and quarters (of a point).

''The serious investors who have things to do will be in there,'' he said. ''But the stock exchange is fortunate in that this has happened when interest is at an all-time low,'' said Metz, referring to the extremely light trading during the holiday week. Wednesday's session was the second-lightest full session of the year.

The Boston Stock Exchange said it will delay trading until the primary exchanges on which trades are listed - the NYSE and Amex - begin operations, a spokesman for the exchange said.

The Cincinnati Stock Exchange also said it would delay trading until the NYSE opens.

Linda Hopwood, a spokeswoman for the Kansas City Board of Trade said ''trading will be delayed on Kansas City Board of Trade's Value Line and Mini-Value Line Futures contracts because of (the) fire.''

Representatives of the Midwest Stock Exchange had said they planned to open for trading at the usual 9:30 a.m. EST.

Fire leaped eight stories high when the transformer exploded about 12:44 a.m. in front of the Water St. office tower, said Lt. Jim Powell, a Fire Department spokesman.

''One transformer exploded in the street,'' Powell said. ''The flames shot up eight stories on the southside of the building.''

Windows on the fifth, sixth and seventh floors were blown out and also caused a small fire on the sixth floor, he said.

Thirty firefighters battling were possibly exposed to PCBs. Four were sent to hospitals for treated and the others were treated at the scene, Powell said.

In addition, 14 other people were believed to have been exposed to the cancer-causing chemical and were being decontaminated, he said.

''We are concerned about possible PCB contamination,'' he said. ''We have 26 firefighters being decontaminated.''

The explosion forced officials to close the building, which houses offices for Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc., Chemical Bank and other financial firms, as well as surrounding streets, affecting pedestrians and traffic throughout the financial district.

''The (city) Department of Environmental Protection is on the scene and has isolated the area, the building and the street around it,'' Powell said.

Officials were checking the building to see if it is safe.

''We cannot allow people into the area due to possible PCB contamination. This is going to have a direct affect on the financial district and banking,'' Powell said.

PCBs, the chemicals manufactured to insulate high-voltage transformers, are classified among the deadliest manmade substances on the planet. Laboratory tests on animals show PCBs can harm reproduction and growth and can cause skin lesions and tumors.

When PCBs burn, they create even more deadly materials, including dioxin, once described by the Environmental Protection Agency as ''the most toxic chemical known to man.''

MIAMI (DEC. 27) UPI - Getting deposed Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega to and from the federal courthouse from his jail cell 24 miles away has cost taxpayers $363,694 since January when he arrived in south Florida from Panama.

U.S. Marshal Service officials attributed the high tab to the ''extraordinary costs of security details'' needed to safely move Noriega from his suite at the Metropolitan Correctional Center to the downtown U.S. District courthouse.

The $363,000 plus transportation bill, which was obtained by The Miami Herald through a Freedom of Information Act request, included the cost of Noriega's removal from Panama to Homestead Air Force Base aboard a C-130 military airplane.

The Marshal's Service also employed decoy vehicles and other ''special operations'' when it moved the general from Homestead to a basement cell in the courthouse where he was held until an MCC cell could be prepared for him.

The transportation figure does not include the expense of housing, feeding or clothing the former dictator, who was brought to Florida to stand trial on drug-trafficking and money-laundering charges after the December 1989 U.S. invasion of Panama.

Steve Boyle, chief of congressional and public affairs for the Marshal's Service in Washington, refused to release the exact cost of each trip to the courthouse, saying, ''We don't want to give any one the basis to calculate the level of security he gets.''

''It's not cheap, but it's not unique,'' Boyle said. ''In situations where there's high potential for media interest or security concerns, the costs are quite extraordinary.''

Despite the numerous legal skirmishes triggered by his prosecution, Noriega has only appeared in court on five occasions since Jan. 3.

The last time Noriega was present at a hearing he made an impassioned plea for a fair trial to U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler in an effort to help his attorneys obtain money from frozen European bank accounts to finance his defense.

Boyle noted that the Marshal's Service has run up similar costs in other high-profile cases, such as the prosecution of Medellin Cartel drug kingpin Carlos Lehder Rivas, who was tried in Jacksonville and is now serving a life sentence.

Shuttling Lehder about Jacksonville ''exceeded $1 million'' Boyle said.

The amount spent to date on moving Noriega about is equivalent to the cost of five BMW 750ils or three bullet-proof vehicles outfitted with mounted rifles and pistols.

(DEC. 27) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein told ambassadors he recalled from Washington and Europe that he is ready for ''serious'' talks with the United States, but Kuwait's exiled foreign minister said Thursday it already was ''too late'' for a peace initiative.

In discussions with his ambassadors, recalled to Baghdad for consultations last week, Saddam again insisted that talks on the Persian Gulf crisis include the Palestinian question, the official Iraqi news agency INA said Thursday.

It was the second time in a week Saddam reportedly called for talks, telling a Spanish television station in an interview that ''dialogue is always able to find solutions among people and make up for the use of arms.''

Meanwhile, thousands of women and children demonstrated outside of the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad to protest the raid Wednesday by U.S. and Australian naval forces of an Iraqi cargo vessel off the coast of Oman.

The ship, the Ibn Khaldoun, was supposed to be carrying medicine to the needy children of Iraq, but a U.S.-led boarding party that inspected the hold after a scuffle with the crew discovered it was loaded with tons of sugar in violation of U.N.-imposed economic sanctions.

Saddam's latest overture for dialogue was seen by some Mideast diplomats as a new initiative to end the almost 5-month-old crisis and by others as yet another tactic to stall for time.

Iraq faces a U.N.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline to either voluntarily withdraw from Kuwait, which it occupied Aug. 2, or be forced out by multinational troops assembled in the region.

U.S. military officials said Wednesday they believe Iraqi troops are so deeply dug into Kuwait they will not be removed except by force, and an American newspaper reported Thursday that Washington sought the Jan. 15 deadline knowing that U.S. troops in the region may not be prepared to attack by the crucial date.

Iraq has responded to indications the United States is prepared to go to war over Kuwait by stepping up its civil defense programs. While maintaining he would prevail in any armed confrontation, Saddam also has repeated his call for talks.

''Iraq is ready for serious and constructive discussions with the U. S.,'' INA quoted Saddam as telling his ambassadors at a meeting late Wednesday. ''It was the Americans who rejected our call for talks.''

Washington and Baghdad had agreed to hold high-level, face-to-face talks before the Jan. 15 deadline, but the two sides have been unable to agree on dates for the proposed meetings.

Iraq chose Jan. 12 for a meeting in Baghdad between Saddam and Secretary of State James Baker, but Washington rejected the date as falling too close to the deadline, proposing instead that the meeting take place Jan. 3.

Saddam, in the meeting with the ambassadors, accused the United States of ''trying to impose its will on Iraq,'' INA said.

It said the Iraqi president was still interested in holding talks, as long as the Palestinian issue could also be discussed. Saddam has tried repeatedly to link his occupation of Kuwait with the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, but most of the countries allied against him have rejected any such connection.

In China, Kuwait's exiled foreign minister Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmed Al Sabah, who accompanied the exiled emir on a visit to Beijing, said new peace initiatives were of ''no use'' and that the only way to avoid a war in the region was for Iraq to withdraw from the tiny, oil-rich emirate.

''Such initiatives, whether they are from the Arab world, a friendly country or even the big powers are already too late and will be of no use,'' he said. He said an armed conflict was ''inevitable'' unless Iraq withdrew from Kuwait.

The emirate's former ruling Al Sabah family, which has set up a government-in-exile in Saudi Arabia, has made clear it wants its rule over Kuwait restored as quickly as possible.

Saddam said in an interview reported by Cairo radio Wednesday that the only way he would allow a member of the Al Sabah family to return to Kuwait was if they were dead and ready to be buried.

The New York Times reported Thursday that President Bush knew when the United Nations voted for the Jan. 15 deadline authorizing the use of force against Iraq that American troops might not be ready by the crucial date.

Two unnamed senior administration sources quoted by the newspaper said the United States is not committed to going to war exactly on Jan. 15, but that it was merely an ''authorization date.''

A senior U.S. defense official said in Saudi Arabia earlier this month that many of the U.S. ground forces would not be ready to launch an offensive by the deadline. The United States plans to deploy over 400,000 troops to the region by mid-January.

In other developments Thursday, Japan's prime minister sent a letter to Saddam urging him to withdraw from the emriate, evoking memories of Japan's devastating defeat at the end of World War II.

And Syria's highest Moslem religious leader, Sheikh Ahmad Kaftaro, told Bush in a letter that he would be responsible for bloodshed if war erupts.

''One day, you will die, and then you will stand before God without air, sea fleets or intercontinental missiles,'' said Kaftaro in a message that he gave to U.S. church representatives in Damascus.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - Four people died Thursday in a raging fire that swept through a two-story residence being heated by illegal kerosene heaters in winter's first sub-freezing temperatures.

Some of the dead, who were not immediately identified, were children. Two survivors were taken to hospitals and a firefighter was treated for smoke inhalation, the Fire Department said. Two pregnant women escaped from the building unharmed.

There were no smoke detectors in the house, officials said. Firefighters found three kerosene heaters, which are illegal in New York City, and several cans of kerosene in the house.

(DEC. 27) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's choice for vice president, Gennady Yanayev, failed to get enough votes in the Congress of People's Deputies today, even though he was the only candidate. It was a stunning blow for Gorbachev's attempt to increase the power of presidential rule. Gorbachev immediately renominated Yanayev for a second ballot. It is NOT known when another vote will take place.

DANVILLE, IN (DEC. 27) UPI - A woman convicted of biting her child has received a year's suspended sentence and a year's probation but she must finish high school, get counseling, and keep her children away from her husband.

Wendy Carpenter, 19, of Plainfield was convicted in November of a misdemeanor battery charge for biting her 19-month-old son, Austin Carter, on his back.

Circuit Judge Henry Boles imposed the minimum sentenced Wednesday - provided Carpenter earns a general equivalency diploma and attends counseling sessions. Boles also ordered Carpenter to keep her children away from her estranged husband, Dennis Carpenter, 20.

The couple had been charged with multiple counts earlier this year after their 2-month-old daughter, Cassandra, suffered two broken legs, a fractured arm, 12 broken ribs and a possible jaw fracture. The infant and her brother at the time also appeared to have several human bite marks on their bodies.

Carpenter is expecting her third child, which she said was conceived before she separated from her husband.

Dennis Carpenter faces felony charges of neglect and battery in connection with the attacks on the children. His trial is set for Jan. 22. If convicted, he could be sentenced to 36 years in prison.

TIRANA, ALBANIA (DEC. 27) UPI - Members of Albania's first legally sanctioned opposition party threatened Thursday to call mass demonstrations to press demands for an election delay that would allow more time for campaigning.

At a stormy meeting of the Democratic Party, speaker after speaker angrily denounced Marxist President Ramiz Alia for his refusal to postpone multi-party parliamentary elections from Feb. 10 until May 2.

Opposition activists complained they have insufficient time before Feb. 10 to prepare and launch a national campaign against Alia's Albanian Party of Labor, which faces its first real electoral test since seizing power in 1944 and creating what was Europe's most repressive communist state.

The crowded meeting was held in the National Library in central Tirana a day after Alia disclosed at a special ruling party conference that he would not postpone the Peoples Assembly elections.

Analysts believe Alia is anxious to hold the elections as quickly as possible because of growing dissatisfaction with his regime and the tiny nation's dire economic problems, as evidenced by violent anti-government riots that erupted in major towns Dec. 15-16.

In addition, a shorter campaign period would limit the ability of the new opposition party to take its message to the countryside, where the bulk of Albania's 3.2 million people live.

Speakers pointed out that under a new constitutional amendment on elections, parliamentary contests can be held up to three months after the final session of the current legislature, which is set to end Feb. 2.

Gramoz Pashko, a key organizer of the Democratic Party, warned that the opposition group would resort to mass protests and petitions in its effort to get the elections rescheduled.

''Ramiz Alia wants Albania to be integrated with Europe, but his attitude is closing the door of Europe to all Albania,'' said Pashko, an economics professor at Tirana's Enver Hoxha University.

Other speakers also called for protests, reminding the gathering that Alia's agreement Dec. 10 to permit independent political parties came after three days of demonstrations by university students.

Critics of Alia's government have demanded an acceleration of what has been a cautious, limited program of economic and political reforms enacted after the fall of Marxist regimes across Eastern Europe in 1989.

''The reforms so far came from the student protests. Let us use the same force again. The Party of Labor will never give in without that,'' said Edi Rama, an author.

The new party has pledged itself to transforming Albania from one of Eastern Europe's last Marxist-ruled nations into a Western-style democracy with a mixed economy.

In his speech on Wednesday, Alia acknowleged that the ruling party faced a challenge in the elections and he called for ''fresh thought, a new concept for the realization of its socialist ideal.''

At the same time, he reaffirmed that the party ''does not intend to abandon its Marxist ideology.''

Alia acknowleged that the party had committed ''mistakes'' in the past. But he staunchly defended its ''historic achievements'' and urged members not to dwell on history, but to ''look ahead.''

He said his reform program was introduced ''not because we followed a fashion, nor out of someone's fear, nor because anyone forced us to do it,'' but that it was ''the fruit of an all-sided analysis of the situations at home and abroad.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - The federal government boasted Thursday it has sent states nearly $4.5 billion in anti-drug block grants since 1987 and claimed victory in unplugging obstacles that have delayed the flow of money to states.

However, the U.S. Conference of Mayors was unimpressed with the report by the Office of National Drug Control Policy, contending the money is not making its way to local governments, which are bearing the violent brunt of the drug crisis.

John Walters, acting director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy presented the results of a eight-month examination of the federal government's three large anti-drug block grants to states. The grants are for law enforcement efforts, distributed by the Justice Department; treatment, distributed by the Department of Health and Human Services; and prevention, distributed by the Departments of Education and Health and Human Services.

The report said the three grant programs have provided nearly $4.5 billion to state and local anti-drug efforts since 1987 and that the annual funding level has more than tripled since 1988 to $1.4 billion in 1991.

It also said federal block grants to local projects ''has become significantly more efficient and timely'' in recent years.

Twelve to 18 months could go by between the president's budget request to Congress and actual awards to states. And delays also are caused by state legal and fiscal requirements, the report said. ''And by far the longest delay in the process of block grant expenditure involves congressional appropriations,'' it said.

''Nonetheless ... delays in block grant funding transfers have been sharply reduced since 1987,'' the report said, adding states have improved their delivery of funds to local projects.

''This report demonstrates that more federal resources are reaching more local anti-drug programs, more quickly, each year. The federal- state-local partnership created by these programs is working,'' Walters said.

But Patrick Murphy of the U.S. Conference of Mayors argued block grants ''are not being allocated in the most effective, most efficient way'' because the money is not trickling down to the cities. The conference has urged the federal government to funnel anti-drug money directly to cities.

''The states get the money and they use it for state purposes and to establish some regional programs, but very little gets to where the worst aspects of the drug problem is,'' Murphy said.

''I don't know of any indicator of how well we're doing other than the murder rate, and murder is worsening in the inner city. That's what the mayors are saying,'' he said.

The drug control office said it ''cautions against'' proposals that remove state governments from the block grant funding process.

Bypassing states ''would add significant federal administrative overhead to the block grant budgets, would undermine necessary state efforts to coordinate their law enforcement, treatment and prevention programs and would provide no guarantee of more efficiently distributed funds,'' the report said.

The report's preliminary estimates show that for fiscal year 1991, California will reap the most from the three block grants - $160.5 million, and Wyoming will receive the least amount among the 50 states - $4.7 million.

HONG KONG (DEC. 27) UPI - The U.S. Consulate advised impatient Hong Kong millionaires Thursday how to start lining up to receive immigrant visas to the United States in return for $1 million investments in U.S. ventures.

The trade-off policy was contained in the immigration law that became effective in November and applied to not only to potential Hong Kong immigrants but to any aliens with $1 million to invest, a consulate spokesman said.

Tens of thousands of Hong Kong Chinese have sought immigration papers to the United States, Canada, Australia, the United Kingdom and other countries in the face of the British colony's scheduled 1997 return to Chinese sovereignty. A number of other countries have announced policies granting visas in return for a minimum amount of investment.

The consulate announced potential investors must file a form entitled ''Request for Determination that Prospective Immigrant is an Investor'' with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service Center responsible for the area into which the money will go. The form will help determine the priority in which the investor will receive a visa, which will not be issued until the start of the 1992 fiscal year next October.

The consulate said the investment must be in a U.S. venture that employs 10 or more American workers. The spokesman said the priority was required because the number of visas were limited.

(DEC. 27) UPI - The Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers Sunday will try to follow a trend nobody in the NFL set by design. That trend is to enter the playoffs with a backup quarterback starting.

The Buffalo Bills, New York Giants and Chicago Bears will be doing that, although those clubs clinched while they still had their starters healthy. The Cowboys will call on Babe Laufenberg and the Oilers on Cody Carlson Sunday with playoff berths on the line.

Dallas will clinch the final NFC wild-card spot with a victory in Atlanta. If the Cowboys lose, they can still get in with a 7-9 mark if the New Orleans Saints lose Monday night against the Los Angeles Rams.

The Oilers are assured of making the playoffs with a home victory against Pittsburgh.

''We'd rather lock it up ourselves,'' says Laufenberg, who has only six previous starts in as many NFL seasons. ''I view it as an opportunity, but it's a misnomer to say I'm going to take this team to the playoffs. Everybody is going to have to take up the slack.''

Laufenberg became a starter when Troy Aikman suffered a separated shoulder last week in Philadelphia.

Carlson, in his fourth season, has thrown just 26 passes all season. He takes over for Warren Moon, who suffered a dislocated thumb last week in Cincinnati.

''I've always felt I could compete in the NFL,'' Carlson said. ''But just being in the league, you hope for games like this. It's a great challenge with the playoffs at stake and we're going against the best defense in the league. I'm excited about it.''

Dallas would become the first team in NFL history to follow a one- victory season with a trip to the playoffs the next year. The Cowboys also would have the worst record of any wild-card team in NFL history, and could become the first team with a losing record to make the playoffs if they and New Orleans lose.

If the Cowboys fall, the Saints, 7-8, will earn the last NFC postseason spot with a home victory Monday night.

The other NFC playoff spots are sealed - San Francisco, New York and Chicago are division champions and Philadelphia and Washington are wild cards.

In the AFC, Buffalo has the East title, Miami is a wild card and either the Los Angeles Raiders or Kansas City will win the AFC West with the runner-up settling for a wild-card spot.

That leaves the AFC Central and the third AFC wild-card spot to be settled Sunday.

Pittsburgh, 9-6, leads the AFC Central by one game over Houston and Cincinnati. Seattle joins the Oilers and Bengals at 8-7 and remains in contention for the wild-card spot.

Houston, with Carlson replacing injured Warren Moon, plays home against the Steelers Sunday night. Pittsburgh clinches the division with a victory. If the Oilers win, Cincinnati finishes first in the AFC Central if the Bengals win at home against Cleveland.

''We've got it right in front of us,'' Steelers quarterback Bubby Brister said. ''All we've got to do is take it.''

For the Oilers to take the division, they must win and Cincinnati must lose to the 3-12 Browns. However, Houston clinches at least the wild-card berth with a victory over Pittsburgh.

The Bengals are heavily favored, but the Browns, 3-12, can take some of the sting out of a lost season by knocking off their Ohio rivals.

''It would be gratifying to knock the Bengals out of the playoffs,'' Browns defensive tackle Michael Dean Perry said. ''We're not able to go any further, so to spoil someone else's season would be nice, especially Cincinnati.''

The Seahawks can make the playoffs if they win at home over Detroit and either Cincinnati or Houston loses. Seattle also makes it if Cincinnati and Houston lose.

In other games Sunday, it's Buffalo at Washington, Indianapolis at Miami, San Diego at the Raiders, San Francisco at Minnesota, the Giants at New England, the New York Jets at Tampa Bay, and Green Bay at Denver.

The Bills, Giants and Bears can use the final game to give their new starting quarterbacks - Frank Reich of Buffalo, Jeff Hostetler of New York and Mike Tomczak of Chicago - more work.

The NFL rushing title will also be decided Sunday. Buffalo's Thurman Thomas leads his former Oklahoma State teammate Barry Sanders of Detroit by 16 yards - 1,297 to 1,281. Thomas also leads in total yards from scrimmage with 1,810. Sanders has 1,746 total yards.

Cleveland tight end Ozzie Newsome is expected to end his 13-year career after Sunday's game. Newsome, 34, leads all tight ends and places fourth among all receivers with 661 career receptions.

WARSAW, POLAND (DEC. 27) UPI - President Lech Walesa called outgoing Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki to a meeting Thursday but neither would say later whether Walesa asked him to remained as head of government.

Following the hourlong meeting at Belweder Palace, Walesa declined to say what was discussed.

''One cannot speak about concrete results of this talk,'' Walesa said. ''Knowing the premier's patriotism, I can't imagine Tadeusz Mazowiecki's absence from affairs of state.''

Mazowiecki said he and Walesa discussed conditions in the country.

''We talked mainly about the future,'' he told reporters. ''It was a preliminary talk.''

The meeting followed reports that outgoing Finance Minster Leszek Balcerowicz, architect of Poland's economic stabilization plan, turned down the premiership.

Gazeta Wyborcza, an independent daily that supports Mazowiecki over Walesa, quoted Walesa's spokesman, Andrzej Drzycimnski, as saying there are still several candidates for prime minister.

''It is still not known who will head the government,'' Drzycimski said.

Among those said to be in the running were Zdzislaw Gil, the chairman of the Solidarity parliamentary caucus, and Interior Minister Krzysztof Kozlowski.

Trybuna, the former Communist paper, castigated Walesa for criticizing Finance Minister Balcerowicz during the presidential campaign, but wooing him now in an effort to keep him in the Cabinet.

''After the campaign, the awakening has come,'' Trybuna said, noting that Walesa had criticized Balcerowicz's economic austerity measures for producing high unemployment.

But Walesa's promise of full employment generated fears in the West that dropping the plan might mean a return to hyperinflation and economic instability.

ARLINGTON, TX (DEC. 27) UPI - In a pensive moment, while riding a horse somewhere on one of his three cattle ranches along the coastal plains of Texas it would seem logical that Lynn Nolan Ryan Jr., might stop and reminisce about his amazing career.

After all, the numbers are staggering. The acclaim has been universal. The achievements have been historic.

Ryan is the consummate family man, devoting much of his energy to his wife and children. He tends to his business interests. He is a physical fitness fanatic. And when it comes time to pitch, he pitches.

But, surely, there are times that require a little reflection on what he has accomplished over all these years.

So, what about it, Nolan? Are you a reflective kind of person?

''Nope,'' Ryan said not long ago in the deserted clubhouse of the Texas Rangers. ''Never have been. I don't guess I ever think back on what I've done.''

Oh. Well, if you did, what would you think about? Of all the things that you have achieved, what is it that makes you most proud?

Almost as if he were being asked to submit to a root canal, Ryan thought for a moment.

''I guess,'' he finally said, ''that when you put it all together it is the fact that I have had the longevity I have had, the fact that I have been able to maintain the level I have for as long as I have. After all, I thought I would be out of baseball 10 years ago.''

Ryan, however, is not out of baseball. He will enter his 24th major- league season in 1991 and will be 44 years old when he takes the mound for the Rangers next April.

He was 43 when he threw the sixth no-hitter of his career, two more than anybody else. He was 43 when he posted his 300th victory, becoming the 20th pitcher to do so. He was 43 when he ran his career strikeout record total to 5,308.

For all those things, and many more, Ryan, the oldest active player in the majors, is United Press International's Male Athlete of the Year.

Among other things last season:

-He held the opposition to a batting average of .188, the lowest of any of the 74 major-league pitchers qualifying for the ERA title.

-He became the oldest pitcher to throw a no-hitter, became the first to throw a no-hitter in three different decades and became the first to throw a no-hitter with three different teams.

-He went over 100 strikeouts for the 22nd season, a major-league record.

-He struck out 10 or more batters eight times to increase his career total to 207. That is 109 more times than any other pitcher.

He did all of that despite spending time on the disabled list with back spasms. And he is coming back to torture hitters some more.

Ryan will earn $3.3 million in 1991, which he feels will be his last in baseball. But he has said that before.

''I guess I still pitch because I just like the competition,'' Ryan said. ''I think at this stage of my life I still enjoy the competition as much as anyone.''

And he does it because so many people get a kick out of watching him pitch.

''I have really been accepted in Arlington,'' he said. ''I didn't realize there would be so much fan support. My family has enjoyed the experience since I came to the Rangers and everything seems to have worked out for the best.

''And I have remained relatively healthy. So, putting it all together, I decided to pitch some more.''

The fact that Ryan has done the things he has done, of course, is not as stunning as the age at which he is still doing them.

After each game he pitches, he meets the media while peddling a stationary bicycle in the Rangers' clubhouse. He studies the physics of exercise, tries to get his hands on any videotape that discusses new physical therapy techniques and generally is a walking encyclopedia on fitness.

''I don't think there is any question that the advancements in physical fitness have helped prolong my career,'' he said. ''When I first started you were pretty much on your own. Now there are all sorts of breakthroughs that help people like me.''

The reality of the situation, however, is that there is no one in baseball like Ryan. After a quick start last year, the assumption was that time had finally caught up with him.

He pitched in pain for several outings before finally going on the disabled list and there was brief speculation Ryan might not make it back from that injury, much less stay around for another season.

In his second start back from the disabled list, however, he no-hit the Oakland A's.

And again Ryan baffled fans who marvel at how a man who has thrown so many fastballs over a quarter century can continue to do so. He will most likely be the starting pitcher when the Rangers open their season in 1991, and the way he has performed over the past few years, it would be foolish to wager he will not repeat that assignment in 1992.

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 27) UPI - Texas Rangers' ageless hurler Nolan Ryan, who won his 300th victory, pitched his sixth career no-hitter and led the American League in strikeouts during 1990, Thursday was named the Sporting News ''Man of the Year.''

''Nolan Ryan is a superb athlete who never puts himself ahead of his teammates or the game,'' said John D. Rawlings, editor of the Sporting News. ''What he has accomplished this year - and throughout his career - is truly remarkable.''

Ryan's sixth no-hitter extended his own record for a career and gave him the distinction of being the oldest pitcher to pitch a no-no. His July 31 victory over Milwaukee made him only the 20th pitcher in major league history to notch 300 wins.

His 232 strikeouts gave him four consecutive league-leading years in that category.

''Ryan represents the quintessential sports role model - a uniquely talented athlete who has accomplished extraordinary feats and demonstrated a responsible understanding of his role as a public figure, '' said Thomas G. Osenton, Sporting News publisher.

He is the 22nd winner of the award, which will be marked with a special Waterford Crystal trophy.

LONDON (DEC. 27) UPI - Stock prices closed higher in thin holiday trading Thursday on the London International Stock Exchange.

Stocks ended slightly lower in sluggish trading in Frankfurt.

London's blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which eased 8.1 points Monday in holiday-shortened trading, gained 11.5 points to 2,167. 8. The narrower top 30 industrial average added 8.9 points to 1,687.8.

Volume amounted to around a meager 177 million shares.

Analysts said the low trading activity tarnished equity firmness, with dealers describing the mainly futures-led support as technical.

Investors were opening few fresh positions ahead of the New Year, keeping trading volume in the holiday doldrums, analysts said.

Stocks drifted slightly higher in thin trading early, reflecting an absence of news and market participants.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Reuters gained 42 cents to $13. 01 on word that agreement was close for the use of the Globex dealing system on the Chicago's futures exchange.

Oil and related issues were overshadowed by a gloomy forecast on crude prices by investment house Kleinwort Benson, which predicted oil prices would drop in the future.

Retail issues improved slightly with the start of the sales and reports of late Christmas spending. Boots added 10 cents to $6.16.

New Year share tipping (forecasts) by the tabloid press began with the Daily Mail, whose choices included Trafalgar House, De la Rue, Grand Met and Trusthouse Forte, which all rose on speculation over the favorable comments.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices closed lower in thin holiday trading on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 5.62 points last Friday, slipped 4.01 points to 1,410.87.

Traders said many participants remained on holiday as most institutional investors have already closed their books for the year.

The exchange, which was closed Monday through Wednesday for the Christmas holidays, will also be closed Monday and Tuesday next week.

ARLINGTON, VA (DEC. 27) UPI - Police are investigating the case of a maintenance worker who was bilked out of his life savings when he asked a fortune teller to remove a curse on him.

Police want to speak with other people who may have been victims of the scam two months ago, police detective James Griswold said.

Griswold told The Arlington Journal on Wednesday that a Spanish- speaking woman between 35 and 40 set up a fortune teller's shop in Arlington.

A maintenance worker at an apartment building believed he was having bad luck so he went to the fortune teller two or three times, Griswold said. The man, who was not identified by police, had been told ''someone had put the evil spirit in him.'' The fortune teller lit candles, told the man to strip to his underwear and rubbed his body with raw eggs.

She then told him that to remove the curse she would have to bless his money overnight. She asked him for $20,000 so the man came up with $6,000 of his own money and borrowed $10,000 from friends, which was close enough for the fortune teller.

The victim left the money with the woman and went home.

''He came back at noon the next day and she was gone,'' said Griswold, who works in the police department's white collar crime unit. ''She had disappeared. That was his life savings and probably the life savings of several other people.''

(DEC. 27) UPI - The Commerce Department reports another sign of a falling economy. Orders for durable goods fell 10 and one-half percent in November. This matches the January drop which was the largest in 32 years. Most industries suffered declines in orders for big-ticket items. Worst hit was transportation equipment which declined 27 percent. The price tag for the orders slipped to 116-BILLION dollars, the lowest since May 1988.

An explosion in an electrical transformer and a fire in lower Manhattan have disrupted Wall Street. Trading on the New York and American stock exchanges will be delayed because of the fire near the building containing a computer used by both exchanges. Flames shot eight stories into the air and windows were broken by the explosion. Officials fear dangerous P-C-B's may have been spewed into the air.

A new storm on the Pacific Coast is threatening California. It has brought winds approaching 50 miles an hour to the Northwest. Gale warnings are posted for Puget Sound. The storm is moving toward California where severe cold already has damaged citrus and other fruits and vegetables. Also threatened are marigolds to be used in next week's Rose Parade in Pasadena.

California has the most peopleMillion. California will gain the most congressional seats- seven. New York gets a three-seat reduction to make it the biggest loser.

The cattle industry expects a good year in 1991. John Lacey, president of the National Cattlemen's Association, says production should equal or outdo that for 1990. The average price should be up too. Lacey said exports of beef are improving and U-S demand is increasing. He said ranchers are increasing production of beef because of the improved outlook.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 27) UPI - The family of Hank Gathers has accused a prominent Loyola Marymount booster of giving money and gifts to the late basketball star, the Los Angeles Times reported Thursday.

Albert Gersten, who helped finance construction of Loyola's arena, Gersten Pavilion, is the booster named in depositions taken in connection with the wrongful-death suit filed by Gathers' mother and brother against Loyola and 13 other defendants.

The Times said Gathers' family testified in depositions that Gersten gave cash to Gathers while the player was on a scholarship at Loyola. Lucille Gathers said her son gave her $2,000 and gifts with the money he received.

Such gifts to a player are violations of NCAA rules. If the accusations are true, Loyola could face penalties by the NCAA and the West Coast Conference.

Gersten, a real estate developer who is the largest of about 20 boosters who financed construction of Gersten Pavilion denied the accusations.

''It's not true,'' he told the Times. ''I didn't help Hank. I gave him meals occasionally. He would be over at the house and we would have dinner and he would eat. But that's it. The lawyer (for Loyola) said they are saying this to prove Hank supported his mother for the lawsuit. ''

Gathers collapsed March 4 at Gersten Pavilion while playing in a West Coast Conference tournament game and was pronounced dead 1 hour and 40 minutes later at Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital. An autopsy determined the cause of death to be cardiomyopathy, a heart disorder.

Gathers' mother, his two brothers and an aunt have filed a $32.5 million suit against the university and 13 other defendants, claiming negligence, conspiracy and wrongful death.

Loyola Athletic Director Brian Quinn said he notified the conference as soon as he was told about the allegations in the depositions, which are taken under oath.

''We didn't believe it, but we followed the procedure and reported it to the conference and then they report to the NCAA,'' Quinn told the Times. ''I'm pretty close to the athletes. I used to talk with Hank a lot, and I have met with Gersten many times and I have no reason to believe that these allegations are true.''

Bob Minnix, assistant director of enforcement for the NCAA, would not comment on whether the NCAA is reviewing the allegations.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (DEC. 27) UPI - The man who won the Mr. USA bodybuilding competition in 1988 has pleaded guilty to smuggling anabolic steroids into the country from France and said he used the drug for 11 years to promote muscle growth.

John Defendis, 32, faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $250,000 fine when he is sentenced Feb. 27. He entered his plea Wednesday before U.S. District Judge James Paine.

''I used steroids, not to get an edge on the competition, but just to compete with the competition,'' he said after court.

Defendis said he underwent withdrawal from steroids after he was arrested by federal agents in May. He founded a support group called Steroid Use Rehabilitation and Education. He said the group has helped four people attempting to get off steroids.

The use of anabolic steroids has been linked to liver, heart and kidney damage and other health problems. Defendis said his primary problem with the drugs has been hair loss. He said he has had hair transplants since his arrest.

The U.S. Customs Service began investigating Defendis for importation of steroids in April, when a customs agent in Atlanta called the West Palm Beach office with a tip about a package containing steroids from France that was addressed to Defendis, assistant U.S. attorney Jeff Levenson said.

A postal inspector delivered the package to Defendis May 2. Defendis signed for it and agents obtained a search warrant and seized the package at the home.

The package came from a French bodybuilder. The man won a Mr. France title after staying with Defendis while training, Levenson said.

Defendis said the man, whom he knew only as Paul, offered him money for his stay, but Defendis turned him down.

''Then he said he would send some steroids,'' Defendis said. ''I said, 'No, that's not necessary.' Then the package came.''

He told Paine he wasn't sure what was in the package.

''I had an idea it was steroids, but I wasn't exactly positive,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - Mayor-elect Sharon Pratt Dixon will face a financial emergency greater than the gloomy projections for the city offered by Mayor Marion Barry's administration, one of her top financial advisers has told her.

In a memo to Dixon, Franklin Raines, chairman of Dixon's Transition Financial Management Committee, wrote ''The nation's capital is at serious risk. Its problems are as big as those that faced New York City in the 1970s but despite the lessons of New York and other big cities which experienced financial crisis all the major actors in Washington have avoided their responsibility for many years.''

A copy of the Dec. 21 memo was obtained by The Washington Post.

''In five or six months the district will run out of cash and be unable to meet payrolls or pay its bills unless drastic actions are taken immediately,'' Raines wrote.

The administration of Mayor Marion Barry and an advisory commission have projected the city's deficit for the current fiscal year will be about $200 million, but Raines estimates that the deficit for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1991, will be between $275 million and $300 million.

The increase will come from ''additional unbudgeted spending and a further deterioration of tax revenues due to the recession,'' Raines wrote Dixon.

He noted that ''in my 11 years of working with governments in financial difficulty, I do not believe I have every encountered a situation as potentially disastrous as this one.''

Raines estimated the deficit for the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30 will approach $100. In the past four years, the city has spent more than $400 million more than it took in, he said.

''Such overspending has been possible for a period of time because cash balances have been depleted, vendor and other payments delayed, and funds borrowed from other internal sources,'' he said.

In conclusion, Raines told Dixon, ''Let me simply say you have inherited a mess.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - Marines who spend most of their time performing ceremonial duties and entertaining tourists in the nation's capital by twirling rifles with razor-sharp bayonets began their journey Thursday to the Persian Gulf.

Company A from the Marine Barracks is commanded by Capt. Bryan McCoy, 28, of Papillion, Neb. It left for Camp Lejeune, N.C., and will be assigned to the 2nd Marine Division. Company A will be headed overseas within a week.

The gulf deployment is the first for a barracks detachment since a unit was sent to Cuba in 1906 for pacification duty.

The barracks is home to about 1,000 Marines and its duties include entertaining tourists, providing guards for the White House, the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., and the Washington Navy Yard.

Capt. Kathy Engels, a spokeswoman for the barracks, said although best known for its precision marching and twirling at military ceremonies, the company has two years of infantry training.

Marines from the barracks served most notably in 1837 against the Seminole Indians in Florida and in 1859 at Harper's Ferry, W.Va., where they retook the U.S. Arsenal and captured rebel John Brown. They also helped defend the U.S. Capitol during the War of 1812 and served in the war with Mexico and the Spanish-American War.

Also Thursday, elements of ''The Big Red One,'' a tank unit of the 1st Infantry Division, began leaving Fort Riley, Kansas. The unit will supplement armored forces massing in the desert kingdom for a possible assault on Iraqi positions in Kuwait.

HOLLYWOOD (DEC. 27) UPI - Moviegoers plunked down more than $4.71 billion for tickets this year through Christmas Day, less than 2 percent behind last year's record-setting pace of $4.79 billion at the same juncture.

Last year's final total hit $5.03 billion, while this year's - bolstered by the recent successes of ''The Godfather Part III'' and ''Home Alone'' - will probably close at more than $4.9 billion.

The third installment of the ''Godfather'' saga set a Christmas record with a $6.4 million gross in its debut.

The top 10 films pulled in a total of $66.8 million over the five-day Christmas weekend, up a sharp 78 percent from last year's four-day weekend total of $37.6 million. This year's Christmas weekend was also up 40 percent over the $47.6 million taken in during the previous three- day weekend.

For the week, films grossed $93.4 million, up from $83.4 million for the year-ago week, Daily Variety reported Thursday. The same week in 1988 saw a $95 million gross.

Twentieth Century Fox's ''Home Alone'' remained at the top of the nation's box office for the sixth consecutive week and has sold $118.6 million of tickets, making it the fifth-highest grossing film of the year.

DHAKA, Bangladesh (DEC. 27) UPI - Fire swept a garment factory outside the capital Thursday, killing 25 people trapped behind locked doors left unattended by gatekeepers, officials and state-run television said.

About 100 others, including four firefighters, were injured in the blaze, which apparently was ignited by an electrical short circuit just after the morning shift had reported for work, authorities said.

The work shift consisted of about 150 employees, most of the women.

One survivor said the blaze began when a worker hit an electrical line with an iron rod. The high-voltage spark touched off a massive fire that engulfed the third and fourth floors of the factory, where garments are sewn and cut.

Workers tried flee, but were trapped inside because the factory gates were locked and the gatekeepers had left their post, firefighters told reporters.

The dead included the factory owner, 16 teenage girls and eight other people trapped in the building as the fire raged for three hours, authorities said.

''We asked for help from all fire brigade stations,'' one fire official said. ''This was the biggest fire in the garment industries.''

The factory that burned, located in Mirpur about 3 miles from Dhaka, is one of about 500 garment plants in Bangladesh that employ some 300, 000 people altogether.

The garment trade has flourished in Bangladesh over the past decade, becoming the country's second-largest export industry behind the jute trade. Thousands of women from poor families work in the factories at very low wages.

Government officials said they would form a commission to investigate the cause of the factory fire and assess the losses.

BY GERALD NADLER - UPI

MOSCOW (DEC. 27) UPI - The Congress of People's Deputies, a key piece in Mikhail Gorbachev's marionette democracy, is a legislature as unique as Russia is a land - sprawling, raucous, disorderly and brutal.

In its two years of existence comprising four dramatic sessions, the compliant Congress has delivered Gorbachev ever broader powers, including his executive presidency last March.

On Thursday the legislators briefly tugged back on the strings, initially rejecting Gorbachev's hand-picked candidate for vice president, Communist functionary Gennady Yanayev, whose name was alone on the ballot.

But Gorbachev insisted Yanayev was the only man he could work with and resubmitted his candidacy. The deputies voted again, this time approving Yanayev, former chief of the docile trade unions and Communist Youth League, or Komsomol.

New votes are normal in the raucous Congress, as are the arbitrary rulings by Congress Chairman Anatoly Lukyanov and the switching off of speakers' microphones.

On Thursday, one deputy defended his right to pocket the single-name Yanayev ballot and not turn it in. When he said he did not want to be part of the ''same spectacle that elected Gorbachev president'' last March, Lukyanov fairly shot out of his presidium chair.

''Cut off his microphone, cut it off, you don't call the election of the president a spectacle, go sit down, sit down,'' Lukyanov said, scowling.

The Congress, elected two years ago in multiparty balloting to serve as a bridge to a real parliamentary system, is so large with 2,250 members (should they all attend) that it requires a score card to know who's who.

A new scorecard was provided for the just concluded Fourth Congress of People's Deputies - a glossy 563-page book selling at $10 with the names, pictures and biographies of each deputy.

Some deputies bought as many as eight copies. As soon as breaks in the proceedings were announced, the legislators trotted up to Gorbachev asking that he autograph their copy.

During the first Congress in May 1989, the hall lacked electronic voting, and the ballots were tallied by monitors. Now electronic voting machines have been installed. The deputies carry their multi-colored voting cards in their pockets.

But that has not solved all problems. Several deputies, perhaps ashamed at their votes that go into the record under their name, said the machine had erred, or that they put the card in the wrong slot, and demanded corrections.

''Fine,'' Lukyanov said, ''but you can't wait three days, and must do it immediately by a letter request.''

Deputies don't always make it back in time from the breaks, and one speaker upbraided his colleagues for ''wandering around outside in the halls or smoking in the toilet area.''

The proceedings can be brutal, reflecting the Russian propensity to flay those with whom they disagree.

Andrei Sakharov, the former dissident who became the liberal voice of the Parliament, was pilloried at one session by conservatives for criticizing the army's actions in Afghanistan. Sakharov died during the December 1989 Congress.

In his dramatic resignation speech at this Congress, Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze called some of his army opponents ''boys in colonel's stripes,'' while deputy Alis Adamovich branded some of the colonels ''bastards.''

Army Col. Viktor Alksnis took the floor later that day, and said, ''Before you stands a reactionary, before you stands a bastard.'' He then demanded that Shevardnadze go and visit the tents where Soviet soldiers departing Eastern Europe must now live in Russia.

The next day, right-wing deputies demanded that Adamovich be brought to trial for slander.

Pale and gaunt Nikolai Ryzhkov, whose job was eliminated in Gorbachev's latest power grab, sat through the first seven days of the Congress until the Tuesday vote that all but cut him out of the power structure.

The next morning, Wednesday, Gorbachev announced to the Congress that Ryzhkov had suffered a heart attack the night before, that his life was not in danger and ''we wish him a speedy recovery.''

The Congress, the sole body that can change the Constitution, has benefitted Gorbachev, electing his smaller standing Parliament of 542 members, creating Gorbachev's executive presidency and finally giving him direct control of all ministries.

After this vast delegation of power, the deputies on Thursday initially denied Gorbachev his choice of vice president.

But lest there be any concern that Gorbachev was losing control of the session reporters in the press gallery could occasionally hear whispered exchanges over the leader's microphone at the front of the hall as he assured Lukyanov: ''It's OK, it's going to be OK.''

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 27) UPI - The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reported Thursday that the morning PG and afternoon Pittsburgh Press will raise newsstand prices by 10 cents effective New Year's Day.

That would take both papers from 25 cents to 35 cents per single issue.

The Post-Gazette bases its report on several news dealers saying they had been informed in writing of the PG's price hike and verbally about the plans to increase the price of The Press.

Officially, though, Post-Gazette management is saying it will make an announcement regarding prices soon. A Press spokesman said any price increase will be announced in the newspaper.

The Post-Gazette and Press operate under a joint operating agreement, sharing advertising departments but maintaining separate editorial departments.

PHOENIX (DEC. 27) UPI - Discounter Southwest Airlines said Thursday it will cut one-way unrestricted fares to $20 on 11 of its Phoenix and Las Vegas routes.

Dallas-based Southwest said the offer, part of its 20th anniversary celebration, is good for tickets purchased through Jan. 20 for travel between Jan. 3 and April 5.

The promotion covers Phoenix routes to the following cities: Los Angeles; San Diego, Calif.; Las Vegas, Nev.; El Paso, Texas; Albuquerque, N.M.; Ontario, Calif., and Oakland, Calif. The $20 fare is also being offered between Las Vegas and Reno, Nev., Phoenix or San Diego.

Southwest spokeswoman Ginger Shearburn said the one-way fares on the 11 routes in the promotion typically range between $24 and $48.

Southwest's major competitor in the region, Phoenix-based America West Airlines, has not decided whether to match Southwest's fare cuts.

''We are still studying the implications of Southwest's moves,'' said spokesman Michael Mitchell.

Southwest, which said it is the nation's eighth-largest independent airline, has been partly responsible for starting several fare wars in the highly competitive corridor between Los Angeles and the San Francisco Bay Area.

Two weeks ago, Southwest announced a $20 fare for flights between Oakland and the Los Angeles suburbs of Burbank and Ontario with a 21-day advance purchase for travel between Jan. 3 and Feb. 28. Other carriers on the routes - American Delta, United and USAir - matched the fare cuts.

(DEC. 27) UPI - The nation's major stock exchanges will be opening late today following a spectacular accident early this morning in lower Manhattan. A below-ground electrical transformer exploded, sending flames eight stories high and igniting a fire. The blast occurred outside a Water Steet building housing the computer-clearing system that serves both the New York and the American stock exchanges. Employees have been allowed back into the building but authorities have NO timetable, yet, on when the exchanges can open.

Fewer orders last month for airplanes and automobiles helped produce a 10-point-five percent drop in orders for the durable goods produced by American factories. And that matches the 32-year record drop set in January. The Commerce Department report shows orders were down throughout most industries last month. Durable goods are those designed to last three or more years.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein told his ambassadors in Baghdad today that he wants to hold- quote- ''serious'' talks with the United States on the Persian Gulf crisis. Saddam recalled the ambassadors home from Washington and Europe earlier this week for consultations. The official Iraqi news agency INA quotes Saddam as saying he wants the talks, but that they must also include the Palestinian question. It's the second time in a week Saddam reportedly has called for U-S-Iraqi talks.

Algeria, once a French colony, has a new law on the books that makes Arabic the official language for government, industry and commerce. The Algerian Parliament voted, 173-8, to forbid the use of any foreign language in the country. But parliament members say the real idea is to limit- and eventually end- the widespread use of French within Algeria.

Soviet lawmakers are fast studies when it comes to learning Western ways of how legislatures should work. Delegates at the Soviet Parliament have rejected Mikhail Gorbachev's personal choice to become the first vice president to ever serve in the Soviet Union. But the name of Gennady Yanayev was quickly put out as the only candidate for a second round of balloting. Yanayev fell 31 votes short of what was needed in the first round.

Gale warnings are up on the Puget Sound area of Washington as a powerful winter storm moves into the region, bringing winds of 50 miles per hour and four inches of snow. And that means the system will eventually move east to pound other areas of the country. California is just now recovering from unseasonably cold weather that may have already damaged half of the state's citrus crop.

MOSCOW (DEC. 27) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev said Thursday that a decision by the Russian republic to slash its contribution to the central budget could lead to ''the destruction of not only the economy but the entire union.''

Gorbachev's castigation of the Russian republic's action was the opening shot in a looming struggle over the budget that could define the future of the country.

''We will follow the path of forming the budget in accordance with the laws of the Soviet Union,'' Gorbachev told the U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies. ''No one has annulled them, and no one has the right to annul them. I will proceed from this (principle) as president.''

The Russian Parliament decided Wednesday to cut its contribution to the central government next year from the 1990 level of about $242 billion at the official exchange rate to $39.8 billion - a loss of nearly 40 percent of the current national budget.

In forming its own 1991 budget, Russia's legislature reserved most of what was previously given to the Soviet government for programs it will control within the republic, which covers three-quarters of the Soviet Union and is home to half its population.

The move was part of efforts by Russia and the other Soviet republics to assert their sovereignty.

Russia's Parliament, in the giant republic's latest challenge under the aggressive leadership of Boris Yeltsin, said it was giving the central government what was necessary for national defense and other powers ''delegated to the center.''

The standing Soviet Parliament, which meets between biannual sessions of the larger Congress, has been unable to form a national budget for next year because of the disagreements over distribution of resources.

Faced with the new rebellion from the dominant Russian republic, the Soviet Congress passed a resolution Thursday directing Gorbachev and the Council of the Federation, which includes the heads of the 15 republics, to complete a 1991 budget by Jan. 10.

The national legislature approved a separate measure earlier in the week, freezing all economic relations between the central government and the republics at their 1990 levels for the first three months of the new year.

Soviet Finance Minister Valentin Pavlov said at the Congress of People's Deputies that the Russian Parliament's decision would endanger ''the entire system of all-union programs,'' including social payments and science and education.

Gorbachev denounced the action as a dangerous escalation of what has been called the ''war of laws'' between the republics and the central government, with each side claiming its actions should take precedence.

''Everything that we have done before will be destroyed, because every republic will then try to save as much of its resources as it can, '' Gorbachev said. ''This would be the destruction not only of the economy but of the entire union.

''This is more than a war of laws, this is destruction not only of the economy but of the country.''

Some deputies demanded that Yeltsin, who is also a member of the Congress, be called to the session to explain the action, but he was on a previously scheduled trip to the Yakutia region of Siberia.

Pavlov said that about 90 percent of the national budget came from three republics - Russia, Byelorussia and the Ukraine - but he did not give a specific percentage for Russia.

The Soviet finance minister added that the Russian action would also lead to a ''war of prices'' as each republic raised prices and taxes to protect its own budget.

The Russian budget approved Wednesday calls for a new sales tax, an income tax and levies on profits by enterprises, the official Communist Party newspaper Pravda said.

The budget entails massive spending on the revival of Russian agriculture and villages and the construction of schools, roads and other infrastructure. It also includes funding for science, culture, education and medicine - areas the Russian government considers its domain, not the central government's.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - After weeks of almost daily contacts between Iraq and the United States, the State Department reported no progress Thursday on the search for an acceptable date for direct high-level talks.

Mark Dillen, a State Department spokesman, said there will be no new U.S. propposals for another set of dates for the talks. ''The ball's in Iraq's court,'' Dillen said.

Dillen said there has been no substantive progress and no Iraqi counter-proposal for a mutually acceptable date for a trip to Baghdad by Secretary of State James Baker.

The meetings have been taking place in Baghdad and involve almost daily sessions between Iraqi deputy Foreign Minister Nizar Hamdoun and Joseph Wilson the acting U.S. ambassador.

President Bush, speaking briefly to reporters Thursday about the exchanges, said, ''There's nothing going on.''

The United States proposed that the meeting between Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein take place between Dec. 20 and Jan. 3.

Iraq appears to be sticking to its proposal of Jan. 12, a date rejected by the United States because it would not leave enough time for Iraq to comply with the U.N. resolution demanding its withdrawl from Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Reports from Baghdad indicate that Saddam has lost interest in meeting Baker because of the Bush administration's position that it will not negotiate around the U.N. mandate.

Saddam has been quoted as telling his ambassadors that he is trying to move the discussion into ''a serious exchange'' with the United States that would involve other issues, including the Palestinian question.

Last week, Saddam recalled his key ambassadors - including the envoy to the United States - for ''consultations.''

Baker predicted last week that Saddam would try to devise a dramatic attempt to circumvent the U.N. dealdine and asked allies to stand united behind the demand for unconditional withdrawl.

The statements by Saddam, as reported by the Iraqi News Agency, appeared to mean that his tactic will be to press for a diplomatic compromise, while at the same time making public preparations for war.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - A few months before her 32nd birthday, and three years after she had won her last tournament, Beth Daniel was struck down with mononucleosis.

For the woman who once had been touted as golf's next superstar, it was a time for serious reflection and soul-searching, a time to determine if she still wanted a future in the game she loved.

During the 13 weeks of recuperation in that summer of 1988, Daniel went home and considered her situation. To her mind, she returned to the LPGA Tour a different woman and a more competent competitor.

''There were a series of things troubling me,'' she said. ''I had some back problems, I had mono, and it was easy to fall back on injuries and illnesses to explain what happened with my golf game. I know that had something to do with my game not being what it should be. It got to a point where I was playing bad golf, and I didn't have the desire.

''I decided I didn't want to leave the sport on a sour note, and what it (the illness) did for me was refuel my fire and make me have a lot of desire to come back and prove I was one of the best players on the LPGA Tour. I had something to prove, which has always been a real motivating force for me.''

It wasn't until August 1989 that Daniel won again, capturing the Greater Washington Open. She then captured three of her next seven tournaments, and has lost very little since then.

In 1990 Daniel enjoyed a year of unparallelled success. She won seven tournaments, including her first major, the Mazda LPGA Championship, led the LPGA money list with a record $863,578, was the Player of the Year and won the Vare Trophy with a scoring average of 70.54.

As a result, Daniel was chosen by United Press International as the Female Athlete of the Year.

''Obviously I think it's wonderful, especially to be named Female Athlete of the Year when you consider the top athletes in other sports,'' Daniel said from her home in Delray Beach, Fla. ''It makes my year stand out more.''

In addition to her individual victories, Daniel also helped the LPGA crush a European team in the first Solheim Cup and she teamed with Davis Love III to capture the mixed team championship.

''This year definitely fulfilled a lot of dreams and even went beyond that,'' said the 34-year-old Daniel. ''It was by far my best year on tour. I had a lot of great things happen to me and it's been a fabulous year. The last three years I've played really well. Even though I didn't win when I came back in 1988, I played extremely good golf and carried confidence from that.

''There's been a building of confidence, so when I'm in contention I feel I should win a golf tournament.''

The big kick for Daniel was winning the Mazda LPGA Championship in July. That was the 22nd victory of her career, but her first major.

''That was something that was missing in my career,'' she said. ''Here I've won over 20 events but not a major. It was like a void, and to win that really meant a lot.''

Daniel had come close before to capturing a major, and her failures had crushed her. In the 1981 U.S. Open she lost by one shot to Pat Bradley despite a final-round 68, and she was the leader for three rounds at the 1983 Nabisco Dinah Shore before losing to Amy Alcott.

The Open defeat was probably the single biggest disappointment of her career. She remembers thinking, ''I just played as good as I'm capable of playing and I lost. Therefore I'll never be the best.''

After enjoying a month of leisure at her new home, Daniel planned to begin serious practice for a new campaign just after Christmas. Her first start of the new year will be the Jamaica Classic the second week of January.

''I don't know if I can surpass 1990,'' she said. ''That was a phenomenal year. Basically my goals for 1991 are going to be pretty simple. Sure, I want to be in the winner's circle, and I can say I want to be Player of the Year again and win the Vare again, but you can't set goals like that and I've never done it.

''I want to go out and enjoy playing, to work hard so I can stay at top form, and try to win some golf tournaments. It's not fair to myself to go out in '91 and expect to do the same things I did in '90. If that happens, that would be great, but if not, it won't be the end of the world. I'm in a position now where I just want to enjoy the game.''

Following her collegiate career at Wake Forest, where one teammate was Betsy King - now her most persistent rival on the Tour - Daniel turned pro in 1979. She admits to being cocky, and her early performance bore out her own expectations. Daniel won a tournament in her first year, the Patty Berg Classic, and was named Rookie of the Year.

In 1980 Daniel soared to the top, winning four tournaments, earning a then-record $231,000 and being chosen Player of the Year. She won twice the following year and was a five-time winner in 1982, but managed only two more victories before re-emerging to the top in 1989.

Through it all, she has learned a lesson that complements well her natural ability to play the game.

''You have to keep working at golf,'' she says, ''because it can turn around on you at any time.''

CHICAGO (DEC. 27) UPI - Steady selling throughout the day pressured grain and soybean futures Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Closing prices were lower, although the volume was light as many traders were taking an extended holiday.

Cold weather the past few days in the nation's midsection has raised concern over possible winterkill of the wheat crop and has resulted in supplemental feeding of livestock.

Although moderating temperatures were expected through Saturday, the extended outlook called for the return of cold weather early next week.

Scattered export sales limited the losses. Algeria and South Korea bought a small quantity of wheat and Taiwan was in the market for corn and soybeans.

Soybean oil was pressured by indications that Pakistan may buy soyoil from South America rather than the United States.

Country movement was light and basis levels were steady to firm.

At the close, corn was unchanged to off 2, soybeans down 1 3/4 to 5 1/4, wheat off 1/2 to 3 3/4 and oats down 3/4 to 1 3/4.

(DEC. 27) UPI - The Securities and Exchange Commission asked all of the nation's stock exchanges to delay their openings until the computers serving the New York and American stock exchanges were back in service. The exchanges were up and running again by midday. The delay followed an early morning explosion and fire at a building housing the computers.

SEA GIRT, N.J. (DEC. 27) UPI - Investigators were trying Thursday to determine the source - or the destination - of 65 kilograms of high- grade cocaine worth $1.8 million that washed up on a beach two blocks from the New Jersey State Police Academy.

The cocaine, which might bring up to $15 million on the street, apparently went astray en route to distributors in the New York metropolitan area.

Employees of the Sea Girt Department of Public Works found a 4-foot by 1-foot fiberglass container last Friday as they cleaned up debris from a winter storm. Sea Girt Mayor William MacInnes said they turned the container over to borough police without examining the contents because they feared it might hold explosives or a harmful substance.

Don Peppler, head of the Monmouth County Narcotics Strike Force, said authorities did not publicize the find immediately because investigators wanted to try to trace the cocaine without whoever lost it knowing it had been found.

''This is by far the largest quantity of cocaine to have washed up in Monmouth County,'' Peppler said.

The container, which was reinforced with wood, could have been carried on board a boat, dropped from a plane or towed behind or under a boat.

''Obviously it was meant to be transported by ship,'' MacInnes said. ''You could never smuggle something like that - it was too big. It had to be put on a boat.''

The cocaine would bring $1.8 million wholesale or close to $15 million if cut for street sale, Peppler said.

Investigators at first considered that someone might be using Monmouth County beaches to land drugs. But police found no indications of other containers on the beaches or offshore.

Peppler said that bales of marijuana and small quantities of cocaine have occasionally washed up in Monmouth County, but nothing the size of the shipment.

The Drug Enforcement Administration and Coast Guard have occasionally seized large quantities offshore. A DEA spokesman said that drug importers have been using boats for transport, towing the drugs and that tow ropes sometimes break accidentally or lines are cut when crew members see the Coast Guard approaching.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - Kevin McReynolds signed a 3-year contract extension with the New York Mets that will pay the outfielder $8.75 million through 1994 the club announced Thursday.

McReynolds, who batted .269 with 24 home runs and 84 RBI in 147 games last season, had one year remaining on his contract.

He will earn $2.1 million in 1991. Under his extension, the Mets will pay him $3 million in 1992, $3.25 million in '93 and $2.5 million '94. The contract includes an option for 1995 worth $3.6 million.

McReynolds, 31, is a career .270 hitter in seven seasons with 167 homers and 621 RBI. He has hit at least 20 homers in each of his last four years, all with the Mets.

''The front office likes McReynolds' consistency,'' said Al Harazin, the Mets' senior vice president. ''He will give you between .270 and . 280, 20 and 30 homers and between 85 and 100 RBI.''

He has been a left fielder with the Mets, but may move to center next season because New York acquired right fielder Hubie Brooks and left fielder Vince Coleman during the off-season.

''I have played and can play any of the three of posistions,'' McReynolds said. ''It's up to Buddy (Harrelson, the manager), but I do want everyone to understand that there is an adjustment should I play center or right and there could be a couple of mistakes while I adjust.''

McReynolds, quiet in the clubhouse, has been criticized for his low profile.

''What this management likes about McReynolds is his substance,'' Harazin said. ''He comes to play and he plays hard. He has talent. It's his style that is criticized here in New York and we don't think that means much.''

He says he will not change his style, even with Darryl Strawberry gone to Los Angeles.

''I am not taking Darryl Strawberry's place,'' McReynolds said. ''This was not Darryl's team and it's not going to be Kevin McReynolds' team. Darryl is where he wants to be, but this is a team game and the Mets are consistently there at the finish and figure to be favored again this year.''

McReynolds was acquired by the Mets before the 1987 season from San Diego along with pitcher Gene Walter and infielder Adam Ging for outfielders Kevin Mitchell, Shawn Abner and Stanley Jefferson and pitcher Kevin Brown.

BOSTON (DEC. 27) UPI - Legislation giving Massachusetts some of the nation's toughest curbs on smog-causing automobile tailpipe emissions was signed Thursday by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

''For the first time in 20 years, we have a fighting chance of cleaning up the air we breathe,'' said Democratic state Rep. David Cohen, the chief House sponsor the bill.

''It also has enormous national implications because the action Massachusetts has taken will be a catalyst to spur other states to adopt stricter standards '' he said.

The regulations will require manufacturers to reduce tailpipe hydrocarbon emissions by 75 percent and nitrogen oxide tailpipe emissions by 50 percent through the mid-1990s.

As approved by the Legislature, the regulations were to be phased in beginning in 1993, but that is expected to be postponed for two years because of last-minute negotiations between environmentalists and representatives of the auto industry.

Industry officials objected to the measure - which imposes restrictions far tougher than those contained in the federal Clean Air Act signed by President Bush in the fall - saying it would damage car dealerships already struggling with the economic recession.

The delay until 1995 is supposed to give neighboring states time to enact their own auto emissions laws, reducing the impact on Massachusetts dealers.

The state's air quality has deteriorated to the point where it violated federal health standards on at least 40 days over the past three summers, according to the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, a prime supporter of the measure.

Dukakis also signed a bill Thursday granting state protection to an estimated 400 species of animals and plants considered to be endangered. Among those on the list are the common barn owl, the short-eared owl, the piping plover, the water shrew and several varieties of orchids.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (DEC. 27) UPI - Yugoslavia's vice president said a critical meeting Thursday of the crisis-ridden country's senior political leaders was not likely to resolve the nation's growing financial morass because of major disagreements over economic policy.

Vice President Stipe Mesic said at a news conference Thursday serious differences over economic policy would pit the four republics with nationalist governments against Communist-ruled Serbia, Montenegro and the province of Vojvodina, and the Marxist-led military.

''I expect no results from this meeting,'' said Mesic, Croatia's representative on the collective head of state. He is due to assume the nation's annual rotating presidentship in May.

He specifically targeted recommendations by experts commissioned by the current president, Borisav Jovic of Serbia's Communist Party, calling for keeping Yugoslavia's unique Marxist-variant economic system of social ownership, under which enterprises and property are managed by users and workers, but have no clear owners.

The meeting was called by the eight-man collective head of state to review federal economic plans for 1991 and the severe problems created for the national budget by the withholding of $1 billion in contributions by the governments of the republics because of their own precarious finances.

The session included the eight members of the state presidency, the presidents of five of the six republics, federal Prime Minister Ante Markovic and members of his Cabinet, an official statement said. It convened in the early afternoon and there was no word on when it would conclude.

The meeting was also expected to discuss the festering dispute over the future political framework of Yugoslavia, which Croatia and Slovenia are demanding be converted from a federation into a confederation of independent states because of fears of economic and political domination by Serbia, the largest republic. Slovenia on Sunday approved a plebliscite on secession and said it will declare independence in six months if confederation is not approved.

Serbia's ruling Communists oppose confederation unless its borders are expanded to include Serbian enclaves in other republics.

Markovic was scheduled to present the results of the conference to a joint session of the federal Parliament on Friday afternoon.

Until the federation-confederation dispute is resolved, he wants the republics to end their violations of federal fiscal directives and other actions that have undermined his year-old program of reforms aimed at turning Yugoslavia into a Western-style democracy after 45 years of communist rule.

Among other acts, the six republics spent $16 billion more than the amount set in Markovic's anti-inflation policy, a key to his reform program.

Nationalists who ousted communists in Croatia, Slovenia, Macedonia and Bosnia-Hercegovina earlier in the year support Markovic's moves to privatize large portions of socially owned properties, although they object to other parts of his program, particularly plans to boost the central government's monetary and taxation powers.

''The general disagreement is over the parts about social ownership and reprivatization. That is the part of greatest discord,'' contended Mesic, who said that Yugoslavia would be excluded from the economic fruits of European integration if it maintained the social ownership system.

Social ownership is regarded by Western experts as a major cause of the republics' fiscal woes because it was used by their leaderships to maintain their power bases, with politically controlled banks for years financing inefficient and unprofitable enterprises through the unrestricted printing of money, which resulted in 1989 in hyperinflation.

Markovic has sought to uproot the system by restricting the money supply and other measures, forcing the closure of hundreds of failing firms and banks and depriving the republics of revenues.

MOSCOW (DEC. 27) UPI - The Congress of People's Deputies elected Mikhail Gorbachev's choice as the first Soviet vice president Thursday, but only after opposition forced a second uncontested ballot for the post.

Gennady Yanayev, a career Communist Party official, received 1,237 votes on the second ballot, 148 votes more than in the first vote and well above the 1,120-vote threshold he needed for a majority of the legislature's 2,239 members.

Yanayev, 53, overcame resistance from liberal deputies who accused him of being a party functionary with few credentials for helping to chart the country's rocky course toward a market economy.

Algimantas Chekuolis, a deputy from the rebellious Baltic republic of Lithuania, branded Yanayev as ''a carbon copy of other high-level apparatchiks - sleek, brilliant and out of touch with reality.''

Yanayev, however, told reporters several minutes after his election: ''The most difficult task will be recognizing human pain and suffering, and taking quick and adequate steps to alleviate it.''

Yanayev, filling a post created only Tuesday in Gorbachev's government overhaul, becomes the first vice president of the Soviet Union since the country's formation after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

The nation's supreme legislature adjourned Thursday evening, ending a 10-day session overshadowed in large measure by Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze's suprise resignation announcement last week.

There were 563 votes against Yanayev, 23 ballots were invalid and other deputies were either boycotting the session or did not vote.

''In accordance with the constitution and the election rules of the Congress, Deputy Yanayev has been elected vice president of the Soviet Union,'' said Yuri Osipoyan, chairman of the official election commission. Deputies responded with brief, mild applause.

The first-ballot setback for Yanayev, who fell 31 votes short on the first poll while running unopposed at the Congress, was seen as a blow for Gorbachev and his attempt to bolster presidential rule in the country.

But Gorbachev immediately nominated Yanayev for a second ballot, telling deputies he felt they would vote for his candidate once they ''get aquainted with him.''

''I want to work next to a person whom I trust completely,'' Gorbachev said in his second nomination speech.

There were no other nominations, and deputies voted in a second secret ballot Thursday afternoon, shortly after the results of Wednesday's vote were announced.

Yanayev expressed confidence even before the second round's outcome was known.

''Of course, it would have been better to have been elected in the first round '' he said. ''But I think that the more difficult the victory, the more satisfying the result.''

Ganayev said that he had planned to withdraw his candidacy after the first round of voting, but that Gorbachev had convinced him to run again.

Deputies from five defiant republics observed full or partial boycotts of the conclave to show their independence from Moscow, depleting the pool of lawmakers who participated in the vote and making the majority of the total membership more difficult to obtain.

In another blow to Gorbachev's plans to reassert strong central power under the president, the huge Russian republic's Parliament voted Wednesday to slash its contribution to the national budget by $202 billion.

The action by Russia, the most recent defiant move under the aggressive leadership of Boris Yeltsin, was another attempt to assert its sovereignty and control its own spending.

Gorbachev denouced the move Thursday at the Congress, saying it could lead to ''the destruction not only of the economy but of the whole union.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - President Bush, playing down reports U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf will not be ready for combat by Jan. 15, said Thursday ''the situation is just right.''

He also restated that the United States will not compromise with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and that he is prepared to implement ''without conditions'' the U.N. resolution authorizing military force to remove Iraq from Kuwait after Jan. 15.

The president made the comments at two off-the-cuff encounters with reporters at the White House. Bush flew to Washington from Camp David, Md., for a half-day of work at the Oval Office and then returned to the presidential retreat where he is scheduled to spend the remainder of the holiday period.

At the White House, Bush received Soviet Ambassador Alexander Bessmertynykh who delivered a ''confidential,'' but ''friendly'' New Year's message from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The president would not elaborate on the message, saying he and Bessmertynykhdiscussed political and economic difficulties facing the Soviet Union. ''I think they can sort it out,'' Bush said.

The president was asked about reports in recent days that Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney and Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, had told him their inspection tour of U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf showed that they would not be prepared for combat until mid- February.

''Where did they get that stuff,'' Bush said of the media reports, adding, ''I had a very good briefing from Dick and Colin and the situation is just right.''

Asked if U.S. troops would be prepared to go to war, Bush declined to answer, saying it was ''too provocative.''

But asked if he would not send troops into battle if they were unprepared, Bush said: ''Exactly. It's under control. I've got total confidence in the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretary of defense, and the commanders out there with whom I talked over the holidays.''

Asked if a compromise was possible, Bush complained ''That's the problem.''

''Everybody wants me to compromise. There's not going to be a compromise with this man. That would be the worst signal to send to the people around the world that are together...''

Bush said the message to Saddam remains - ''that we're going to fully implement the United Nations resolutions, that's all. And so are the other countries.''

He told reporters he did not believe that Saddam has gotten the message ''that we are serious we are serious and our allies are serious'' in carrying out the U.N. resolution.

''I read the comments he makes about war, and I find it difficult to believe that he believes about what will happen to him,'' Bush said. ''I still am hopeful he will get the message and get out of Kuwait by the fifteenth of January totally without conditions.

''The world community has called on him to do that. It's enshrined in international law by the Security Council. I am sure he can do that. I'm not sure I believe he will,'' Bush said.

Bush also called a report in an Israeli newspaper that Secretary of State James Baker would meet with Saddam on Jan. 9 ''fully fallacious,'' adding, ''There's nothing going on on that front.'' Bush said, ''When there's any news on that, I'll be putting it out myself. I am staying directly in touch.''

In response to a question, he said his New Year's message to the American people, ''particularly at this time of the year is that we hope we'll have a peaceful resolution ... we hope the brutality that's going on in Kuwait this very minute will cease and I can guarantee to the families of those kids overseas that I will do everything in my power to see that their safety is maximized and they get the full support from the American people that they deserve.''

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 27) UPI - Declaring it as the worker safety issue of the 1990s, Mayor Art Agnos Thursday signed into law the nation's toughest video display terminal safety legislation.

Union leaders promised they now would turn the battle for regulation of computers in the workplace to the state and federal arenas.

The San Francisco measure, which will take effect in 30 days, affects 56,250 San Francisco workers in private businesses that employ more than 15 people. The figure does not include city workers, who are also affected.

The law is intended to reduce the risk of ailments caused by prolonged use of a computer terminal. Medical problems have included eye strain, muscle fatigue and carpal tunnel syndrome, an injury that can incapacitate the hand and that often requires surgery.

Agnos agreed to sign the measure after prodding labor and business leaders to compromise on amendments that will make the ordinance less costly for businesses and extend to four years, from two, the time they would have to fully comply.

''This legislation, and the accompanying amendments, will insure that San Francisco's workers are protected from painful injuries in a way that won't drive business out of the city,'' Agnos said.

VDT safety regulation ''is the worker safety issue of the 1990s,'' Agnos said.

Paul Viracelli, a Service Employees International Union spokesman who pushed for the law, said it is estimated the changes mandated by the ordinance will cost private business $14 million over the next 30 months and increase to $19 million to fully comply in 42 months.

The cost to the city is expected to be $231,550, he said.

The legislation protects employees in San Francisco who spend more than 50 percent of their work hours in one week working at a VDT.

It requires employers to provide adjustable workstations and chairs; sets minimum design standards such as lighting and use of anti-glare screens; requires 15-minute alternative work breaks after two hours of continuous VDT work, and requires that workers are trained on health and safety concerns associated with VDT use.

The law has attracted national attention because it is the country's only municipal ordinance regulating the use of computer terminals in private business.

A 1988 law enacted by Suffolk County, N.Y., was struck down by a state court, which ruled such regulation was the business of state or federal governments.

San Francisco City Attorney Louise Renne said she is ''not worried'' about possible legal challenges to the measure.

Under the proposed amendments, to be reviewed by city supervisors Jan. 3, the two-year deadline for compliance would be replaced with a three-step process that could take as long as four years to complete.

One year from the effective date of the ordinance, any new equipment would have to comply with the ordinance.

Within two and one half years, companies would have to upgrade old equipment to comply with the law. However, they would not have to spend more than $250 per work station.

Full compliance, regardless of cost, would have to be completed in four years. The amendments also exempt certain workers, such as architects, who use computer-assisted design terminals, and stockbrokers, who use terminals to check stock prices.

(DEC. 27) UPI - Trade by the major stock exchanges finally got off to a delayed start this morning following an earlier electrical transformer explosion in lower Manhattan. It occurred outside a 54-story office tower that houses the back-room computer operations of the New York and American stock exchanges. Witnesses say the explosion, in a below street level vault, sent flames 80 feet into the air. It blew out windows on the fifth, sixth and seventh floors and started a small fire on the sixth floor that was put out by firefighters.

Iraq's Saddam Hussein has, for a second time, raised the idea of ''serious'' talks with the United States on the Persian Gulf crisis. His latest attempt comes in comments to the Iraqi ambassadors he recalled from their posts last week in Washington and in Europe. Other diplomats in the Mideast say Saddam may actually want to begin talks to end the almost five-month-old crisis. Others see it as a ploy to win him more time. And Kuwait's exiled foreign minister says the time for talking has already past.

In Washington, one of the must-see tourist attractions is the retreat ceremony at the Marine barracks... a historic post that is home to the Marine Corps commandant. Now the barracks is contributing troops to Operation Desert Shield. Company ''A'' headed out this morning for Camp Lejeune in North Carolina, where they'll ship out for Saudi Arabia. It's the first time since 1906 that a company from the barracks has been sent out on military duty. The marines who usually perform some scary bayonet and rifle twirling are also trained as infantrymen.

And in a major deployment for Operation Desert Shield, the first infantry division from Fort Riley, Kansas, has started deploying to the Saudi desert. The ''Big Red One'' as the division is called from its shoulder patch is a tank unit equipped with the powerful MA-1 tank.

Mikhail Gorbachev finally got his way when it comes to naming the first vice president ever to serve in a Soviet government. But it took him two tries. The Soviet legislature finally approved Gorbachev's nominee, Gennady Yanayev, but NOT without some harsh words. The career Communist Party official was called a throwback to the old days that the lawmakers are hoping to guide the Soviet Union out of. He came up just 31 votes shy of what was needed on the first ballot but he won the second tally, unopposed, by 148 votes.

The growing independence of the various Soviet republics is drawing fire from Soviet President Gorbachev. The latest example is a decision by the Russian Republic to dramatically cut its contributions to the central government. The Russian Parliament voted yesterday to slash its central government contribution from 242-BILLION dollars this year to just under 40-BILLION dollars next year. Gorbachev says that could lead NOT only to destruction of the Soviet economy but to its political union as well.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 27) UPI - The government next year will begin a nationwide program of testing milk for traces of drugs that farmers use to treat sick cows, the Food and Drug Administration announced Thursday.

The agency will randomly select five of 250 target locations in major ''dairy states'' to test unpasteurized milk, the FDA said. Initially, testers will look for the presence of eight so-called ''sulfa drugs'' and three tetracycline drugs.

''These drugs are of most concern because they have been widely misused,'' the FDA said in a statement. ''As newer analytical methods become available, milk will be monitored for additional drugs.''

While the FDA did not specify which drugs it is targeting, most such drugs are not approved for use in dairy cows and health officials and consumer groups have raised concerns about the effect residues of the drugs might have on humans.

Lisa Lefferts, a staff scientist at the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a Washington consumer group, criticized the limited scope of the FDA program.

''Some testing is better than no testing,'' Lefferts said, ''but testing five samples of milk each week from five locations isn't enough. That's like staunching a flood by handing out boxes of Kleenex.''

Allergic reactions to drug residues in milk are the major concern for humans, Lefferts said.

''Milk is the most common cause of food allergy and in some cases the reaction might not be the milk itself, but some residue found in it,'' she said.

Tests have also shown that one sulfa drug, sulfamethazine, can cause cancer in laboratory rats and mice. Sulfonamides can cause allergic reactions in some humans. Experts are also concerned that exposure to antibiotics, such as tetracyclines, may cause humans to become resistant to the drugs, rendering the medicines ineffective.

''We don't think the risk is large enough to urge consumers not to drink milk '' Lefferts said, ''but we think it's an unnecessary risk'' to allow any use of the unapproved drugs.

While criticizing the scope of the FDA program, Lefferts said even more thorough testing would be ineffective unless the FDA phases out its ''extra label drug policy,'' which allows veterinarians to prescribe unapproved drugs under some conditions.

One of those conditions is a determination that no residues of the drug be found in the milk of treated cows, but Lefferts said tests have not even been developed to detect many of the drugs.

The FDA said it plans to widen its random testing to include other drugs as technologies become available to do so.

The FDA in April said tests of milk samples collected in 14 cities found trace levels of sulfamethazine in three of 70 samples while 58 samples had traces of other unidentified sulfa drugs.

While the levels were too low to pose a health hazard and indicate abuse by dairy farmers is rare, the findings ''nevertheless show that a few dairy farmers or veterinarians have improperly used the drug,'' the FDA said at the time.

The FDA statement said the new testing program will ''add another layer of protection for consumers'' of milk products.

The new program, called the National Drug Residue Milk Monitoring Program, will supplement the customary, routine tests of raw and processed milk carried out by the states through the National Conference on Interstate Milk Shipments for penicillin and penicillin-related drug products, the FDA said.

Although the FDA has monitored that testing and has conducted its own

#90361u1291 12/27/1990 ~United Press International

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - The dollar mainly weakened in a holiday-thin New York market Thursday as players focused on fresh evidence of U.S. economic decline in the absence of any strong new cause for concern in world affairs.

''Today, for whatever reason, the dollar was sold off,'' said Audrey McNiff, a Hongkong & Shanghai Banking Corp. vice president and corporate trader.

Though a Mideast war seems increasingly likely, McNiff said, participants had ''no news to keep the fire burning on the Gulf front. So the market was taking a look at the (U.S. economic) numbers that came out today.''

In late New York dealings, the dollar was quoted at 1.5250 German marks, down from 1.5360 Wednesday, and at 136.35 Japanese yen, up from 136.20 yen.

The British pound rose to $1.8900 from $1.8815.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3035 Swiss francs, off from 1.3125; 5. 1925 French francs, down from 5.2125; and 1,151 Italian lire, off from 1,155.

Players sold the dollar after the Commerce Department reported a 10.5 percent plunge in November durable goods orders. The drop in orders for longer-lasting products matched a 32-year record decline seen in January.

Currency dealers said news that Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev obtained a confirming vote from his Congress for his vice presidential nominee, Gennadi Yannayev, also undercut the dollar's relatively strong position.

McNiff said the German mark and other European currencies were lifted against the dollar by Yannayev's confirmation. ''If Gorbachev wants something and he gets it, that's got to be seen favorably,'' she said.

A week ago, the dollar soared after Eduard Shevardnadze, the Soviet foreign minister, said he would resign. The German economy and currency is seen as the most vulnerable to Soviet political instability.

In European sessions, the dollar closed mixed in directionless dealings.

But Persian Gulf fears continued to underpin the dollar. Remarks by a Kuwaiti official, saying war was inevitable, boosted it at midday.

In Frankfurt, the dollar ended at 1.5285 German marks, up from 1.5205 at the end of business Friday. The German mark was undermined by Gorbachev's choice of vice president, seen as a move to political retrenchment.

The dollar fell in Zurich to 1.3080 Swiss francs vs. 1.3185 Monday.

In London, the pound recovered to $1.8870 from $1.8740 Monday.

In Paris, the dollar moved up to 5.2125 French francs from 5.1620 on Friday, the last time the French market had official prices.

In Brussels, the U.S. currency declined to 31.67 Belgian francs against 31.90 Monday. In Milan it fell to 1,155.40 Italian lire from 1, 159.40.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar posted its eighth straight gain against the yen amid continued concern over the Mideast crisis. The U.S. unit ended at 136.65 yen, a gain of 0.40 yen from 136.25 yen Wednesday.

In Zurich, gold closed at $383.50 an ounce, unchanged from Monday. In London, gold closed lower at $382.50 an ounce vs. $383.50 Monday.

Silver finished higher in Zurich at $4.10 an ounce from $4.06. London silver closed higher at $4.09 an ounce from $4.06.

In New York, Republic National Bank closed cash gold at $384.75, up slightly from $384.50 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $385.30 an ounce, down from $385.60.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.105 an ounce, off from $4.12. Comex trading left silver at $4.093 an ounce, barely off from $4.095.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - Assets of the nation's 533 money market mutual funds fell by $1.11 billion to $427.90 billion in the week ended Wednesday, according to the Investment Company Institute, a research arm of the U. S. mutual fund industry.

Elsewhere, two other financial reporting organizations said average yields on money-market mutual funds were lower, while deposit and lending rates at U.S. savings and loan institutions mostly descended in the period.

The Investment Company Institute said broker-dealer fund assets declined by $251.9 million to $$166.02 billion, assets of general purpose funds fell by $226.3 million to $150.41 billion, and institutional fund assets decreased by $627.6 million to $$111.47 billion.

The institute's vice president and chief economist, Jacob Dreyer, said asset levels in the general purpose and broker/dealer categories ''barely changed'' as a recent pattern of ''small and erratic movements'' continued.

Added Dreyer, ''Institutional assets, after five consecutive weeks of large increases, fell moderately, probably in response to some firming of short-term interest rates.''

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week. It is located in Washington, D.C.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said average seven- day simple yields were 7.16 percent, down from 7.17 percent, while 30- day simple yields were also lower at 7.21 percent, vs. 7.23 percent last week.

The average maturity of fund portfolios fell to 51 days from 52 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor in North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money-market deposit accounts, 5.75 percent, down from 5.79 percent; Super-Now accounts, 4.92 percent, off from 4.93 percent; six- month certificates of deposit, 7.08 percent, off from 7.14 percent; 1- year CDs, 7.14 percent, down from 7.19 percent; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.26 percent, off from 7.31 percent; and five-year CDs, 7.48 percent, off from 7.53 percent.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 7.90 percent, off from 7.92 percent.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage was unchanged at 9.21 percent. The average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage moved up to 9.50 percent from 9.48 percent the previous week.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan was unchanged at 12. 26 percent.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - Stocks fell in very slow holiday week trading Thursday after getting off to a late start because of a fire outside a building that houses one of the exchange's key computer systems.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 15.84 Wednesday, lost 11.63 to close at 2625.50.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 1.12 to 179.88. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 2.56 to 328.29. The price of an average share fell 19 cents.

Declines led advances 904-590 among the 2,003 issues crossing the Big Board tape. Volume totaled 102,900,000 shares, compared with the 78,730, 000 traded Wednesday.

The opening of trading was delayed an hour and a half when an electrical transformer exploded in the Wall Street district and set off a fire.

Trading usually opens at 9:30 a.m. EST, but did not begin until 11 a. m. after preliminary test results found no signs of PCB contamination in the building housing the Securities Industry Automation Corp. - the computer center serving both exchanges. PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyl, chemicals manufactured to insulate high-voltage transformers, are classified among the deadliest manmade substances.

Analysts said the episode had no effect on trading and when the market finally opened, prices were virtually unchanged. They drifted at mixed levels for much of the day, and then turned lower in late trading.

Ricky Harrington, director of investment policy and asset management at Marion Bass Securities in Charlotte, N.C., said bad economic news and Mideast tensions were behind the decline.

Durable goods orders dropped a sharp 10.5 percent, or $13.5 billion, in November, matching a record monthly decline set last January, the Commerce Department said.

''That was a major shock to analysts since orders were estimated to be down about 2.2 percent,'' he said. ''Stocks opened weaker, then came under pressure later in the day when Bush said Saddam did not seem to be giving any ground, that he still was not responding to initiatives.''

President Bush restated that the United States will not compromise with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and that he is prepared to implement ''without conditions'' the U.N. resolution authorizing military force to remove Iraq from Kuwait after Jan. 15.

''But really there was not much of a trend and very low volume,'' said Harrington. ''It wasn't really any different from what we've seen over the last 4 or 5 days.''

On the trading floor, MCA was the most active issue, up 5/8 to 68 1/2.

Chemical Banking followed, off 1/4 to 11 1/8. Toys 'R' Us was third, off 1/2 to 22 1/8.

Tiffany was also active, down 2 1/4 to 35. The jeweler said Wednesday earnings estimates for the current quarter were too high and some analysts were said to cut earnings estimates for the company.

Among the blue chips, AT&T lost 1/8 to 30 1/8, IBM fell 1/8 to 113 5/8 and Exxon eased 1/2 to 51 1/4.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 128,877,690 shares, compared with 99,928,970 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices fell in light trading on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index lost 1.32 to close at 303.67. Declines led advances 331-246 among the 876 issues traded. The price of an average share fell 5 cents. Composite volume totaled 11,541,525 shares vs. 9,831,400 traded Wednesday.

Energy Service led the Amex issues, unchanged at 2 1/2.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index fell 1.35 to 371.05.

(DEC. 27) UPI - The official Tass news agency reports that Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Igor Belousov met with Iraq's Saddam Hussein for three hours in Baghdad today. But there are NO details of what they discussed. Belousov is in Baghdad to finalize plans to get the last 17-hundred Soviet citizens out of Iraq by January 10th.

Iraq's Saddam Hussein is again trying to link the Palestinian question to his occupation of Kuwait as he tries to set up ''serious'' talks with the United States. It is an argument Washington has rejected in the past. Saddam outlined his latest try in discussions with the Iraqi ambassadors he recalled from Washington and other European capitals last week. The Bush administration has said it will talk with Iraq only about Kuwait, NOT other subjects.

President Bush today brushed off reports U-S troops in the Persian Gulf won't be ready for combat by the January 15th deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Speaking to reporters at the White House, Bush said- ''Where did they get that stuff.'' The president says he was briefed by Defense Secretary Cheney and Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman Colin Powell, who told him- quoting- ''the situation is just right.''

Bush also denied other reports that a date has been set for a meeting between Secretary of State Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad. The president spoke briefly with reporters after his return from Camp David. Bush arranged to return to the presidential retreat in Maryland this afternoon to resume his holiday stay with family members.

The nation's output of durable goods continues to fall. The Commerce Department reports November orders were down 10-point-five percent to match the record set in January. Durable goods are those designed to last three or more years and their orders keep the nation's factories busy. Much of the November loss came on few orders for aircraft and automobiles.

Authorities in Rockford, Illinois, are considering whether the mother of a two-year-old girl should be charged for leaving the child in a car for 17 hours in temperatures that dropped to nine below zero. The child's mother said her daughter was left in the car ''by mistake.'' And police investigators believe the abandonment was NOT intentional. Kandy Shoulders is hospitalized with severe frostbite to her feet. A spokeswoman at Rockford Memorial Hospital says officials are optimistic the toddler will fully recover.

Cold wintery weather stretches right across the top half of the nation, from Washington's Puget Sound to New England and the Middle Atlantic states where inland temperatures hit single digit marks. Roads in southern Illinois were glazed by a combination of snow, sleet and freezing rain and one person died in a seven vehicle accident on Interstate 64 near Mount Vernon, Illinois. Freezing rain has coated trees and power lines in southwest Arkansas while sleet iced roads in higher elevations of Tennessee's Cumberland plateau.

CHESTNUT HILL, MA (DEC. 27) UPI - Tom Coughlin, an assistant coach with the NFC East champion New York Giants, was chosen Thursday as the next head football coach at Boston College, apparently ending a bizarre search for a successor to fired Jack Bicknell.

Coughlin, 44, a sixth-year NFL coach who has trained the Giants receivers since 1988, was one of Bicknell's original assistants when he came to Boston College in 1980.

Bicknell was dismissed last month after the Eagles finished their fourth straight losing season.

Coughlin is BC's third choice for the post. Virginia Tech's Frank Beamer, the Eagles top choice, withdrew his name from consideration on Dec. 17. Then, Jimmye Laycock of William and Mary rejected the job Dec. 20, one day after accepting it.

BC Athletic Director Chet Gladchuk praised Coughlin as a ''highly dedicated and respected professional'' and predicted he would bring the Eagles ''to new levels of accomplishment.''

''I am especially impressed with the profesional intensity he has displayed, and the results he has achieved, at every level of competition throughout his career,'' said Gladchuk, who made no reference to Beamer or Laycock.

Giants' head coach Bill Parcells echoed Gladchuck's assessment, saying Coughlin ''has meant a great to our offense.''

''He has certainly been one of the top assistant coaches I have ever had on my staff,'' Parcells said.

Coughlin, a former running back for Syracuse and team captain who played alongside Larry Csonka and Floyd Little in the mid 1960s, began his coaching career as an assistant at the Rochester Institute of Technology in 1970 and became the school's head coach the following year.

He returned to Syracuse in 1974 as an assistant and later offensive coordinator under Frank Maloney. He joined Bicknell at BC in 1980, where he served as quarterback coach, training Doug Flutie, the 1984 Heisman Trophy winner.

Coughlin began his NFL career that same year as receivers coach with the Philadelphia Eagles. He joined the Green Bay Packers in the same capacity in 1986 and moved to the Giants in 1988.

CHICAGO (DEC. 27) UPI - A former professor of English composition at the University of Chicago has developed software programs for universities and high schools to help reduce or eliminate plagiarism.

Barbara Glatt said Thursday the Glatt Plagiarism Screening Program is the first reliable and valid test developed for determining original authorship.

Based on the student's own writing sample, the program substitutes every fifth word with a standard-sized blank.

Based on research in cognitive psychology, determinations of plagiarism innocence or guilt are established according to how well an individual can reproduce his or her own writing.

''We all have a unique style of writing that acts as a fingerprint as to who we are,'' Glatt said. ''Furthermore, we know and can remember our own writing style better than anyone else.''

The Glatt Plagiarism Teaching Program is an interactive tutorial designed to provide instruction for students on what constitutes plagiarism and how to avoid it. The software includes examples, exercises and competency testing.

The tutorial also provides the schools with accountability that information on plagiarism has been presented, thus avoiding any blame later that the student was not informed about how to avoid committing plagiarism.

The three programs will be on display at the Modern Language Association convention opening Friday at the Hyatt Regency Chicago Hotel.

FORT WORTH, Texas (DEC. 27) UPI - More than 500 of American Airlines' 8,700 pilots again called in sick Thursday, some of them continuing a protest in defiance of a temporary restraining order, the company said.

U.S. District Judge John McBryde issued the order sought by American to halt what the company termed ''an illegal job'' action designed to force it to accept the pilot union's terms in contract talks.

American spokesman Tim Smith said Thursday the number of pilots calling in sick had not changed since the order was approved Wednesday night.

''The absentee rate today is very similar overall to what we've seen over the last three or four days,'' he said.

American said 530 pilots were out sick Thursday, which is about 65 to 70 percent more than normal at this time of year. The airline said 24 flights were canceled, 13 of them because of illness. American flies an average of 2,300 flights daily.

American also announced it was planning to reduce its flight schedules by 4 percent in early January as a means of assuring its passengers reliable service. Any ticketholders affected would be contacted by the reservations office and accommodated on another flight, Smith said.

Capt. Tom Hunt, an American pilot and spokesman for the Allied Pilots Association, denied there was any organized sickout, but the union said it could not speak for individual pilots.

The statement issued by the APA office said a check of pilot bases indicated ''no substantial increase in sick calls over normal.''

American said it was forced to cancel less than 1 percent of its flights due to the sickout. But because of the wintry weather and the holiday season, the cancellation of flights has had more of an impact, officials said.

''It becomes a rather large inconvenience to our customers and one they remember when you let them down during the holiday period,'' said Bob Baker, another American spokesman.

The Fort Worth-based airline canceled about one in 11 of its approximately 2,300 daily flights nationwide last weekend. On Christmas Day, 40 flights were canceled, 23 of them due to crew sickness, an official said.

American is also seeking damages of $1 million a day from the union for each day of disruption.

A hearing is scheduled Jan. 3 before the judge to determine if the restraining order will be made permanent.

Negotiations between American and the APA on a new contract have been under way for 14 months.

About 230 American pilots also are serving in Operation Desert Shield, Baker said.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - The nation's home-heating oil and gasoline supplies declined slightly last week as crude oil inventories crept higher, the American Petroleum Institute reported Thursday.

In the week ending Dec. 21, U.S. refinery operations remained unchanged from the previous week, the oil industry trade group said.

Stocks of distillate, used primarily for home-heating oil and diesel fuel, moved down to 131.5 million barrels last week from 132.6 million barrels in the preceding week but were substantially above the 112.2 million barrels on hand in the same week last year.

Distillate production held steady at 2.9 million barrels a day, unchanged from the previous week but below the year-ago rate of 3.5 million barrels a day.

Distillate imports shot up to 268,000 barrels a day from 162,000 barrels a day the week before but were eclipsed by the 433,000 barrel-a- day pace at the same time last year when the nation was gripped by bitter cold.

Gasoline inventories slipped to 223.7 million barrels from 224.6 million barrels in the prior week but still were ahead of the 221.7 million barrels in storage in the corresponding 1989 week.

Gasoline production picked up to 7.1 million barrels a day from 6.8 million barrels daily in the previous week and 6.9 million barrels a day in the year-earlier week.

Gasoline imports plummeted to 241,000 barrels a day from 474,000 barrels a day the week before and 378,000 barrels a day in the comparable week last year.

Crude oil inventories rose to 334.7 million barrels from 331.5 million barrels in the prior week but failed to match the year-ago level of 342 million barrels.

U.S. refineries operated at 83.8 percent of capacity, unchanged from the previous week but below the 89.8 percent level recorded a year ago.

Crude oil imports jumped to 5.6 million barrels a day from 5.1 million barrels a day a week earlier but lagged behind the 6.2 million barrels a day reaching U.S. shores last year.

Imports of refined petroleum products fell to 1.5 million barrels a day from 2.1 million barrels a day in the preceding week but still exceeded the 1.8 million barrels a day turned out in the same 1989 week.

ALBANY, N.Y. (DEC. 27) UPI - New York's consumer watchdog and the federal government Thursday teamed up to warn denture wearers that their adhesive may contain excessive amounts of a cancer-causing chemical.

Richard Kessel, executive director of the state Consumer Protection Board, said testing of denture adhesives showed three brands with high levels of the chemical benzene, a known carcinogen.

The federal Food and Drug Administration took the state tests and concluded that three brands - Orafix Special, Brace and, to a lesser degree, Cushion Grip - have unacceptable amounts of benzene.

All three products are being recalled by their manufacturers.

''While this is not believed to be an acute health hazard, it could pose a danger to denture adhesive users over many years,'' Kessel said.

Other Denture holding products shown to contain low levels of benzene are Fasteeth and Fixodent, he said.

Five other brands tested, CVS, Confident, Effergrip, Orafix Original and Super Poli Grip showed no detectable amounts of benzene, Kessel said.

Kessel originally requested that the state Department of Health test 10 different brands, and when benzene was discovered in numerous samples the FDA was notified.

''The findings of this study are particularly disturbing because the adhesives are in direct contact with the gums and have quick access to the circulatory system,'' Kessel said.

The FDA said it will now test all denture adhesives on the market to determine the extent of the problem.

Those who have any of the contaminated products in their home are asked to discard them or return them to the manufacturer for a refund.

(DEC. 27) - The eastern-most parts of the mid-Atlantic region received their first taste of snow this winter, icy rain fall across the South, more cold weather headed toward the West Coast and temperatures warmed slightly in the Midwest.

Clouds moved in and temperatures hovered near 30 as rain mixed with snow moved through Tennessee, the Carolinas and Virginia, hitting Washington, D.C., at the evening rush hour. Moderate accumulation was expected before the snow changed to rain. Forecasters predicted unseasonably warm temperatures in the East for the weekend.

The severe weather continued along the West Coast, and things were expected to get worse.

Gale warnings were posted in Puget Sound as a storm carrying winds near 50 mph swept into the region, bringing up to 4 inches of snow in the northeast and central parts of the state.

The storm was moving toward California threatening crops already damaged by unseasonably cold weather. Lows in the 30s were reported in San Francisco Thursday with warmer temperatures to the south.

California was recovering from a freeze that may have damaged up to 50 percent of the state's citrus crop, according to preliminarly estimates by Sunkist Growers Inc.

In northern California's Tulare County, where the bulk of the state's navel oranges are grown, officials estimated a $200 million loss.

The record cold also ruined marigolds and other decorations for blossom-laden floats for the 1991 Tournament of Roses Parade.

''A few of the field crops that we count on, flowers with bright orange color, got wiped out,'' said Rick Chapman, who is overseeing decorations and construction of floats for the Jan. 1 event. ''We're looking for substitutes.''

A winter storm belted Southern Illinois and touched off a rash of traffic accidents. Law enforcement agencies reported ''going nuts'' responding to weather-related traffic calls.

On Interstate 64 northwest of Mount Vernon, Ill., seven vehicles were involved in a chain-reaction collision. A spokesman for the Jefferson County sheriff's department said one person was killed in the wreck and various reports placed the number of injured between three and 10.

The eastbound lanes of Interstate 64, which links St. Louis and Louisville, Ky., were closed for hours because of the wreck.

Freezing rain coated trees and power lines across southwest Arkansas knocking down mature pines in Ashdown and Foreman and causing blackouts in the Texarkana and Hope areas.

A winter weather advisory was posted for southeast Oklahoma and northeast Texas as light to moderate rain fell across the entire region while between 1 and 2 inches of rain swamped area around Shreveport, La.

In the Plains states, where high temperatures well below zero have been the norm over the past few days, lows were above zero and highs in Illinois and North Dakota reached the 20s.

NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - Mike Tyson filed suit against the World Boxing Association and the International Boxing Federation Thursday asking for $50 million in damages and to be given the right to fight for those organization's heavyweight championship belts.

Tyson brought the suit in U.S. District Court in Manhattan against the WBA, IBF, the presidents of those organizations, Gilberto Mendoza and Robert W. Lee and WBA attorney James Binns. The former heavyweight champion asked for $10 million from each of those parties.

Tyson wants to prevent the championship bout between Evander Holyfield and George Foreman April 19 in Atlantic City. Tyson claims the organizations should have allowed him to fight the winner of the Buster Douglas-Holyfield championship bout last October.

Tyson lost the world heavywieght championship to Douglas last February. The World Boxing Council as ruled Holyfield should fight Tyson in his next bout.

(DEC. 27) UPI - Crude oil prices eased slightly Thursday in very slow holiday week trading.

Futures contracts for February delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the key U.S. crude, slipped 21 cents to $27.01 a barrel in New York Mercantile Exchange trading.

Only about 30,000 trades were made on the Merc and brokers said market activity suffered from the absence of many major players who have all but closed out their books for the year.

Following crude's lead, heating oil dipped 0.38 cent to 80.88 cents a gallon. But unleaded gasoline resisted the downward trend, climbing half a cent to settle at 68.44 cents a gallon.

One broker on the Merc, Raymond Mazzeo, a futures specialist with Lehman Brothers' intenational energy desk, said the slight upward pressure on gasoline likely was due to speculators ''unwinding their gas-to-heating oil spreads,'' in other words, buying gasoline futures to cover positions sold previously when they had expected heating oil prices to rise faster than the gasoline.

Around the world, spot market prices on crude for immediate delivery also eased slightly in a day that provided very little news from either the White House or the Middle East to alter a nervous market's assessment of the likelihood of a war in the oil-rich Arabian Peninsula that might disrupt supplies.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast, West Texas Intermediate fell 20 cents to $27 a barrel from Wednesday. United Arab Emirates' Dubai light from the Persian Gulf, the main OPEC crude, was off 50 cents to $23.10 a barrel. And in European trading, Britain's North Sea Brent, the world's most widely-traded crude, closed the day down 45 cents to $27.35 a barrel.

The very light trading did not indicate any trend in prices, said Thomas

Blakeslee, an analyst at Pegasus Econometric Group of Hoboken, N. J. ''The move was purely technical and will not carry much substance when you see major players return to the market,'' Blakeslee predicted. ''Most of (the big traders such as major oil companies) have cleared off their books and won't be back until next week. That's the main reason you're seeing 30,000 trades instead of 80,000.''

''Crude should move higher after the first of the year. People will realize we're just two weeks away from a deadline on a major war in the biggest oil fields in the world.... Crude prices should drift a little higher. Gasoline should follow them a little because, of course, refineries have to pay for that crude oil. But weak demand in the products should keep a lid on product prices.''

In the meantime, heating oil prices are under pressure because of unusually high heating oil stocks. The unseasonably warm weather enjoyed in the Northeastern United States for much of December contrasted sharply with the extremely cold December last year, analysts said.

''You're seeing demand over the past 13 weeks almost 7 percent lower than the same quarter last year,'' said Pegasus Econometric Group's Blakeslee. ''People compare stock levels from the year before so that will put psychological pressure on people ... so that's one reason it's tough to be bullish on heating oil at this stage.''

(DEC. 27) UPI - President Bush is playing down reports U-S troops in the Persian Gulf aren't quite ready for combat, if war breaks out with Iraq. Bush says his top military advisers briefed him on the situation and said it's ''just right.'' But Bush declined to say whether U-S troops would be prepared to go to war on January 15th, saying it was ''too provocative.''

In another development, President Bush held an unannounced meeting with the Soviet ambassador, who slipped into the White House through a back door this morning. The envoy delivered a message to Bush from Soviet President Gorbachev but Bush declined to reveal its contents... saying it was ''confidential.'' But he added it was a ''very, very good'' letter.

In Bangladesh, authorities say 25 people were killed and 100 others injured today when a fire swept a garment factory outside the capital of Dhaka. Officials and state-run television say the victims became trapped behind locked doors left unattended by gatekeepers. Authorities say the blaze apparently was ignited by an electrical short circuit.

The Soviet Union's first vice president is a career Communist Party official. The 53-year-old Gennady Yanayev was elected today after a narrow first-ballot defeat by the Congress of People's Deputies. Some liberal lawmakers charge Yenayev is an old-style conservative who would slow government reform.

Israel's high court today issued an injunction blocking the deportation of four Palestinians from the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip. A lawyer for the Palestinians appealed the expulsions one hour before the deadline set this week by a military panel. The four deny they pose a threat to Israel's security and call the deportation decision politically inspired.

The federal government is claiming victory in unplugging obstacles that have delayed the flow of money to states to battle the drug crisis. The government reported today it has sent states nearly four-point-five BILLION dollars in anti-drug block grants since 1987. But the U-S Conference of Mayors says the money is NOT trickling down to the cities.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 27) UPI - Hotel-casino concern Caesars World Inc. said Thursday it has completed the final part of a two-step acquisition of Caesars New Jersey Inc. in a $3.3 million transaction for 0.9 percent of Caesars New Jersey stock.

As a result of the deal, Caesars New Jersey is now a wholly owned subsidiary of Caesars World. The listing of Caesars New Jersey's shares on the American Stock Exchange will be discontinued.

The merger follows the recently completed $45.8 million tender offer by Caesars World for the 14 percent of Caesars New Jersey stock it did not already own. The $22.25 a share tender offer boosted Caesars World holdings of Caesars New Jersey shares to approximately 99.1 percent.

Caesars World, which operates two Nevada and one New Jersey casino, earned $36.8 million, or $1.52 a share, for the fiscal year ended July 31, with revenues of $870.2 million.

EL PASO, Texas (DEC. 27) UPI - The question of who will be Southern Cal's starting quarterback against Michigan State in the John Hancock Bowl remained unanswered Thursday.

Todd Marinovich, the Trojans' starting quarterback in 1989 and for eight games this season, is questionable to start the New Year's Eve contest because of a nagging ear ailment.

His backup Shane Foley, who started two games this year, was arrested at 2 a.m. last Monday on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct after an incident involving a cab driver in Orange County, Calif.

Foley made the trip to El Paso and practiced with the team during its first workout Thursday in the Sun Bowl Stadium.

Coach Larry Smith said Foley, a 6-foot-2, 200- pound fifth-year senior from Newport Beach, Calif., has been restricted to the team's hotel and can only leave the facility for practice and team functions. Smith said if Foley breaks any of these rules, he will be sent home immediately.

''He's just like the rest of us, he's human,'' Smith said. ''This doesn't mean his crud, scum or a bad person. He brought dishonor upon himself and his team, and he has to live with it.''

Smith said Foley will not start against the Spartans, but would be available to play.

The game on Monday matches the 18th- ranked Trojans, 8-3-1, against the 20th-ranked Spartans, 7-3-1. Both teams are making their first appearance in the El Paso bowl game.

Marinovich and Foley worked with the first team during Thursday's practice and it is likely Marinovich will be ready by Monday.

Foley would still be the top backup and he said he did not think his being arrested would affect the team's preparations for the game.

''I think it was just an unfortunate situation,'' he said in a brief statement after practice. ''I used poor judgment and I feel badly about it. I feel like I let my family down, myself down, and the team, so to speak, as well.

''Coach Smith talked it over with my family and it jeapordized the possiblity of me starting the football game, but I'm still going to have the opportunity to play. Right now I'm just going to put that behind me and go on with the game.''

Foley started games against Arizona State and California, and completed 26 of 38 passes for 313 yards and two touchdowns.

His start against Arizona State came after Marinovich has been benched for skipping class. Marinovich started against Oregon State, but Foley played all but five series in the game, including the entire second half.

Marinovich, UPI's Freshman of the Year in 1989, played in 11 games this season, completing 178 of 292 passes for 2,249 yards and 12 touchdowns.

If Marinovich or Foley do not start, Smith has several options.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 27) UPI - Israel's high court issued an injunction Thursday blocking the deportation of four Palestinians from the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip.

The Palestinians' lawyer appealed the expulsions Thursday, one hour before the deportation deadline set this week by a military panel.

In their appeal, the Palestinians denied posing a threat to Israel's security and called the decision to deport them politically inspired. They also said the deportation orders violated international conventions.

High Court Justice Shoshana Netanyahu issued the injunction prohibiting the deportations until the case is heard, most likely next week, by a panel of three high court judges.

The four Gaza Strip residents were arrested and immediately ordered deported Dec. 15 during a crackdown on hundreds of Palestinians suspected of taking part in an outlawed Islamic Resistance Movement.

Israel's high court has ruled that mass expulsions are prohibited under Article 49 of the Fourth Geneva convention, but the deportation of individuals as security measures is permitted.

Since the start of the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising, Israel has deported 58 Palestinians from the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass. (DEC. 27) UPI - Tom Coughlin, an assistant coach with the NFC East champion New York Giants, was chosen Thursday as the next head football coach at Boston College, apparently ending a bizarre search for a successor to fired Jack Bicknell.

Coughlin, 44, a seventh-year NFL coach who has trained the Giants receivers since 1988, was one of Bicknell's original assistants when he came to Boston College in 1981.

Bicknell was dismissed last month after the Eagles finished their fourth straight losing season.

Coughlin is BC's third choice for the post. Virginia Tech's Frank Beamer, the Eagles' first pick, withdrew his name from consideration on Dec. 17. Then, Jimmye Laycock of William & Mary rejected the job Dec. 20, one day after accepting it.

BC Athletic Director Chet Gladchuk praised Coughlin as a ''highly dedicated and respected professional'' and predicted he would bring the Eagles ''to new levels of accomplishment.''

''I am especially impressed with the profesional intensity he has displayed, and the results he has achieved, at every level of competition throughout his career,'' said Gladchuk, who made no reference to Beamer or Laycock.

Giants' head coach Bill Parcells echoed Gladchuck's assessment, saying Coughlin ''has meant a great deal to our offense.''

''He has certainly been one of the top assistant coaches I have ever had on my staff,'' Parcells said.

Coughlin, a former running back for Syracuse and team captain who played alongside Larry Csonka and Floyd Little in the mid 1960s, began his coaching career as an assistant at the Rochester Institute of Technology in 1970 and became the school's head coach the following year.

He returned to Syracuse in 1974 as an assistant and later offensive coordinator under Frank Maloney. He went to BC in 1980, where he served as quarterback coach for four seasons, training Doug Flutie, the 1984 Heisman Trophy winner.

Coughlin began his NFL career that same year as receivers coach with the Philadelphia Eagles. He joined the Green Bay Packers in the same capacity in 1986 and moved to the Giants in 1988.

Bicknell, who was fired Nov. 27, had a 59-55-1 record in his 10 years atBoston College, but was only 14-30 in the last four seasons, including 4-7 in 1990.

After Beamer withdrew from consideration, Boston College reportedly offered Laycock $160,000 a year to coach the Eagles, compared to his estimated $70,000 salary at William & Mary, where Laycock compiled an 11-year mark of 68-56-2, the best in the school's history.

Laycock accepted, but called Gladchuk early the next morning, Dec. 20, to tell him he had changed his mind ''purely on personal grounds.''

In Coughlin's three seasons with New York, the Giants have gone 10-6, 12-4 and are 12-3 with one game left - against New England - this season. New York, a strong running team, was seventh in the NFL in passing yardage in 1989 and is 10th this season.

TOKYO (DEC. 27) UPI - The Tokyo Stock Exchange Friday closed out one of its worst years ever with a mild downturn in an abbreviated session.

The key Nikkei average of 225 selected stocks slid 91.99 points to end the year at 23,848.71, down 15,067.16 points, or 38.7 percent, from its 1989 close.

The Nikkei had gained 53.14 points Thursday, but any hopes of a true rally were dashed by exceedingly thin volume.

The broad-based Tokyo Stock Price Index fell 6.73 points to 1,733.83. TOPIX had climbed 10.74 points the day before.

Volume in Friday's two-hour session was estimated at an anemic 180 million shares. Trading in Thursday's full-day session amounted to a light 330 million shares.

The last session of the year began with a surge, as the Nikkei moved up 96 points in the first 15 minutes of trading. But the market reversed course within the first hour as profit-taking set in.

''The last hope for a mini-rally didn't really materialize,'' said Brad Bauer of Barclay's de Zoete Wedd. ''There were clearly people waiting to sell on any rise.''

With many investors already on holiday, trading was lethargic and formless, brokers said.

Those who were left opted for liquidity over the holidays, they said.

The stock market will be closed until a half-day session on Friday, Jan. 4.

Among the losers were blue chip electronics exporters like TDK, which dropped 100 yen to end at 4,200.

Financial stocks bucked the trend and rose. The Bank of Tokyo gained 20 yen to close at 1,080, while Fuji Bank jumped 40 yen to 2,440.

Overall, declining shares outnumbered rising ones by nearly 3:1.

(DEC. 27) UPI - President Bush is ruling out any compromise with Iraq's Saddam Hussein on the Persian Gulf crisis. The president told reporters at the White House today that the United States is prepared to implement the U-N resolutions- quote- ''totally without conditions.''

Bush declared there will be ''NO compromise on anything,'' expecially on the January 15th U-N-imposed deadline for Iraqi troops to leave Kuwait. Earlier, Bush played down reports U-S troops in the Gulf won't be ready for combat by the deadline, saying ''the situation is just right.''

In another development, Jordanian troops reportedly are massing at the Israeli border in anticipation that Israel might cross over its territory to strike Iraq should war erupt in the Gulf. Cairo radio says Jordan has deployed troops along the Jordan river.

The report conincides with reports that Israeli troops have been put on a heightened state of alert in the wake of threats by Saddam Hussein that the Israeli city of Tel Aviv will be his first target if he's attacked by U-S-led forces.

(DEC. 27) UPI - President Bush says the situation is ''just right'' for U-S troops to go to war in the Persian Gulf. Bush's remarks were in response to reports American forces won't be ready for combat by January 15th, the U-N deadline for Iraq to get out of Kuwait. Bush also reiterated that the United States won't compromise with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in the standoff. He says he's prepared to implement- quote- ''without conditions'' the U-N resolution authorizing military force to remove Iraq from Kuwait.

(DEC. 27) UPI - The State Department reports NO significant progress in the search for an acceptable date for direct high-level talks between the United States and Iraq. State Department spokesman Mark Dillen says after weeks of almost daily contacts, there will be NO new U-S proposals for another set of dates for the talks. Dillen adds- ''The ball's in Iraq's court.'' But reports from Baghdad indicate Iraq has lost interest in the talks because of Washington's position NOT to negotiate around the U-N mandate.

In Baghdad, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is again calling for ''serious'' talks with the United States as long as the Palestinian issue is on the agenda. NEW YORK (DEC. 27) UPI - ABC edged out NBC in the ratings race last week, with Dolly Parton's Christmas special and Monday Night Football giving some holiday cheer to the network.

Although NBC had the highest rated show with ''Cheers,'' ABC's Monday Night Football took second place for the week of Dec. 17-23. ABC also had the fourth and fifth-highest rated shows with the Dolly Parton special and ''Roseanne.''

For the week, ABC posted an 12.6 rating and a 22 share, while NBC posted an 11.9 rating and a 20 share. CBS was slightly behind, with an 11.7 rating and a 20 share.

Ratings watchers said ABC's ratings were boosted by a special Saturday night playing of ''Monday Night Football,'' which came in 47th place for the week. Despite its ranking near the middle of the pack, the game still outperformed ABC's traditional Saturday night fare of ''Twin Peaks'' and ''The Young Riders '' helping to push the network's weekly numbers to the top.

NBC, however, could take some credit for the continued strong performance of ''Cheers.'' The show, a repeat, came in first with a 19.0 rating and a 32 share. It marked the 10th time in the 14-week season the show has placed first.

The NBC Monday night movie, ''A Mom for Christmas,'' came in seventh in the ratings, with a 17.0 rating and a 27 share.

The network also had three other shows in the top 10: ''A Different World,'' which came in sixth, ''Golden Girls,'' which came in eighth, and ''Unsolved Mysteries,'' the 10th-highest rated show of the week.

Fox Television came in fourth in the weekly tally, with a 6.4 rating and an 11 share. It's best-rated show, ''The Simpsons,'' was ranked 34th, with 12.9 rating and a 21 share.

Each ratings point represents about 921,000 households. A share is the percentage of TV sets in use that are tuned to a particular show or network.

The top 10 programs for the week ending Sunday, Dec. 16, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. Cheers (NBC)

2. NFL Monday Night Football (ABC)

3. 60 Minutes (CBS)

4. Dolly Parton Christmas special (ABC)

5. Roseanne (ABC)

6. A Different World (NBC)

7. NBC Monday Night Movie ''A Mom for Christmas'' (NBC)

HOLLYWOOD (DEC. 27) UPI - Moviegoers plunked down more than $4.71 billion for tickets this year through Christmas Day, less than 2 percent behind last year's record-setting pace of $4.79 billion at the same juncture.

Last year's final total hit $5.03 billion, while this year's _ bolstered by the recent successes of ''The Godfather Part III'' and ''Home Alone'' _ will probably close at more than $4.9 billion.

The third installment of the ''Godfather'' saga set a Christmas record with a $6.4 million gross in its debut.

The top 10 films pulled in a total of $66.8 million over the five-day Christmas weekend, up a sharp 78 percent from last year's four-day weekend total of $37.6 million. This year's Christmas weekend was also up 40 percent over the $47.6 million taken in during the previous three- day weekend.

For the week, films grossed $93.4 million, up from $83.4 million for the year-ago week, Daily Variety reported Thursday. The same week in 1988 saw a $95 million gross.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 27) UPI - Entertainment giant MCA Inc. took some of the final steps Thursday toward completing Matsushita Electric Industrial Co.'s $6.6 billion buyout of the company.

The deal, the largest acquisition of an American company by a Japanese concern could be finalized as early as next week. It will give Matsushita, the world's largest consumer electronics company, an impressive array of American assets, including Universal Studios theme parks, Universal Pictures, MCA Television, G.P. Putnam's Sons publishing and 420 acres in Hollywood.

MCA said Thursday that it had filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for the spin-off of its WWOR-TV station to shareholders, as had been planned.

Shareholders will receive stock in the new publicly traded company called Pinelands Inc., with its shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

MCA also said it was in the process of notifying the holders of its 92.8 million shares of the Pinelands distribution.

Matsushita, as a foreign company, is barred from owning more than 20 percent of a U.S. television station. MCA bought WWOR, an independent TV-cable ''superstation'' based in Seacaucus, N.J., for $387 million in 1987.

The spin-off of the station will take place immediately prior to consummation of Matsushita's $66-a-share cash tender offer for MCA. Analysts had said WWOR would be worth between $3 and $5 a share and could be sold to another major media-entertainment company such as Walt Disney Co. or Paramount Communications.

In a separate announcement, Matsushita said Thursday that it would not extend the tender offer, which is scheduled to expire on Saturday at 12:01 a.m., New York time.

MCA spokeswoman Christine Hanson said the new Pinelands Inc. stock could begin trading without certificates _ also known as a ''when- issued'' basis _ as early as next Monday.

MCA's stock has been gaining this week as investors become more assured the deal will go through. That confidence was bolstered by disclosures that the Federal Communications Commission had approved the spin-off and the European Economic Community announcement that it would not extend a deadline to investigate the deal.

MCA gained 25 cents Monday and 37.5 cents Wednesday, then rose $0.625 to close at $68.50 a share Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

One analyst said that the stock could rise even further before the deal is completed.

''Now that the deal seems likely to go through, it appears that people are trying to value the television station at about $3 to $3.50 a share,'' said entertainment analyst Jeffrey Logsdon of Seidler Amdec Securities in Los Angeles.

MCA has settled all but one of a half-dozen shareholder suits filed in opposition to the deal, and a hearing has been set for Friday in Los Angeles on the remaining litigation.

There is one other potential roadblock to closing the deal _ the disposition of MCA's Yosemite Park & Curry Co. concession. Matsushita has pledged to sell the unit within a year, but Secretary of the Interior Manuel Lujan has asked that it be donated, despite its price tag of $100 million to $200 million.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 28) BUSINESS WIRE - A new cold wave settling on California this weekend, combined with earlier record low December temperatures, has sent natural gas and electricity usage to record levels, setting the stage for higher PG&E bills in the days ahead, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. said Friday.

PG&E's 3.4 million natural gas customers used almost 4.1 billion cubic feet of natural gas on Friday, Dec. 21, breaking a record that had stood for almost 19 years. Residential gas use for the month of December is expected to be the heaviest for any month in PG&E history, and twice as high as December 1989.

Electric use has also been heavy. On Dec. 20, peak electric demand hit 15.1 million kilowatts, an all-time fall-winter season record for PG&E's northern and central California service area.

''Each year, our customers' bills for December are among the highest of the year because of cold weather and the extra energy that is used for cooking, lighting and other purposes during the holiday season,'' said John Keyser, PG&E vice president - marketing and customer services. ''For this December, they will be substantially higher than usual, due to the weather.''

Should any customers need to make special arrangements to pay their bills, Keyser advised them to contact their local PG&E offices. The telephone number of the office to call is on each customer's bill.

Actual bills will vary widely, depending on the size of the residence, the type of insulation installed, the number of people in the household, thermostat settings, and other factors.

Special PG&E programs to assist customers include these:

-- Project REACH provides financial assistance for customers unable to pay their bills because of low income or disability. REACH is funded by PG&E shareholders and voluntary customer and employee contributions. Call either PG&E or the Salvation Army for information.

-- Medical Baseline: Customers can apply for increased baseline quantities if they are suffering from a medical disability.

-- Low-income customers who qualify for PG&E's Low-Income Rate Assistance Program (LIRA) can get a 15 percent discount on their monthly energy bill.

Customers can limit the impact of cold weather on their bills by practicing energy efficiency at every opportunity, Keyser said. Customers can save as much as 20 percent on heating bills by keeping thermostats at 68 degrees during the day and turning them to 55 or off at night, if health and comfort permit.

PG&E has always offered assistance in managing energy use, and the company has recently stepped up its energy efficiency programs. All PG&E customers -- residential, commercial, industrial and agricultural -- can benefit because there are programs tailored for each segment.

PG&E assistance to residential customers includes advice for do-it-yourself efforts, such as:

-- Ask your local PG&E office for a Do-It-Yourself Home Energy Survey. Fill it out and return it to PG&E and a customized report will be sent showing exactly where energy and money can be saved.

-- Heating costs can be cut by up to 25 percent by installing ceiling insulation if not already installed, or by increasing the insulation if there is not enough.

-- Heating bills can also be trimmed by as much as 10 percent if the homwowner weatherstrips doors and windows and caulks windows, door frames, pipes and ducts.

PENNSAUKEN, NJ (DEC. 28) BUSINESS WIRE - Brian R. Esher, president and chief executive officer of Environmental Control Group Inc. (NASDAQ:ECGI) has informed the company's board of directors of his intention to leave the company early in 1991.

When Esher joined ECG in the fall of 1989, it was experiencing losses, and he began a complete reorganization of the company. The company posted losses of $5.7 million that year, which caused technical defaults under its loan agreement with its banks. In 1990, the company has reported profits for each of the first three quarters, and the technical defaults in the loan have been eliminated.

Esher said, ''The company's balance sheet has been strengthened, and we have had good relations with the banks. In December, for instance, we reached a new low in our level of bank debt, which is now below $5 million.

''Fourteen months ago when I joined ECG, it was almost $16 million.'' Esher said he would now like to move on to explore other opportunities.

''The fact that the company has been able to operate profitably and maintain positive cash flow during the first three quarters of 1990, a time of industry downturn and general economic recession, reflects well on the ECG management team,'' Esher said. ''I believe this team will move through this orderly transition with the same competence and dedication they have demonstrated so far this year.''

Esher's announcement comes after the company's earlier announcement that its chief financial officer, Anthony J. Gurley, had also been named chief operating officer and assumed responsibility for the daily planning and administrative operations of all ECG subsidiaries. The board of directors is currently seeking a new CEO.

ECG provides a broad range of products and services related to the control and abatement of solid hazardous wastes in commercial, industrial and public buildings.
